CALIFORNIA UNIQUE IN STATES' SISTERHOOD NATIVE SONS NOT BOASTFUL—GRATEFUL FOR THEIR HERITAGE

Edward J. Lynch

(GRAND PRESIDENT NATIVE SONS GOLDEN WEST.)

THE STRANGER WITHIN OUR GATES may fairly ask "What is the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West; what does it stand for; is its existence justified by its ideals and accomplishments, or could its work be just as well carried on by other organizations?" Answers to these questions have been published on many occasions by eminent and public-spirited citizens affiliated with the organization.

A few weeks ago W. B. Shearer, a patriotic American who came here from Washington, D. C. to address the public on "Our National Debates," opened his address in San Francisco with the following declaration. "The Native Sons of the Golden West is more than an organization of the State of California. It is an American association, which the rest of the United States should endorse and copy, organize and maintain, to hold California for the White race stands for and insists upon complete Americanism."

In one of the late volumes published under the authority of the University of California, the author, Dr. Charles Edward Chapman, makes the following acknowledgment of the assistance rendered by the Native Sons in research and historical work: "The Native Sons of the Golden West have the unique distinction of being perhaps the only internal society in the United States which devote their efforts and funds to the promotion of state history. In doing they are taking the logical course springing out of the circumstances of their birth and membership."

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, the head of the History Department of the University of California, has said that the flowships in Pacific Coast history, maintained by the Native Sons of the Golden West, are the keystone of the post-graduate work in Western American History at the University. These are but a few of the many complimentary references to the splendid work being done by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

The Order of Native Sons of the Golden West came into existence fifty years ago in the City of San Francisco. California was then young, and the glamour of the "days of '49" still lingered in the minds of all Californians. Having passed through one of the great heroic periods of the world's history, they realized that in the course of time the large population attracted to California by her wealth and climate might become indifferent to the glories of California's past and substitute the traditions of other men and places for the beautiful and romantic story of California, unless some concerted action was taken to preserve the historic memories of the past and keep alive the spirit of California.

California has been an indulgent and bountiful mother to her children, and all Californians are proud of her history and zealous for her development, both commercial and cultural. Into the story of California has been woven those wonderful narratives of adventure, discovery, colonization and romance, ever since Marco Polo startled Christendom with his tale of adventures to Cathay and the far eastern countries of Asia and spurred on the hardy navigators of Spain on their great voyages of discovery. At that time, and for many years thereafter, it was a belief that a direct route by water lay westward, between Spain and the Indies. The king of Spain had directed his representatives in the Americas to renew the efforts that had been made to discover this passageway by water, and it was while carrying out his orders that Cabrillo, one of the greatest navigators sailing under the Spanish flag, steered his vessel into the Harbor of San Diego in 1542—only fifty years after the discovery of America. Cabrillo planted the banner of Castile and Aragon upon the shores of this beautiful harbor and claimed all of the western coast of America for his royal sovereign. He did not succeed in finding the mythical passageway, and gave up his life in the attempt. His grave lies unmarked on the bleak shores of the Santa Barbara Islands. Other adventurers tory of any other state in the union. Here, on their vast estates, dwelt the proud descendants of the Conquistadores, those valiant soldiers of Spain whose exploit, dreams and then the greatest fighters of their time and who, although few in number, were able, amid strange and barbarous peoples and against odds that seemed hopeless, to found a score of empires in the New World.

The early Californians, proud and courteous, had a code of hospitality more extravagant than that of any other people in history. Their generosity exceeded anything the world had ever known. No weary traveler was ever turned away from their gates, and even the poor wanderer was accorded the same treatment which might be shown to an honored guest. Every wish was anticipated and gratified, and strangers were entertained for weeks without charge. It was an era of idyllic ease—of entertainment, music, dancing and enjoyment destined to be soon disrupted by another migration. But these early Californians and their forefathers had brought to the West those imperishable gifts of romance and song, as well as the imagination of the Crusader, the artist and the discoverer, and the creative genius for art of the Latin peoples, whose masterpieces have excelled those of every race the world has ever known. These characteristics have become an essential part of the California temperament.

Following this epoch came the great era of American Pioneers. Commencing in 1840, these courageous men and women commenced their journeys across the continent through an unknown land, braving the perils of deserts, mountains and savage tribes, that they might find their way into the promised land beyond the Sierras. This migration began some years before the discovery of gold and is in itself a fascinating and entrancing story. The heroism, loyalty and devotion which marked the conduct of the Pioneers, together with their indomitable spirit and the many sacrifices made by them, appeal to all Californians. Their memory is held sacred by every Native Son and Native Daughter of the Golden West, who have pledged themselves to forever safeguard and protect the heritage which has been handed down to them.

It may be that the blending of the virtues and characteristics of the early Californians and the later Pioneers has made California unique in the sisterhood of states. Here are the descendants of the daring and courageous of all the races of Europe, welded together into one great people, inheriting the genius for art of the Latin people, the perseverance and deliberative spirit of the Teuton, the imagination and the poetry of the Celt. One of the most remarkable features of California history is the prompt and efficient manner in which the state was organized and brought under the administration of law and order.

California stands alone, as one historian has said, in the history of political governments and the growth of commonwealths in the United States. It is, for one thing, the only example wherein a people far from similar in characteristics or homogeneous in origin and habits, living unrestrained lives in a nonorganized territory, have organized and put into successful operation, in accordance with the light of their own wisdom and without anarchy or disorder, a permanent and prosperous state. This was came and went, and the golden argosies, on their voyages from the Indies, skirted its shores, but no settlement was made until 1769, when the Franciscan missionaries, under the leadership of the beloved Father Junipero Serra, after perilous voyages by land and sea joined forces at San Diego and began the establishment of the California missions, which have colored the history and added to the fame of the Golden State throughout the world.

Of all the epochs in the story of mankind, idealized by poetry and fiction, the period between the foundation of the missions and the discovery of gold was probably the most idyllic. Those years have a most peculiar and appealing charm to all Californians. Beginning with the mission period, which marks a most important epoch in the history of the state, and followed by that more romantic period known as the "splendid idle forties," we have at once a theme, spiritual and heroic, which cannot be excelled by the his-

(SECRETARY SAN BERNARDINO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

THE NATIVE SONS OF THE GOLDEN West are holding their 1925 annual state convention in San Bernardino. The year 1925 marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission into the union and also the fiftieth anniversary of the Order of Native Sons. Thus it is a diamond jubilee year and a golden anniversary year for the state and it is particularly fitting and appropriate that the Native Sons should meet here in San Bernardino on this occasion. San Bernardino is one of the oldest communities in the State of California, founded long before the discovery of gold and the advent of the White man.

The early history of the San Bernardino Valley is marked by the heroism and devotion of the mission padres, the romance of the early Spanish settlers, the adventure of the goldseeker and the never-tiring loyalty of the Pioneer. It is a history in which all the American people take a keen interest. The history of the San Bernardino Valley begins with the coming of the missionary padres into the valley.

As early as 1774, Juan Batista de Anza, captain of the Presidio of Tubas, was directed by the viceroy to open a road between Sonora in Mexico and Monterey in California. He came from the Colorado River to San Gabriel across the desert from the southeast to the northwest, by a route practically the same as that now followed by the Southern Pacific railway—by the way of Yuma, San Geronio Pass and through the San Bernardino Valley. The Anza his honor.

They found here an ideal location. The valley was well watered and luxuriant with springtime verdure. The Indian name of the valley, Guachama, when translated, signified "a place of plenty to eat." The Indians inhabiting this section of the valley were known as Guachama Indians, and had here a populous rancheria. A number of other rancherias were scattered member of that historic little band led by Father Junipero Serra, who, on the 16th day of July, 1769, founded the first mission and White settlement in the State of California, at San Diego. At the time of the founding of the capilla at San Bernardino, Padre Dumetz was the last living survivor of that memorable band. The capilla of San Bernardino de Sienna has long since crumbled into ruins and decay, and not even a trace of the original settlement remains. The site, however, is marked by a historic monument and bronze mission bell placed there in 1910 by the citizens of San Bernardino.

The American colonization of the San Bernardino Valley began with the coming of the Mormons under Captain Jefferson Hunt. In the spring of 1850, Captain Hunt made a trip to California from Salt Lake City, coming by the way of southern Utah and the Mojave Desert, and entering the San Bernardino Valley by Cajon Pass—the first White man to enter the valley by this route, now the most traveled gateway into all of Southern California. Captain Hunt returned to Salt Lake City the same year and began agitating the question of the formation of a colony of Mormons to locate in San Bernardino Valley. This coincided with the plans of Brigham Young, who encouraged the move and used his influence in furtherance of the plan.

In March, 1851, a large party of emigrants, consisting of about 500 persons, with cattle, horses, etc., left Salt Lake for San Bernardino Valley. This train was under command of Captain Hunt, who was to take the lead and pilot them through to their destination. As it was impossible for them to travel as one company, on account of the scarcity of forage and water, crossing the desert, the train was divided up into three sections. The first, under Captain Hunt, came into the San Bernardino Valley and camped at Sycamore Grove, at the mouth of Cajon Pass, on the 24th day of June, 1851. Amasa Lyman and Charles C. Rich, members of this party, at once opened negotiations with the Lugos for the purchase of the Rancho de San Bernardino.

Under the thrifty management of the Mormons, the beautiful valley blossomed in marvelous productivity. Gradually others came into the San Bernardino Valley, the sturdy Pioneers of the fifties and sixties, wanting on a place to establish a home, and they were not disappointed. The broad avenues and wide straight streets of today are a direct heritage of the early Mormons who laid out the City of San Bernardino.

The growth and prosperity of California has been reflected in every community in the state and San Bernardino has had its share of good fortune. The city of today still has the glamour of the early romance of the pioneer and the goldseeker, but yet its commercial life and advancement is a far cry from those early days. To tell you something of San Bernardino and its remarkable growth during the last few years, I believe will be of interest, particularly to the men who make up the membership of the Native Sons, an organization noted for the particular pride taken in the development of this state and every community therein.

San Bernardino has for many years been aptly termed "the gateway of Southern California" and it is so known to the auto travelers and the passengers on the transcontinental railroad for it is here that they first enter California, we know it. The National Old Trails highway, the Arrowhead trail, the Ocean-to-Ocean highway and the Sunkist trail all center in San Bernardino after crossing the state line and the long stretches of desert that lie within its boundaries before the productive area is reached. This is equally true of the transcontinental railway systems. From this advantageous location springs one of the causes of the continuous growth and development of this city, which has been given a new name within recent years—"the leading inland city of the south."

San Bernardino is also the gateway to the famous "101 mile drive on the rim of the world" in the San Bernardino Mountains, famed to the world over for its magnificent mountain scenery, its two wonderful lakes—Big Bear and Lake Arrowhead—the summer playground of Southern California. During the past year the official figures given out by the United States Forestry Service show that more than one million expedition was an extensive outfit—240 persons, men, women and Indians, and 1,050 beasts. They entered the valley on the 15th day of March, 1774—the first White men to enter the San Bernardino Valley.

San Gabriel Mission became an important stopping place on the road, and the first place where supplies could be procured after crossing the desert. In the course of time, as travel over this road increased, it was arranged to establish a supply station at some intermediate point between the mission and the Sierras on the north, in order to lessen the hardships of this journey by providing travelers with a place where they might rest and obtain food and drink. With this object in view, a party of missionaries, soldiers and Indians from San Gabriel Mission, under the leadership of Padre Dumetz, were sent out to select a location. On the 20th day of May, 1810, they came into the San Bernardino Valley. This, according to the Roman Calendar of Saints, was the feast of San Bernardino of Sienna, and they named the valley in throughout the valley, each bearing a name significant of the place where it was situated.

The supply station was located at the Guachama rancheria, which was near the place now known as Bunker Hill, between Urbana Springs and Colton. The location was chosen on account of the abundance of water in that vicinity. Here a "capilla" was built, which was dedicated to San Bernardino, the patron saint of the valley. After completing the building of the station the padres returned to San Gabriel, leaving the chapel station and a large quantity of supplies in charge of neophyte soldiers, under command of a trustworthy Indian named Hipolito. The settlement or rancheria of mission Indians, taking its name for this chief, became known as Politana. During the next two years the padres made frequent visits to the capilla, the Guachama Indians were friendly, grain was planted, and the settlement was in a fair way to prosper.

REJECTION OF CALIFORNIA INDIAN TREATIES

A STUDY IN LOCAL INFLUENCE ON NATIONAL POLICY

Prof. W. H. Ellison

(STATE TEACHERS' COLLEGE, SANTA BARBARA.)

ON JANUARY 18, 1905, THE SENATE of the United States removed from the eighteen Indian treaties and accompanying documents the injunction of secrecy which had been maintained since the treaties had been considered in executive session and rejected in 1852. The story of their rejection, with which this study is primarily concerned, brings to light an interesting series of events, and is an illustration of the responsiveness of national officials to local sentiment in the states. In addition, it furnishes a useful study of the attitude of a superior people toward backward peoples, and emphasizes how ethical ideas in civilized society are shaped largely by economic forces.

The making of the treaties, whose rejection is to be studied and presented here, was an aftermath of the occupation of California by the United States on July 7, 1846. This occupation had important consequences for the history of Indian affairs in the United States. Indirectly, it had much to do with the breaking of what was supposed to be an established Indian frontier by furnishing later a magnet of attraction for thousands of persons who broke through the lands held by Indians under sacred treaties in order to reach the promised land; and directly, it added to the burdens of Indian administration another Indian problem. This problem was one of rather large proportions and some difficulty, for, in addition to the complications resulting from the character and previous history of the California Indians, their number was still large at the beginning of American occupation in spite of great losses through recent pestilences and contact with the Whites.

There is no way to find out the exact number of Indians in California when the United States took possession, but the best authorities now agree that it was large. When all available facts are considered, it seems safe to say that in 1846 at least 100,000, and possibly as many as 125,000, Indians inhabited what is now California.

The adjustment between this large body of Indians and the Whites, whose numbers were to increase with great rapidity, was of course not made without great difficulty. Here, as in practically every other part of the United States where the Whites took possession of lands occupied by, or in proximity to, the Indians, the government had a dual task. On the one hand, it had to guard the Whites who pressed in upon the territory against outrages by the Indians; and on the other, it had to protect the Indians against the rapacity and cruelty of the Whites.

Up to 1849, the American population was small, but there was considerable friction with the Indians. This was due principally to the marauding activities of the natives who sought food, and to the drunken habits of some who suffered from the perverted judgment of the Whites who supplied them with intoxicating liquors. Between 1846 and 1849, there was a real Indian problem, and the civil and military authorities showed commendable zeal and a measure of intelligence in handling it.

In 1849, the Federal Government took steps looking toward the development of an Indian policy for California. It was planned to put the Indian administration in that remote region on a civil basis as soon as possible. In order to do this, information of conditions there was needed. This could only be secured by intelligent investigation. Certain officials were therefore asked to secure information on the field and to report their findings to the department in Washington. Thomas Butler King was appointed by the president to study conditions in California, and to secure information concerning the natives there; Adam Johnston was named Indian subagent on the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers; and William Carey Jones was sent out, under instructions from the secretary of state and the secretary of the interior specifically to study land titles, but as a part of his duties, he was to make inquiry into the nature of Indian rights as existing under the Spanish and Mexican governments, to indicate from authoritative data the difference between the privileges enjoyed by the wandering tribes and those who had made "actual settlements" and established "rancherios," and to report the general form, extent and locality of such settlements, together with the manner in which Indian rights in them had been recognized.

While these officials were preparing to take up their respective duties in California, changes were taking place in that region which were to have an important bearing on the Indian problem. Gold had been discovered in 1848, and in 1849 tens of thousands of people were pouring into the country. The Indians were crowded from their accustomed haunts, hostilities between Indians and goldseekers became frequent, and the Indian problem assumed larger proportions. The difficulties in handling the situation were increased for the military authorities by the continual desertion of soldiers to engage in the wild scramble for gold. General Riley made the best distribution of troops that seemed possible, but he was not able, under the circumstances, to prevent injustice to the Indians, retaliation on their part, and consequent bitter feelings between the races.

The men who were appointed to look into, and to undertake certain duties with respect to, Indian affairs in California, reached the field of their labors in the summer and fall of 1849. Reports and recommendations were made by them to Washington in 1850. In these are found suggestions that concentration of natives for the purpose of teaching them, in some degree, the arts of civilization, and the establishment of depots at various points for the distribution of supplies to them might be wise policy. General Riley had also made a recommendation that, as far as practicable, the Indians of California should be concentrated in districts over which the United States should have exclusive jurisdiction.

As a result of the information and suggestions received from California, and because of a desire to act for the best interests of both Indians and Whites, but with little understanding of conditions in that remote region, Congress passed, and the president approved, on September 28, 1850, "An act to authorize the appointment of Indian agents in California." On September 30, a measure became law appropriating $25,000 to enable the president to make treaties with the various Indian tribes of California. Redick McKee of Virginia, George W. Barbour of Kentucky and O. M. Wozencraft of Louisiana were appointed as the Indian agents, or, as they came to be designated, Indian commissioners for California, and they left at once for the field of their activities.

Doctor Wozencraft and family arrived in San Francisco on December 27, 1850, Colonel McKee on December 29, and Colonel Barbour on January 8, 1851. Early in February, and after consultation with the governor of California and members of the Legislature, who were much disturbed because of depredations by Indians and the exaggerated reports of these which had reached them, the commissioners, accompanied by a military escort under Captain Keyes, set out for the Indian country in the San Joaquin Valley.

Their first treaties were made with six Indian tribes in the region of the Mariposa River on March 19. In return for relinquishment of claims to lands occupied by them, the Indians were given for their exclusive use a large tract of land between the Merced and Tuolumne Rivers. On April 29, a treaty was made with sixteen bands, or tribes, on the upper San Joaquin River. To these also was given a tract of land for their occupancy. In both of these cases, as in all subsequent treaties, the United States was to have jurisdiction over all the land set apart as reservations. To the tribes going on the reservations, promises were given to supply them with large quantities of food and other supplies. The policy of granting supplies, the Indian department was informed, would have to be followed throughout the state, for according to the views of the commissioners, "it is cheaper to feed the whole flock for a year than to fight them for a week." In accordance with their ideas of the necessities of the situation, the commissioners began at once the policy of contracting, in the name of the United States, for large numbers of cattle and quantities of supplies to be delivered to the reservations being created.

On May 1, acting under the permission of their instructions, the commissioners divided the Indian country among themselves. To each was assigned a division chosen by lot. "The northern district, or the portion of the State north of 40° or 41° of latitude, until it reached the headwaters of the Sacramento, fell to McKee. The middle district, extending from San Joaquin to the south to the headwaters of the Sacramento and east of the Coast Range to the eastern boundary of the State, fell to O. M. Wozencraft. The southern district, extending from the San Joaquin south and west, and east to the state boundary, fell to G. W. Barbour."

The commissioners went into their respective districts, and each made treaties with bands, or tribes, of Indians. Large tracts of land were set apart for the use of the natives. Contracts were let for supplies to the amount of nearly one million dollars. Barbour's services ended October 4, 1851, when he left San Francisco to go to Washington and to visit his family in Tennessee. Wozencraft made treaties with many Indians in the central district, and in addition, he made treaties with Indians south of Los Angeles. Barbour's district after Barbour left California. His services practically came to an end with the completion of these latter treaties. McKee made treaties in the northern district of the same general character as those negotiated by Barbour and Wozencraft. His services came to an end in the early part of 1853 after much controversy with state authorities over the question of the extent, character and causes of Indian disturbances, and with the new head of Indian affairs in California, Edward F. Beale, whose appointment was made when a California superintendency was created just at the time the treaties were facing their crisis in the senate. McKee's difficulties with the superintendent were in part due to his disappointment that another was appointed to the office for which he felt himself eminently fitted.

The chief work of Barbour, Wozencraft and McKee had been the negotiation of treaties with the Indians of California. In all, eighteen treaties were made by them, affecting one hundred and thirty-nine tribes, or bands, of Indians. It is not possible to state with accuracy the number of Indians included in these tribes, but it is safe to say there were not fewer than 25,000. Only a fraction of these, however, were ever taken to the reservations set apart for their use. The reservations set apart for the Indians included a total of 11,700 square miles, or 7,488,000 acres of land. This equals the combined areas of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Delaware and Rhode Island; or, it is about the same as that included in the present Fresno, Alameda, Sacramento and San Diego Counties in California; or, it equals about seven and one-half percent of the total area of the state. The reservations were included in Mariposa, Tuolumne, Butte, Yuba, San Diego, Shasta, Mendocino, Sacramento and Trinity Counties, which at the time had a white population of 119,450.

The Government of the United States authorized the commissioners to make treaties with the Indians. At the time of their appointment $25,000 was appropriated for their uses. Later an additional $25,000 was added. It should be noted that they expected the second appropriation to be $75,000 and made their plans accordingly. The amounts appropriated they consumed as they had a right to do. In addition, they contracted for supplies in the name of the United States which totaled in amount nearly one million dollars. It is to be noted that John C. Fremont and others, who contracted with the commissioners, understood that the contracts were subject to approval or rejection by the authorities at Washington, but they no doubt expected them to be approved. It is difficult to say what extent the commissioners were justified in letting these contracts. Certainly they had no authorization to commit the government in that way. They defended what they did on the ground that it was necessary under the circumstances, and, with a sort of Rooseveltian philosophy, they argued that men set to perform a certain task are not to be condemned for performing the task in the only way it can be done. The attitude of the State of California and of the United States toward their work will be shown in what follows.

The sentiment in California toward the work of the commissioners was divided from the beginning of their labors, and grew increasingly hostile as time went on. At first, a measure of satisfaction was expressed in certain quarters

Because the treaty-making of these agents brought peace on some of the frontiers. Those improving the work of the commissioners regarded the placing of Indians upon reservations, where food was furnished them, thus obviating the necessity for stealing by the Indians in order to live, as an excellent method of preventing predatory war. But more and more doubt was expressed as to the wisdom of giving over valuable lands to undeveloped natives, and especially as to the propriety of making the reservations so exclusively Indian lands as to prevent the digging for gold on them.

By the end of 1851, public statements on the subject of the reservations, while not universally hostile to the plan, were becoming more generally so. Speaking for many, the "Los Angeles Star" held that the action of the Indian agents in setting valuable lands apart for Indian uses was pregnant with most disastrous consequences. "In place," this paper said, "upon our most fertile soil the most degraded race of aborigines from the North American continent; to invest them with the rights of sovereignty, and teach them that they are to be treated as powerful and independent nations, is planting the seeds of future disaster and ruin, with the same certainty of as an abundant harvest as our farmers expect to see on their barley fields in the ensuing season." That the Indians through centuries occupied a part of the land and had access to it of it was ignored, especially as the economic importance of the lands increased. It was continually urged that the treaties gave rights to lands which had never been admitted. The argument was that the Mexicans never recognized the Indians as having property in lands for the very good reason that the Indians did not cultivate and had no idea of the utility of the soil.

There was, to be sure, contrary sentiment. Some thoughtful and high-minded people believed the Indians had rights as human beings which ought to be respected. They contended that the treaties recognized these rights. In addition, by giving the Indians lands on which to live quietly, with opportunity to be weaned from their wild habits, they gave peace and security to the people. A goodly number of such friends of the Indians supported the work of the commissioners until the treaties had been re-

ARROWHEAD PARLOR, N. S. G. W.

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

A RROWHEAD PARLOR NO. 110 WILL be the host to the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West in its home-city, San Bernardino, the week of May 11. Arrowhead stands very high in the estimation of the people of San Bernardino City, who have co-operated with it in every way in making preparations and providing entertainment for the Grand Parlor.

Arrowhead, while not the largest Parlor in the Order, is one of the most substantial. Among its members are many of the leading business and professional men of San Bernardino, as well as several of the city and the county officials. Taken as a whole, a finer lot of "boys" were never banded together in any organization than those who compose Arrowhead. Success marks the Parlor's every undertaking, for there is unity of spirit and action in whatever is undertaken.

When the Grand Parlor members visit Crestline, they will see a monument, erected single-handed by Arrowhead, to the memory of San Bernardino Pioneers, and nearby an attractive clubhouse, constructed by the members from the products of the San Bernardino Mountains. The Parlor owns considerable land about the clubhouse, and cottages, for the use of members, are tution it had 26 members; April 14 of this year its membership was 517, and is steadily increasing. Present officers of Arrowhead include: W. J. McGarvey, junior past president; J. S. Mee, president; J. S. Greene, first vice-president; F. L. Grant, second vice-president; W. J. Smithson, third vice-president; R. W. Brazelton, recording secretary; M. G. Hale, financial secretary; John Andreson Jr., treasurer; A. F. Bemis, marshal; A. E. Hancock, Ed. Poppett, trustees; W. J. Harris, inside sentinel; E. R. Fickas, outside sentinel; Dr. F. M. King, Dr. P. M. Savage, Dr. F. M. Gardner, surgeons; W. H. Greene, L. D. Case, O. P. Obst, M. L. Weeks, musicians. Among other attractions, the Parlor has an orchestra.

Arrowhead has, during its existence, received many expressions of tribute and commendation, but none has been more appreciated than this, from the San Bernardino Society of California Pioneers:

"DEAR NATIVE SONS:

Sons provided them a place in the Native Son Hall on Third street, where the old Pioneer Mothers and Fathers gathered for several years every Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, to enjoy one of their interesting meetings.

"They well remember the cement tables at Camp Cajon, built by our Native Sons and dedicated to the Pioneers, where these venerable Argonauts can meet and enjoy picnics and recall the days of the Santa Fe and Salt Lake Trail. Neither have they forgotten the historic monument erected at Crestline by our Native Sons to forever keep in memory the bravery of the Pioneers who built the first roads and the first sawmills to bring lumber clappboards and posts to start San Bernardino.

"The Pioneers are grateful for these and many other acts of filial devotion bestowed on them by their Native Sons, thus complying with the Divine command, 'Honor thy Father and thy Mother, that thy days may be long in the land the Lord thy God giveth thee.'

"The Pioneers with pleasure refer the Native Sons to that baby covered wagon circulating around the campfire at Hangtown, Orange Show Auditorium, and elsewhere gathering in money from the sale of home-made candy, in charge of Mrs. Zetta Van Leuven Wright. Also the chicken dinners served by Mrs. Laura Clark, both realizing the sum of $26.85. Which sum the Pioneer Society, by unanimous vote, directed its president to deliver to Arrowhead Parlor No. 11 as a feeble testimonial of hearty goodwill and appreciation of the many kind acts referred to.

"Most Respectfully and Fraternally,
"C. J. DALEY, President,
"San Bernardino Society
"California Pioneers.

to be erected thereon. This is the only Parlor in the Order which has a mountain clubhouse, and Arrowhead has set an example which may well be followed by others.

Arrowhead, too, has given freely of its moral and financial support to every civic undertaking in San Bernardino. This month (May) the citizens of San Bernardino County will vote on a bond issue for a new county courthouse. The Parlor has not only endorsed the project, but plans, if the bonds carry, as now appears assured, to erect on a portion of the site—where the historic San Bernardino Fort stood—a fitting monument in memory of the Pioneers who founded and builded San Bernardino. The Parlor also plans to have the site of the Battle of Chino Rancho, in San Bernardino County, suitably marked.

Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 was instituted July 20, 1897, by D.D.G.P. Homer C. Katz, assisted by Los Angeles members of the Order. Dwight W. Fox was the first president and George L. Bryant the first secretary. At the time of insti-

CALIFORNIA'S JUBILEE YEAR

SAN FRANCISCO—ADMISSION DAY, SEPTEMBER 9 of the present year, 1925, marks the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission to statehood. This year, therefore, constitutes California's diamond jubilee.

It is proposed to make the observance of 1925 diamond jubilee year, general throughout the entire State of California, reaching its climax with an elaborate celebration in San Francisco during the week including September 9, Admission Day. A committee of San Francisco citizens has been organized to plan and carry on the celebration in this city, which will occupy period of a week.

The program for the week of celebration, September 5 to September 12, has yet to be finally decided. It will include, however, the following: September 5, opening day, night pageant and reception. September 7, Labor Day, parade symbolic of California's development in production and wealth. September 8, army and navy day, parade and pageantry by land, sea and air, forces of the American Navy and the navies of the world represented by units in San Francisco Bay for the celebration.

September 9, Admission Day, parade and pageantry, day and night, symbolic of California's colorful and romantic history from Spanish occupancy and days of gold until present. September 10, 11 and 12, aviation and naval day receptions to distinguished visitors, orient night, illuminating night parades and pageant balls and fiestas.

It is the intention of the San Francisco committee, which consists of the old Portola celebration committee with many additions, to make the diamond jubilee celebration not only of state and national interest, but of world-wide interest. The features for Admission Day, September 9, are being arranged for by a joint committee of Native Sons and Native Daughters representing all the San Francisco Parlors of both Orders.

The citizens' committee is imbued with a determination to make the celebration of California's diamond jubilee the most momentous occasion in San Francisco's history of fiestas. Its intention is to draw up a program that shall be worthy of the historic importance of the occasion to be celebrated. It is the intention of the committee, also, that the features of the program shall be distributed in a manner to give every part and portion of the state representation.

While the most elaborate and culminating festival of the year will center about the Bay of San Francisco and the Sacramento River next September, it has been decided to make the celebration of California's diamond jubilee statewide in character and importance by linking with it every civic and community festival to be held during the year between San Diego and the northern border.

SAN BERNARDINO ENTERTAINMENT PROGRAM

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

WHEN THE MEMBERS OF THE Forty-eighth Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West arrive in San Bernardino for a week of business and pleasure they will find the streets of the city attractively decorated, and will be tendered a true California welcome, not only by San Bernardino Native Sons, but by the people of the "Orange Show" city generally.

Most of the visitors will arrive May 10, and as they put in an appearance will be escorted to the new Antlers hotel, the registration headquarters, and there provided with an attractive souvenir badge and tickets of admission to the various events on the entertainment program. Then they will be shown their stopping-places while in San Bernardino.

The visitors will remain through May 15. Three days of their time—Monday, Wednesday, Friday—will be given over to sessions of the Grand Parlor, and two days—Tuesday, Thursday—to outings. A large number of womenfolks as well as members of the Order not members of the Grand Parlor will visit San Bernardino on this occasion. John Andreson estimates the total number at between 1,000 and 1,500, basing his figures on requests for reservations. In one instance, a Parlor having one delegate has engaged accommodations for nineteen.

THE HOST-PARLOR

Arrangements for the entertainment of the visitors are in the competent hands of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110, and completed. A wonderful program is scheduled, and will be carried out with precision and exactness as to details, for Arrowhead is a prince of hosts. The prediction is made now, that when the visitors leave San Bernardino they will express the unanimous opinion that the Forty-eighth was the most delightful Grand Parlor in the history of the Order.

The entertainment program will start Monday, May 11, when a reception and entertainment for the visiting womenfolks will be held at the Elks' Club, from 2 to 5 p. m.

At 8 p. m., there will be an informal reception for all visitors at the Municipal Auditorium. Mayor Grant Holcomb will extend San Bernardino's welcome, and there will be brief addresses by Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell, Secretary of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce R. H. Mack, and Secretary of the San Bernardino Pioneer Society John Brown Jr. The speaking will be over at 9 o'clock, when dancing will be in order and visitors and homefolks given an opportunity to get acquainted.

TUESDAY.

Tuesday will be given over to a trip into the San Bernardino Mountains, the beauty-spot of the Southland, for Grand Parlor members, Native Sons and the womenfolks. Auto busses will leave the Municipal Auditorium at 8:30 a. m. The first stop will be made at Crestline, the clubhouse of Arrowhead Parlor, where a barbecue, such as most of the visitors have never partaken of, will be spread.

Following the feast, the caravan will proceed to Lake Arrowhead, where special entertainment features will be provided. Return to San Bernardino will be about 6 p. m. This will be never-to-be-forgotten outing.

WEDNESDAY.

At 2 p. m. the womenfolks will be taken for an auto drive, starting from the Elks' Club.

At 9 p. m. the grand ball will be held in the Municipal Auditorium.

THURSDAY.

Thursday will be another day of outing, to

LONG AGO IN SAN BERNARDINO COUNTY

Jessie H. Davies

(STAFF SECRETARY, CALIFORNIA STATE HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION.)

THE HISTORY OF SAN BERNARDINO County reaches back almost as far as that of California itself, and is closely bound up with many important phases of the state's history. It was in 1774 that the Anza expedition, Monterey-bound, opened the trail overland, across half a thousand miles of unexplored wilderness, from Tucson, in Sonora of that day, to San Gabriel. The Spanish missions in Mexico and New Mexico had flourished for generations. But along the Alta California coast, the padres were just beginning to make their way. San Diego, oldest of the upper coast missions, could look back on only five years. San Carlos, San Antonio, San Gabriel and San Luis Obispo were still nearer their beginnings.

But plans were afoot for the lengthening and strengthening of the mission chain. It was important, as a first step, to forge a link between the infant enterprises and the parent establishments. So these northern outposts, so far accessible only by sea and the peninsula of Baja California, were now given overland communication with Franciscan headquarters in Mexico, by way of Tucson. Over the trail so opened, Franciscan padres, with pack trains, herds and a few soldiers, were to toil into the north and west, to recruit the slender forces of Christianity in the new country.

The eastern portion of the Anza trail—where should prefer to call this portion the Garces trail—was flung across the Yuma and Colorado Deserts, to the San Felipe Pass of the San Jacinto Mountains. That this route was opened so early was due to the amazing courage and hardihood of Fray Francisco Hermenegildo Garces, a missionary attached to that beautiful Franciscan mission of San Xavier del Bac which still stands, a few miles south of Tucson. On a lonely expedition of exploration for missionary purposes, he had, in 1771, crossed the terrible Yuma Desert in two places—the first White man to perform this feat; had traversed a hundred miles of Colorado Desert; and had pushed on north and west to within sight of the San Jacinto range and the gap which he knew must give access to the sea.

It was this reconnaissance of his, and his estimation of the feasibility of this overland route California-wards, which led to the organization of the Anza expedition of 1774 and that of 1775 for the founding of San Francisco. And it was Garces, with the Indian Sebastian, who guided that first overland expedition to California as far as the foot of the San Jacinto range. There he left Anza to break his own trail through the mountains, himself turning to the desert again.*

* We are indebted to Professor Herbert Eugene Bolton for the practically complete identification of the Anza trail. A marker has been placed on this trail at San Carlos Pass, by the Native Sons of the Golden West.

Back across the wastelands he toiled, to the Colorado country, to make the acquaintance of strange Indian tribes and prospect for a mission site. On that and a subsequent expedition, he followed up the Colorado River to the Needles, and thence struck westward across the Mojave Desert. The first European to enter this region, he discovered and explored the Mojave River; and pressing ever forward into country that dismays many a timid motor tourist and wearied railroad traveler of today, he broke the trail which the Santa Fe railroad now approximates between Needles and Los Angeles, entering the San Bernardino Valley by way of the Cajon Pass. Returning, he made an excursion by way of the Tejon Pass into the southern San Joaquin Valley—again the first European on the ground. Having explored this region to the vicinity of Tulare Lake, he re-crossed the Mojave barrens to the Colorado country.

Much of this pathfinding took place within the limits of old San Bernardino County. From its creation in 1853, to 1872, this county contained within its limits a large triangular portion of the present Inyo County, including the Death Valley region. And until 1893, some 590 square miles of the present Riverside County, including the town of Riverside, lay also within San Bernardino County.*

* Dr. Owen C. Coy has treated the entire history of California county boundaries exhaustively and lucidly in his volume, "California County Boundaries."

"SAN BERNARDINO MISSION."

In 1819, according to an entry in the San Gabriel Mission records, cattle raising and farming were introduced among the Guachama Indians of the San Bernardino Valley, as an inducement for them to become Christians. Within the next few years, a large adobe granary was erected, and the adobe chapel whose ruins are to be seen today about a mile west of Redlands on the road to Redlands Junction. The Mill Creek zanja was also constructed at about this time.

The so-called "San Bernardino Mission" was in reality an "asistencia," or branch of San Gabriel Mission. It became important chiefly as a stock-raising and farming outpost. In 1830, four thousand heads of cattle were slaughtered for their hides and tallow, on the San Bernardino range.

The "asistencia" had no resident priest, but was included in a circuit in charge of the priests of San Gabriel. But there is evidence that it was planned to convert the post into a full-fledged mission. Twice in quick succession, however, hostile Indians rode in from the desert, raiding and burning; and the demand of the Mexican government for the secularization of the California missions put a stop to projects for restoration and development. So the outpost was abandoned and for a time the country of fur. By choice a member of that untrammelled and uncouth society of fur-men of the far west he yet maintained his own high moral standard and packed his Bible with his trapper's outfit. Inured to the hazards and violence of wilderness life, he remained nonetheless the model gentleman. And struck down in his youth by desert savages, he yet left a remarkable record of achievement in exploration and commerce enterprise. Jedediah Smith was the first American explorer of the length of the Great Basin. He was the first American to penetrate into California by an overland route and to travel the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys. He first scaled the Sierras of central California and the northern Coast Range; and he broke trail from northern California to the British settlements about Vancouver. Strange that the admirable progress of landmark work in California has left uncommemorated the trails of this heroic and engaging young explorer!

Smith laid his route to California southward from the vicinity of Great Salt Lake to the Colorado and the Mojave villages. From there, with two Indian guides, he and his party pushed across eastern San Bernardino County—"a country of complete barrens," he quaintly described it,—to the Cajon Pass. The builders of the Santa Fe railroad could do no better than follow in his steps.

After several weeks' enjoyment of the hos-roundabout was left in undisputed possession of the Indians. Some few of them remained in the neighborhood and continued to farm and raise a little stock.

In 1842, the tract on which the old "mission" was located passed to the ownership of the three Lugo brothers and their cousin, Diego Sepulveda, as a portion of the San Bernardino grant. One of the Lugo brothers—Jose del Carmen—is said to have made his home in the "mission" buildings. In Mormon days, Bishop Tenney occupied them, and Mrs. Tenney opened a school in one of the rooms.*

* A very interesting and evidently well-authenticated account of the San Bernardino "asistencia" has been contributed recently by George William Beattie and published by the Historical Society of Southern California.

YANKEE GRIT, ENTERPRISE.

But before even the old "San Bernardino Mission" entered upon this later cycle of its changing fortunes, men of another nation than Spain, and of different calling than the padres, but of similar calibre and initiative, were breaking new trails from the heart of the continent to the farthest west. And the American pathfinders, like the Spaniards, first made their way overland to the Pacific across territory that was one day to belong to San Bernardino County.

Down from the north, in 1826, came Jedediah Strong Smith—paradoxical and admirable hunter of the San Gabriel Mission, and a business visit to Governor Echeandia at San Diego, Smith skirted the Sierra Madre eastward along the line of the foothill boulevard of today, and traversed the glorious Cajon Pass. Instead of making the return to Salt Lake over their Great Basin route, the party swung up to the Tejon or Tehachapi Pass and began their exploration of the San Joaquin Valley.

On his second trip to California, by way of the Colorado and the desert stretches of San Bernardino County, Smith and his men were surprised by Indian treachery. They fled across the Mojave and through the Cajon Pass to the refuge of San Gabriel Mission, leaving ten of their number massacred on the desert. Smith himself escaped this and subsequent perils only to meet death by Indian arrows in 1831, among the sand-wastes of the Cimarron.

But in the competition for beaver, it was not to be expected that the ways which he had opened to the Pacific would long remain untraveled. Between 1830 and 1840, many were the trappers to penetrate into California; and the trail taken by a large number of them lay along the latter portion of Smith's route down the Colorado River and across present San Bernardino County to the Cajon Pass.

Over this same trail developed the important caravan trade between Los Angeles and Santa Fe. This traffic was a branch of that picture esque "commerce of the prairies," of which Santa Fe was the headquarters. St. Louis was the source of supply and Mexico the object of enterprise. Between 1830 and 1840, annual pack trains bore westward to the coast, blankets, Mexican woollens and silverwork, and a variety of American wares. They returned laden with barter of the California dons, packs of precious beaver pelts and luxuries out of the Orient—especially Chinese silks. With the returning caravans were driven great herds of California stock for American markets.

So not only the first overland penetration of California from Spanish Mexico, and the first American advance overland to the Pacific, but the first American overland trade with California took place over San Bernardino territory.

Fremont, too, when returning from his second California journey, early in 1844, passed the length of the San Joaquin Valley, and, emerging probably through the Tejon Pass, joined the caravan trail somewhere in eastern San Bernardino County.

The fur and caravan traders were largely instrumental in making California a known and desirable land. By 1830, the overland infiltration of Americans into California had begun. Within the next few years, many men from "the states" became permanent residents of California.

MEXICAN CATTLE BARONS.

The incoming Americans found themselves in a society of which the California dons, with their vast landholdings, were a dominant feature. For it was the era of the great Mexican land grants—of pastoral California, when rodeos, sheep-shearings, weddings and other fiestas were occasions of regal hospitality and sociability.

A big event, too, was the periodical trip to the coast, where waited the "Boston vessels" which had brought precious cargoes of American goods safely "round the Horn." From the ranchos of the San Bernardino country coastward passed many a picturesque cavalcade. Patient oxen, driven by Indians with goads, drew the carretas laden with hides and tallow for the barter. The padrone and his sons preceded, gay of costume and handsomely mounted. Often la señora and las señoritas rode along, too, flaunting their finery and fermenting with joyous anticipation of shopping from the stock of the Yankee traders.

Those were the days of fair and leisurely business. A man's word was his note, and credit was freely allowed from one "killing season" to the next—for the Californians paid in hides and tallow. They were days of big business, too. The dons were prosperous. They counted their stock by the thousand heads, and scarcely counted at all their extensive acres. A modest little holding was the Cucamonga grant. It numbered only some 13,000 acres. Santa Ana del Chino was scarcely more considerable, with its scant 22,300 acres. It was good land, though, and well watered. Granted to Antonio Maria Lugo, in 1841, by Governor Alvarado, it was purchased two years later by Isaac Williams, who took Señorita Lugo off her father's hands at about the same time. The enterprising Pennsylvanian obtained an additional grant which gave him about 35,600 acres in all.

The Williams rancho thereafter became an important stopping place for overland immigrants, who were always given warm welcome and a helping hand. Colonel Williams grubstaked forty-niners who arrived penniless, and sent out relief parties to overlanders in distress. In the days of the Butterfield stage, a station was located at Chino.

Williams had stock to the number of thirty thousand head. His "matanza," or slaughter, of 1847 was reported to have brought him $30,000 in hides and tallow. He was not a stock rancher exclusively, however. His vineyards were large, and he raised barley, beans and peas. But his staple crop was wheat. In 1847, he harvested about a thousand acres of wheat.

Before coming to Chino, he had built and kept a store in Los Angeles. It is claimed for this early San Bernardino resident that he was the first merchant on the California coast to put his goods on shelves and sell them over a counter.

In 1846, when the Angelenos revolted against the Americans and forced Gillespie to evacuate the city, Williams and his family were besieged in their ranch-house by a small body of Californians reinforced by the Lugos of the San Bernardino rancho. Learning that the attack was projected, Williams had called several other Americans to his aid. Together they succeeded in holding off the Californians overnight, although two Americans were wounded. The death of one Mexican, however, goaded the attacking party to greater efforts in the morning. Williams was finally reduced to the expedient of taking his children out and appealing in the names of their uncles, the Lugos, for consideration. The surrender of the Americans was demanded, in return for which protection was granted them. The entire party was conducted to Los Angeles and there detained for a time. After California had been brought into the union, Williams entered a claim for damages done to his property during this Battle of Chino. He received something like $80,000 from the United States by way of compensation.

Rancho El Cajon de Muscupiabi was granted in 1843 to an Englishman, Michael White, on condition that he occupy the land and keep Indians from entering the coast country by way of the Cajon Pass. Some of our "oldest inhabitants" may remember, of this grant, that later owners became involved in protracted litigation with settlers in the valley below, over the question of the water rights to Lytle Creek.

A Supreme Court decision in favor of the grant owners was returned, thereby establishing an important precedent for riparian rights as against appropriation. But the valley settlers refused to abide by the decision. They organized as the Lytle Creek Water Company, with a capital stock of $75,000. The purpose of the company was stated to be "to unify the interest of appropriators on the stream and to fight the grant owners." The company proceeded to use the waters of the creek. The grant owners obtained an injunction against them, but it was never enforced. The controversy was finally settled only when the grant interests had secured control of the water company's stock and then sold out to the Semi-Tropic Land and Water Company both the stock and the riparian lands.

The Jurupa grant, of 40,569 acres, was made to Juan Bandini in 1843. He is remembered as one of the most competent and prominent of the dons. He became the father-in-law of Abel Stearns and of Colonel Cave J. Coutts. Stearns took over a part of the Jurupa rancho. Another part eventually passed by sale to Louis Robidoux, one of that family of fur traders of whom Riverside's Mount Robidoux is the namesake. Robidoux built on his land, in about 1846 or 1847, what seems to have been the first flour mill in southern California.

The Jurupa rancho would not lie within San Bernardino County today, although it would have done so until 1893. Since then its site has been chiefly within Riverside County. The City of Riverside occupies a portion of this old grant. A small portion, however,—the Agua Mansa district—lies over the line in San Bernardino County.

The San Bernardino grant was made in 1842 to Don Antonio Maria Lugo, for his three sons and his nephew, Diego Sepulveda. It comprised some 35,000 acres and lay over the finest portion of the San Bernardino Valley. It included the site of present San Bernardino City. This ranch, named for the valley in which it was located, gave its name to the county and city.

Lugo already owned the large San Antonio grant near Los Angeles—one of the finest stock ranges in the country. It is said that it was to accommodate the remarkable increase of his San Antonio herds that he applied for the San Bernardino grant. He stocked the new tract and turned it over to his sons and nephew, who settled on it.

The Lugos were harassed by Indian raids. They finally offered land and employment to a little "buffer colony" of New Mexicans—about five families. That the idea was justified, is shown by the fact that several engagements were fought with the Indians by the Lugos and these retainers.

In 1851, a party of Utes, drove off a large band of horses, including some of the Lugo stock. A punitive expedition started on the trail of the marauders. The expedition was surprised and one of its number killed by the Utes, from ambush. Returning from this unfortunate affair, the ranchers met two strangers who directed them in their pursuit of the Indians, and whom they now suspected of purposely sending them into the ambush. Four of the ranchers lingered behind with the two suspects. When, shortly after, the strangers were found murdered, the four ranchers were arrested and taken to Los Angeles to await trial for murder. Two of the four were Lugos of the San Bernardino rancho.

In April, a band of desperadoes drifted to the vicinity, led by one Edward Irving. He offered to snatch the Lugo boys from jail—for a consideration of $5,000. The offer was rejected. Thereupon Irving, who was evidently an opportunist, announced that if the court should release the Lugo boys he would seize them and hang them unless ransom were forthcoming.

To forestall such an event, a troop of United States dragoons was stationed in the court house. Irving and his band came in force and heavily armed to the trial. But the presence of the troops prevented a disturbance at the time and the young men, on their release, were given military escort home.

However, the affair was not yet closed. Toward the end of May, it was whispered about that Irving, with sixteen of his more desperate followers, was planning to raid the Lugo stock and seize one of the Lugos for ransom. The family set guards and awaited development with their New Mexican allies and a band of Coahuilla Indian employees lined up for action.

Irving attempted his stroke, but encountering the guards he took alarm and fled with his band to the San Jacinto Mountains. The Indians were sent in pursuit. After some skirmishing, the rounded up the outlaws in San Timoteo Canyon whence only one escaped alive. An investigation and inquest were held, resulting in a verdict of justifiable killing.

Matters had apparently quieted down finally. But the neighborhood seems to have lost its charm for the Lugos. Within a very few months they drove most of their stock to the vicinity of Los Angeles, having sold out the San Bernardino rancho to the Mormons.

Indeed, the days of the Mexican cattle barons were nearing their close. Throughout the Mexican period and the gold rush, many a don lived lavishly on the proceeds of his ranges. But the mining boom, with its tremendous demand for beef and mutton, was passing. The Civil War soon brought general disorder and disrupted business. The big ranges were cut up into modest tracts. The small farmers and the fru ranchers replaced the landed don. In the San Bernardino Valley, these new enterprises were at first largely in the hands of the Mormons.

THE MORMON BUILDERS.

In 1847, the Mormon Battalion was organized for service in the Mexican War. It was composed of volunteers recruited chiefly from the important Mormon camp of Mount Pisgah, Iowa, and was enrolled as the "Iowa Volunteers." Of the five hundred men who made up the battalion, about three hundred and fifty reached California.

Their march to the coast, by way of the Rio Grande, the Gila and present San Diego County, was a remarkable feat. For they brought a wagon train over that vast wilderness—the first wagons to reach California by a southern route. Burdened with military equipment, the Mormon Battalion dared leagues of unknown desert where sometimes days of travel intervened between sources of water supply. They dug wells along the route. In places they hewed a passageway for their wagons out of solid rock.

The battalion arrived too late to assist in the conquest of California, but some of the outfit helped to build old Fort Moore, on the hill above the Plaza in Los Angeles. Others, detailed to various service, visited Chino and became acquainted with the San Bernardino region and ranchers. A detachment guarded the Cajon Pass, for a time, against the entry of troublesome desert Indians.

The country must have impressed the Mormons strongly. For in 1851, a band of "saints" set out from Salt Lake City for the San Bernardino Valley. Their objects were to provide an outfitting post for Mormon recruits on the way to Salt Lake City from southern California ports; and to "cultivate the olive, grapes, sugarcane and cotton, gather round them the saint and select locations on the line of a proposed mail route."

The colony approximated the present route of the San Pedro and Salt Lake railroad, entering coastal California over the Mojave Desert and the Cajon Pass. Their line of march came to be known as the Mormon Trail.

They camped in the pass in June of 1851 while their leaders prospected for a colony site. The purchase of the San Bernardino rancho from the Lugos was arranged for in early fall. The price was something over $75,000.

Even before the deed was recorded, some of the settlers had started their planting. The early crops were plentiful, and prices were high. When the tract had been surveyed, it was sold to the colonists, in lots to suit, at $11 to $15 per acre. In 1854, the unsold property was mortgaged by the elders for $35,000. Interest was at the rate of 3% per month. The property was soon free of debt, nonetheless. The mortgage was shortly reduced by $10,000 received from the sale of land to Mormon miners. New colonists came in from Utah, and from the East. In 1853, reinforcements arrived from Australia.

The old Mormon Fort in San Bernardino was

PACIFIC WILL NOT REMAIN PEACEFUL

UNLESS NAVAL BASE AND OTHER DEFENSES ARE PROVIDED

"THE ORDER OF NATIVE SONS OF the Golden West is more than an organization of the State of California. It is an American organization that the rest of the United States should endorse and copy, organize and maintain, to hold California for the White race. It stands for and insists upon complete Americanism. The Native Sons are destined to play a most important part in our future nationalization.

"It is my duty to lay before this patriotic body a condition that must be met. Foreign naval activities and foreign policies demand we look the situation squarely in the face.

"The 'Naval and Military Record' of May 7, 1924, a British semi-official organ, said, 'Of sweeping assertions to definite facts, there are certainly reasonable grounds for much of Mr. Shearer's criticism. He does not suggest that there has been any want of good faith on the part of the other powers. His quarrel, indeed, is not with Great Britain, nor Japan, but with America.'

"That, in part, is true. My quarrel is with America. The British and Japanese recognize our weakness. We have only ourselves to blame. Our duty is to establish a national defense policy and fully live up to the treaty ratio as understood and pledged.

"We made a treaty with certain powers based on capital ships. It is known as the Limitation of Arms Treaty, limiting capital-ship tonnage. The ratio is, Great Britain 5, United States 5, Japan 3, which means equality with Great Britain and 5-3 over Japan. We displayed great activity to meet the ratio in destroying, but at no time have we made an attempt to live up to the building ratio. Our honor and duty are as much pledged one way as the other.

"The Limitation of Arms Treaty is nothing more than changing to a different type of fighting ship, which we do not possess. The type we did possess, we destroyed; a type that other powers could not, or would not, compete against. Our battle fleet of thirteen new ships was almost ready. They would have ruled the seas. Today, on the Atlantic, we live on the friendship of Great Britain; on the Pacific, Japan is not quite ready.

"It is well to remember Great Britain is a potential enemy and is governed by British policies. Japan is a natural enemy, governed by ambition and policies. The essentials of British and Japanese naval strategy were to scrap what America had and forge ahead with the types of ships that they possessed in great numbers; those types which meant naval supremacy and were not included in the treaty.

"America paid in good faith, and did not lay down one new vessel of war. Since the signing of the arms treaty, other powers have built and authorized 281 ships of war. The British capital ships have a range of fire that only five American ships could reach, a fleet speed of twenty-one knots that not one American ship can equal, and far in excess of capital-ship tonnage allowed. Great Britain has fifty-seven light cruisers, and has recommended seventeen new ones. We have, or will have, ten.

"Great Britain has twenty-two flotilla leaders, we have none; nineteen fleet submarines, we have three; nineteen naval bases equipped and storing fuel in great quantities, we have one, uncompleted. In merchant marine tonnage, speed and troop-carrying capacity, Great Britain is five to our one.

"The Japanese fleet: Ten capital ships of over 313,000 tons, two ships which have a range of 35,000 yards, eight ships which have a range of 25,000 yards, twenty-five light cruisers, twenty-five fleet submarines, ten flotilla leaders. Japan's fleet speed is 22 knots. Japan has six known naval bases fully equipped and storing oil in great quantities for any emergency.

"The British and American naval authorities say much is being done in secret; it is impossible to learn to what extent Japan is building. Then, how do we know if the treaty ratio of three for Japan is being kept? Admiral Tak-rabe has stated, 'While I am alive and hold the portfolio of the navy, none shall interfere in the affairs of the navy. I shoulder the entire heavy responsibility for the defense of the Empire. I am opposed to postponement and desire to maintain what is necessary for national defense.'

"Japan will not reduce further. Japan has the largest naval budget in the world and the

W. B. SHEARER, who has been extensively quoted in recent issues of The Grizzly Bear, delivered an address on preparedness before the Native Sons' Luncheon Club of San Francisco, March 18. The attendance was the largest in the club's history, and included men prominent in the affairs of San Francisco, as well as representatives of the army and the navy. In the evening, at the suggestion of Native Sons, Shearer delivered his address in the assembly-chamber of the State Capitol at Sacramento, before a special joint session of the California Legislature.

Shearer, in both instances, was well received, and his statements of facts were enthusiastically applauded. He did not mince words, but in plain language told his auditors of the shameful condition of unpreparedness into which this country has been permitted to drift, largely through the concerted efforts of alien-propagandists and citizen-pacifists who, it would appear, are desirous of making of the United States an inferior power.

So impressed were Shearer's auditors with his sincerity and complete knowledge of world events pertaining to preparedness, that numerous requests were made for the publication of the address. Accordingly, it is here presented in its entirety, with the full approval of Grand President Edward J. Lynch and the Board of Grand Officers of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.—Editor.

largest building program in Japanese history. The Limitation of Arms Treaty does not answer the solution of peace or economy, nor a naval-building holiday, except in capital ships only. In fact, Japan is increasing, with feverish rapidity, every type of warship not included in the treaty.

"The Japanese are developing and storing naval fuel in great quantities, hauling from the Dutch East Indies and the United States in naval tankers. Every evidence in Japan points to preparedness, even to employing foreigners and buying war equipment from other countries.

"Japan has just finished her naval maneuvers on offensive and defensive strategy, but resents our holding maneuvers in our own waters off Hawaii. The press of Japan states it would be considered an act of war if our fleet went to Hawaii in fighting trim. If our ships should proceed to the Philippines, it would be regarded as openly hostile.

"The American fleet stands today: Eighteen first-line ships, eighteen of inferior speed, thirteen of inferior gun range, unprotected decks, and without torpedo protection. Some with rotten boilers and unfit to go to sea. Our fleet speed and gun elevation would keep thirteen ships out of battle; we could neither force nor withdraw from battle. We will have ten light cruisers, no flotilla leaders, and three fleet submarines. Our destroyer strength, on which so many rely, does not exist. The 200 destroyers, tied up and out of commission, are deteriorating rapidly.

"We have neither officers nor men qualified to man these ships, nor is any provision being made to man them. The destroyer is a type of ship that requires specially-trained officers, engineers and ordnance men. It will take years to train 1,200 officers and 22,000 men (the number needed) for that service. About 204 officers have commanded destroyers and about 650 have had destroyer experience. Besides, all equipment must be replaced. Our destroyer strength is in material, not personnel, and that is what counts in that service.

"ON THE PACIFIC, WE DO NOT POSSESS ONE NAVAL BASE. A fleet cannot live without a naval base. The findings at the War College show that a battle fleet cannot be maintained on the Pacific in time of war only at Panama. The canal must be kept open and a supply fleet of 600 to 700 ships would be required to maintain the fleet. Hawaii could only be used as an advance, or repair, base, and in any event floating drydocks would have to be towed there. Mare Island is seventy years old, twenty miles up a channel, and not adequate to handle capital ships.

"The Secretary of the Navy stated in a letter to Chairman Butler of the Committee on Naval Affairs, 'We have only 10% of fuel required by the fleet.' The Assistant Secretary of the Navy also stated we have a little over 1,700,000 barrels of navy oil stored, and that we would require 70,000,000 barrels of fuel oil in case of war, the first year. The officers in command of the Pacific battle fleet have stated we could not hold a Far East engagement. We would be dependent on the British for fuel; that we scarcely have enough fuel for a week's engagement.

"We are a navy without an ally, and must be prepared to go it alone. This serious situation is not and should not be political. Both parties are guilty for the conditions. It is national issue, and must be treated as such. To expose this condition, it was necessary to be secret to force investigations. It is the only way to save the service.

"Certain newspapers throughout the country are overly cautious about printing anything of national defense. The same cautious news mediums are very considerate of all foreign propaganda. Any message on the League of Nations, World's Court, pacifism or disarming, well played up. One foreign gentleman lately received a check for $25,000 for fighting to humanity. That was well published. His fight at the opium parley displayed clearly his sincerity in the interest of humanity. The same man who is today the 'father' of the League of Nations, Lord Cecil.

"If one should be so indiscreet as to advocate national defense and preparedness, the pacifists and their backers throw their weight against official Washington, and on goes the 'soft pedal.' The pacifists must know the army and the navy are parts of the Constitution of the United States, and in their sentimental, impractical fight for peace, they only help foreign propaganda.

"General William Mitchell, trying to bring before the public the deplorable condition of our air service, was trying to serve the country in the interest of national defense. His record of service qualifies him to speak his mind. The people are entitled to know our air weakness and though some don't agree with General Mitchell on his claims against the battleship he should be heard.

"OUR AIR STRENGTH IS A NATIONAL SCANDAL. Figuring France 100% in the air Great Britain is 58, and Japan will soon equal France. We are but 16%. General Mitchell like Admiral Fullam, has made the fatal mistake, in his enthusiasm for the air, to condemn the capital ship. Nothing can take the place of the capital ship, not for many years, if ever. First, it is the inspiring spirit of the service. The spirit of the navy is with the fleet. Second, the respect of nations and the psychological effect are always recognized. The capital ship will remain. A change of design will take place, possibly to the combination ship, namely, air-craft carrier with heavy guns.

"France, with the greatest air force in the world, advocates the building of a navy; the largest in the history of France. Great Britain today has the largest battle fleet in its history on the Mediterranean. It was that which averted serious trouble in Egypt. Japan, whose aeroplane program will soon equal France's, maintains a powerful fleet and has the largest naval program in the world.

"It is the radius of action of a fleet over the air that all nations recognize and respect. It is the British fleet that holds together and protects the British Empire. If the powers should scrap every type of warship, then the merchant marine would rule the seas. Great Britain would be so powerful that none could challenge. British merchant ships under naval reserves, thirteen to twenty knots and over, number 542 ships, 4,451,655 tons and a troop capacity of 888,555, against our 118 ships, 1,004,396 tons and a troop capacity of 200,478.

"WHAT WE MOST NEED IS A DEFENSE POLICY, AND THEN TEAM PLAY. We should have aircraft carriers, aircraft officers, men and machines. The army should have officers, men and machines. Everything should be done to give this country an adequate air defense, but not at the expense of the capital ship. To give up your capital ship, would be national suicide.

"THE WEIGHT AND HITTING POWER OF JAPAN'S SHIPS GIVE HER THE CONTROL OF THE WESTERN PACIFIC AND THE FAR EAST. Russia recognizes that power, England recognizes that power, and we recognize that power. A recognized power must be met with the same power. We must have a well-rounded navy, as is permitted under the treaty and pledged by the party. That means surface ships, under-surface ships, naval bases fully equipped and, above all, an adequate air force, army, naval and commercial. The commerce of the world belongs to merchant ships. Merchant ships must be backed up by a navy, a navy with a naval base. The air and the submarine are the two most powerful arms.

"Great Britain and Japan know that China's great population only needs to be properly organized to supply the world. If Japan dominates the Far East and maintains a merchant fleet, it will be impossible for America to compete. Japan will maintain a navy to protect her trade. America must have a merchant marine backed up by a navy, or we would lose all Oriental trade. The 'open door' would only swing out. Japan's policy is to organize China and flood the world. America is the best market.

"America should have an adequate air defense here and in all her possessions. That is necessary against attack from an enemy. But the 'open door' of China, Russia and the Far East can only be forced by a powerful navy, including aircraft carriers and submarines.

"THE SITUATION ON THE PACIFIC DEMANDS IMMEDIATE ACTION. It is necessary to draw comparisons. The United States made sacrifices in the Pacific based on the understanding that all treaties would be carried out, ratified and fully lived up to. The failure of France to ratify makes two important treaties ineffective and valueless, namely, those relating to poison gases and submarines, and concerning the territorial integrity of China and the 'open door.' This latter, the Treaty of the Open Door of China, was the cause of the four-power Pacific treaty among Great Britain, United States, France and Japan, relating to their insular possessions in the Pacific. This treaty, again, has not been ratified by France.

"The British have two important naval bases of great strength in the Pacific and can go ahead and further strengthen Hong Kong and Singapore. Japan has six known naval bases on the Pacific, one within 300 miles of the Philippines. The only penalties exacted on the Pacific were against this country. We, alone, paid the price, in not fortifying the Philippines and Guam.

"We surrendered that and more, in the interest of peace. We surrendered thirteen new ships with the power to hit. We surrendered to the British protest, the right to elevate our guns and make it possible for thirteen old ships to hit. Our sacrifice was hitting power in twenty-six capital ships. The shots that count are the shots that hit!

"The British naval program, the Japanese naval program, and the 281 ships of war built and under construction since the Washington arms conference, show there is no evidence that any power, other than the United States, is making a move to disarm. This country is a hotbed of propaganda, but only to disarm this nation. As long as England maintains and increases her sea power, as long as Japan maintains and increases her sea power, we must do likewise, and any move to further weaken us is traitorous.

"YOU, ON THE PACIFIC, WILL BE THE FIRST TO SUFFER, THE FIRST TO FIGHT. You know, of course, or should know, that the fleet must be maintained, that an adequate air defense must be built, and above all, a naval base. A fleet cannot live without a naval base, and without fuel at strategic points a fleet is worthless.

"Admiral Rodman, who commanded the American fleet in the North Sea during the war, told me the reason the British won was because the British fleet was 100% in ships and bases, whereas the Germans were but 80%. And 80% is the same as zero, the same as a full house against four of a kind in a poker game. He said a naval base must be built on the Pacific, and Hawaii must be developed to the fullest military and naval efficiency. Unless that is done, we have not a chance. Pearl Harbor is the strategic key to the Pacific, the Pacific Coast and Panama. It is vital to the security of this nation. When last in California, the Secretary of the Navy stated his view of the Pacific situation. He knew what I knew—the result of the findings at the War College. That we could not maintain a fleet in the Pacific in time of war, only at Panama.

"I don't propose to tell you how great we are, or how rich we are. But, without fear of contradiction, I do propose to continue to show our weakness and utter lack of public interest in national defense.

"The Immigration Law must be rigidly enforced. Too many of radical tendencies are entering this country. Their one object is to destroy. The pacifists, in their impractical fight for peace, are playing unknowingly the same game—to disarm us. If the pacifists, with their great backing of wealth, would spread their teachings in Europe and the Far East, they would best serve this nation. It is not practical to preach further disarming to America, until we see and know the other powers are disarming.

"To surrender our power or surrender our rights to make our own laws and enforce them, would open our doors to vast hordes of immigration that would cause a change of government. The Exclusion Law is necessary and must be enforced at all times. For that reason, alone, we must always maintain an army and a navy that are always ready. Our future nationalization demands that we restrict all immigration and bar Orientals from our shores. A blood that can not and will not assimilate will, in greater numbers, destroy our nationalization and America.

"The British Ambassador said the other day that Great Britain and America should have a better understanding. All sane people know and believe that. America wants a better understanding with every nation. But America cannot make further sacrifices without that understanding.

"We scrapped our navy, we do not fortify our possessions, we have loaned great wealth to Europe. We respect the British protest on gun elevation. We lost out at the opium parley as we did at the arms conference. What must America further do, before Great Britain and Japan make a move? Our duty is clear. We must preserve and maintain the army and the navy. They made us what we are, and keep us what we are. They are the two real American institutions and parts of the Constitution of the United States. Only an enemy or a traitor would destroy them!

"Our foreign policy should be backed up by a naval policy. Two Americans, representing American oil interests, were murdered in Albania. Other than the comment that the Albanians are fine fellows and like Americans, and that the murderers will be caught and punished, nothing has been done. Japan, by military action, drove from Russian territory, Sakhalin, Americans representing American oil interests, holding a lease or concession from the Russian Government. It is understood the British consider they have a prior claim, or does Japan claim the oil lands for Japan?

"When the Greeks murdered Italians, Italy seized Corfu, after bombarding a few public buildings, and demanded money and apologies. Italy got both. Our navy in the near east has carried on, and is carrying on, a mission of mercy. The fight for oil in Mexico was the British opposition against an American company, that caused the assassination of one president, the non-recognition of another, and a state of revolution for fourteen years.

"Admiral Phelps, U. S. N., member of the General Board, stated on February 24th that only a strong navy can avert conflict over differences in ship policies. It has been known for a long time that the British discriminate against our merchant marine. Admiral Rogers, formerly a member of the General Board, has openly stated THERE IS A PLOT AGAINST OUR NAVY AND MERCHANT MARINE. In our sincere efforts to establish better relations, we have given way diplomatically until our foreign policy has lost its effectiveness, except with small South American countries.

"In every incident we have given way to Great Britain. We permit a British lobby, British propaganda, British writers and critics to run amuck among us. We gave way in Persia, and Mr. Schuster was sent away. We lost the Chester oil concessions in Turkey through British interference. In this fight for world's oil we have backed down on every side and permitted and helped, on the other hand, the British in this country. Besides the British owning and controlling the world's oil, they own and control in this country: 241,000 acres in oil land, 2,114 producing wells, 70,200 barrels daily output, 752 miles of pipe line, 5 refineries, 120 stations, 3 steamship lines. The British oil interests are supported by and in partnership with their government.

"Sir Mackay Edgar boldly asserts that Great Britain already has control of the chief petroleum resources of the world, outside the United States. All the known oil fields, all the likely or probable oil fields, outside this country, are in British hands or controlled by British capital. The country that controls the petroleum supply is the country which will control the world's trade. Sir Edgar further says, 'Within ten years the United States will import oil to the extent of $1,000,000,000 annually, most of which will be paid to the British.'

"Senator James D. Phelan points out a concrete case of what is happening. British interests are buying oil properties in California without hindrance, and now own, perhaps, 30% of the state's resources. The Dutch Shell Oil Co. sold recently more than 100,000 barrels to Japan, and in Japanese tankers it was shipped from San Francisco to Japan. The price of the oil was $1.86 per barrel and at the same time local consumers were charged $2.35. The local agent confidentially admitted the wrong to local interests, but said he took the orders from London.

"The First Lord of the British Admiralty said: 'If we can now secure the supplies of oil now available in the world, we can do what we will.' Sir Mackay Edgar further states, 'We hold our hands the secure control of the future of the world's oil supply.' The British stand clearly where they stand. Austin Chamberlain before the cabinet, ambassadors and other officials, set forth the main factor to be considered by Great Britain, 'British security.' Else is secondary. The position of Europe, says, is full of uncertainty and incalculable danger. The only possible British policy is to secure the British interests, leaving the League Nations at some future time to develop into instrument of international peace.

"Great Britain won't disarm. Great Britain can't disarm, and will remain at the high point of efficiency of offense and defense. Great Britain has a policy and will maintain that policy. Japan will do likewise. Japan dominates the Far East, and will continue to do so. The treaty with the Soviet Government places resources and wealth at Japan's disposal. Japan has a policy and ambition. She will not bud one inch on her imperialistic policy or surrender her domination of the east. Japan's naval policy is a religion. Japan is nearly ready, and will stay ready. She will never disarm. The exclusion law gives Japan the argument to preach her doctrine. THE DIE IS CAST. THE DAY JAPAN IS READY, JAPAN WILL STRIKE. If we are not prepared to defend our possessions and our own shores, then the greatest humiliation is upon us. Our future nationalization at stake, the future of our nation. Our glory for luxury and thinking only of self will be our downfall.

"The pacifists' and their backers' appeal to this nation to disarm, is a betrayal. Their offense is, their trust in foreign conscience. Conscience plays little part in any government's policies or ambitions, or any business policies, ambitions, or even in self.

"At Moscow, November 28th, Premier Rykov of the Soviet Government stated that negotiations with Japan were proceeding favorably. Following closely on the heels of that, Japan obtains rich oil rights in the Soviet treaty. The treaty brings sharply into contrast the plea, exacted from Japan by Secretary Hughes at the world conference early in 1922, that Japan would not seek exclusive exploitation privileges in Northern Sakhalin. The Moscow government granted concessions to an American oil company. The Japanese troops drove the Americans out. What is the British interest in Sakhalin, their understanding with Japan, who has us troops to drive out Americans whose rights were established under a legitimate concession? Mackay Edgar has stated all the known oil fields, all the likely or probable oil fields, outside the United States, are in British hands or controlled by British capital. There is interference all over the world against certain American oil interests. How much more must we surrender before England and Japan make a move in the interest of peace?

"There is a special significance to the cancellation of concessions to Americans in Sakhalin. Japan has used her troops to drive out Americans and hold Russian territory against Americans who have legitimate rights and claim to proceed under their concession. Japan brings pressure to bear on Russia, not only to grant the Japanese demands, but to repudiate any other agreement. Simultaneously, Japan drops Port Arthur as a naval base and strengthens the naval base at Ominato, at the northern end of the main island of Japan, giving as the reason, the crossing of the Pacific by air by the United States. Admiral Hough, Director of Naval Intelligence, states Japan is building war vessels rapidly, every type of ship not included in the treaty. Japan is making every effort to provide adequate fuel oil reserves and to develop new sources of supply. There has been general comment on the increasing amount of war material and chemical shipments from Europe, especially Germany.

"The treaty of the 'open door' of China was the cause of the Four-Power Pacific Treaty among Great Britain, the United States, France and Japan, relating to their insular possessions in the Pacific. This treaty has not been ratified by France. Great Britain is further strengthening her naval bases in the Pacific. Japan has closed

CALIFORNIA'S CONTINUED PROSPERITY LARGELY DEPENDENT ON PRESERVATION OF GOD-GIVEN FORESTS

George H. Barnes

(PRESIDENT AMERICAN REFORESTATION ASSOCIATION.)

MORE THAN ANYWHERE ELSE IN America, commercial prosperity in California is interwoven into our forests. That is why we have begun to talk of tree protection in terms of water power, crop reports and bank clearings. Water is king in California, but it is slowly yielding its crown to the desert. When the desert resumes its sway over the land which has been fertilized and watered and fed by the forests, the beauty of our land, the fertility of our soil, the wealth of our state will be gone. The prosperity of California and the welfare of her citizens require forests.

Water and power demands are increasing every hour, and the supply is decreasing in approximately the same proportion that our forests are diminishing. The great underground supply of water will continue only so long as forests are preserved.

Frederick H. Newell, former director of the United States Reclamation Service, says that the in the valleys, razes groves, highways and bridges, and fills harbor channels. No forests mean summer drought, winter floods and consequent decreased productiveness of our farms.

"Upon the development of country life," said Theodore Roosevelt, "rests ultimately our ability—by methods of farming requiring the highest intelligence—to feed and clothe the hungry nations; to supply the city with fresh blood, clean bodies and clear brains that can endure the terrific strain of modern life. We need the development of men in the open country who will be in the future, as in the past, the stay and strength of the nation in time of war and its guiding and controlling spirit in time of peace."

In other lands there are regions, once exceedingly fertile and densely populated, which are now desolate and deserted. The barrenness and desolation were caused by the loss of trees which once protected the hillsides and preserved the water supply. Without water and without soil they have been incapable of supporting a large keeping," "gives the ruthless destruction of her forests by the Chinese as a reason why famine and plague today hold that nation in their sinister grip. They have broken the law; they must pay, as we must pay, if we continue the ruthless destruction of our forests."

The daily newspapers tell us that 10,000,000 Chinese are reported to be in actual want of food in eight provinces and 15,000,000 persons were affected by the winter floods and famine in North and West China. Many thousands had their land flooded and sand was washed down from the mountains and covered the top soil. Dikes were broken with similar conditions in North China, with an estimated property loss of hundreds of millions of dollars and 30,000 are homeless. In the winter floods last year the dikes gave way and millions lost their lives.

The huge expenditure of money in China for the construction of these dikes has taught us that concrete alone will not withstand the terrific force of flood-waters. We cannot improve on Nature, who so generously provided trees for this purpose.

How are we going to escape this penalty?

*"For the comforting warmth of the sun that my body embraces,
For the cool of the waters that run through the shadowy places,
For the balm of the breezes that brush my face with their fingers,*

*For the vesper-hymns of the thrush when the twilight lingers,
For the long breath, the deep breath, the breath of a heart without care,—
I will give thanks and adore thee, God of the open air!"*

—HENRY VAN DYKE.

United States will be on a water ration in a comparatively short time, if steps are not taken at once to conserve our forests and, through them, our water supply. Our rainfall remains fairly constant, he says, but it is only as we change its distribution by the removal of the forests and contaminate the streams by dumping waste that a shortage of water may ensue. In appealing for greater conservation of our rapidly-vanishing timberlands, he pointed out the close connection between forests and water resources.

When fires sweep our mountains, they not only make hideous the natural playgrounds of outdoor lovers, but denude the slopes on spongy leaf-mold, which holds the rains and melting snows. The resultant run-off from winter storms gashes the mountain sides, crumbles fertile fields population. Depopulation follows deforestation.

In treeless countries, where they are without timber which contributes more to the nation's well-being, health, comfort and prosperity than any other natural resource, the people live in mud huts, in obscurity and squalor, with scant clothing and food. Empires have disappeared and great cities have shrunk into insignificance. Their people, through years of struggling against insurmountable difficulties, have become a defeated people, mentally and physically warped, and their place in the world lost.

China, with once magnificent forests, has learned the bitter lesson that deforestation teaches. And many of our Western hills are as bare as the hills of China. "The United States Department of Agriculture," says "Good House-

Reforestation in California is not only important to California but to every state in the union. An adequate water supply from the mountains is necessary for the fruitfulness of the soil. California ranks first among the states in the production of fruit, nuts and vegetables, which depend upon irrigation from the mountains. The quantity of the crop depends upon the amount of water supplied. Fruits, nuts and vegetables are shipped to every state in the union. Irrigation shelterbelts and transportation—all dependent upon forests—are necessary to this great industry and to the prosperity of California.

Emil Rothe said: "Why is it that we cannot raise any more peaches in our state, while they used to bring sure crops not more than a century ago? What is it that makes our climate, once so favorable for mankind and vegetation, more unsteady from year to year? Look at the woodless hills of Southern Ohio, and you have the answer."

Climate is one of the largest influences in determining the future of California. It has had much to do with California's prosperity. The climate, which is so varied in California, makes it possible for us to produce most of the comto forty feet wide and four to eight feet deep when he was a boy. On the banks of the stream were magnificent walnut, cherry, beech, oak and maple trees. After sixty years he visited the home of his childhood and the "old swimming hole." He found the trees gone. Nothing but brush remained, and meandering around the bushes was a little stream across which he could step! Thus had the river of his boyhood dwin-

We need to guard with jealous care such forests as we have left, and to take up systematically and energetically the work of reforesting various areas that affect the supply of important streams. In so doing, we shall serve our present interests and the interests of the future in several extremely important ways."

Water is necessary for the existence of all life. Our forefathers called the forests the "Mother of the Rivers."

The forests on our mountain ranges protect our water supply. Snow and rain provide our pure drinking water. The forests and the water supply have a very close relationship. With the destruction of our forests has come greatly-diminished water supply. The purity and plentitude of water are dependent upon forests and tree growth.

California ranks first among the states in developed hydro-electric power, which guarantees—if it is properly safeguarded by trees—an industrial future. The forests stand behind electric development. Because of the preservation of the forests in the High Sierras, the largest hydro-electric project in the West was made possible. By harnessing the melting snows of these mountains as they tumble down the mountain-sides in streams and rivers they are made to serve a large population, to irrigate and reclaim from the desert hundreds of thousands of acres, to supply power for hundreds of factories which furnish employment to thousands. And this because of forests in the mountains. Elbert Hubbard said: "Electricity has only one love, and that is water. And this love is reciprocated."

The forests, through electricity, serve us in many ways, furnishing comforts, conveniences and luxuries. Electricity heats our homes, cooks our meals, washes our clothes, cleans our rugs, rings our bells, plays our pianos, lifts our elevators, milks our cows, operates our railroads and turns the wheels of industry generally.

And we must not forget that trees from other countries help us in our progress. Without the importation of rubber from the tropical climes, electric development would not have advanced as it has. It has been said that without rubber insulation to work with, electrical engineering would be set back ten years.

President Calvin Coolidge in his forest week proclamation says: "The forests of the future must be started today. Our children are dependent upon our course. We are bound by a solemn obligation from which no evasion and no subterfuge will relieve us. Unless we fulfill our sacred responsibility to unborn generations, unless we use with gratitude and restraint the generous and kindly gifts of Divine Providence, we shall prove ourselves unworthy guardians of a heritage we hold in trust."

The great enemy to California's prosperity is forest fires, the results mainly of carelessness, which are allowed to sweep over 50,000 acres annually. Will they continue? Yes, until every man, woman and child knows the value of trees and realizes what their destruction by fire means to them individually, to them as citizens, and to the nation's progress. They must know how intimately the products of the forest enter into their every-day lives, how forests benefit them, and how essential they are to the life of the nation.

And that is why the American Reforestation Association, with headquarters at 428 Bradbury building, Los Angeles, is conducting a nationwide educational campaign—to teach you the value of trees, so that you will take a personal interest in protecting the forests. It has just issued a new book, "Reforesters of America," which contains a plan in which you can have a part in reforesting your country.

modities we need. Our climate is changing as our forests are being depleted. Gene Stratton-Porter, great woman naturalist of Indiana, said: "With the cutting of our timber has come a change in our climate; weeks of drought in summer and destructive cyclonic windstorms, winters alternating from a condition so open as to freeze prematurely forced fruit and grain, and winters so stringently cold that the fruit trees are killed outright.

"The even temperature and the rains every three or four days, which we knew in childhood, are things of the past. In my childhood my father planted grain with the same certainty of having a full crop that we had of having alternate day and night. Today the farmer on my land has no idea whether he will get a paying yield from the corn, wheat and potatoes that he puts into the ground than he has as to whether the next cyclone will blow his house into the lake or pass a few yards on the other side of it.

"We, as a nation, have already, in the most wanton waste the world has ever known, changed our climatic conditions and wasted a good part of our splendid heritage."

Our wonderful climate has attracted visitors from all over the world, and every year this California product is sold and resold.

Agriculture is enormously developed here. California ranks first in canning and preserving. This industry alone gives employment to 25,500 workers. The quantity and variety of our fruit is determined by the climate.

California has few navigable rivers. The waters in the small streams help to irrigate the land, which would otherwise be useless. The rivers of California today are but shrunken successors to the great rivers which once traversed the state. Then there was fish in abundance in these streams, with trees at their headwaters.

Hundreds of rivers all over the United States have disappeared entirely. Mr. Ellis of Ohio tells of the river near his old home which was thirty dled to nothingness.

Because of forest destruction the waters that have made our country prosperous have diminished, streams have become unnavigable, many of them drying up, floods and tornadoes have increased, and our climatic conditions have changed.

In a magazine article, the late Dr. Charles P. Steinmetz of the General Electric Company said. "Closely allied with the utilization of the huge amount of water power in the United States as yet undeveloped is another item of conservation which should have the active interest of all far-seeing citizens—the saving of the forests. . . .

Fertility in Ideas

IN Denmark practical co-operation has made great headway. Commenting on the prosperity of this little country and the part co-operation has played in bringing it about, the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers' Association says:

"Denmark is a prosperous country. Her prosperity does not depend upon great natural advantages. Her soil is not naturally fertile. The farmers of Denmark have forged ahead because of the fertility of their ideas. They early learned to PULL TOGETHER and secure the benefits that accrue from united effort. The fruition of their ideas is prosperity."

This is exactly the stand taken by The Leighton Industries. We have always maintained that success and prosperity are founded on right ideas and not upon mechanical equipment or material resources. We have devised a form of organization that seems best suited to stimulate right ideas on the part of employees, for in the measure that managers and employees think rightly about their work and their relations, in that measure will they succeed and be prosperous.

Employees of Leighton Industries own 99 per cent of the stock in their company and receive 99 per cent of the profits

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

PICNICS AND POLITICS OCCUPIED THE public attention in California during May, 1875. It is singular how quickly the American citizen forms a habit, and this was the great bolting year in politics, independents being numerous.

Montgomery Queen's circus, that had wintered at Hayward, Alameda County, started on its annual tour this month. May 17 tents were raised at Twelfth and "K" streets, Sacramento, where a large hotel building now stands. Queen made his circus popular by having no sideshows, no barkers and no lemonade sellers. During performances ushers served ice-water to all, free of charge.

Thomas J. Henley, Democratic "war horse," died in Mendocino County May 1, aged 68. He came to California in 1849, was postmaster of San Francisco in 1853, and devoted the late years of his life to farming.

J. C. Lamon, Yosemite Valley's oldest White settler, died there May 23 at the age of 58, and was buried at the foot of Yosemite Falls. All the Digger Indians of the valley attended his funeral, as they looked upon him as a protector.

Decoration Day, May 30, was fittingly observed throughout the state. At Sacramento, Governor Romualdo Pacheco delivered the oration.

Since Lake Tahoe's discovery by White men, there had been, up to May 31 of this year, fourteen men drowned there, the last being Captain Richard Barker. The bodies of but two, who perished in shallow water, were ever found.

A Chinese bride, valued at $600, was shipped by express from Colfax, Placer County, to Marysville, Yuba County, May 20. She was gorgeously dressed, and rode in the express-car all the way.

In Santa Barbara County, H. T. Lewis claimed to have sheared the heaviest fleece in the state from a 2-year-old buck. It weighed 30 1/2 pounds, clean wool.

Tobacco plants were being set out in Contra Costa County by the Pacheco Tobacco Company and Parker Germain, the former planting seventy and the latter ten acres.

EVIDENCES OF PREHISTORIC MAN.

The San Francisco Mint melted and coined 50,000 ounces of gold this month. It was a world record.

During the first week of the month the salmon run in the Sacramento River reached its maximum, fishermen catching an average of forty fish a day, and fifty boats operating between Sacramento and Freeport. Several carloads of salmon were sent East each week.

A piece of fossil wood was found in the South Fork tunnel near Forest City, Sierra County, in an ancient buried channel 800 feet below the surface, 1,800 feet from its entrance and at an altitude of 4,500 feet above sea level. It was oak, 20 inches long, 14 inches wide, 5 inches thick—a section of a tree that was two feet in diameter. It had been cut into its present shape by a sharp tool and, of course, by the hands of a prehistoric man.

James McCormack, in the old Blue River channel at Alleghany, Sierra County, in 1858 found in a tunnel some distance beneath the surface seven pine logs that had been sawed and neatly piled. They were 7 feet long and 4 feet in diameter, and had been placed there thousands of years previously.

The steamboat "D. E. Knight," built on the Feather River near Marysville, Yuba County, was launched May 27.

A new stock market was organized in San Francisco, with seats selling at $25 each. To build a board-room on Pine street, $700,000 was available.

J. A. Owens discovered a cinnabar deposit on Shelly Peak in San Benito County which promised well.

The Union Mining Company at La Porte, Plumas County, washed out fifty-three ounces of gold from 200 carloads of gravel, a remarkable yield.

In the Blue Gravel hydraulic mine at Sucker Flat May 5 a blast of 12,000 pounds of black powder was fired, doing great execution.

A. J. Pelham, running a tunnel for seven months near Washington, Nevada County, struck a rich ledge assaying $200 a ton.

MERCED'S COURT-HOUSE DEDICATED.

In early days John Prescott settled on a ranch on Wood's Ravine called Rising Sun, about two miles from Nevada City, Nevada County. He planted several thousand grapevines, some fruit trees and a large berry patch. He made a good living from the sale of his produce. In 1872, feeling infirmities of age coming on, he sold out to John Schmidt and went back to his former Eastern home. Schmidt had two sons and set them to work planting more trees. While doing so, one of the boys uncovered a quartz ledge and, breaking a piece off, found the rock speckled with gold. They obtained several thousand dollars by pounding specimens in a hand mortar and this month hauled sixty-six tons of rock to a mill to be crushed. It assayed $200 a ton. An incline on the ledge to a depth of 120 feet showed the vein there to be two feet wide and streaked with gold.

The first cherries of the season came on the San Francisco market May 3 and sold at 50c a pound. The first peaches, shipped from Marysville, Yuba County, appeared May 31.

Merced County's new court-house, at Merced City, was dedicated May 5.

Southern California was reported to be suffering from a drought. Little rain had fallen during the spring months, and with the drying up of the streams and withering of vegetation cattle were dying by thousands.

At a charivari party in Placerville, El Dorado County, May 31 the newly-made husband inveigled the leader of the gang into his house ostensibly to come through with the expected treat. There the bride thrashed him unmercifully with a rawhide.

At Auburn, Placer County, it developed that there was going to be a scarcity of beaux for the young women at a May Day ball. A couple of the leaders were delegated to go to Sacramento and round up a few. They returned with seven eligible youths, and the party was a great success.

At Yreka, Siskiyou County, a popular young woman posted on the front door of her home the following notice: "Don't call on me for three days. I am eating green onions."

A spelling match at Sacramento May 1 between eight printers and eight schoolmarm's attracted much local attention. It was held in a hall hardly big enough to hold all who desired to attend. It was won by Miss Laura Tade.

DESTRUCTIVE FIRES.

There was a $20,000 trot in San Francisco May 11 between "Defiance" and "Edgington" that was a big betting affair. "Defiance" took the first heat in 2:24; "Edgington" took the next in 2:26 1/2; then "Defiance" won the third in 2:29, but "Edgington" annexed the next two in 2:26.

A half-mile race was run in Los Angeles May 4 between "Irene Harding" and "Walkin' John," locally-owned horses. Almost the entire population of the town went to see it, and nearly all the available money in the place was bet. "Irene" was the fastest.

In the Marysville Buttes, Sutter County, Harry Harter and Hiram Acker killed a monstrous wildcat and captured three kittens. They were trying to domesticate the kittens.

A fire in Napa City May 15 destroyed six buildings and caused a $20,000 loss.

NATIVE DAUGHTER GRAND PARLOR

CATHERINE E. GLOSTER OF ALTURAS, Modoc County, Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, has assured The Grizzly Bear that there will be no change in the place or date for holding the Thirty-ninth (1925) Grand Parlor. It will convene at Placerville, El Dorado County, as determined by last year's (Santa Cruz) Grand Parlor, June 15. The Santa Cruz budget allowed $2,500 for Placerville mileage, but it will amount, it is estimated, to approximately $5,000. However, the action of last year's Grand Parlor will not be rescinded.

Marguerite Parlor No. 12 N.D.G.W. of Placerville has charge of the accommodations for and entertainment of the Grand Parlor attendants. Details are being handled by a committee chairmaned by Ethel Van Vleck.

During this month (May) two parlors will be added to the Native Daughter chain, as Grand President Gloster will institute one at Fall River City, Shasta County, May 12, and another at San Francisco, May 19. The Order's numerical growth the past year has been substantial, and indications are that this year's Grand Parlor will be the largest-attended in the Order's history.

Subordinate Parlors will elect their delegates at their first meeting in May. Several candidates for Grand Parlor office have already announced themselves, but after the election there will be numerous others, as usual. There is no indication that Sue J. Irwin (Berkeley 150) of Berkeley will have opposition as a candidate for grand president, and she will undoubtedly succeed Miss Gloster. Diligent inquiry on the part of The Grizzly Bear has brought this information as to candidates for other offices:

Grand Secretary—May Lacy (Las Lomas 72) of San Francisco.

Grand Marshal—Pearl Lamb (El Pescadero 82) of Tracy; Grand Trustee Josephine C. Barboni (Vendome 100) of San Jose; Dr. Louise C. Heilbron (San Diego 208) of Sacramento.

Grand Trustee (seven to be elected)—Josephine Johnson (El Carmelo 181) of Daly City; Lillian Beguhl (Fresno 187) of San Francisco, incumbent; Vida Vollers (Marinista 198) of San Rafael.—C.M.H.

In Memoriam

E. LOUISE WYCKOFF.

Whereas, The golden gate of the great unknown has again opened its portal, and our beloved sister, E. Louise Wyckoff, has entered her final reward; and whereas, in her death, Aloha Parlor No. 106 N.D.G.W. has lost an exemplary past president and a faithful member, our Order a loyal friend and supporter, our state an estimable citizen, and her family a devoted member; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Aloha Parlor cherish the memory of her sterling qualities, her wise counsel and her many kind deeds, and that we here express the tenderness and love that actuates this deed of commemoration; be it further resolved, that we extend to the bereaved family our deepest sympathy, committing them for comfort to Him "Who doeth all things well," and that a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of Aloha Parlor and be sent for publication to The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

Oakland, April 7, 1925.

JULIA OXENDINE BAGBY.

To the Officers and Members of Ruby Parlor No. 46 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the loving memory of our departed sister, Julia Oxendine Bagby, submit the following:

Whereas, Our Almighty Father, in His tender watchfulness over His flock, has deemed it necessary to take from it one of our dearly beloved members, Sister Bagby, who was respected and loved by all who knew her and whose loss is deeply felt by all, especially those friends who were nearest and dearest to her; therefore, be it

Resolved, That Ruby Parlor No. 46 N.D.G.W. feels most deeply the loss of its esteemed member, and that while bowing humbly to the will of our Heavenly Father we do not the less mourn for our sister who has preceded us to the golden shore of that better land where we shall all meet; that we retain in our hearts a lasting affection for our sister, who was a true and loyal friend, not only to the members of the Parlor but to the community as well; and be it further resolved, that in the hour of our trials we look to our Heavenly Father for consolation; that a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the family of our departed sister, to The Grizzly Bear for publication, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor.

SEPULVEDA PARLOR NO. 263 N.S.G.W. added several new names to its roster April 16, bringing the membership to 186. Several applications are on file, and a membership committee composed of William Reuter, Robert Snodgrass, E. E. Aldwin, Moses Bennett, Edward Reese and some Arey is hard at work, to the end that after the next initiation, May 7, the "baby" Parlor will have passed the 250-mark, thus enabling it to be represented at the San Bernardino Grand Parlor in May by four delegates.

The ritual was exemplified by a team from Ramona Parlor No. 109 (Los Angeles), composed of the following: Irving Baxter, senior past president; William L. Coffey, junior past president; John M. McCroskey, president; Charles O. Brittain, first vice-president; Herman C. Lichtenberger, second vice-president; Dwight Crittenden, third vice-president; Earl A. Mueller, marshal; Walter M. Slosson, inside sentinel; Glen J. Packer, outside sentinel. Visitors were in attendance from Parlors in San Francisco, Vallejo, Long Beach, San Diego and Los Angeles.

On behalf of Ramona Parlor, Past Grand President Herman C. Lichtenberger presented Sepulveda Parlor with a handsome map of the State of California, measuring five by seven feet and framed in natural California redwood. For Sepulveda, it was accepted by James W. Mee. D.D.G.P. William L. Coffey spoke on the proposed revival of the Los Angeles fiesta next year, and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer discoursed on the phenomenal growth of Sepulveda, which has shattered all records of the Order. "The citizens of San Pedro," he said, "have shown more interest in the Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters than has been the case in any other city where a parlor has been instituted. This indicates," he continued, "that San Pedro is a thoroughly California city."

During the evening the Elks' quartet delighted with several selections, and at the close of the meeting refreshments were served. If plans now in the making are perfected, Sepulveda Parlor will send a caravan of one hundred, headed by the Fort McArthur band, to San Bernardino during the week of the Native Sons' Grand Parlor.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS GROWING.

March 27, Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. initiated twenty candidates. President Hazel Boston, in the Parlor's behalf, presented an emblematic pin to Mrs. Rudecinda F. S. de Dodson, and from Second Vice-president Florence Langan she was the recipient of a floral basket. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Leona Blue (chairman), Mary Halverson, Clara Burbridge, Frances Dastarac, Madeline Larrison, Winnie Reed, Esther Wilks, Ruth Carr, Adeline McDonald, Margaret Dever, Gertrude Riepe, and Miss Emily Pinheiro.

April 10 the Parlor initiated nine more candidates, bringing the membership to 143. And it was instituted March 7! April 18 the Parlor gave its first social function, a dance, to which the members' families and the members of Sepulveda N.S.G.W. and their families were invited. The affair proved a big success and will be followed by frequent sociables. In charge of the dance was a committee composed of Mrs. Mary Bailey (chairman), Katie Ross, Emily Abbott, Charlotte Bennett, Ida McNamara, Marie Smith.

CLUBHOUSE IN PROSPECT.

The "San Pedro Daily News" is authority for the statement that the Harbor City's Native Sons and Native Daughters "soon will have a fine building in an excellent location as their own headquarters. While confirmation is waited from two prominent San Pedrans mentioned as the donor of the lot and the person who will provide funds to erect the clubhouse, information is to the effect that the site already has been set aside and that construction of the new home for the Orders is assured."

The yearly subscription rate of The Grizzly Bear is now $1.50. Better invest that small sum and know California.—Adv.

EVENTUALLY EVERY CHILD FINDS HIS RIGHT PLACE

(SECRETARY N.S.G.W. AND N.D.G.W. CENTRAL HOMELESS CHILDREN'S COMMITTEE.)

ANY PERSON WHO HAS BEEN GIVEN the opportunity to know the intimate details of a humanitarian work which concerns the welfare of a child has been many times blessed, and while happiness is never without alloy and while worries come and misunderstandings and disappointments have a way of increasing with growing responsibilities, the proof of the goodness, the genuineness and the bigness of MAN more than compensates for the misgivings and the problems and the heartaches along the way.

Man includes, first and foremost, Fairfax

viction that the greatest comfort that could come to the human heart is the knowledge that they have been instrumental in bringing love, happiness and opportunity to a helpless child.

Man includes the thousands of men and women who have had faith that special tending will develop some little flower into a sturdy plant; that perseverance and conscientious training and example will overcome any untoward tendencies in a child; that understanding and Christian influence will develop a good citizen.

There is now in progress a study, by an able psychologist, of children placed by the Native Sons and Native Daughters Central Committee in homes for adoption when under a year of age who have remained in the same foster home for five years or more. The mental rating of the forty children thus far examined through the hearty co-operation of the foster parents, has been normal and in several instances the children have tested above average. In another year there will be facts and figures that will be enlightening and, no doubt, gratifying.

How do adopted children turn out? How many of them live up to the standards of the families and communities in which they are placed? Tradition has it that every family has a black sheep. The saying is quite untrue, for we all know many families in which there are no such failures and a few in which there are more than one. How many black sheep are there among adopted children?

fear that, "He may not turn out right." They might have the same worry about their own they agree, but still they are "their own" concerning whom the question of inheritance will never be raised and whose misdoings would not stand out, as do the misdoings of an adopted child whom they have known whose antecedents were obscure.

Perhaps it is providential that a greater num

A BOY. BUT COY.

This question is of interest to everyone. It is of great interest to social workers, scientists, philanthropic citizens and legislators. It is of supreme interest to those who have adopted children or contemplate doing so, to needy children for whom adoption is one possible method of care, and to agencies and officials who have assumed responsibility for the care of such children.

A study and critical analysis of 910 children who were placed in foster homes by the State Charities Association of New York and who are now eighteen years of age or over, proved that "77 percent of the children when placed in good homes turned out to be decent, law-abiding citizens, respected in their communities," and while they were the "results of methods of years ago, the percentage of success is most encouraging," and as one writer has said, "Such encouraging results must give new impetus to the work of child-placing, strengthen the zeal and interest of workers, and justify our faith in the latent powers of human nature."

This may be encouraging news to those who, while deploring the fact that nature has denied them offspring, prefer the home without the prattle and laughter of a child to the haunting ber of childless parents are not knocking at the door, when one considers the hundreds who have filed their applications and are waiting for the child of certain age, sex and personal appearance. Every normal, healthy child eventually finds his right place, even if he does not meet the requirements of many who are waiting. To be sure, the child over seven years of age does not always fit into the first home offered. He retains a certain independence of "choice," and while foster parents and child may both be desirable there may be lacking the necessary hamony between them to insure permanency.

This year, ending March 31, 1925, twenty-five children have been re-placed. Increasing in number are those who visit the central office in San Francisco and the secretary in Los Angeles with the children who were taken into their homes when under six months of age and who are now about ready for school. With genuine pride, these children are introduced, when their little caps go off, as the best child, the dearest and sweetest in the State of California. With big, round eyes they look first at mother and then at the office-worker, and clearly is written the question: "Why this embarrassing praise of your own flesh and blood, mother of mine?"

A mother who moved to another city, after adopting a little girl, was eager that no one should know that the child was adopted, although the most dense person in the world would have asked herself why this exaggerated recounting of the child's perfections, why the reiterated declarations of love for the child. Many mothers take what might be considered the wiser course of telling their children, before someone else does, that they were "chosen" because the mother and father were lonely with no little one. There is a certain pride felt by the child in being "chosen."

Little Roberta, from Humboldt County, who is to be a future grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, came in one day with father and mother. There were a number of persons waiting in the office at the time, so the secretary gave a friendly nod and interviewed those who had been waiting. When it came Roberta's turn, she was set upon the table, and given the anticipated reception, but her feelings had been somewhat hurt because of the first greeting, which she considered lacking in cordiality. So she said: "You didn't 'recognize' me, did you, when I first came in?" But after assuring her that she was recognized, but that others had been waiting and had to be taken care of first, she melted, and in answer to my question: "So you are going to be the grand president of the Native Daughters? Why, were you born in California?" she replied: "Why, don't you know? You gave me to my mother and father. They gave me a kiddy car for Christmas and I wanted a baby sister but daddy hasn't given his consent yet. When he does, will you find me one? Don't you know the blue letters you used to send my mother," she prattled on, "telling her how to feed me?" "Oh," I laughed, "those were so mother would not give you peanuts and popcorn and bananas." "Oh," said she in perfect faith, "my mother would never give me such stuff as that to eat. She wouldn't now." A little sparkling, wild-pansy type is this mite of a girl, who knows that she was "chosen" and wants to be the grand president of the Native Daughters of the Golden West and her IQ will be high when the psychologist sees her.

Pages could be filled with examples of the worthwhileness of this undertaking and its promise of an unlimited future as a "useful branch of social service"—thanks to the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, who have made this fifteenth year of work outstanding in quality and quantity, as the following figures will prove:

239 children placed for the first time, 176 by the Central Committee, 63 by the Los Angeles committee, making a total of children placed to date, 2,532.

2,913 homes secured, which includes replacements.

155 legal adoptions by Central Committee recorded during the year, 51 by Los Angeles committee, making a total to date of 1,951 adopted children.

1,128 applications for children filed during the year.

Over $14,000 has been donated to the cause this year by the Native Sons and Native Daughters, the Native Daughters sending in their greatest amount since the institution of the work.

INDUSTRIAL FUTURE OF LONG BEACH NEW CHAPTER IN CALIFORNIA ROMANCE

J. Oliver Brison

(PUBLICITY SECRETARY, LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

THE DISCOVERY OF GOLD AND THE influx of those sturdy "Forty-Niners" was of no greater importance to California than it was to the industrial fraternity of the East which, for nearly three-quarters of a century following, waxed fat on the tribute paid by Californians for products of their establishments. California was not an industrial state, gold was the White man's God, and the early Pioneers worshiped at its shrine.

"Golden State" was a fitting name for California, a state which continues to flood the world with effulgent gold. Yellow, metallic gold from the country rock of its mountain ranges—golden nuggets from the beds where ancient river ran—the warp and woof of its mystic charms, as though to bind together the present with the past, run the golden threads of romance, a romance which began to unfold in 1769 at San Diego, when Fra Junipero Serra raised the first cross and dedicated to Christianity the first mission in California, on through enchanted vales to the Golden Gate of San Francisco.

Rome has the crumbling walls of its Coliseum, while Greece has the ruins of its Acropolis, but still standing as living sentinels that stood at guard two thousand years before the palmy days of Greece and Rome, California has its redwoods, those gigantic sequoias whose towering heights lift their heads above the drifting clouds—mute evidence of a beneficent God, before whose Health-giving gold in the rising sun, and in the eventide the golden sunset of peace and happiness. Gold everywhere—all gold—and through

In all history there is no record of Nature having been so generous in the distribution of her wealth in the way of natural resources, her scenic beauty or her health-restoring climate, as she was with California, and, being favored with such beneficence, one can readily understand why the Pioneers of this great commonwealth gave little thought to the production of further wealth through the prosaic form incidental to industrial development.

California will always be remembered for its romantic past, but today economic forces, hard pressed to meet the demands of an unbalanced world, are fast changing the romance of adventure into the romance of industry, trade and commerce, a drama in which California is now playing an important role.

At the present time, the industrial and commercial nations of Europe are endeavoring to solve their social, political and economic problems on a world-wide basis of readjustment, but to such an extent were those problems engulfed by the aftermath of war, their solution will require years of reconstructive effort before the world at large will again be served by Europe in a manner even approaching that which formerly prevailed.

In the meantime, the tremendous increase in population of our Western states, and of Southern California in particular, has had the effect of opening the flood-gates of prosperity for those whose industrial instincts are of such a nature as to enable them to visualize the future, to read, as it were, the handwriting on the wall, which states emphatically that the trade of the Pacific shall and will be made a part of the activities of the Pacific Coast and mountain states.

Southern California has been boosted, boomed and exploited to a degree never before experienced by any other section of the world. It has been represented and misrepresented in almost every conceivable manner, until it would seem as though there was nothing left to say, and yet, there is hardly a day goes by that does not register some new and important undertaking accomplished or another one begun. Southern California is teeming with opportunities, which only await the touch of a master hand to transfer them into live and tangible assets of almost incalculable value.

Cheap fuel for manufacturing purposes, adequate transportation facilities for distribution of manufactured products, a wonderful climate in which to operate and a still more wonderful climate in which to live, are some of the advantages Southern California has to offer in return for the establishment of industries in this section. But of far greater importance to the manufacturer, Southern California offers domestic and foreign markets on which over 986 millions of people are dependent for the necessities of life and comfort and for the various products used in the arts and sciences of every-day life.

With absolute confidence that a readjustment of industrial and transportation economics is essential and with abiding faith that its own industrial development is only in its infancy, Long Beach, California, the "Wonder City of the Pacific," a city whose population increased from 17,000 to 133,000 during the past thirteen years, is now engaged in the installation of a modern commercial harbor through which the products of industry, trade and commerce may be shipped to the furthestmost ends of the earth.

Located on the shores of the Pacific and with an unexcelled bathing beach of over six miles in length, Long Beach will have as a nucleus around which to build its industrial establishments an inner and outer harbor where the commercial ships of the world may load and unload their cargoes and in which the combined fleets of the American Navy may find a safe and adequate anchorage.

Tributary to Long Beach and within a radius of fifty miles therefrom, is a population of over 1,300,000 people, whose annual purchasing power exceeds $2,296,800,000. The extension of that radius line to points 600 miles distant incorporates a population of 4,100,000 and an annual purchasing power of over $7,435,000,000. These zones represent the local situation only, and do not include some six millions of people who live in the various sections of the mountain and Pacific Coast states but who also form a part of the domestic trade territory of Long Beach.

With a distance of 1,974 miles from the Port of New York to the Panama Canal, plus 2,000 miles from the canal to a point equally distant with Long Beach from the principal ports of the Far East countries, it needs no great stretch of the imagination to realize the strategic and economic advantage Long Beach enjoys as a distributing center for our rapidly increasing trade in the Orient, a trade based on potential markets on which over 875 millions of people are dependent.

Were an attempt made to enumerate the various lines of products which can and will be manufactured in Southern California, the list would include almost every commodity and type of product known to the civilized world. As, for instance, the domestic markets tributary to Southern California consume annually the volume of goods shown by the following figures, a list comprising only a few selected commodities: Cotton textile goods, $180,000,000; knit goods, $60,000,000; woollens and worsted goods, $66,000,000; silk textile goods, $58,000,000; hats and caps, $74,000,000; carpets and rugs, $12,000,000; women's clothing, $101,000,000; men's and boys' clothing, $96,151,000; furniture of wood, $34,515,000; boots and shoes of leather, $90,890,000; men's shirts, $17,500,000; automobiles, $193,194,000; motor trucks, $16,381,000; agricultural implements, $27,775,000; tinware, $20,030,000; stoves and ranges, $9,170,000; ready-mixed paints, $21,367,000; varnishes, $6,666,000; soap, $24,839,000; oilcloth and linoleum, $6,850,000; blacking stains and dressings, $6,944,000; confectionery, $36,680,000; chocolate and cocoa, $9,984,000; pickles, sauces, etc., $12,197,000; flavoring extracts, $2,424,000; perfumery and cosmetics, $4,383,000; cigarettes, $28,667,000; biscuits and crackers, $17,039,000; aluminum ware, $4,095,000; leather belting, $3,383,000.

There was a time when the markets of the West were not capable of consuming goods in the amounts enumerated and, therefore, no inducement could be offered for the establishment of industries in this section. However, the rapid growth in population and the necessity for greater economy in the distribution of commercialized products has changed those conditions to an extent that makes it not only possible but more profitable for the manufacturer to produce such goods on the Pacific Coast.

Any analysis of production and distribution will, in future, be incomplete if it fails to take into consideration the new order of "hand to mouth" buying that is fast superseding the old system of merchandising. Under the old plan, the merchant placed his order for goods in advance of the season in which he expected to dispose of them, thus tying up a considerable amount of his capital for months at a time.

Such methods were naturally satisfactory to the manufacturer, for it enabled him to plan his work in advance and to take full advantage of bulk production. It was not, however, so satisfactory to the merchant for, if anything out of the ordinary happened during his selling season, he would have more or less goods left over which had to be sold at a sacrifice, thus reducing to a considerable extent his annual profit.

The new method of "hand to mouth" buying is no longer a theoretical adventure but an established fact, and it is only a question of time until the producers of standard lines of commodities will be forced to establish branch industries on the Pacific Coast or else forfeit their trade in the Western states and in the Far Eastern countries to new institutions which will be established here and with which the Eastern producer will be unable to compete by reason of the economic advantages the Western manufacturers will enjoy.

In making these statements, there is no intent of antagonizing or intimidating the Eastern manufacturer. The conditions mentioned do exist, and there is no artificial way by which the people of one section may be forced to continue to pay excessive tribute to those of another. The economic laws of distribution may be temporarily violated, but sooner or later they must and will adjust themselves. These are problems which must be considered in any and all plans for the readjustment of our political and industrial life.

The industrial history of the United States shows that prior to the world-war the increase in manufacturing had, in a large measure, been in direct proportion to the increase in population and that manufacturing for export purposes had not been developed to the same extent as that of some of the other nations. That condition was soon changed by the great war, which unconsciously liberated the creative genius of American industry, and that genius, like a huge ball, rolled and gathered in momentum until it reached a point in speed and production never

TO VISIT SAN PEDRO.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. initiated another candidate April 15, Grand Trustee John T. Newell and Al Cron (Los Angeles 45) assisting in the ritual work. Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer was also a visitor. Announcement was made of the recent arrival of a native son at the home of Third Vice-president A. J. M. Schlenmer. Following short talks on matters pertaining to the Parlor's welfare, refreshments were served.

At the May 6 meeting Long Beach will initiate several more candidates. A membership committee is at work rounding up the eligibles. May 7 the officers of the Parlor will visit San Pedro and initiate a class of candidates for Seupveda No. 263. A large delegation of the members will go to San Bernardino to attend the Grand Parlor, in session there the week of May 11.

ENTERTAINS NEIGHBORS.

Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. had as its guests March 26 thirty members of the newly-instituted Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 (San Pedro). Baskets and bowls of spring flowers were used profusely in decorating the hall. Several candidates were initiated.

The Parlor made a donation toward the purchase of a redwood tract in Humboldt County and discussed the report of Mrs. Kittie Dillon dealing with plans for a drinking-fountain to be placed in Houghton Park. Mrs. Mary Weber gave a history reading and President Boston expressed appreciation for Long Beach's interest in Rudecinda.

President Clara Fay presided at the banquet, where short talks were made by D.D.G.P. Carrie Lenhouse, Mrs. Kate McFadyen and Secretary Charlotte K. Bennett of Rudecinda. In charge of the function was the following committee: Mmes. Stephen Ford, F. E. Brittain, C. B. Dodd, Fred Johnson, D. Hansen.

April 29 Long Beach gave a supper, which was followed by dancing. The affair was largely attended and a complete social success.

COMMENCEMENT DAY INTERESTS

WHITE, IT HAS BEEN PROPHESED, is to be highly desirable for many summer garments. Chiffon, plain and printed in flower designs, is to be tailored as though it were serge or kasha. Printed voiles are to be reckoned with polkadots and are revived in designs of importance in border goods. Stripes and floral effects are among the most desirable. Buttons are to be generously used in straight rows on skirts and blouses. Plaid effects insist upon being seen, and most of them are loud enough to be heard.

Pleats and fine tucks are inserted in many garments to break the severity of a plain surface. Suede and leather belts will encircle the hips, some wide and some narrow. Pockets are plentiful. They are useful patches attached without any idea of being conspicuous. They belong on jackets or jumpers, but now and then they appear on skirts. There is much partiality shown to sleeves. Simplicity is standardized.

So far as one can see, it is what one leaves off, not what one puts on, that determines whether or not one is well dressed. Even though more material is to be used in this summer's clothes than was desirable last year, the result must be simplicity. Do not be misled into thinking you can dress well without taking thought, merely because fashion decrees simplicity, for the small details in clothes are what count.

There are other things to learn about new fashions for summer, beyond fabrics and colors. Things are not quite as they have been. The two-piece frock, for instance, is an advent of importance. It is made up of a hip-length jumper and short skirt with cleverly placed fullness. When it boasts of a three-quarter coat to match or harmonize, it is called an ensemble—a much-abused, over-used word.

There is no evidence that the jumper costume will lose popularity during the summer months, so the wise woman will reckon with this new kind of costume. Do not adopt it without knowledge of your figure, for more than any frock offered, this jumper and skirt costume requires slim hips and a youthful carriage.

The "kick pleat" skirt is not the only one of its kind that has put an end to the long-continued supremacy of the narrow, tight skirt. There are skirts with fine knife pleats in the middle front and others with pleats which start below the belt. By a trick of cutting, flounces are used on one-piece frocks as often as pleats, but whatever the fullness, it rarely appears in the back, and the result is a moveable fullness at the hem and a delightful ease in stepping.

The neckline changes in shape to the deep "V" outline for evening and the shallow "V" for day clothes. Jumpers, top coats, short coats and blouses have a rolling collar that flings itself backward in a negligent manner.

The first definite touch in decorating is the jabot of fine muslin, lace or crepe. It is also shown in plaid or polkadot silk. Sometimes it is short, again it is as long as drapery. It may run down the middle front or swing from the shoulder. The jabot promises to be a frivolous and graceful appendage to thin gowns, but it also appears on white flannel, sports frocks and dance frocks.

For the sports frocks, kasha and woollens are first favorites. The natural-colored kasha is especially popular and lends itself admirably to the use of colorful embroidery which is a feature of the present fashion.

Striped tub silks are decidedly popular and show a noticeable tendency to omit trimmings.

Many frocks show smart contrasts in materials and also many interesting scarfs. All the collections belie the rumor that the popularity of the scarf is on the wane. It appears with sports costumes in matching and contrasting colors, with the tailored and the ensemble. For evening, it makes its newest appearance in tulle and satin and is often attached to the dress at the shoulder, the top of the sleeve or under the arm. Women have found the scarf too youthful and becoming to relinquish and so it appears this spring on all occasions, for informal dinners, for the country club and for half-formal affairs.

The ideal frock is a floral printed chiffon. The silhouette for the new season shows the gradual return to more gracious lines by way of flounces or godets. The lingerie type of frock often emphasizes the use of allover embroidery or drawn-work.

French voile combines with eyelet in making one of the most charming variations of the warm weather frock. The blouse is made in surplice effect with a vest and collar of the allover embroidery. The kimono sleeves are trimmed with a tiny puff. The skirt has side panels of the voile edged with embroidery which falls over a plain skirt, and machine hemstitching finishes the vest and side panels.

A Dresden taffeta gown has frayed, gathered ruffles of the material and the result is a charming model for dinner wear. The sleeves are formed by elongating the shoulder line and are finished with a ruffle of the taffeta. A flesh-colored vest of tucked chiffon is an interesting item. This, a slipover model, is held at the hip line with narrow two-tone ribbon to match.

Belts and sashes of all widths are shown everywhere.

Commencement day, with its calendar of events, is interesting the girl graduate. As white is strongly emphasized for summer this year, one may follow graduation modes with closer attention to detail than usual. For the graduate, of course, there is no other selection than white for the frock of frocks, but this may be developed in a very wide list of fabrics, imported and domestic.

Admiring eyes and undecided minds will linger long over the matter of materials. The cottons are as sheer and as beautiful as the chiffons and crepes. All graduation modes follow the line of extreme simplicity. No matter how sophisticated they may be, the chief detail may be the line, but with a good figure a fine line is enough.

Some of the frocks designed for graduation day are accompanied by wonderful little capes of chiffon, crepe satin, crepe-de-chine, etc., showing they are designed for service.

Handwork of all descriptions is especially good this season, such as hemstitching, drawn-work, faggoting, embroidery, etc.

A dress designed in flat crepe is made with the entire bodice in slashed arrangement, hand faggoting being employed to join the panels. A girdle of exquisite satin ribbon is laced through the panels to emphasize the lowered waistline. This effect is unusually youthful and dainty, and doubtless will be seen during the summer.

Lace is used frequently in the decoration of graduation frocks. This form of trimming has achieved smart status in the world of dress.

A frock of white georgette has a yoke of soft, white lace which does not come below the shoulders. A wide band of lace is inserted at the hipline, from which hangs a plaited apron ruffle of georgette. This ruffle is but half the length of the skirt. Below this is another narrow band of lace, followed by another ruffle. A silk belt is posed over the lace insertion and ties on one side.

Plaits, as well as tucks, godets and panels are well liked for youthful styles. Taken as a whole, the modes sponsored by the sweet girl graduate, both for commencement day and other festive days that precede and follow the important event of graduation, are wholly charming and give a glimpse of summer fashions.

SOMETHING DOING.

Ukiah—Ukiah Parlor No. 71 N.S.G.W. had an official visit March 20 from Grand Trustee John T. Newell of Los Angeles, who was accompanied by Secretary George L. Collins of Ferndale Parlor No. 93. Initiation was followed by remarks, and then an old-fashioned "feed" was enjoyed.

For May the good of the order committee has something, the nature of which it will not divulge, "up its sleeve." Young blood, with pep, is taking hold of affairs. Any Native Son up Ukiah-way the first or third Friday of the month, should drop in on the Parlor, and he'll find "something doing."

INITIATES FIVE.

Byron—Donner Parlor No. 193 N.D.G.W. initiated five candidates April 15. D.D.G.P. Jasmine Burdewick was toastmistress at the banquet following the ceremonies and addresses were made by Past Grand President Amy V. McAvoy and D.D.G.P. Hannah McVey of Pittsburg and Sister Smith of Tracy.

The Parlor gave a very successful dance March 21, the proceeds going into its diamond jubilee celebration fund. The card parties have ceased for the season.

"MISS CALIFORNIA" A NATIVE DAUGHTER.

Oakland—Aloha Parlor No. 106 N.D.G.W. initiated six candidates April 14, among them being Miss Faye Lamphiere, who was "Miss California" at the 1924 beauty pageant at Atlantic City, N.J.

May 19 the Pioneer Women of California will be guests of the Parlor at an entertainment and banquet.

Camp to Open—Berkeley's mountain lodge at Echo Lake Camp in the High Sierras near Lake Tahoe will open for the 1925 season June 20.

New High School—Ground has been broken for the new Eureka, Humboldt County, high-school, to cost $450,000 and be completed this year.

Channel Bonds—By a 10-to-1 vote citizens of Stockton, San Joaquin County, authorized April 21 the issuance of $3,000,000 bonds for dredging a deeper channel to the sea.

The yearly subscription rate of The Grizzly Bear is now $1.50. Better invest that small sum and know California.—Adv.

OAKLAND SIXTY YEARS AGO

OAKLAND, AS IT APPEARED SIXTY YEARS AGO, was described by Fred L. Burton at a recent meeting of the California Historical Society in San Francisco.

Among the first lantern slides shown by the speaker was a picture of a little wooden schoolhouse which was built by Horace W. Carpenter at the corner of Fifth and Clay streets, and traded to the townspeople for their waterfront. For nearly three-quarters of a century Oakland officials have been struggling to recover the city's "embareadero." At the beginning, all of Oakland's business was west of Fourth street, and the most important part was between First street and the bay.

Development of the College of California, which Benjamin Ide Wheeler describes as "the precursor of the University of California," was illustrated by the speaker with many pictures. The residence of Dr. Henry Durant, founder of the College of California and the first president of the University of California, was an ornate, two-story structure, which stood at Thirteenth and Franklin streets, the present site of the Oakland "Tribune" office. Three historical hotels were shown—the Grand Central, the Tubbs House and the Galindo.

Two early graveyards were located; the first was where the Municipal Auditorium now stands and the second was on the site of the Municipal Museum, at the foot of Harrison street near what was formerly Laguna del Peralta and now known as Lake Merritt. The original hacienda of Antonio Marie Peralta was pictured as an adobe cottage covered with vines.

Photographs were shown of Moses Chase, the first White settler in Oakland, Edson Adams, Franklin Warner and others. Warner was Oakland's first male teacher. Hanna Adams, wife of Edson Adams, was the first female teacher. Mrs. Blake's school for girls was the first of its kind in Alameda County.

The first county-seat was originally called Helvetia, then Uniontown, and finally Alvarado, the name it now bears. Among the early-time transportation appliances were the bobtail one-horse cars, the dummy railroad from Temescal to Berkeley and the huge double-decker street cars of East Oakland and Brooklyn township.

Mark Twain was prominent in a picnic gathering at the Piedmont Springs, now "the city without a business house," and Bret Harte, Joaquin Miller, Jack London, Ina Coolbrith and other literary celebrities contributed to the fame of Oakland.

Many men and women who were born in Oakland listened to the lecture. Every phase of the community life was delineated, from Pat Hays' saloon to the famous fandango pavilion, and even including the township callaboose which was so sturdily built that it still stands and is used as a smokehouse.

A PIONEER'S HOME.

Here before me is a letter from Fred L. Burton, president of the Oakland Pioneers, calling attention to a recent occurrence worthy of special note. Mrs. Mellie Chase-Williams died recently in Oakland in the same house in which she was born fifty years ago.

In these days of shifting homes not only is this unusual, but in this case the family home was a

A BIT O' FARMING

PREPARED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY M. H. ELLIS

CROP PROSPECTS

CALIFORNIA AGRICULTURE HAS COME through the trying periods of winter and spring wonderfully well; and not for many years has the crop prospect, taken from every angle, been as bright as now. Winter rains were copious in most districts and those of spring supplied moisture to the localities not favored earlier. The mountains have a good snow pack, although not a heavy one, sufficient, however, to assure irrigation water in needed quantities. Frost took a light toll from the deciduous fruitgrower and the set of fruit in most instances has been good, too heavy in fact. Grain promises a splendid yield.

Taking it all in all, the California farmer, as far as production goes, has nothing to complain of this season, granted anything like normal conditions prevail from now until harvest. There are exceptions to this condition, of course, but they are relatively of little importance as compared to the state as a whole. With an enormous crop in prospect, and great increases in the bearing acreage of deciduous fruits, especially, comes the question of marketing. It is a big problem the distributors of California fruit have on their hands this year.

QUALITY PRODUCT PAYS.

There is but one answer to this marketing question: quality. There always is a good market for the good fruit, unless prices are broken down by a lot of inferior produce shipped East without regard to its fitness for consumption. But with the distributors carefully and judiciously placing the thousands of cars that are to be sent to the Eastern markets, and with those cars filled with good fruit, the returns are bound to be satisfactory.

But good fruit means a lot of things. It must be good when it reaches the market, it must present an attractive appearance, and it must have the flavor that calls for more. This means the elimination of the shipment of immature fruits, the careless pack, careful culling of over-ripe stuff, careless refrigeration and rough handling. The Easterner, after a long winter of fruit famine, is anxious to get California cherries and plums and peaches and pears. But if he finds the quality poor, the flavor bitter because the fruit is green, or so ripe it is wasty or so bruised it is unfit to eat, he no longer is a customer for California fruits. The growers and shippers are awake to the situation, and fruit will be better standardized and graded this summer than ever before.

WHAT IS A FARMER?

"Agriculture is still based on the soil and not on any philosophy of political protest of social unrest," said former Dean Liberty Hyde Bailey, who went back from his Southern home to Cornell University for farmers' week. Dean Bailey insists the first duty of the farmer is to produce, that marketing is secondary.

In California, right now, it appears almost as if marketing is the problem of prime importance. Viewing the situation from a world viewpoint, there is a different phase to be seen. In this state production already is so heavy and the marketing difficulties, due to distance and demand, are so many, the selling phase of the matter seems to predominate.

But be that as it may, the farmer's first duty is to farm, and farm well; to keep the soil fit and ready to produce the greater food supply the world inevitably must demand with its ever increasing population. He must produce, at as low a cost as possible, the greatest possible crop, as a matter of economics. Also, he must be a business man, in marketing as well as in production.

SULPHURING OF VINES.

With the season started as it has, rather rainy, vineyardists will do well to be on the lookout for mildew. If the weather should develop without further precipitation, sulphuring will be handled easily. If the rains and cloudy weather, on the other hand, continue, then grapegrowers must sulphur liberally or sustain heavy losses from mildew. In the warmer portions of the state, this work of sulphuring already has begun, the lesson of 1923 being still fresh in mind. The first sulphuring should be done when the new growth is but a few inches in length. Subsequent operations will depend upon weather conditions.

THE EASTERN DEMAND.

Economic conditions in the East this year are such there is likely to be a demand for California fruits, reports W. D. Bennett, salesmanager of the California Fruit Exchange, after a survey trip through the prospective marketing districts. There is more money in the banks, more work for laborers, more mills running and a better tone all around, than for several years, he reports, and consequently there should be a good demand for products from this state.

GROWTH OF FRUIT INDUSTRY.

A startling increase in the development of the fruit industry in the United States is shown in figures given by the United States Department of Agriculture. More than 450,000 carloads of seventeen leading fruits were shipped in 1923, as compared with 346,000 carloads three years previously. Apples, oranges and grapes show the greatest increases, and California is responsible for the last two commodities, but not so heavily interested in the first-named. Shipments of apples jumped from 109,000 carloads in 1920 to 134,000 in 1923; while in the same period oranges increased from 50,000 to 76,000 carloads, and grapes from 41,000 to 65,000 carloads. When the history of the fruit deal of 1925 is written, the 1920 orange and grape figures, particularly the latter, are going to show a further enormous increase.

REFRIGERATION INVESTIGATIONS.

Studies of the refrigeration of California fruits on their trips to the East are to be continued this year by the California Fruit Exchange, the University of California, the railroads concerned and others interested. It was found last year, in tests made, that the temperature varied in all parts of the refrigerator car, and that fruit that carried perfectly in one location would spoil in another. What means can be found of circulating the air so the refrigeration will make the car temperature uniform, is the problem upon which the investigators are centering their efforts.

COTTON IN CALIFORNIA.

If the experiment of cotton growing being conducted in the lower San Joaquin Valley and the Sacramento Valley is successful, the acreage planted to this crop throughout the state next year probably will be tremendous, and may place

California in the van of cotton production in the United States. The Imperial Valley, Riverside, Kern, Kings and Fresno Counties have tried cotton and found it a good crop, particularly in the last two years. It is but natural the spread of the industry should result.

There are considerations, however, that are to be reckoned with. The first of these is the shorter growing season to the north, where early fall rains are likely to damage the unpicked crop. However, a normal crop this year would tend to an amazing increase in acreage next season, if the prices continue good.

LATE GARDEN GROUND.

Late gardens should not be neglected. In most of California, the early plantings mature so quickly there is plenty of opportunity for utilizing the ground twice—three times in some instances. Manure dug in at the time of the second planting will aid to retain fertility that may be drained by double cropping. Wood ashes, if they are available, will furnish lime and phosphate for vegetables, berries and small fruits and even for lawns. It is well to use not more than a bushel to a square rod. Coal ashes have no fertilizing value, but in heavy soils they may be used to make them more friable. Lawn cuttings should be saved and thrown into a compost pit or heap, and put into the soil when it is spaded or plowed. If everything is taken from the soil and nothing returned, its productivity must weaken rapidly.

CARE IN IRRIGATION.

In watering plants, care should be used. This is particularly true in the home garden, where there is a tendency, if the water is available, to keep it going whether the soil is thirsty or not. If the plant needs water, soak the ground. Don't merely sprinkle the surface; sprinkling does more harm than good. This applies to lawns too. They should be thoroughly soaked instead of lightly sprinkled. The roots then have a downward tendency, while if the water always is applied lightly on top, the roots remain there. The use of irrigation water in California must more and more be watched, for the demands are becoming increasingly great.

PEACH SPRAY BURNING.

Reports from practically all sections of the state indicate there has been some loss from burning through the application of sulphur sprays. This is due in great measure to the fact that weather conditions delayed the application of the sprays. The bulk of the damage was done when the trees were beginning to blossom and the leaves were starting. Stronger solutions caused more damage, and where the spraying was done on wet trees the injury was more severe, foggy weather adding even greater damage. Where the solutions applied were weaker, the damage was less from burning, but control of peach leaf curl and peach twig moth was not effective. The burning of twigs was most severe where the full strength of dormant spray solution was used.

Growers should be careful in applying dormant sprays to trees out of dormancy. As has been evidenced this season, the resultant injury is greater than from the pest sprayed to control. The forehanded orchardist, with his spray rigs ready to go when the occasion offers, usually complains of little damage.

PIPING FOR SPRAY.

The rains of April added another spray trouble for the growers, especially of apples and pears. The trees in the valley districts, heavy with bloom and open to the attacks of the codling moth, could not be sprayed because of the rains. Even where arsenate had been properly applied, it was in many instances doubtless washed off. The most serious phase of the situation was that the rains were so heavy the spray rigs could not be pulled through the orchards for several days after precipitation had ceased.

This has happened several times, and for this and other reasons, many orchardists have piped their orchards for spraying. Pipe lines with faucets are placed throughout the property planted for fruit trees. It then is a simple matter to start the spray engine in the mixing house and attach hoses and nozzles to the various outlets. The plan has worked satisfactorily on many farms in the state this spring. In addition to enabling spraying to be done more quickly after rains, it provides a means of getting it done more rapidly. An orchard that requires a ten-hour day to spray with the portable outfits, can be sprayed easily with half the men in two hours. The pressure always is even and the mixture more easily regulated. The initial cost is greater, but orchardists who have installed the system say it will pay for itself in four years in the saving of labor, aside from the safety features it also has in its favor.

CATTLEMEN SELL STOCK.

The California Cattlemen's Association, organized last winter as a co-operative marketing concern, is actively engaged in the selling of the produce of its members. More than 80 percent of the cattle in California, 90 percent in Nevada, 95 percent in Arizona and 100 percent in Utah are said to be under contract to sell through the co-operative organization.

This is one concern that has started with a market at hand, with an under-production rather than under-demand, without the intention of putting packers out of business but rather of

HUMBOLDT COUNTY PARLORS'

NUMBERS ARE SWELLED.

EUREKA—DESPITE THE FACT THAT A fierce rainstorm was in progress, seventy-one candidates, rounded up by Deputy Grand President Newman Cohn for Humboldt 14 and Arcata 20 were initiated March 17. The ritual was exemplified by the following: Grand President Edward J. Lynch, president; Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler, first vice-president; Grand Second Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, second vice-president; Grand Third Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, third vice-president; Grand Secretary John T. Regan, marshal; Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge, inside sentinel; Grand Outside Sentinel J. Hartley Russell, organist; Grand Trustee Alfred H. McKnew, junior past president. Previous to the initiation the visiting grand officers were shown the wonders of Humboldt County. Music for the evening was furnished by a six-piece orchestra from the Ferndale Union high-school, the Humming Birds.

Arthur Dalton was toastmaster at the banquet which followed the initiation. Grand First Vice-president Cutler, a Humboldt, delivered an eloquent address on patriotism in which he gave the Native Sons credit for the exclusion of Japanese. Grand President Lynch dwelt on the efforts of the Order to accomplish good. Other speakers included Grand Second-Vice-president Welch, Grand Secretary Regan, Deputy Grand President Cohn, President A. Spellenberg of Arcata 20, who presented Cohn with a gold pencil in appreciation of his efforts for that Parlor, and President John Lund of Ferndale 93.

Deputy Grand President Cohn had signed up over 200 candidates for the Parlors, but the weather's inclemency and the fact that the initiatory ceremonies had to be conducted on Friday night kept a great number of the candidates from responding. During the evening he was given an ovation, and his work as an organizer was highly commended.

BOARD GRAND OFFICERS MEETS.

San Francisco—With Grand President Edward

J. Lynch presiding, the Board of Grand Officers met in Native Sons' Building March 28 and transacted considerable routine business. In attendance were Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand Third Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Junior Past Grand President William J. Hayes, Grand Trustees James A. Wilson, Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, Seth Millington, John S. Ramsay, John T. Newell and Alfred H. McKnew.

An invitation from Estudillo 223 (San Leandro) to conduct the initiatory ceremonies April 21, on the occasion of the Parlor's anniversary, was accepted.

Communications were received from T. D. Gage of Seattle, Washington, and P. DeForrest Merriman of Missula, Montana, to the effect that plans are under way to form organizations similar to the Native Sons. Grand Secretary Regan was directed to furnish them with all details.

A resolution prevailed that the Grand Parlor Finance Committee hereafter, when a Parlor is instituted subsequent to the last day of the year and prior to the Grand Parlor next following, levy a per capita tax on the membership of such Parlor as of the date of institution.

Grand First Vice-president Cutler was delegated to present a report on proposed ritual changes to the San Bernardino Grand Parlor, and Junior Past Grand President Hayes was delegated to report on proposed changes in the constitution pertaining to membership.

For prizes awarded to winning Parlors in the San Francisco membership contest that terminated March 28, $25 was appropriated.

Clubhouse Progressing.

San Bernardino—The true fraternal spirit was exemplified at the April 8 meeting of Arrowhead 110, when a committee from San Bernardino Lodge of Odd Fellows appeared and tendered the services of its members and the use of its halls during the Grand Parlor. Encouraging reports were made by the Grand Parlor committee, and Grand Trustee Newell, a visitor, spoke on the Order. A $100 check from Los Angeles 45, for the Grand Parlor entertainment fund, was gratefully received, and a letter of commendation from the San Bernardino Pioneer Society, accompanied by a check, was much appreciated.

Work on the Parlor's clubhouse at Crestline is progressing. April 12 President "Sid" Mee and his gang of carpenters, tinsmiths, painters, tilesetters, plumbers, etc., the plumbers reinforced by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, put in a full day at labor and accomplished much. At noon "Chef" John Andreson, assisted by "John Boy," served a wonderful steak dinner, prepared on the premises. Arrowhead's membership is increasing, several candidates being initiated April 15, and the Parlor is in a flourishing condition generally.

Having Rested, Now on the Go.

Sacramento—Sutter Fort 241, which was resting for some time, is again active and on the go. The boys are full of pep and springing something interesting all the time. March 25 a theater party was enjoyed, and April 1 the second of a series of whist parties was held, there being a good turnout. After the play a hocus-pocus artist entertained with a bag of sleight-of-hand tricks. April 29 the membership committee presented a bunch of candidates for initiation. The officers appeared in tuxedos, and that will be the order in Sutter Fort at all future initiations.

The Parlor had an interesting letter from Joseph R. Sanchez, exiled in Reno, Nevada, for several months, and twice Harry A. Nauman Jr., the silver-tongued orator, has ascended the heights of oratory to the members' delight. Dr. Durst is preparing to spring something sensational in the way of an entertainment.

The Early Bird, You Know.

Livermore—Las Positas 96 is already arranging for its annual Christmas tree for the "kids" of this locality. Toys and dolls must be purchased far in advance to assure delivery in time, so a committee consisting of M. Victor, John Rose, Martin Poco and H. W. Hupers has been named by President C. J. Turner to attend to that detail.

Why Not a Ritual Contest?

San Rafael—Mission 38's (San Francisco) ritual team accepted the invitation and initiated a large class of candidates April 20 for Mount Tamalpais 64. The latter Parlor has "some" ritual-team itself, and they closely scrutinized the work of the visitors.

The Mission boys claim their team has invitations from Parlors from San Francisco to the Mexican border to exemplify the ritual, and the Tamalpais boys claim their team has invitations from Parlors from San Francisco to the Oregon border to exemplify the ritual. So, there you are.

Bob Curry, chairman of the banquet committee of Mount Tamalpais, who enjoys a most enviable reputation as a provider of good things to eat, served a feast fit for Native Sons, to say nothing of a king.

Efforts Appreciated.

San Diego—San Diego 108 is pushing right ahead, last month adding twenty-one names to its membership-roster. May 3, to create a general interest in the work of the Order, the Parlor will feature a public barbecue at El Monte Park.

Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, a member of San Diego who is doing most effective organization work in the south, has received from Sepulveda 263 (San Pedro), which he was instrumental in instituting, the following letter, dated April 16 and signed by President James H. Dodson Jr. and Recording Secretary Benj. P. Sepulveda:

"Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. wishes to take this opportunity to express to you its sincere appreciation for your earnest and whole-hearted efforts in behalf of this Parlor during its institution and continuing on up to the present time. We realize that you have spared neither time nor labor, and we want you to know that every member is cognizant of this fact, and we want you to take this as a personal message of thanks from each one."

ated three candidates, the ritual being exempted by the officers in a very courteous manner. The Parlor is looking forward to a very successful and increase in members. Delegates to the 25th Bernardino Grand Parlor were chosen, one of them being Charles E. Butler, the sole surviving charter member, to whom, several years ago, the Parlor presented a life membership in appreciation for his faithful service.

Following the meeting a banquet was served, after which all the past presidents made remarks. Very entertaining was the address of Butler, who recounted the Parlor's early history, much to the enjoyment of the younger members.

"Pioneer Women" Winning Essay.

Elk Grove—Miss Nell Johnston was awarded the trophy in the eleventh annual California history essay contest under the auspices of Elk Grove 41. Her subject was "Pioneer Women," and the judges were Dr. F. M. Sharp of the College of the Pacific, Dr. Owen C. Coy of the California State Historical Association and President J. B. Lillard of the Sacramento Junior College. A large crowd, including many Pioneers, listened to the essays, each of five minutes' length, which were presented in the high-school auditorium.

The evening's program opened with an orchestra selection, following which Guy G. Foulkes, president of the Parlor when the annual contest had its inception, set forth the purpose of the contest. Warren Gage, winner of the trophy last year, presented it to Miss Johnston, and Dr. Coy gave a summary of California's early history.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

Visitors Initiate Class.

Martinez—Two hundred members of the Order witnessed the initiation of a class of candidates April 9 for Mount Diablo 101 by the officers of Eden 113 (Hayward), who were accompanied by the Parlor's famous drum-corps and fifty members.

Previous to the initiation there was a parade, headed by Eden's drum-corps. During the evening there was a program of comedy stunts and piano selections by P. J. Leonard Jr. and Belton Fleisher, and addresses by Past Grand President James F. Hoey, D.D.G.P. Baccigalupi, Judge Harder, Frank Marshall.

Charter Member Honor Guest.

Placerville—Placerville 9 had as its guest of honor March 25 George H. Hofmeister of Oakland, its sole surviving charter-member, who was presented by Fred Irwin, in behalf of the Parlor, with a gold emblematic cardcase.

METROPOLITAN COLLEGE SATISFIES

METROPOLITAN COLLEGE OF THE University of Southern California, established in the business district of Los Angeles City, is satisfying the demands of the commercial world for university education. Work taken at Metropolitan College is considered as residence work and regular university credit is given which may be counted towards the Bachelor of Science Degree.

Besides the classes given during the day, late afternoon and evening classes are offered for the benefit of those who are unable to attend during the day. Out-of-town classes are also conducted by the regular faculty, in connection with the Metropolitan College. These classes are formed in accordance with the demand in the different cities.

The belief is strong that a student of business administration, more particularly than in any other department, is greatly dependent upon contacts made among other business associates for his future success. That he should make some of these contacts during his college career, and if possible secure advance experience before graduating from college, is the paramount aim of the coordination plan of education, with the added inducements of aiding him in earning expenses. This system of alternating study and work, which proved successful in a number of Eastern institutions before being incorporated in the plans of Metropolitan College in its initial establishment on the Pacific Coast, reacts favorably to student, college and business organizations co-operating.

From the time when the first two coordination students were placed by Metropolitan College at the opening of the summer session in July 1924, until now when more than twenty representative Los Angeles business houses welcome students who, working in pairs, alternate study and work, this procedure has been carefully watched by the educational and commercial organizations throughout this section, if not throughout the entire country.

Reports from the employers of the coordinating students signify satisfaction and interest, and the open door to positions includes the entrance to Barker Brothers, Broadway Department Store, Bullock's, Citizens National Bank, Coulter's, First National Bank, Desmond's, Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation, Pacific Southwest Trust and Savings Bank, Prudential Life Insurance Company, Silverwood's, Santa Fe

To the students who satisfactorily complete a minimum of 120 quarter units and who have fulfilled the major departmental requirements, a Certificate in Commerce is awarded.

selling to them, and with economic conditions apparently set for success. Whether the plan succeeds depends much upon the human element, whether the members stay with it. The problems are different from anything hitherto encountered in co-operative marketing in this state, and the trail must be blazed from the start. The progress of the venture will be watched with interest by those interested in the livestock industry, whether in California or some other state.

THE FARMER AND THE PLOW.

For centuries the plow has stood as a symbol of agriculture. To suggest a farmer, a plow was mentioned. In the modern agriculture of California, however, a new plan of tillage has become in evidence, in which the plow plays no part at all. Instead of turning over the soil and, according to the claims of some, burning out plant food and bacteria that make it available, a chisel cultivator is used, stirring the soil to the depth of perhaps a foot. In some instances a subsoiler is used to break the ground to an even greater depth. A disc harrow completes the tillage operations, turning the cover crop under in orchards, or keeping weeds down in summer fallow grain land. The practice is new and has been somewhat slow of adoption, but many farmers believe it of great value.

First Cherries—The first box of California's 1925 cherry crop left Vacaville, Solano County, March 27. Last year the first shipment was made from the same place April 7.

Rodeo—The annual rodeo at Livermore, Alameda County, is billed for July 3, 4 and 5.

WITH

for your wood-frame stucco home

With the economy of old stucco and plaster wall construction, thousands of California Homes are attaining the solidity, and fire-resistant, weather proof qualities of stone—through the use of a new unit wall base.

Instead of the complex bases formerly used—sheathing, paper, metal and wood lath—panels of artificial rock (KLINCH LATH) are nailed in an unbroken armor to the wall frame, inside and out. Heavy, waterproof layers of fibreboard protect the wall from weather warping and decay, insulating heat, cold and sound. Deep, scientifically-spaced notches grip the plaster and stucco forever.

Specify KLINCH LATH in the new home, apartment or business building. Stronger, more permanent walls will result—free from cracks and blemishes. A card will bring sample and all information.

SAN BERNARDINO, THE METROPOLIS of the fertile San Bernardino Valley, will have as its guests, the week of May 11, several hundred members of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, who will be given a royal welcome by all the people of San Bernardino County.

This will be the first visit of many of them to the great Southland. To many, too, the trip will be educational, for, although natives of the great State of California, they have a wrong impression of the vast acreage of the state lying south of the Tehachapi.

The Grand Parlor of the Native Sons meets annually in various sections of the state, in order that the members of the Order may have an opportunity, under the most favored conditions, to require first-hand knowledge of the sections visited. Through long membership in the Grand Parlor, many have become thoroughly acquainted with all California, and know that each section has its charms and advantages.

The meeting of the Grand Parlor in San Bernardino this year will prove mutually beneficial to the host-city, to the whole southern section of the state, and to the members of the Order.

What do the pacifists, brotherhood-of-man-kindists and other world-peace dreamers think of the treaty between Japan and Russia?

The latter, you know, is not a party to any of the so-called "peace treaties," is a powerful country in manpower and resources, and is not bound by the agreements arrived at the Japan-England-manipulated Washington disarmament conference, the terms of which have been lived up to by but one agreeing-power, the United States.

It appears to us that this is a clever move on the part of the Japs to arm, through Russia, to the teeth, and then, by force of arms, attempt to force its "equality" demand upon the world, aiming particularly at the United States.

Keep your eyes on Japan, and eventually you will see that it has sinister motives, and that serious damage will be done to the Pacific Coast unless, in the meantime, adequate defenses are provided for.

With this, May, issue The Grizzly Bear Magazine, the only official publication of the Orders of Native Sons of the Golden West and the Native Daughters of the Golden West, begins its nineteenth year.

The purpose of the magazine is to labor for the advancement and the welfare of California, and to create interest in the state's romantic early history.

For the course it has followed in the past, The Grizzly Bear has no apologies to offer, and, believing that course to be the proper one, it will be followed in the future.

To those who have given moral and financial support to the magazine, thanks are extended. Eventually, it is hoped, The Grizzly Bear will be found in every California home, where, for the good of the state, it should be a monthly caller.

The Federal Census Bureau made public April 15 figures showing that California's manufacturing establishments had an aggregate output in 1923 valued at $2,216,638,248. This was an increase of 26 percent, compared with the 1921 output of $1,758,682,485.

There are opportunities in California for numerous manufacturing establishments of all kinds. Their number and the variety of their products are on the increase, and the record for 1925, when finally compiled, will surpass that of the year 1923.

People living in California should, in their purchasing, give preference, where quality and price are equal, to California products. That is the great incentive that will influence other manufacturers to locate their factories in this state. California needs more factories, and they will come if "Buy Home Products" becomes a state-wide policy.

"Seventy-one years I've lived today," said

THE FLEET IN SAN FRANCISCO

(JAMES D. PHELAN.)

Behold twin mountains cast like pyramids,
Which top the lesser hills and stand in lieu
Of handicraft, such as old Cairo prides!
It is their pleasure courtesy to do
To greet the arriving sun and bid adieu;
And when the hosts of fog invade the land,
With oceans in reserve, they still are true:
And bravely breast and dissipate the band.
'Tis thus, by merit crowned, that garlanded they stand!

Against the sky a line of battlements,
The City spread along a Golden strait,
But yesterday a line of gleaming tents,
Where Pioneers, unconscious tools of Fate,
Horizon-hungry, wrought insatiate.
Look back, ye generations, over there,
The Fleet that bore the Flag inviolate
Brought forth a Commonwealth, and spreading far
The banner bountiful, by adding just one Star!

God-guarded Fleet, no threat of foreign land
Lee-shore nor mine-strewn deep could scatter thee
When down the tempest came the stern command
Of Sloat or Dewey, home and victory!
Saint Francis, bless the serviceable sea!
Lift prayers for Fleet,—chant gratitude unbounded,— Strong for the right, to fight unflinchingly!
The Nation, proud, her depths of love have sounded,
No greater love than thine, the State the Navy founded!

O California, best beloved land,
Written is Freedom on thy earliest page:
From sister States marched many a patriot band
To share the glory of thy heritage.
Secure thy Empire, let the heathen rage!
Thy mountains feed thy valleys, and above
Thy skies benignant; home of poet, sage!
And who, embracing thee, would care to rove,
And who would fail his troth, unconquerable love!

WHOLE NO. 217

Thomas R. Marshall, former vice-president of the United States; commenting on his birthday anniversary. "I've made lots of mistakes, have regretted all of them. I've seen and known many people, good and bad, who have had varied experiences, but the sum total of all my observations is that there's more good in the world than evil."

He is correct, but the trouble is, we hear all about the evil and very little about the good. Take the daily-paper, for an example. The murderer, the girl debaucher, the wife beater gets front-page publicity with "scare" heads, while the person who is endeavoring to uplift is "featured" in a few lines on a back page.

According to W. L. Rose, businessman of Honolulu and a visitor to Los Angeles, Japs "are overrunning the Hawaiian Islands, and in fifteen years, at the present rate of increase, will dominate the polls."

How long will it be before the Japs now here, considering their rabbit-like breeding record will dominate the polls in California? This is a matter which should engage the careful thought of every Californian.

To our way of thinking, it is just as necessary, if California is to be kept White, to get rid of the Japs now here as to prevent more from coming in. The pests can be routed, within the law, if the authorities will enforce the Alien Land Law and recover all the land now in unlawful possession of the Japs, and if the White people will cease patronizing, directly or indirectly, any and every Jap, white or yellow.

The numerous friends and admirers of Senator James D. Phelan of San Francisco were grieved to hear that he suffered severe injuries in an accident, April 20, that will confine him to his home for some time.

Senator Phelan is one of California's most loyal and valued citizens, and has accomplished much for the state's welfare. The people of the state made a sad mistake when they failed to return him to the United States Senate, for California needs men like him on the firing-line at the National Capital. But, politics does accomplish many strange things; often its capers are beyond the understanding of the thinking voter.

Rev. H. M. Law declared in a discourse at Chico, Butte County, April 15, that "Men came from God, not from monkeys."

Perhaps he is right, but it is certain that, no matter where "men came from," many of them, after they get here, make monkeys of themselves, and particularly so in these days of "prohibition."

torium which, the attendants will no doubt unanimously declare, is the best meeting-place a Grand Parlor has ever been provided.

Grand Secretary John T. Regan's report will prove interesting, setting forth, as it will, the transactions and the progress of the Order during the fiscal year ending April 20, 1925. This will show that there was a gross membership gain of 325, the total enrollment now being 27,318, the largest in the Order's history.

The Subordinate Parlor's total receipts amounted to $414,729.58, and their expenditures to $375,699.82. Their total assets amount to $1,086,782.72, approximately $40 per capita. They paid out in benefits, to 1,877 members, $108,593.51. Parlors with a membership of 450 and over, together with their assets, include:

Parlor	Members	Assets
Ramona Parlor 109	1,234	$31,427.41
Stockton Parlor 7	839	44,991.32
Castro Parlor 232	780	9,442.91
South San Francisco Parlor 157	675	25,654.40
Piedmont Parlor 120	642	23,278.60
Twin Peaks Parlor 214	627	12,269.70
Rincon Parlor 72	581	14,818.69
Stanford Parlor 76	540	15,792.67
Arrowhead Parlor 110	525	14,227.13
Los Angeles Parlor 45	522	5,259.00
Pacific Parlor 10	518	18,246.95
Sacramento Parlor 3	502	44,369.28
Fruitvale Parlor 252	470	6,824.77
California Parlor 1	434	26,112.45

Other Parlors, with assets of $20,000 and over, together with their membership, include:

Parlor	Members	Assets
Presidio Parlor 194	448	$35,533.98
Eden Parlor 113	175	34,228.55
Napa Parlor 62	401	25,358.72
San Jose Parlor 22	347	24,626.95
Placerville Parlor 9	287	24,510.08
Amador Parlor 17	115	21,858.94
Sunset Parlor 26	398	21,636.30
Excelsior Parlor 31	159	20,298.43

Grand Secretary Regan's report will also announce the Grand Parlor's trophy-banners winners for 1925. The contest was among Subordinate Parlors, divided into classes according to membership. Where Parlors in any class failed to make the required five percent increase, the banners were awarded those in other classes making meritorious gains. In classes 11, 12 and 18 no banners were awarded, because no Parlors, other than those where fieldmen worked, made sufficient gains to entitle them to banners. The winning Parlors include:

Parlor and Class	Members gained	Percent gain
Class 1, South San Francisco 157	53	8.1
Class 2, Los Angeles 45	32	6.4
Class 3, Fruitvale 252	30	6.7
Class 4, Castro 232	52	7.4
Class 5, Santa Cruz 90	7	20.8
Class 6, Alameda 154	22	10.1
Class 7, San Francisco 49	22	5.4
Class 8, Corona 196	23	12.3
Class 9, Eden 113	13	7.8
Class 10, El Capitan 222	9	7.5

WANTS MONUMENT FINANCED.

Many matters pertaining to the Order's welfare and progress will come before the Grand Parlor, among them proposed changes in the constitution and the ritual which, many are firmly convinced, are necessary if the hoped for heights of prominence and influence are to be attained.

Organization methods will have an interesting lining. It is certain. There appears little doubt but that the office of Grand Director will be abolished. The Order is deserving of and must have largely increased membership, and the Grand Parlor, after mature deliberation, will undoubtedly map out a course to pursue, as well as provide the necessary finances, which will bring the desired results.

Resolutions covering almost every conceivable subject are presented at every Grand Parlor, and the San Bernardino session will prove no exception. They will all be given consideration, and action taken in accordance with the nature of the subject treated.

San Diego Parlor No. 108 has long been interested in the building of a monument on Point Loma "to commemorate the discovery of San Diego Bay and California by Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo," and believes that it "should be erected by the Order at large and should be suitably marked as a donation to the Federal Government by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West." Accordingly, San Diego's delegates will propose that, for the purpose of financing the proposed monument, a per capita tax of ten cents be levied for a period of five years.

In 1910 the State of California and the Order of Native Sons erected in the historic plaza in old Sonoma a monument commemorating the raising of the State (Bear) Flag there, June 14, 1846. Sonoma Parlor No. 111 has expended $1,500 of its own funds to give the monument a proper setting, by improving and keeping up about an acre of the plaza surrounding the monument, given over to its supervisions by the Sonoma City trustees. So, Sonoma's delegation will ask the Grand Parlor to make an annual appropriation for the proper upkeep of the grounds.

CANDIDATES FOR OFFICE.

Quite a few candidates are in the field for the various Grand Parlor offices, and rumor has it that, just before nomination-day, some "dark horses" will enter the races. It is a near-certainty that the following advancements will be made:

Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler (Humboldt 14) of Eureka to Grand President; Grand Second Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch

SAN BERNARDINO GRAND PARLOR

WATSONVILLE 65 N.S.G.W.

(Lodi 18) of Lodi to Grand First Vice-president; Grand Third Vice-president Charles A. Thompson (Santa Clara 100) of Santa Clara to Grand Second Vice-president.

Grand President Edward J. Lynch (Pacific 10) of San Francisco will automatically become the Junior Past Grand President. Grand Secretary John T. Regan (South San Francisco 157) of San Francisco will be unanimously re-elected.

For Grand Third Vice-president there are two candidates at this writing: Grand Trustee Seth A. Millington (Colusa 69) of Colusa and Grand Trustee James A. Wilson (Rincon 72) of San Francisco. There may be a third entrant. Candidates for other offices include:

Grand Marshal—Harry W. Gaetjen (Golden Gate 29) of San Francisco.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Grand Outside Sentinel J. Hartley Russell (Yerba Buena 84) of San Francisco.

Grand Outside Sentinel—George A. Dethlefsen (Watsonville 65) of Watsonville and William I. Forrest (Claremont 240) of Oakland.

Grand Trustees (seven to be elected)—Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez (Pacific 10) of San Francisco; John T. Newell (Los Angeles 45) of Los Angeles, incumbent; Alfred H. McKnew (San Francisco 49) of San Francisco, incumbent; Edgar F. Hastings (San Diego 108) of San Diego; Jerome B. Kavanagh (Arrowhead 110) of San Bernardino; Richard M. Hamb (Piedmont 120) of Oakland, incumbent; Charles L. Dodge (Crockett 205) of Crockett, incumbent; John S. Ramsay (Castro 232) of San Francisco, incumbent. It will indeed be surprising if, in accordance with many persistent rumors, several more contenders do not appear in the race for the grand trusteeships.

GRAND PARLOR COMPOSITION.

San Francisco will seek, and be awarded, this year's Admission Day celebration, when both the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission to the Sisterhood of States and the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Order of Native Sons will be commemorated. No one appears to have heard of any place seeking next year's Grand Parlor.

The San Bernardino Grand Parlor will be composed of grand officers, past grand presidents, members of certain standing committees, and Subordinate Parlor delegates.

Senior Past Grand Presidents—John H. Grady, Fred H. Greeley, Dr. Charles W. Decker, William H. Miller, Robert M. Fitzgerald, Thomas Flint Jr., Judge Frank H. Dunne, Judge Henry C. Gesford, George D. Clark, Judge William M. Conley, Frank L. Coombs, Lewis F. Blington, Hubert R. McNoble, Judge Charles E. McLaughlin, Walter D. Wagner, Joseph R. Knowland, Daniel A. Ryan, Herman C. Hofmeister spoke interestingly of the early days and remarked that Placerville was one of the first Parlor to engage in landmarks work, having purchased and deeded to the state the historic site where the Marshall monument now stands.

Addresses were made by Abe Darlington, Henry Lyon, W. A. Rantz and Ted C. Atwood, the latter reporting progress on Placerville's plans for participation in the San Francisco golden jubilee celebration. Vocal selections were rendered by A. S. Fox, Leslie T. Butts, Atwood McKee and Perry Tracy. Marguerite 12 N.D.G.W.

historic one, being built in the early fifties by her grandfather, Moses Chase, the first White settler on the Oakland side of San Francisco Bay. He went over from San Francisco in the winter of 1849-50, pitched his tent near what is now the foot of Broadway and became a hunter of game for the San Francisco markets.

Wild game of all sorts was then very plentiful around the marshes, lake and in the hills on the Oakland side. The late George Chase, son of Moses, was one time county treasurer and occupied other positions of trust. The old Moses Chase home at 404 East Eighth street is now owned and occupied by Albert B. Chase, sole survivor of this family, and has been marked appropriately by a tablet placed by the California Landmarks League.—Oakland Tribune.

Native Daughters of the Golden West

HEARTY RESPONSE ASSURES MODOC HISTORIC MONUMENT.

ALTURAS—THE COMMITTEE OF ALTURAS 159 having charge of the creation of a Modoc battlefield monument fund is meeting with a hearty co-operation from the citizens of Modoc, Lassen and Siskiyou Counties. The committee is especially indebted to the various fraternal organizations in Alturas for generous donations and to the citizens in all the different communities who, although not members of either the Native Sons of the Golden West or the Native Daughters of the Golden West, have willingly and earnestly worked on sub-committees to raise the quotas for their respective communities.

During April the members of the committee, in company with Grand President Catherine E. Gloster and with Scout Master A. M. Green of the local Boy Scouts of America as guide, went over the battleground and made plans for the commencement of work on the monument.

Editor's Note—This effort of Alturas Parlor is deserving of the financial and moral support of every Native Daughter and Native Son. Send in your contribution, however small, to help swell the fund.

Gift of Laughter.

Mountain View—El Monte 205 has brought great cheer to the disabled veterans at the Palo Alto hospital, the work being carried on by a committee composed of Eldora McCarty (chairman), Laura Merkel, Lenora Snyder, Margaret Malone, Marion Snell.

During March the comedy-drama "Hickey Farm" was presented. April 13 a farewell party was given the tubercular patients, who have been transferred to the new hospital at Livermore; a vaudeville program was presented, cards were played and refreshments were served.

Every week Mrs. McCarty visits the "boys," dispensing home-made dainties donated by the members and the friends of the Parlor. "But," as the veterans state, "the most valuable gift of all is her gift of laughter, bringing new hope to the most tired heart."

Days of Old Recalled.

Modesto—Morada 199 had a celebration March 26 in honor of the California Pioneers which was a most delightful affair. Fifty-two members appeared in costumes of pioneer design, and there was a program of readings, songs, etc., by Mrs. P. A. McHenry, Mrs. Ray Hanley, Mrs. Ella Turner. President Bertha Stowe presented the Parlor with a flag-stand.

Refreshments were served at tables artistically decorated with wild lupine and rows of covered wagons. Gold nuggets were scattered about, and as favors a small gold pick and shovel in candy was placed at each cover. Each attendant received a colonial doll as a souvenir of the occasion. In charge of the affair was the social committee: Rose Bradshaw, Lena Browder, Etta Chapman, Eva Christman, Isabelle and Lenna Crow, Katherine Dallas, Dollie Dubois, Nellie Dunlay, Minna Eaton, Laura Farley, Myrtle Feliz.

Tenth Anniversary.

San Leandro—In observance of its tenth institution anniversary El Cereso 207 had a banquet April 25, followed by a program and dancing. Mrs. Rose Sanders was chairman of the arrangements committee. During the month a whist party, arranged by a committee headed by Mrs. L. B. Passmore, was held.

Public Guests.

Hollister—Copa de Oro 105 and Fremont 44 N.S.G.W. entertained the public at a Saint Patrick's dancing party. The music was pleasing and satisfying, while appropriate decorations added to the enjoyment of the evening. Miss Alice Hart, director of music at the high-school, sang charmingly a group of Irish songs, and a typical Irish dance was given by the Misses Emily Breen and Frances Wilson, the latter dressed as a gay broth of a lad and the former appearing in an emerald green creation. All in attendance reported the affair a highly enjoyable one, and Miss Helen Leonard, chairman of arrangements, received many congratulations upon her well-made plans.

Banquet and Shower.

Calistoga—Calistoga 145 celebrated its twentieth institution anniversary April 13 with a banquet. In the center of the tastefully decorated table was a birthday cake with twenty candles. This was also the birthday of one of the members, who came in for her share of the evening's entertainment, and a shower was given the youngest member, who became a bride April 26. While the bride was receiving her gifts, the first vice-president recounted the history of the Parlor, which is meeting with great success, many new members being received.

Neighbors Visited.

Pittsburg—Stirling 146 entertained with a card party and dance March 18, the attendance, as usual, being large. March 30, jointly with Diamond 246 N.S.G.W., cards and dancing were featured at a party, one of a series being given to raise money for participation in the San Francisco Admission Day festivities.

April 15 twenty of Stirling's members visited the neighboring Donner 193 at Byron, witnessed the exemplification of the ritual and were royally entertained. Roses and poppies were used in profusion in the decorations and a wonderful banquet was spread. El Pescadero 82 of Tracy was also invited for the occasion.

Welcomed Home.

Alturas—April 2 the lodge-hall and banquet-room of Alturas 159 were brilliant with light, beauty and merriment, the occasion being the initiation of seven candidates, and a grand homecoming reception to Grand President Catherine E. Gloster. To the latter were bidden, as guests, many citizens not members of the Order.

Music, cards and dancing were enjoyed until midnight when the assemblage gathered about the banquet tables, which were beautiful with decorations and favors suggestive of Easter. One of the pleasant surprise features was the presentation, by Grand President Gloster, of a gaily decorated and lighted birthday cake to Anna L. Williams from her niece, D.D.G.P. Irma Laird. Responding to a toast, Miss Gloster spoke on the history, the aims and the objects of the Order.

Quilt Brings Handsome Sum.

Tracy—March 24 El Pescadero 82 held the second of a series of card parties given to augment the fund being accumulated to enable it to take a fitting part in the diamond jubilee celebration at San Francisco in September. Like the first, it was a signal success, attended by a large and enthusiastic crowd. The evening's feature was the disposal of a quilt, made and donated by Mrs. Mary Froelich, one of the Parlor's most earnest workers; this added a handsome sum to the receipts. The third party of the series will be held May 12 and the committee in charge is determined to surpass past efforts.

El Pescadero's energies have not been confined alone to social affairs, but have also been directed toward membership increase. Several candidates were recently initiated, and the prospects are many.

Thirteenth Anniversary.

Sausalito—Sea Point 196 celebrated its thirteenth institution anniversary with a dinner, dance and whist party. In charge of the affair was a committee composed of Mmes. Felix T. Murphy (chairman), L. S. Driscoll, Al Proctor, C. G. Ashoff.

Adds Four.

Downville—April 8 Naomi 36 initiated four candidates. There was a large attendance and the ritual was beautifully exemplified. Much praise was bestowed upon President Eva M. Taylor and Marshal Melba Ponta. A delicious lunch was served, after which games were played. The hall was tastefully decorated in green and gold, together with quantities of beautiful flowers.

Bride Showered.

Sonoma—A very pretty event was the shower given March 23 by Sonoma 209 for one of its members, Mrs. Albina Bianchini, a recent bride. Many beautiful presents were received by the newlywed and a delicious repast was served at attractively decorated tables. Hazel Baines, Rose Bartoli, Annie Dal Porto, Mrs. M. Downey arranged the affair.

Flag Surprise Gift.

Placerville—Marguerite 12 received a surprise visit April 1 from a committee representing Placerville 9 N.S.G.W., composed of Euell Gray, William Darlington, Bud Lewis, William Anderson. In behalf of Placerville, a large silk flag was presented by Gray and June Douglas accepted it for Marguerite.

Grand Vice-president Sue J. Irwin of Berkeley and Past Grand President Ema Gett of Sacramento were visitors last month, in the interest of the Grand Parlor, which meets in Placerville next month.

Students Praised.

Daly City—In behalf of El Carmelo 181, Secretary Josephine T. Johnson sent the following letter to the junior class of the Jefferson Union high-school: "The members of El Carmelo Parlor No. 181 Native Daughters of the Golden West wish to commend your spirit of patriotism and devotion to this Golden State in presenting such an excellent program at your recent junior assembly. By resolution, unanimously adopted, the secretary was instructed to extend to you their compliments and best wishes."

Members of the Parlor's California History Club were entertained recently by Curator George H. Barron at the M. H. de Young Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park, San Francisco. The April 15 whist, in charge of Mrs. Annie Biggio, was a huge success. May 6 the Parlor will initiate a large class of candidates.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Past Grand President Mattie M. Stein of Lodi has been appointed assistant probation officer of San Joaquin County.

MARIPOSA'S OLD CLOCK

(JOHN L. DENTER.)

ALL GOOD MARIPOSAS BOAST OF the honor of belonging to the county that today has the oldest occupied court-house in California. It is, in fact, a very great honor to claim direct kinship to those brave, stalwart, honest pioneers of the "days of gold" who put into this old building the very best of materials and the very best of workmanship that those times afforded. Nothing was skimped, nothing overlooked, and nothing went into the construction that was not of the very best. So that, after seventy-one years of continual usage, it stands today in almost as good condition as it was the day it was built, excepting, of course, for the wear and tear of time.

For almost sixty-five years, the town clock that has surmounted the old structure has been marking time, ticking out the lives of hundreds of the "old-timers" and ticking in the lives of other hundreds of new arrivals who, in turn, become "old-timers."

During this sixty-five years, it is estimated that the old timepiece has pealed forth no less than 3,701,100 strokes of the gong. The large hand has made 8,760 turns each year, or a total of 569,400 turns. In making this journey, the point of the hand has traveled a distance of no less than 12,526,800 feet. With forty ticks to the minute, it has a record of 30,368,000 ticks to its credit.

One night, seven years ago, the clock went on a strike, and before it had exhausted its striking power a total of 156 bells pealed forth near the midnight hour, causing much unrest in the usually sleepy, silent town of Mariposa.

The mechanism of the clock is all hand-made, by a local genius now long since passed over the divide, and the working parts are still in almost perfect condition, so well were they constructed, of the finest materials. The gong is an old cast-aside church bell, which probably served its original purpose many years before California gained its statehood.

Each year hundreds of interested visitors climb up the long ladder that leads into the musty, cob-webbed attic of the Mariposa County court-house to view the secrets of the pioneer genius, and to have the clock explained by a willing guide who can always be found near at hand and who asks nothing for his services.

In Memoriam

LAWRENCE KITRICK.

To the Officers and Members of Argonaut Parlor No. 8 N.S.A.W. We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect and condolence to the memory of our beloved departed brother, Lawrence Kitrick, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Our Heavenly Father, in His infinite wisdom, has called from our midst our dearly beloved brother, Lawrence Kitrick, thus taking from us one of our most devoted and loyal members, a faithful, true and loyal friend whose loss is deeply felt by all, and whereas by his death the wife has lost a devoted husband and companion.

Resolved, That we extend to the bereaved wife our most sincere and loving sympathy, and be it further resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the wife, to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of our Parlor.

G. H. NISBET,
E. B. SHREVE,
A. M. BLUM,

Committee

Oroville, March 18, 1925.

GEORGE S. LILLIE.

On March 8, 1925, our Brother George S. Lillie was taken from our midst to the joys and peace of the Heavenly Parlor on High, and we deeply mourn the loss of a true and loyal Native Son—loyal to the Order and loyal to California, the state that gave him birth.

Our names in the future, will his name be mentioned by those of us who know him and loved him for his uprightness and honesty, his attachment for California and his cheerful and kindly disposition that gladdened the hearts of all with whom he came in contact.

Yet, though his life in the flesh is ended and we shall see no more his cheery smile nor hear his words of encouragement, we are comforted with the thought of his everlasting life in peace in the Parlor on High, where all are serene and happy forever. To his devoted family we extend our heartfelt sympathy, and for ourselves we reserve a memory ever green.

In Memoriam

MARY MCNICHOLES MURPHY.

To the Officers and Members of San Andreas Parlor No. 113 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee, appointed to draft resolutions of respect and condolence to the memory of our departed sister, Mary McNichols Murphy, a past president and member of the Parlor of twenty-four years' standing, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, Our beloved sister has been called from our midst and entered into eternal sleep, and whereas, in the passing of Sister Murphy, San Andreas Parlor and the Order in general have lost a loyal and respected member and her family a devoted mother,

Resolved, That while we mourn the passing of so faithful a member, we express our greatest admiration for her exceptional qualities, which will ever serve as an inspiration to those with whom she associated; resolved, that letters of sympathy be sent the sons and sisters of our deceased sister, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to The Grizzly Bear for publication, and that a copy be spread upon our minutes.

JAPS FREEZE OUT THE WHITES

(ROSS H. GAST.)

THE OLD FRUITLAND TRACT, WHICH comprises 500 acres of fertile land located near Huntington Park, Los Angeles County, was laid out in parcels ranging from five to forty acres and a mutual water plant installed early in the '80s. Many Easterners bought land there and built comfortable homes around which were planted shrubs, trees and flowers of the old-fashioned "back East" kind. In a few years the community, as a whole, with its thrifty homes, tidy hedge-rows and shady country roads, might have been easily taken for a farming village in Indiana or Ohio. Fruit of all sorts was planted first, then recognizing the excellence of the soil for vegetables, farmers began to plant truck crops for early markets. This activity paid well, and the growers prospered.

About this time, the Japanese, who were just gaining a foothold in California agriculture, also recognized the possibilities of the district and began to lease available portions of it, inaugurating a leasing campaign designed to "freeze out" the White growers of the community. Many of the American landowners, not realizing the danger to the district from the Japanese "invasion," leased to the Orientals freely. Then, some of the original settlers had made their little "pile," and were glad to move into town.

Those who desired to remain in the district and till their own land, and whose children planned to take up the same work, were soon faced with the proposition of keeping their homes in a community where the standard of living was constantly lowering. They soon found that conveniences such as gas and electric lights were denied them, simply because their swarming Oriental competitors, who soon constituted the majority of the residents, did not want such things.

"lasted out" a few years, then moved farther out or into other lines of work. Old landowners were practically forced to lease their land to Japanese, for few others from the outside cared to make their homes in the community. Soon the larger part of the land was controlled by the "little brown men," which, of course, was the end and aim of the Japanese campaign. The eventual result is an old story, told in the Japanese control of vegetable and berry growing in Southern California.

In the once picturesque Fruitland, Los Angeles County, district, the work of the pioneer settlers in beautifying their homelands and in making the community a pleasant place to live was soon undone by the Japanese. Trees and shrubs about the houses were taken out, so that every available inch of land might serve the plow, and hedges and tree rows along the pleasant country roads were grubbed out, so that even the county road property could be tilled by the "little brown men."

Once a beautiful and contented American farming community, the tract soon became merely 500 acres of land cut up in squares by a system of narrow, dusty roads, each square with its shack inhabited by a rapidly-increasing family of Japanese gardeners. Many of the original dwellings disappeared, being moved away or knocked to pieces for material for several shacks, as the Orientals do not like big houses, and the wife's place, in the Japanese scheme of things, is in the field, not the home.

Today, the district is being given over to industrial subdivision and is destined soon to go out of agricultural production entirely. Most of the original landowners are dead, and the greater part of the land is now in the hands of capitalists, it seems, who will be the only White men to make a big profit from it.

What of the ambitious plans of the first settlers in this fertile spot? Establishing new homes, they were for a few years contented and prosperous, the right type of growers for such agriculture as is practiced there. Subjected to unfair competition, they were finally forced from the land by outsiders. Many were lost to agriculture, disheartened by their experience; others took up new crops in other localities, giving the Japanese free reign with truck crops; still others returned to the East, to spend the remainder of their working days as "hired hands."

This history is told in an effort to prove to the unthinking that the protective measures taken against the premeditated Oriental control of our agricultural resources were timely and fair. Too many persons look upon the Japanese question in a sentimental way, but their sympathy would not be so misplaced if they could all see some of the actual workings of the Oriental occupation, such as those which have taken place in the Fruitland and countless other districts of California. The question is an economic one, pure and simple, and all loyal Californians should so consider it.

Orange Leads—Orange County leads all the counties of California in per-capita ownership of autos, having one machine to every 2.14 persons. Los Angeles County, with one car to every 2.52 persons is second, and Kern County, with one car to every 2.62 persons, is third.

Autoists Pay Heavily—During 1924, in thirty-five states and the District of Columbia, autoists paid $79,734,900 in gasoline taxes. In California, $11,993,222 was collected, $5,996,611 being applied to state roads.

NATIVE SONS INITIATE BIG CLASS

THE LARGE AUDITORIUM IN NATIVE Sons' Building was crowded to capacity March 28, when the second largest class of candidates inducted into the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West affiliated with the San Francisco Parlor, as follows: California No. 1, three; Pacific No. 10, eleven; Golden Gate No. 29, twelve; Mission No. 38, three; San Francisco No. 49, fourteen; El Dorado No. 52, four; Rincon No. 72, four; Stanford No. 76, twelve; Bay City No. 104, one; Ni-antic No. 105, three; Hesperian No. 137, one; Alcalde No. 154, thirteen; South San Francisco No. 157, thirty; Precita No. 187, ten; Olympus No. 189, three; Presidio No. 194, twelve; Dolores No. 208, six; Twin Peaks No. 214, twenty-nine; El Capitan No. 222, two; Guadalupe No. 231, thirty-six; Castro No. 232, eighteen; James Lick No. 242, seven; Bret Harte No. 260, four. Total, 238. The committee in charge worked hard to eclipse the record made when Lewis F. Byington was Grand President, but while that goal was not quite reached, still a splendid showing was made.

Charles A. Thompson, third vice-president; Grand Marshal Herbert Dela Rosa, marshal; Grand Trustee Alfred H. McKnew, inside sentinel; Grand Outside Sentinel J. Hartley Russell, organist. Others in attendance included Grand Second Vice-president Hillard E. Welch, Grand Trustees James A. Wilson, Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, Seth Millington, John S. Ramsay and John T. Newell, Past Grand Presidents John H. Grady, Lewis F. Byington and Bismarck Bruck.

Prior to the initiation a splendid entertainment program was presented, and following the ceremonies Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, chairman of the joint membership committee, introduced the speaker of the evening, Justice Thomas J. Lennon (Mount Tamalpais 64, San Rafael,) of the California Supreme Court, who delivered a wonderful address on the Order's principles and its connection with the history and traditions of this country.

Dr. Gonzalez then announced the prize-winning Parlor, as follows: First prize, greatest number candidates initiated, Guadalupe No. 231; second, largest percentage gain, Alcalde No. 154. For the next four prizes the Parlor were grouped in classes as nearly equal in membership as possible. In the first class James Lick No. 242 got the prize, in the second Precita No. 187, in the third San Francisco No. 49, in the fourth Twin Peaks No. 214.

AN APPRECIATION

(ELIZA D. KEITH, P.G.P., N.D.G.W.)

To Dr. Mariana Bertola, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., is primarily due the success of the "better babies" campaign. For the past ten years she has devoted her splendid energy and professional skill toward making each annual baby welfare week better than the one last held.

The Civic Auditorium for one week was the scene of busy activity. Mothers and babies—the old slogan, "women and children,"—were received, welcomed, instructed by Dr. Bertola. The babies were examined, weighed, tested for health and strength and better development. 126 guidance clinics were held. Of the 1,686 babies examined 300 received dental attention and 120 were vaccinated. Blue ribbons were presented to 350 and of the five silver cups donated by the local newspapers one went to San Mateo and one to Berkeley.

It would be hard to estimate in numbers, dollars or added wealth of human beings what this work of Dr. Bertola's has contributed to our great state and by the inspiration of its example has helped to raise the standard of childhood throughout the nation. It must be a satisfaction to the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West to know that one of its leading members, one of its best-known and beloved Past Grand Presidents, Dr. Bertola, has done so much for state and country.

While it is true that other health workers, physicians, nurses and public-spirited citizens have co-operated to make the annual "baby week" the wonderful success that it is each year, yet it is fully conceded that Dr. Mariana Bertola has been the one indispensable, irreplaceable organizer, executive and inspiration of the entire movement. In recognition of her public services, it is generally expected that Dr. Bertola will be elected head of the State Federation of Women's Clubs—another well earned honor for a N.D.G.W. Past Grand President.

lected president of the club, Judge James G. Conlan of Stanford Parlor No. 76 vice president, Edward Tietjen of Pfeiffer Parlor No. 187 secretary and Edward J. Barton of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 treasurer.

This is Dinkelspiel's thirty-third consecutive year as president of the Grizzly Bear Club and its predecessors. The club has installed a radio, which affords great pleasure and amusement to the many members who now come to the top floor of Native Sons' Building, where the club has its home, to "listen in" from all parts of the country.

SUBWAY DEDICATION.

The subway being constructed in the Embarcadero at the foot of Market street, San Francisco, will be dedicated May 2 by the grand officers of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

GRAND PRESIDENT VISITOR.

There was an exceptionally large attendance at the April 6 meeting of Presidio Parlor No. 194 N.S.G.W., when George H. Barron, curator of the De Young Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park, spoke eloquently and interestingly. Among the many visitors were Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustee James A. Wilson and Dr. Frank L. Gonzalez. Responding to President Walter Beckenbach's call, they spoke on the Admission Day celebration and diamond jubilee, in which Presidio will take a prominent part. A midnight feast was served by the good of the order committee, garbed in the regulation white aprons and caps.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATED.

Linda Rosa Parlor No. 170 N.D.G.W. gave a public whist March 27 which was well attended. Every month a whist party is given, the proceeds going into Parlor's diamond jubilee celebration fund. March 31 Linda Rosa celebrated the fifteenth anniversary of its institution at a largely-attended banquet. Entertainment was furnished by three of the talented members—E. Fenton, A. Mulfino, Gertrude Ross.

In the early part of June Miss Gertrude Ross, a member of the Parlor, will become the bride of Fred Koernig Jr., affiliated with Piedmont Parlor No. 120 N.S.G.W. (Oakland).

HANDSOME BEQUEST.

Saul Wagner, a past president of Bay City Parlor No. 104 N.S.G.W., died at Oakland March 24, 1925. In his will, just opened, it was found that he, like his brother, Joseph Wagner, who died two years ago, leaving a bequest of $500 to the Homeless Children Agency, also left a similar bequest of $500 to the agency.

It will be remembered that Joseph Wagner also left the sum of $5,000 to Bay City Parlor, for relief purposes. Both of these members were sons of late Pioneers and appreciated the work being done by the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' children agency.

SAN FRANCISCO BEHIND IN STREET RAILWAY DEVELOPMENT

FORMALLY placing themselves on record as opposed to any extensions for the Municipal Railway until a definite plan for their construction has been formulated, the representatives of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce, Down Town Association, the Bureau of Governmental Research and other Civic Organizations, gathered at a joint meeting held for the purpose of considering necessary street railway extensions, made definite protest to the Board of Supervisors against building any railway extensions or additions until a sound plan for such additions could be decided upon.

It is obvious that a sound plan for financing our future railway development should be worked out, because no permanent solution of our transportation problem can be attempted until we are in a position to systematically arrange our present street car lines and plan where the extensions are most needed.

It is recognized by all that San Francisco is twelve to fifteen years behind in street railway development. The tardy growth of our city is a story of unsolved street railway problems. The restrictions and disadvantages of our present dual system of street car operation must be removed before any improved conditions can be hoped for. The remedy lies in the unification of the existing systems, and the purchase by the city of the lines of the Market Street Railway offers the only practical means of solving the city's transportation problem.

The Municipal Railway has been financially successful and has built many miles of extensions out of its earnings. But it cannot be expected to construct and pay for all the necessary extensions that are needed throughout the city. It might well be expected that if the city owned and operated all the lines in the city that necessary extensions could be financed from the earnings of such lines. It is admitted by the Municipal authorities that transportation feeders into the outlying districts should be built, but the city cannot build such feeders because of the lack of main lines from which extensions could be run.

In many cases, if the necessary lines were constructed in a certain section, to make this line of any use it would have to be joined by connecting lines to the city system. If this was done it would mean duplication and corresponding needless expense, in view of the fact that the City will subsequently own the present privately owned lines, which in many cases now run parallel to the proposed connecting lines. If all the lines in the city were under city control such extensions could be made without such needless duplication and waste, because the present privately owned lines when obtained by the City would serve as the necessary connecting lines.

The City should not wait until the franchises of the privately owned company, one after the other expire, but should immediately act. Certain it is that the Committee appointed by the Mayor to negotiate with the Market Street Railway Company should forthwith proceed to ascertain whether or not a fair price could be obtained from the company, instead of idly allowing the years to go by.

The people have twice demanded at the polls that the City Administration proceed to the unification of the car lines, so that better transportation facilities might result. The people of San Francisco are looking to the City Hall for better transportation, and are getting mighty tired of the inactivity of the City Officials.

Milton, Calaveras County, was burned May 20, the Calaveras hotel and ten other buildings being destroyed with a $50,000 loss.

May 21 the furniture store of D. Bradley in Los Angeles was destroyed by fire and a $40,000 loss ensued.

Chinatown in Truckee, Nevada County, went out in flames with four business houses of the White men May 29, and thirty buildings were destroyed with a $60,000 loss.

The county treasurer's safe in the court-house at Jackson, Amador County, was opened the night of May 10 and $15,000 in gold and silver taken. The robbers first gained access to Treasurer Butterfield's residence, stole his trousers in which were the safe keys and $5 in money, and then opened the county safe, took out the money and relocked the safe, taking away the keys. No trace was ever found of them.

Two Mexicans, on horseback, came to Prewitt's station near Caliente, Kern County, May 17 to rob it. An employe got a Henry rifle, fired, hit and killed one of them, who was found to have a lot of stolen property, such as watches and jewelry, obtained in previous holdups in various localities.

BEARS KILL SHEEPHERDERS.

May 3 the stage from Jackson to Galt, Sacramento County, was stopped four miles west of Ione City by two masked men. On receiving the express box, a robber shook it and, declaring it was too light to have much in it, proceeded to rob the passengers, six men and one woman. He announced he was an experienced stage robber and knew how to get things. The highwaymen got $632 and two watches from the passengers and about $500 in the express box.

The stage from Soledad, Monterey County, going south May 28, was stopped near Nacimiento by one man who, with a shotgun, demanded and got the express box. The eighteen passengers on the stage were not molested nor did they, in return, molest the highwayman.

On a sheep-ranch at the head of the San Joaquin River May 27 two grizzlies attacked the sheep in their corral. William Reed and William Carpenter, in charge, attempted to protect the sheep, but both were killed by the bears.

Jake Hopper, owner of a rich placer mine at Whiskey Slide, near Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, May 1 blew his head off by placing a giant powder cartridge in his mouth.

"WE HAVE IT" LOS ANGELES

Goldsmith and Kullman were business partners at Chino, San Bernardino County. Goldsmith, May 20, prepared to go to Los Angeles to attend his brother's wedding. Kullman objected to his taking money from the company safe, as he desired, and a quarrel ensued in which Goldsmith shot Kullman three times and killed him.

A man named Norton, living near Rincon, Santa Barbara County, was found to have been murdered during the month and his body buried in a shallow grave. His hired man, named Cotton, had disappeared, taking with him Mrs. Norton and her two small children. They were traced through several cities, finally located, arrested and brought back to Santa Barbara. The man and woman were subsequently convicted of murder and given life imprisonment and the two innocent children were taken care of by their grandfather.

Mr. Mendelson, a merchant of Princeton, Colusa County, May 16 attempted to hand a letter to the clerk of the steamboat "Gov. Dana" as it was moving away from the landing. He slipped, fell into the river and drowned.

Santa Barbara City—Through the efforts of Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116 N.S.G.W. this city's oldest building, the commandante's headquarters of the historic Santa Barbara Presidio, is to be restored by the Community Arts Association. Constructed of adobe, the building bears many marks of the fighting which took place in early days between the Spanish and Mexican forces.

Heavy Indebtedness—According to the county auditor, Los Angeles County's bonded indebtedness—including the county itself and the several municipalities—increased $67,955,251 in 1924, now amounting to $220,116,068. At that, the $1.50 tax rate is the lowest among the large counties of the nation before dreamed of, a production the volume of which can best be characterized by stating that just previous to the close of hostilities the production of a single day was surpassing that of a thousand years of any preceding age.

During that entire period of war activities every economic law of civilization was sacrificed in the race against time. Production and more production became the constant cry of those whose lives would have been forfeited had their appeal remained unanswered. That was the incentive which transformed the United States into the greatest industrial nation the world has ever known. For nearly five years the wheels of industry in Europe revolved only in the cause of war and the tremendous foreign trade those nations had developed during the past one hundred years was sacrificed. Thus the United States was compelled to assume the task of supplying the world with commodities formerly manufactured in Europe.

In the preparation of a summary covering the investigation and study of any particular problem, the usual method is to confine the subject strictly to the facts and figures presented, and under ordinary circumstances such a procedure would suffice, but in this instance the problem is not an ordinary one and, therefore, a summary would be incomplete if one failed to incorporate therein certain facts which are of vital importance not only to California, but to the future prosperity of the United States.

While the United States today is confronted with the greatest industrial and commercial opportunities it has ever known, it also stands face to face with many problems of national and international importance, not the least of which is the absolute necessity for a readjustment of methods of distribution in foreign trade activities. Circumstances over which this country had no control compelled it to assume the foremost place among the nations of the world and today, through financial and commercial ties, it has become intimately associated with and definitely committed to a policy of foreign trade extension, a policy the fulfillment of which is necessary to the maintenance of our industrial and commercial supremacy.

Having accepted that leadership, together with its responsibilities, and at a time when almost the entire world was engaged in war, the United States has placed itself in a position from which it cannot well recede either with dignity to itself or safety to its industrial and commercial life, for, while we as a nation are more economically independent than any other, that condition in itself is of small moment when the fact is taken into consideration that in agriculture, mining and manufacturing our production exceeds our domestic consumption by some thirty percent.

History truthfully records the fact that those nations prospered most which encouraged and fostered their foreign trade, while those which selfishly sought to live within themselves sank most deeply into oblivion. Spain rose to power and splendor as her sea-borne commerce expanded; the light of her glory and prestige faded when her trade and commerce vanished from the seas. The prosperity of Holland rose, declined, and rose again as her intrepid mariners plied their trade on the seven seas. While the age-long association of England's prosperity with her foreign trade is known wherever ships have sailed.

Until very recent years these matters were of little moment to California or to the other Pacific Coast states, but today they are exceedingly important to every state west of the Rocky Mountains. Speaking for the country at large, the development of foreign trade means the full time operation of our manufacturing institutions and an outlet for our surplus products in all lines of industry and commercial endeavor. That is the condition which can be brought about only by the process of an unselfish readjustment of our system of production and distribution.

"Over the Alps lies Italy," is a statement credited to Hannibal, that Roman warrior of other days, a statement, however, that carried with it the significant suggestion of conquest by force of arms. Today the Californian points to the West and says, "Over the Pacific lies the future markets of California," the conquest of which shall be one of peace, goodwill and fair dealing.

Southern California during the past decade has changed completely from a field of industrial opportunities to one of industrial necessity and, recognizing that condition, Long Beach is rapidly preparing accommodations for hundreds of industrial and commercial establishments which must of necessity locate in the West in order to take advantage of the wonderful opportunities offered by the markets of the Pacific and of the eleven states west of the Rocky Mountains.

When captains of industry such as those men who are now shaping the destiny of the Southern California Edison Company will spend over 350 millions of dollars on the installation of steam and gigantic hydro-electric power and lighting plants for serving industrial and civic patrons in Southern California, it would seem as though any further comments in behalf of the advantages of this section could only be likened to the painting of the lily or the gilding of burnished gold.

With no attempt to detract from the opportunities other cities have to offer, it may be fairly stated that Long Beach occupies a strategic position in a section which is destined to become the industrial mecca of the West. As a central manufacturing point for the fabrication of commodities out of the raw materials of the Western states, Long Beach offers every facility necessary thereto:

Cheap fuel, oils and natural gas from the famous fields of Signal Hill, power from the new $20,000,000 electric unit of the Southern California Edison Company, transportation by rail over three of the greatest transcontinental railway systems of the country, suburban electric freight and passenger lines extending to almost every city in Southern California, a network of paved roads and highways that begin in Long Beach and after passing through every city, village and hamlet of the state wend their way over the mountains and across the deserts into the land of the Mississippi Valley.

Water transportation to all parts of the civilized world through the medium of a modern port and harbor now under construction, labor in abundance and a climate that tends to make contentment for those engaged in the various arts and trades. But of still greater importance are the domestic and foreign markets, the capacity of which are capable of taking the entire output of hundreds of manufacturing plants. These are some of the advantages Long Beach has to offer the industrial world.

Such is the industrial picture of Southern California in general and of Long Beach in particular, a picture in which some of the greatest industrial, commercial and transportation artists of the world have for years been engaged in its composition. Artistic colorings and poetical phraseology can oftentimes portray a scene which does not exist, but neither artist, poet nor engineer can take from the brow of California the wreath of fame which belongs to her by right of inheritance, conditions and opportunities.

Through the instrumentality of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, the most exhaustive industrial and commercial survey ever undertaken has recently been completed, a work comprising an analytical digest of American industry, trade and commerce which includes complete exposition of the domestic and foreign markets mentioned and the consumption of goods therein, together with the opportunities Long Beach has to offer the manufacturer, the jobber, the wholesaler and the foreign trader, in the production and distribution of the various products of trade and commerce.

The Southern California Hardwood & Mfg. Co. has had the pleasure of working with the builders of a great many buildings of which Los Angeles may well be proud. Some of the buildings on which we have worked are:

The new Chamber of Commerce
The Wm. Garland Building
The new Central Building of Los Angeles Public Library
The Petroleum Securities Building
The Commercial Exchange Building

Our work is the furnishing of interior hardwood trim, cabinets, doors and hardwood interior fixtures. We furnished the hardwood interior fixtures for some of Los Angeles' leading retail establishments: Innes Shoe Company, Wetherby-Kayser, May Bros. and many others.

We also furnish hardwood interiors for many of Los Angeles' most beautiful homes.

DEMANDS FOR DEVELOPMENT

GRIFFITH PARK

Van M. Griffith

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

GRIFFITH PARK, WITH ITS MOUNTAINS, plains, canyons and miles of river bed, in all 3,751 acres of land, located in the heart of Greater Los Angeles, offers for development the greatest municipal recreational grounds in America. Donated to the City of Los Angeles in December of 1896, over twenty-eight years ago, it has stood practically idle, insofar as intensive development is concerned, while the surrounding villages of Burbank, Glendale and Hollywood have grown into cities.

Now, from all sides, come demands for development. Here the hiker joins with the horseman in a request for more trails. The golfer asks for additional grounds, claiming the two existing 18-hole golf courses are overcrowded. The tennis player demands more courts, while the swimmer calls attention to the fact that no facilities have been provided for his sport. These demands, along with many others, prove the necessity for a comprehensive survey and development that will not only meet the needs of today, but provide for the future. Griffith Park provides the ground upon which a great recreational service for the welfare of the people may be rendered.

A careful study of the necessary facilities is essential, and no single form of recreation should be permitted to monopolize the areas available for development. Roadways serve all the people, so that no mistake is made in making accessible the main points of interest. Of the various road projects under consideration, the foremost are Riverside drive and the Mulholland highway.

Riverside drive, as indicated by name, will parallel the western bank of the Los Angeles River, being a distance of about five miles, linking the San Fernando Valley with the central business district of Los Angeles. The Mulholland highway, already graded from Cahuenga Pass to Calabasas, routed along the ridge of the Santa Monica Mountains, a distance of about twenty-eight miles, will be extended easterly, connecting with the park. Eventually both Vermont avenue and Western avenue will serve as entrances to the Mulholland highway.

The reforestation of sections of the park, made more or less barren by fires in the past, will be brought about through the installation along the ridges of a sprinkling system supplied by water from a series of reservoirs located at convenient elevations. This, in addition to aiding in the beautification of the park, will decrease the fire hazard. A recent experiment has proven the value of this proposed treatment.

During the past two years the Vermont avenue canyon section of the park has received the most intensive development. This canyon has been opened with roads and trails. Children's playgrounds, tennis courts, ball grounds, picnic facilities have been constructed. Equipment for handling large groups of people has been installed and already proven very popular. Four additional tennis courts are under construction, and future plans call for the erection of a clubhouse with lockers, showers and dining accommodations.

At the northern end of the canyon a bird sanctuary is in course of construction. This feature consists of fencing a large area, in which a waterway has been developed, into a series of waterfalls, pools and islands. Seed-producing shrubs, as well as artificial feeding, are expected to en-

See the feathered friends of the park to this locality. Boy scouts have already supplied a large number of bird houses, and numerous bird societies and nature-study groups are taking a keen interest in the project.

Through the co-operation of the Playground Commission a boys' camp and a girls' camp are being constructed and will be operated under the supervision of trained recreational directors.

Of the major projects, one of the most interesting is the Municipal Air Port, located in the northeast section of the park. The air service squadron of the California National Guard is already located and operating on the flying field, which consists of about 180 acres. Negotiations are under way toward securing the erection of a mooring mast, thus making it possible for the giant dirigibles of the navy to land here.

Demands for the development of Griffith Park have been named. The Park Commission, with its limited amount of funds on hand, is endeavoring to meet the demands. The co-operation of all the people is essential in making Griffith Park the greatest recreational asset possessed by any municipality in America.

PROSPEROUS CONDITIONS INDICATED.
More income-tax returns were filed in Southern California during the filing period which ended March 15 than for any other year in the history of the internal revenue district. Collector Rex B. Goodcell announced April 13 that completion of the count of returns showed that 274,704 returns were filed, an actual increase of 2,157 returns over the number filed in 1924.
Reflecting unusual business conditions in Southern California, the number of full-paid returns filed this year was 122,031, as against 78,705 in 1924, an increase of 43,326 full-paid returns. Last year 117,039 no-tax returns, which are returns of income too small to be taxable, were filed, while in 1925 only 107,534 returns of this class were filed, a decrease of 9,505. This indicates an increased income-producing power.
"Placed on a comparative basis, 45,000 more returns were filed in 1925 than in 1924. This is a remarkable gain. The fact that there was a tremendous increase in the number of full-paid returns and a decrease in non-taxable returns, indicates that not only were business conditions prosperous during the calendar year 1924, but that plenty of money is in circulation in 1925," says Collector Goodcell.

BOOK REVIEWS

(MARGERY BOYD.)

"THE NEW BARBARIANS."

By Wilbur C. Abbott; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.50.

Wilbur C. Abbott, Professor of History at Harvard University and author of "The Expansion of Europe" and "Conflicts With Oblivion," adds another to his list of valued books.

"The New Barbarians" is a treatise on democracy represented by the United States, in relation to and contrasted with socialists, etc., and their panaceas. Alternate viewpoints are discussed, and searched penetratingly. To quote a critic, "The New Barbarians" is a vital book for thinking Americans who believe in one flag and one language."

"THE SKYROCKET."

By Adela Rogers St. Johns; Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.

Siz-zzzz—boom! A red flare, a shower of bright sparks illuminating a velvet sky, a diminishing hiss, a last flicker, darkness,—that's a skyrocket.

Like a skyrocket, too, was the brilliant career of Sharon Kimm, who knew only the most rigid economy. Poverty and she were old acquaintances. But even poverty failed to quench the torch that Hollywood kindled in Sharon's thin little breast. Given her chance, she'd show the world and Hollywood a real motion-picture artist. The chance came. Sharon, snatching at it with trembling hands, made good her vow. Even Hollywood bowed in humble pride.

Then the great illumination went out. Out of the chaos which followed, Sharon knew that Mickey Reid alone had the power to turn a skyrocket into a steadily burning light of love and life.

"THE RECTOR OF WYCK."

By May Sinclair; The Macmillan Company, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.50.

Of all the men in the world, parsons were the most stupid. Martha Fenwick would rather die than marry one. It was three years later that she did marry John Crawford, rector of Wyck. But John was different.

The years that followed in the rectory at Wyck-on-the-Hill were crowded ones. They brought toil and hardships, privations and sufferings, but always there was a counter-balance. There was love, for "Matty" and John loved each other dearer as the years passed. There were the children,—blameless Millicent and capricious Dyreck. And then there was the trip to Europe, that gorgeous, ethereal trip that John and "Matty" had dreamed of and planned for ever since their honeymoon days.

Years passed. Life was lonely for John and Martha. Millicent, at twenty-one, was self-sufficient, engrossed in social service work at London; Dyreck, beloved still, but ah, heartaches. And the trip to Europe a hazy dream, but ever a bright hope to lighten the monotonous, duty-worn days. Life was cruel to John and "Matty," but still they had each other.

"PARADISE."

By Cosmo Hamilton; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

A woman's love can make a man's life a paradise or a hell! To Chrissie Bunning, love came in a flood of music and color; to Tony Fortescue, as the best good luck ever thrown his way; to Teddy Sherwood, as a thief in the night.

"Paradise" recounts the life of these three in a story whimsical with love, tense with drama. London, the war and a South Sea Island, coupled with genuinely realistic characters, mix to form a totally irresistible and fascinating "Paradise."

"THE SLEEPER OF THE MOONLIT RANGES."

By Edison Marshall; Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

The "Catherine D" hove into sight, black hull gleaming. Straight as an arrow she plowed steadfastly through the rolling sea, for her berth at the dock of the little Alaskan fishing village Bert Breed, watching her, felt an ecstatic thrill. He had nothing to expect from the "Catherine D." but he always believed that some day one of these glistening ships would bring him that which would change his bitter life.

Suddenly a shrill cry rent the air. Simultaneously a girl's body hurtled through the narrow space between the anchored ship and the wharf. A dull splash followed as she struck the water. An instant later Bert Breed, swift as lightning, light as a bird, dove down to the rescue. The drama which follows with the unfolding of the plot and the salvation of Bert Breed makes an unusual story. It is as such that "The Sleeper of the Moonlit Ranges" qualifies.

"LOVE IS THE LAW."

By the Author of "The Gospel of Love"; Published in Davenport, Iowa.

A peculiar booklet, the forty-three chapters being written in imitation of the Psalms. In substance, "Love is the Law" contains a warning and a prophecy, that modern ways must be mended, that hate and war will continue to wage destruction until universal human kindness is the law.

Frankly, perusal of the booklet is a waste of time. At best, it is a rewritten version of Bible-teachings. Most of us are still old fashioned enough to prefer the Bible.

SO HIGH

(From JOHN RUSSELL MCCARTHY'S
"For the Morning.")

The mountain is so high—so high—
A man might almost fear,
His hand could reach the very sky
And yet—the earth is near.

The land of dreams is high—so high—
A man might almost fear,
They go so very far who die
And yet they stay so near!

PACIFIC WILL NOT

the door of China, and the territorial integrity of China is discarded. America, alone, has paid the price on the Pacific, not only by the loss of two naval bases, Guam and the Philippines, but commercially we will suffer. Our influence in the Far East is waning. Japan, in her alliance with Great Britain, learned much. The pupil now becomes the master in the Far East and carries out her policies of interference with Americans, knowing our meek protests mean nothing.

"Our past friendship for Russia, our benevolence, even charity, counts for little. This should be a lesson to the pacifists who would weaken us further, trusting to conscience. Russia, China and all nations are alike. They recognize power only. It is the British policy. It is the Japanese policy. Do we propose to surrender more and give way to every protest and interference, or take a stand based on right and justice backed up with a proper navy? American citizens must be backed up and protected all over the world. We are a power, or we are not!

"The Pacific situation is the most important situation confronting us. It is here we must take our stand. We may as well understand our obligations, to hold and protect the Philippines, Guam and Hawaii; to demand the integrity and 'open door' policy of China; to demand the same commercial and economic rights of any other country or power. That can only be done by fully maintaining an adequate navy.

"French naval authority sums up as follows: 'French experts see dark clouds fast gathering over the Pacific, and the moment approaching when war will be called upon to settle the antagonism, racial and economical, for long existing between Japan and America.'

"Admiral Degouy foresees grand naval operations with Japan's landing—being cleverly prepared already—on American territory. He sees monster Japanese submarines, made on German plans, play a sensational and decisive role. Comparing Japanese and American fleets, the conclusion is, that the Japanese navy, patriotic, hard working and practical, has every chance against the huge, make-believe navy of America.

"Money can do much, but it is no substitute for patriotism and the spirit of self-sacrifice. American human element is inferior, as shown by the incredible number of desertions. The American navy is strategically handicapped and would share a fate similar to that of Rodjovensky's Russian armada."

"Confusion as to what constitutes a national defense has taken hold of this country. We could best adopt a policy based on our national and foreign policies, military and naval values, to meet foreign powers.

"THE PACIFIC WILL NOT REMAIN PEACEFUL WITHOUT A SUPERIOR FORCE READY! There is too much hyphenated influence in this country already; too much compromising for self, power and greed. We need a national spirit, defenders of our nationalization, defenders of our blood and faith, defenders of our nation and our flag. A 100% national policy and a 100% defense!

"THIS NATION MUST BUILD AND MAINTAIN A MODERN NAVY!" We must keep the army and the navy up to their fullest efficiency. We must encourage the officers and men, and make the attractions such that every American will be proud of them. Above all other reasons is, our future nationalization. In thirty-three states of this country we have from 5% to 50% Negroid population; in Texas, 750,000 Mexicans; Arizona is over one-half Mexican; twenty states permit intermarriage between the White and Negroid blood.

"The smuggling of aliens into the country is on the increase. I believe that in the State of California there are more than 12,000 unregistered Orientals. The Immigration Law will stop the legal admission of Mongolians from Europe and the Far East. It will never stop the smuggling or the influx of Oriental and Negroid blood over our borders. The increase of the colored and mulatto population, and the admission of Orientals would, in fifty years, destroy America as a White man's country.

"The continuous pressure brought to bear to break down our immigration laws and increase the quota must be watched! The class of immigration waiting to flood this country is not a pure White blood, nor is it a blood that will assimilate. Every move is being made to get around our immigration laws. European ports are filled with undesirables, and some ports as close as Cuba, only waiting entrance into this country. THE IMMIGRATION LAW MUST BE ENFORCED AND ORIENTALS BARRED! This nation cannot survive, unless we are prepared to take a stand. Our defense means more than building ships and aeroplanes. It means enforcing the Immigration Law and the Exclusion Law. WE MUST FIGHT TO KEEP OUR BLOOD WHITE AND THE NATION WHITE."

ORDER NATIVE SONS WANTS ADEQUATE NAVAL DEFENSES.

At a meeting of the Board of Grand Officers of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, following Shearer's address, the following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, The Government of the United States has so far neglected to provide a naval base on the Pacific for the use of the United States fleet; and

"Whereas, In time of war our fleet on the Pacific Ocean would be rendered almost useless in the absence of an adequate naval base; and
"Whereas, San Francisco Bay is recognized as the natural site for a great American naval base; therefore, be it

"Resolved, By the Board of Grand Officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West, representing every portion of the State of California, that the Congress of the United States be urged to provide adequate naval defenses for American possessions and interests in the Pacific Ocean and to take steps, without further delay, for the construction of a naval base in San Francisco Bay."

purify the air, supply moisture, prevent diminution of streams, modify climate, give shelter to game, supply oils and balsams, furnish spices, safeguard health, furnish the basis for paper, carry telegraphic communications, provide fruit and food, furnish clothing and fuel and lumber, and beautify the country.

Fire destroys the beauty of the country. California—called the "playground of the world"—has been blessed with magnificent mountains, splendid forests, and with every variety of tree which grows north of the tropical zone, and these are responsible for bringing to the state millions of dollars each year.

*"I reckon when God made them trees,
T' whisper His own symphonies,
Th' Master Artist of all Art,
Put in 'em His own lovin' heart,
An' thought o' all th' joy they'd bring,
T' make his children's hearts t' sing;
And with them trees He's shorely blessed—We'uns—His children o' th' West!"*

NAVAL—HISTORICAL EXHIBIT

(WELLS DRURY.)

MANY OFFICERS AND MEN FROM the war fleet in the Harbor of San Francisco, April 6 to 15, visited the naval-historical exhibition featured in San Francisco for the entertainment of the personnel of the fleet. Appreciation of the exhibition was expressed by the naval visitors. F. M. De Witt was chairman of the committee of arrangements.

The material included maps, diagrams, photographs, official letters (many in the Spanish language), books, pamphlets, paintings, models and historical documents of various kinds. There were 589 separate objects. One large bound volume contained 912 letters and printed circulars.

W. A. Coulter, marine artist, loaned two paintings in oil of the "San Carlos," the first ship to enter San Francisco Harbor, 1775, commanded by Lieutenant Juan Bautista de Ayala.

Fred M. De Witt contributed three books by Rev. Walter Colton, U. S. N., describing California. These were printed in 1850 by A. D. Barnes & Company of New York and H. W. Derby of Cincinnati. Derby was the father of Lieutenant Geo. H. Derby, U. S. A., who, under the pen-name "Squibob," alias John Phoenix, wrote "Phoenixiana," probably the first humorous book dealing with life in California.

D. Q. Troy showed some choice objects from his collection of pioneer historical material, a notable item being Commander Cadwallader Ringgold's "Sailing Directions for the Bay of San Francisco, and the Entrances to the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers," published in 1852.

John Howell exhibited a complete model of the clipper ship "Flying Cloud," built in Boston by Donald McKay in 1850. This ship made the trip from New York to San Francisco in the record time of eighty-nine days. Tons, 1783; length, 225 feet; beam, 40 feet, 3 inches; hold, 21 feet, 6 inches; main yard, 82 feet. Howell also showed a model of the ill-fated clipper ship "San Francisco," which sailed from New York and was wrecked while entering the Harbor of San Francisco in February 1854, 105 days out of New York.

Alfred I. Esberg had in the exhibit a great many sketches, books, original documents, etc. Probably one of the most interesting and apropos at the present moment was a report of the speech of Senator William M. Gwin of California in the United States Senate, March 23, 1852, on the proposed bill to establish a navy yard and depot (naval base) in the Bay of San Francisco. The reasons given by Senator Gwin for an efficient naval station in these waters are similar to the arguments employed now.

C. Templeton Crocker was a voluminous contributor to the exhibition. One large bound volume contained the most complete collection extant of Commodore John Drake Sloat's official documents. Crocker showed also Eddy's official re-survey map of San Francisco in 1849. This is the original pen-and-ink sketch, the land being divided into 100-vara lots and 50-vara lots. Yerba Buena cemetery occupied the entire large triangle formed by the intersection of Market, Larkin and McAllister streets.

The Oakland Free Library exhibited a fine collection of portraits of the commanders of naval vessels in Californian waters from 1845 to 1850, together with numerous historical pictures. Among these was an engraving depicting the scene of raising the American Flag and taking possession of California by Commodore Sloat in Monterey Bay, July 7, 1846.

John S. Drum's remarkable collection of naval-historical pictures, papers and original documents filled several cases. J. Hoyt Toler showed the original commission as a naval officer granted to his grandfather by the president of the United States prior to the war with Mexico. Senator James D. Phelan, Henry R. Wagner, Miss Sarah Louise Kimball, L. D. Slevin, the late Judge Grant Jackson of Los Angeles and others contributed liberally to the exhibit.

"Who breathes, must suffer; and who thinks, must mourn."—Matthew Prior.

LOS ANGELES BULLETIN

PROGRESSIVE THINKING

"BECAUSE A TOWN IS SMALL THERE is no reason why its citizens should feel that it is small," says Southern California Business," published by the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce, for when a people have that feeling they never do much to make a small town grow. Los Angeles would not be Los Angeles today if her people fifty years ago had concluded that this was only a small place and would never amount to much. That sort of sentiment has held back many a town. The one great impelling factor that helps to develop a community is a good chamber of commerce, and the chamber of commerce in a small town has just as important business to perform as has a civic organization in a larger city.

"This magazine publishes news items concerning development work in outside communities. Only too frequently the editor receives a communication from some secretary in a small town saying, 'As you realize, this is only a small place and there is not much doing here in the way of news.' That expression creates two impressions. One is that there is something sadly lacking in the makeup of the civic organization that should be pushing ahead, and the other impression is that the people living in that town do not appreciate what they have. If they did appreciate their surroundings they would be getting down to work, and work produces results, and results produce news. In looking through this magazine there will be found items of interest concerning some very small communities, because the people of those communities are active and have faith in their towns and as a result those small towns some day are going to be large towns while other small towns whose citizens have no faith in them will always remain small. Big things were never produced on a foundation of small ideas."

GOOD MAN GONE.

Native Sons of Los Angeles City and the Southland were shocked April 2, when the news spread that Grant Jackson, former judge of the Los Angeles County Superior Court, had passed suddenly away.

Judge Jackson was born June 13, 1869, at Petaluma, Sonoma County, but in childhood went to reside at Santa Barbara, where he joined Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116 N. S. G. W. Later he took up his residence in Los Angeles and transferred his membership to Sierra Madre Parlor, which a few years ago consolidated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N. S. G. W., and he became a valued member of that Parlor.

Judge Jackson was a devoted student of California history and had accumulated one of the most extensive and valued private collections of Californiana in existence. Surviving him are an aged mother and several brothers and sisters.

EARL GRAHAM

for
CITY CONTROLLER

In announcing his candidacy for the office of City Controller of the City of Los Angeles, Arthur Eldridge pledges himself to those who named him their support and vote, an efficient, honest and businesslike administration of a most important department of the City Government, if elected to said office. This position, which is created under the new Charter, will replace the old position of City Auditor.

for with enlarged responsibilities, offers an opportunity for valued services to the City.

"I feel," says Eldridge, "that my experience in municipal affairs, as well as my early training in the accounting department of a large railroad corporation, fully qualifies me to assume this responsible position. I entered the service of the City as Chief Clerk of the Board of Public Works in 1913, filling said position for a period of five years. Served as Secretary to ex-Mayor Woodman during the last few weeks of his administration, and as Executive Secretary to ex-Mayor Snyder during his entire administration, and in a similar capacity to our present Mayor, George E. Cryer, during the first six months of his incumbency. I was appointed to the position of Efficiency Director in January 1922 and held the said position until January 1924, when I was appointed as a Member of the Board of Public Works. During all this period, I have given much thought and study to the problems of Municipal Finance, and feel that I have a thorough knowledge of the needs of this department as affecting the problems now before our community."

registration totaled 266,602. Every voter should go to the polls on election day and express his and her preference. If that be done, and a large majority vote, good officials will be assured and Los Angeles' welfare will be conserved. Among the many candidates for the various offices are the following Native Sons:

EARLY-DAY NATIVE.

Joseph E. Steckler of New York, who has been spending the winter months in Pasadena, has returned to his home. Steckler is a son of Pioneers of 1849, being born at Sacramento, October 31, 1850, shortly after California's admission to statehood, September 9, 1850.

CARAVAN TO SAN BERNARDINO.

The show put on April 9 by Charley Lloyd for the amusement of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. and its friends attracted a large crowd and was thoroughly enjoyed. Charley was given a deserved rising vote of thanks at the program's conclusion. The Parlor initiated several candidates during the month.

Los Angeles' members May 7 will journey to San Pedro to visit Sepulveda Parlor. May 13 they will head an immense caravan to San Bernardino in the interest of the candidacy of John T. Newell, a member of the Parlor, for re-election as Grand Trustee.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

(RAMONA N.S.G.W.)

For COUNCILMAN 10th District
Los Angeles City
ELECTION MAY 5th

May 21 will be old-timers' night, and a reception for the returned San Bernardino Grand Parlor delegates; refreshments will be served. May 28 is Earl Lemoine's night, and he will stage several boxing bouts. All Native Sons are always welcome at all Los Angeles' doings, and are assured a hearty reception.

HIGH JINKS.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N. S. G. W. will be represented at the Grand Parlor in San Bernardino by the largest delegation from any Parlor in the Order. A large class of candidates initiated April 17 made it possible for Ramona to choose its fourteenth delegate. Among the initiates was Chas. H. Smith, associate editor of the "Catalina Islander." Smith was born on Mount Diablo, in Contra Costa County, and affiliated with the Order at its inception in San Francisco, July 11, 1875, and was elected the first secretary.

At the April 10 meeting, the Parlor presented William C. Taylor, former recording secretary, with an engraved gold watch, as an expression of appreciation for his valued services to Ramona. The presentation address was made by President John M. McCroskey, and "Bill" made a fitting response.

May 9, the Parlor will feature a high-jinks. The date is the Saturday preceding the San Bernardino Grand Parlor, and it is expected that many delegates on their way there will be in attendance. All Natives are invited, and a regular high-jinks time is assured. In charge is the good of the order committee: W. L. Coffey (chairman), B. D. Neighbours, T. D. Crittenden, L. J. Leonard, G. F. Vaughan.

ANNIVERSARY PARTY.

The thirty-ninth annual banquet of Corona Parlor No. 196 N. S. G. W., April 16, in observance of its institution anniversary, was largely attended and a decided success. George Breslin made a delightful toastmaster, his wit keeping the banquets in good humor. In addition to a program of entertainment, there were several talks, the principal speakers being W. Joseph Ford and Grand Trustee John T. Newell. The birthday party of Corona was arranged by the following committee: John W. Topham (chairman), Henry G. Bodkin, William M. Kennedy, Joseph P. Sproul, Peter H. Muller. During April several more names were added to the Parlor's membership-roll.

May 7, Corona will give another of its "nifty" dances at 927 South Menlo avenue. Admission is one dollar per couple, and all Natives and their friends are invited. On account of the Grand Parlor session in San Bernardino, there will be no meeting of the Parlor May 21. May 28 a smoker will be featured, and eligibles will be special guests.

ELIGIBLES' NIGHT.

Despite the rain, the entertainment and dance of Vaquero Parlor No. 262 N. S. G. W., April 22, was well attended and greatly enjoyed. Refreshments were served. Several new members were received during the month.

W. C. MUSHET for CITY CONTROLLER

With leading men and women of Los Angeles supporting his candidacy, Councilman W. C. Mudgett is making a vigorous campaign for City Controller, a new office created under the charter which goes into effect next July. Mr. Mudgett's candidacy has been endorsed by many civic and other organizations as a recognition of his long service as a financial expert.

Voters should not overlook the importance of the office of City Controller. Mr. Mudgett's experience and his ability to handle financial problems of magnitude are excellent recommendations to the voters to support his candidacy.

our municipal government," said Dwight Hart, well-known business man.

"Mr. Mudgett's excellent record as a certified public accountant, Los Angeles City Auditor and for the last four years chairman of the City Council's finance committee is familiar to most of the people of the city."

May 27 will be eligibles' night at the Parlor, and all Natives are invited to be present. A high-class entertainment is promised, under the supervision of Miss Kathryn Burns of the Allied Artists of the Pacific Coast.

BENEFIT BALL SUCCESS.

The Native Sons' and Native Daughters' third annual ball, given for the benefit of the homeless children fund April 24, at the Wilshire Country Club, was a decided success, socially and financially.

The joint committee of arrangements included: Arthur C. Davis (chairman), Miss Marvel Thomas (secretary), Leon Leonard, Walter Baskerville, Andrew Beazell, Sidney Witkowski, John Topham, George McLain, Arthur Ford.

STAGECOACH DAYS FEATURED.

The Historical Society of Southern California now meets in the Board of Education rooms in the new Chamber of Commerce building, Twelfth and Broadway. Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt and Professor Rolland A. Vandegrift, both of the University of Southern California, are the president and secretary, respectively.

At the April 11 meeting Miss Helen L. Moore presented "The Problem of Opening Means of Communication Between Southern California and the Rest of the Continent," Ben Powers gave an illustrated description of Western stagecoaches, and Mr. McPherson gave a brief account of the route of the Butterfield stages in California.

BAZAAR AND DANCE.

The May program for Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. includes: Initiation of large class of candidates and election of delegates to the Placerville Grand Parlor, the 1st. Visit to Rudecinda Parlor at San Pedro and exemplification of the ritual by the officers, the 8th. Social evening the 15th, and song fest, with celebration of April and May birthdays of members, the 22d.

The 29th the Parlor will feature a bazaar and dance, for the benefit of its treasury. All Natives are invited to attend and have a jolly time, which is assured. Admission is 50 cents. Grace T. Haven is chairman of the committee and the chairmen of the various sub-committees include: Mildred Duffy, fancy work; H. Adele White, cakes; Sherrle Garrison, candy; Edith Douglas, country store; Annie L. Adair, aprons; Anna Roeder, quilts; Rita Dunaway, grab-bag; Grace Culbert-Yarwood, hats; Lillian Denney, ice-cream and cake. There will be fortune-telling built in the fall of 1851, as protection against the Indians. It consisted of a sturdily palisaded enclosure about 700 feet by 300 feet in dimensions. Within the stockade were located dwellings, a tent-pavilion used as a school and meeting-house, a titling and storehouse, a wagon shop and a colony office. Loopholes were set in close succession along the stockade; and at the corners, bastions were erected to allow for cross-firing. A ditch from Lytle Creek provided a water supply for the fort. Had it been cut off, the damage could easily have been remedied by digging ten- or fifteen-foot wells within the enclosure.

The fort stood diagonally between present Third and Fourth streets, straddling C street, in San Bernardino City. We are told that for over a year more than a hundred and fifty men, with women and children, lived within the stockade. Apparently the defense made a brave enough showing to discourage the Indians' craving for excitement. At any rate, no attack seems ever to have been made, and gradually the Mormons themselves took down the timbers of the palisade for use in other building.

It was during these days that the irrigation system of the vicinity had its beginnings. The old Mill Creek zanja was utilized, and the Tenney irrigation ditch constructed by the settlers about the "old mission," where Bishop Tenney located. Ditches were thrown out to the truck gardens north of Lytle Creek, and elsewhere as needed.

The colonists built a sixteen-mile road up Waterman or West Twin Creek Canyon, down which they hauled timber from the mountains. They erected three sawmills which not only filled their own needs for lumber but helped to furnish Los Angeles and other settlements as well. A large flour mill was built in 1852. Flour from this mill was sent to Los Angeles and San Pedro for shipment. Other mills also sprang up; and at least one of the sawmills—that of Captain Hunt—was run by steam and operated day and night. A regular freighting and postal service was maintained between Los Angeles and San Bernardino, and a pony express carried the mails between San Bernardino and Salt Lake City.

From the spring of 1849 until September of 1850, when Congress erected Utah Territory and California became a state, the San Bernardino region was claimed by the Mormon State of Deseret, which had flung its boundary lines about present Utah and Arizona, nearly all of Nevada, all of southern California and parts of Idaho, Wyoming and Colorado; and was looking to Congress for recognition of its claims. San Diego was used as the port of entry for Salt Lake City. The Mormons had an even stronger tendency towards consolidation and incorporation than our own City of Los Angeles!

With the creation of the State of California and the erection of the original counties in 1850, present San Bernardino County was included in Los Angeles County. But the thriving settlement of San Bernardino felt its distance from the Los Angeles County seat, and had independent proclivities of its own. It petitioned the Legislature for a separate county organization; and in 1853 San Bernardino County was erected, and San Bernardino town was designated as the county seat. A Mormon administration was elected. The Mormon Council House, which stood at the corner of Third and "Grafton" (C) streets, became the first courthouse.

In 1853, also, the town was laid out anew, with straight wide streets plotted at right angles and bordered with "zanjas." The streets running north and south were called by numbers, as today; but those running east and west were given Mormon names—Kirtland, Grafton, Utah, Salt Lake, Nauvoo, Independence, Far West, etc. These afterwards became the lettered streets.

In the same year, $591.50 was appropriated for school purposes. It will be remembered that the first schoolhouse of the region was the tent-pavilion set up within the old fort. In Mexican days a sort of circuit-riding schoolteacher had purveyed education to the children of the dons. The progressive Mormons, however, early felt the need of developing educational facilities. The tent-school was soon succeeded by Mrs. Tenney's school in the old "mission." And in 1856 six lots on Fourth street, including the site of the Fourth-street schoolhouse of later days, were acquired by the city for school purposes. Two adobe buildings on these lots—known as the Washington and Jefferson buildings—served as school buildings until 1874; although whether they were originally erected for this purpose, or just when they were erected, is not known. In 1874, the old brick schoolhouse was built on Fourth street.

Despite some friction with the increasing numerous Gentile settlers of the vicinity, due chiefly to Mormon control of city and county affairs, the community waxed in size and prosperity. But in 1857, when the United States dispatched troops to the Territory of Utah to enforce United States authority there, Brigham Young called all the scattered "saints" to the defense of the mother colony. While a few of the San Bernardino "saints" ignored the summons, the majority promptly disposed of their homes and holdings on the thriving and beautiful California location, to hasten north. In the emergency, they made many sacrifices. We are told that sometimes an improved farm was traded for a camping outfit for the return trip; and that one new four-room house, unfinished inside but furnished, was sold for $40, an old harness, a sack of sugar and a cloak.

The business opportunities so presented attracted a rush of new colonists, chiefly from Texas and New Mexico. Many of these obtained homes and farms for little if any more than their prairie schooners and teams.

Even so brief a statement of Mormon occupation of the San Bernardino Valley would be incomplete without mention of Jefferson Hunt, the prominent Mormon who first came to California as captain of Company A of the Mormon Battalion, and who was afterwards one of the leaders of the immigration of 1851. Captain Hunt was also a guide of that band of Forty-niners from which the famous Death Valley Party detached itself to undertake a "cut-off" across unknown desert stretches. Reference is made here to the Death Valley Party because, although the region where they suffered so fearfully now constitutes the southeastern portion of Inyo County, it was included within the limits of old San Bernardino County.

SAN BERNARDINO CITY IN 1875

The experiences of that party are too well known and too harrowing for repetition here. Anyone who has ever entered Death Valley—even in the cool of the year and under conditions of automobile transportation—must always retain the vivid impression of a sterility utterly forbidding; of tremendous desert and mountain barrens as terrible as they are magnificent. The writer and two companions, stranded with a broken-down machine at the southern extremity of the valley, with the remnants of a camping-trip commissary aboard and with the knowledge that help would sooner or later be forthcoming from an advance caravan, nevertheless found the experience anxious enough for real adventure. And there was genuine relief and thrill when, in the small hours of the night, two rescuing angels arrived disguised as thoroughly altruistic and competent young engineers, who improvised out of a bit of cardboard the distributor which was essential to our carburetor and which enabled us to speed over leagues of wasteland to Barstow and civilization. The party of '49 had no such facilities. With oxen and on foot they plodded day after day over salt-flats glittering like new-fallen snow beneath the terrible sun. And where today two parallel ruts approximating a deplorable road have been hammered down across the fearful devil's golf course—that petrification of fiercely bubbling salt and mud—they painfully sought a way across for feet of flesh and blood.

DISTURBANCES, CIVIL WAR, FLOOD.

The departure of the Mormons from San Bernardino was a serious loss to the community, for they had composed the chief pioneer body and had been of excellent pioneer stuff—orderly, industrious, enterprising, honest.

With the outbreak of the Civil War, disorder became fairly prevalent. For one thing, the Federal troops which had been stationed at Forts Tejon and Mojave were withdrawn for active service, and Indian raids became frequent. Moreover, secessionist tendencies were strong in and about San Bernardino, and local politics and society were embittered by the factional hostility. Feeling ran so high that at one time a raid on the union element of San Bernardino was threatened by a band of volunteers enroute to the confederate forces in Texas. But although sentries were set and the citizens waited on the defensive for several days, no disturbance occurred.

A rush of gold-hunters to the Bear and Holcomb Valleys in 1861-1862 brought a considerable undesirable element to San Bernardino.

At the close of the war and of the local mining boom, conditions assumed a more normal tenor. But Indian troubles continued for a number of years longer. Not content with raiding stock and with robbery and incendiarism, the marauders frequently attacked the settlers themselves. A number of lives were taken in this way. In self-defense, the residents finally organized a company of volunteers, in 1867. In the following year, Camp Cady was established, and continued to keep order in the Mojave region until about 1870.

In January of 1862 occurred the disastrous flood which ruined so much property and reduced so many adobe homesteads to mere mounds of mud. After a violent twenty-hour rainstorm, the Santa Ana River and Lytle Creek overflowed their banks and inundated the San Bernardino Valley for miles. Lytle Creek swept along D street and across Third, in San Bernardino City, becoming a tributary of Warm Creek. But despite heavy losses, the damage was soon remedied and prosperity reigned again.

FOUNDERS.

It would be pleasant to recall the names and contributions of some of San Bernardino's early residents. There was John Brown Sr., public-spirited and highly regarded—the founder, in 1888, of the San Bernardino Society of California Pioneers. He it was who, with Judge Henry Willis and George Tucker, opened and for eighteen years maintained the old toll road through the Cajon Pass.

"Uncle" George Lord, president of the Pioneers for the first ten years of their organization, was unusually beloved.

Dr. Benjamin Barton built an adobe drug store at C and Fourth streets, and in addition to conducting this business served the community long and well as physician and postmaster. The postoffice occupied a portion of his drug store.

J. W. Wilson, San Bernardino's first mayor, has left his own memorial. He became county clerk and recorder after finishing his term as mayor; and in the old courthouse which stood at Fifth and E streets he wrote out in a beautiful, clear hand records which are today a valuable source for the county's early history.

An outstanding figure, too, was Ellison Robbins; and his wife, who later became Mrs. Crafts—that ideal pioneer woman whose memory is blessed and who has left us a valuable and concise account of pioneer days in the valley. Mr. and Mrs. Robbins became deeply engaged in educational and religious activities. They taught in the old Washington and Jefferson buildings, and in 1860 Mr. Robbins became San Bernardino County's first superintendent of schools.

In 1858, when they first came to the locality, so Mrs. Robbins-Crafts has written, the town contained, besides Dr. Barton's drug store already mentioned, only three small stores: that of Louis Jacobs, near the corner of C and Fourth streets; Calisher's at the corner of those streets; and Auker's, on Third street. The houses were almost all small and of adobe, although Apostle Lyman's house, located on C street near Third, was a frame structure. It was known as "the Harem." Apostle Lyman had four wives and as many families. In the late fifties, this house was burned. The old Wozencraft home was built on its site. Bishop Crosby's hotel, at C and Third streets—later well-known as "Starkey's hotel"—was another of the important early buildings.

Many other names should be included in any roster of the founders of San Bernardino. L. A. Ingersoll, in his voluminous and helpful "History of San Bernardino County," has done a service in compiling a record of the founders and their work. But we have room here for only one more—Myron H. Crafts, who came to the vicinity in 1861. An originator of the Five Points Mission in New York, he did much to further in and about San Bernardino the religious and education work begun by Robbins. He was also greatly interested in the Indians, and was instrumental in securing legislation of benefit to them. But he is especially memorable in connection with the beginnings of Crafton, Lugonia, Riverside and eventually Redlands, which settlements came to be largely as

THE RADIANT CITY—REDLANDS

A. E. Isham

(SECRETARY REDLANDS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

REDLANDS, "THE RADIANT CITY," SO called for its brilliant flowers, miles of rose-bordered drives, rows of glistening palms, acres of golden-fruited orange trees, and days of sunshine, is well named and beautifully situated. To Californians, Redlands expresses the best of which this fair land can boast; scenic wonder, mountain grandeur, climatic excellence, western hospitality, ideal living conditions, civic progress, community achievement and golden opportunity. To the visitor, Redlands reveals the charm that has drawn so many to make this southwest country a home and a playground. The lure of the great outdoors, the romance of old Spain and of '49, the spirit of the Pio-and up-to-date equipment, with high-grade, adequately trained instructors and executives and carefully selected and graded curricula. In a recent nation-wide survey, the schools of Redlands took first place and still hold that position.

In a sheltered location at the foot of high encircling mountain, with an altitude of 1,356 feet above sea level, Redlands is free from dampness, fog and objectionable winds. The sun shines more than three hundred days per year without hindrance. In short, here is found a climatic condition that is conducive to the physical and mental wellbeing of old and young. Rents and other expenses are moderate, and compare favorably with any city of like size or character in the whole country.

neers, the call of the forest, mountain, lake and desert, have combined to impress all newcomers with the joy of living in such an atmosphere of health, happiness and culture.

Redlands has to offer all that the homeseeker, the settler, the investor and the worker could ask of any modern city, anywhere. The schools are conceded to be among the very best in a state that leads in all kinds of educational work. Every demand is met with modern buildings

The mountains at the very doors are a wonderland of beauty, a vacation-land supreme. The desert beyond the mountains is something to stir the imagination and draw one again and again to its endless beauty and engulfing peace. The beaches, two hours distant over paved highways, hold the charm and wonder of the great deep.

Redlands has long been noted as a musical center and a place where art and literature are appreciated and cultivated for their own sakes. The Smiley Public Library is one of the very best in the whole country and is noted for its especially fine collection of valuable reference works and the world's best literature. The university, with its collegiate and fine arts departments, is singularly fortunate in its staff of teachers and professors. The Spinnet concerts, the Community Music Association with its popular community sing, the Redlands chorus of two hundred voices, the various singing organizations of men and women, show the bent and taste of the community for the best in life.

Every convenience and safeguard to health to be found in a truly modern city is found in Redlands. An abundant supply of clear, pure, cold water is supplied at low rates by a municipally-owned plant. The health board is vigilant and efficient. The fire and police departments are above the average of much larger cities in both the intelligent personnel and the adequate, modern equipment provided.

Everything that appeals to the visitor in the way of service and comfort, convenience and accessibility is found in Redlands. The Casa Loma is a large, modern hotel, noted for its cool comfort in summer and its bright cheer and hospitality in winter. The excellent cuisine, the home-like atmosphere, the slightly location, the general convenience at once appeal to the experienced traveler as well as the unseasoned tourist. There are other hotels and resorts for each particular need and requirement. Prices cover the whole range that is needed to meet the demands of the travelling public. A fine country club gives exceptionally wide choice of healthful activities for all. The paved highways are a constant invitation to the automobile owner to revel in this "motorists' paradise."

Smiley Heights, world famous for its view of the San Bernardino Valley and the mountain peaks, San Antonio (Old Baldy), San Geronimo (Grayback), San Bernardino and San Jacinto, with the acres of orange groves and miles of palm-lined drives and rose-bordered avenues, is a landmark, show place and beauty spot of Southern California.

Sylvan Park comprises twenty-two acres of California loveliness, right in the heart of the city. Adjoining this park is the one hundred and sixty acre campus of the University of Redlands with its classic buildings, green terraces and great quadrangle.

Smiley Park, right in the business center of the city, is noted for its landscape gardening and the unique outdoor theatre seating 3,000 persons. Public gatherings of all sorts are held in the amphitheater.

Every residence street is a flower-bordered palm-lined avenue of beauty, until Redlands has been called the "City Built in a Park." Every winding road invites inspection of its shady blossom-scented turns. Sunset drive, over the rolling hills, is fifteen miles of awe-inspiring view of mountain and valley, town and country. McKinley drive gives a changing panorama of "the wilderness made to blossom as the rose" by the miracle of water.

In 1920 the government census gave Redlands a population of 9,755, while today it is at least 15,000. The building permits for 1925 to date are over a half-million dollars. Property values are reasonable and growth has been steady. An active Chamber of Commerce, with nothing to sell, is at your service to answer your questions show you the city. All that is asked is the opportunity to make you welcome. Investigate before you invest, satisfy yourself before you settle. See California at its best, in Redlands.

IN THE CENTER OF A NETWORK OF STATE and interstate highways, at the junction of three trunk railroads and an electric line, almost equally distant from the orange belt cities of Riverside, Redlands and San Bernardino, Colton is aptly named "The Hub City." Almost on the spot where stood the first White man who ventured over the mountains to this sunny Southland, it bristles with the romance of historic pioneer days. Nestled comfortably close to the mountains, it is also a scant fifty miles from delightful beaches. To mountains, lakes and streams, to awe-inspiring and always-interesting desert trails, to Mexico's quaint borderland, to Los Angeles' busy thoroughfares, are alike a matter of comparatively few hours over roads that delight the motorist.

Partly by virtue of its enviable location, partly through the energy of its hospitable citizenship, Colton has attracted a formidable list of industries with a combined payroll that would do credit to a city many times its size. As a railroad and manufacturing center, Colton enjoys the unique distinction of being the "industrial city" in the center of Southern California's famous orange belt.

A new $220,000 high-school building of four units, in addition to four grade-schools, and a splendid corps of instructors, offer exceptional educational advantages. The high-school is thoroughly equipped in all departments, including mechanical and domestic science, while night courses are maintained throughout the year. There is a centrally located public library building.

Thirteen artesian wells furnish 500 inches of water daily to the City of Colton, the health-giving qualities and palatable taste of which water is known for many miles. Water mains and hydrants are carried to every part of the city and the entire system, valued at over half a million dollars, is owned by the City of Colton.

Likewise the city owns its splendid lighting and power system, which is paying handsome returns to the city on its investment of several hundred thousand dollars. In Colton, the "electrical way" is the popular way. Colton has one of the largest open-air plunges in the state, which attracts many visitors.

One is accustomed to think of Southern California in terms of oranges, and Colton, being in the heart of the great orange belt, would not ordinarily be considered as tributary to other than a citrus industry. However, in addition to acres of orange and lemon groves, there are numerous dairies, the largest hog farm in the state and a pretentious poultry ranch within a radius of a mile or two. The landowner near Colton is not confined to fruitgrowing, if his tastes lie in other directions.

a result of his enterprise and vision. He acquired the Altoona rancho, twelve miles east of San Bernardino, and soon brought it to a high state of cultivation. Beautifully located and abundantly supplied with water from Mill Creek, this ranch was the first to demonstrate the fertility of the dry foothills previously given over to their native sagebrush and chaparral.

REDLANDS, COLTON, NEEDLES.

The rise of Redlands has been phenomenal. To quote from Ingersoll's "History of San Bernardino County": "In 1881, a stretch of bare, reddish mesa and upland lay along the foothills on the southern rise of the San Bernardino range. It was sheltered by the sweep of the mountains from the heat of the desert, and the north winds of the passes. It was high enough to escape damaging frosts, and beyond the reach of the fogs that roll inland from the coast. The upper edge of the mesa commanded a panorama of the far-reaching San Bernardino valley, and of the loftiest peaks of the range beyond.

"Nature had done much; but to evolve the city of today . . . required the intelligent application of brains, industry and money . . . The story of the inception of Redland reads like a made-to-order illustration of applied knowledge, clear foresight and unyielding perseverance in the face of great obstacles."

These qualities were contributed by Frank Brown and E. G. Judson of Lugonia. Recognizing the promise of the site, contingent only on an adequate water supply, they organized the Redlands Water Company, which was incorporated in the fall of 1881. A few days later they filed a preliminary map of Redlands.

Three months after the townsite was a barren plain, nine two-story brick buildings had been completed or begun. For two blocks along the main business street, lots had been sold on with the proviso that two-story brick buildings be erected at once. Cement sidewalks were laid within six months. The East San Bernardino Valley railway was completed to Redlands, and service opened very early in the history of the town.

In 1883, the Bear Valley dam project was undertaken. The dam was completed within a year, and the San Bernardino Mountains were soon pouring into Redlands a bountiful irrigation supply.

The coming of a colony from Chicago, in 1886, to the vicinity of Redlands, was another important factor in the development of the region.

In 1887 arose the question of incorporation of the new city. It was proposed that Redland, Lugonia, Brookside and a part of Crafton merged into a city of the sixth class. After some violent controversy regarding the name, the City of Redlands was voted into existence in 1888. Its subsequent development has been recent to belong to the story of old San Bernardino County.

The town of Colton dates back to the formation of the Slover Mountain Colony Association in 1873. This company purchased and promoted two thousand acres of sandy plain along the Santa Ana River south of San Bernardino. The citrus fruit industry was at once introduced and developed. For a year Colton was the terminus of the Southern Pacific line which was laid through the San Geronimo Pass. The first train to enter the San Bernardino Valley arrived in Colton over this road August 11, 1875. The town itself was named for one of the railroad officials, D. R. Colton.

About 1878 or 1879, rumors were rife that Los Angeles was to be cut off the S. P.'s main line, and that Colton was to be the permanent terminus. Los Angeles was to be given no service over a spur. Los Angeles herself appeared to have been considerably agitated, at the time over the possibility. The failure of the rumor to change to go into effect did not prevent Colton from becoming a concentration point for business and railroad interests.

Inasmuch as so large a portion of the Mojave Desert lies within the boundaries of San Bernardino County, perhaps a word should be bestowed on those 10,600 square miles of sand and creosote-bush and rimming mountains. Beyond this vast region has in abundance—a beauty of distance and atmospheric effects and coloration to be found only there. But today it borders, besides, long stretches of cattle-range and flourishing ranches along the Mojave and Colorado Rivers—for under irrigation the desert can really "blossom like the rose." The faithful modern entrepreneurs in its tremendous potential fertility is evidenced in our great western dam projects.

The railroad, flung across the desert where once pioneer caravans toiled painfully, has annihilated space and the cruelty of nature. Beyond the railroad rambles the Santa Fe motor road, over which lovers of the open adventure joyfully, revelling in desert beauties as they pass from one isolated "shanty-town" to the next.

And what of San Bernardino's desert cities—Needles—the real gateway to California for travellers over the Santa Fe trail? Trim and progressive and welcoming it stands, having conquered the desert and found joy in it.

Times have changed since Father Garces and Jedediah Smith braved their ways across the vasts; since the acres and the herds of the range as far as their vision; and since "saints" of Desert and other Pioneers laid the foundations of today's prosperity. But the building has not ceased; and who is competent to say that later generations will count the matter of course of today among the picturesque and thrilling episodes in the epic of the Far West?

lion people went into the "rim of the world" region in the San Bernardino Mountains to enjoy the beauties of nature and the comforts afforded by the numerous lodges, camps and taverns to be found throughout the region.

San Bernardino started the year 1925 with a population of 35,873, a gain of practically 4,000 made during the preceding year. This figure is not based on guess or estimate. With the 1920 federal census population of 18,721 persons and with the school enrollment of that year as a basis of comparison, it shows that there were 5.19 persons in the city for every child in the city schools. Applying this ratio to the accurate known school census on January 1, 1925, the public utility installations, so that the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce has no hesitancy in saying that the population of the city is at least 35,000 without any possibility of contradiction.

And with this population has come a growth and business expansion that has placed San Bernardino in the forerank of all cities in the inland south. During the past year the building permits reached $3,762,123 as compared with $2,343,617 the year previous. Of these permits 70 were for industrial plants and stores, 713 for dwellings and 407 for remodeling and repairs to present buildings. San Bernardino's building permits ranked ninth among the cities in the State of California. A net gain of nearly $4,000,000 over the previous year.

In addition to this impressive proof of San Bernardino's wealth, approximately $20,000,000 was invested last year in building and loan companies, finance and mortgage companies and real estate. The monthly bank clearings of San Bernardino, as shown by the reports published by the California Development Association, indicates that this city ranks ninth in the entire state in the size of its bank clearings.

Enrollment strides in the city schools during the past year passed all expectations and left a constantly increasing building program for new schools to take care of the additional enrollment. The total enrollment on the first of the year was 8,114 pupils, as against 7,033 for the year previous.

Postoffice receipts for the year went nearly $11,000 better than the receipts for the year previous. The total receipts for 1923 were $10,841, as compared with $11,810 for the year past.

This is the business barometer that indicates the substantial growth and prosperity of San Bernardino and should spell for the commercial traveler that San Bernardino is a city worth while. For the coming year many big projects are planned. Among the notable advance in progress is the expansion program of the Santa Fe, whose 1924 budget called for an expenditure of $3,800,000 in expansion and improvement work in the local shops. The largest portion of this has been expended, but a considerable amount of work still remains to be done.

Three large building programs have been carried out in San Bernardino during the past year that are of interest to the commercial traveler. First, San Bernardino has a new hotel—The Antlers—under the management of C. B. Phillips, who has operated for many years the Stewart, known to so many of you. This hotel is one of the few absolutely class-A, fireproof buildings constructed in any of the inland cities and is modern in every respect. It is seven stories, with 150 rooms, and planned for further expansion.

The Platt building is a modern office and theater building constructed at the corner of Fifth and E streets, and will house a new population figure is shown as above. It is a matter of simple arithmetic, and shows that the population of San Bernardino has almost doubled within the last five years. This population is also borne out by the comparison of the registered voters within the city and the $6,000,000 was shown by the San Bernardino banks for the year 1924 over the previous year. Deposits for the year totaled over $12,000,000, a gain of almost $2,000,000 over the previous year, and the bank clearings for the past year totaled $94,572,958, a gain of more than theater. It is the latest word in theater construction, capable of seating 1,700 people, modern and convenient in every respect. High-class attractions will be offered.

The National Orange Show building, the largest exposition building of its type on the Pacific Coast, 140 feet wide and 800 feet long, was constructed by the people of San Bernardino to house "California's Greatest Mid-Winter Event." The Fifteenth National Orange Show, which has just closed, had a record attendance of over 250,000 people. The building will be used for convention purposes and big affairs of all kinds throughout the year.

And so, San Bernardino will continue to grow and prosper. Already on the boards in the offices of San Bernardino architects are plans for major construction projects which will total well over $2,000,000. A $600,000 hotel, $300,000 bank and office building, $250,000 department store, $250,000 industrial plant, and several structures in the $100,000 class are projected. In addition to these, the start of a $750,000 court house, new schools to the amount of $100,000, a $500,000 railroad shop building, and at least two large manufacturing plants can be listed as among probable construction.

At considerable cost, the Chamber of Commerce has brought to San Bernardino an industrial expert, who is now in the midst of an intensive industrial survey of "Metropolitan San Bernardino," a phrase used to designate the city and its adjoining neighbors, Colton, Rialto, Del Rosa and Highland. While figures on this work will not be available for some time, it is known that the information secured to date indicates that this year is to be a record one for industry.

To the east of San Bernardino, a new community of small farms is being reared on some of the San Bernardino Valley's most fertile land, another page in the county's development that will materially increase the production of food-stuffs. To the south, the Southland's greatest amusement park has been constructed, while a stone's throw away, in Colton, a new shoe factory has begun production. On the west, Rialto has experienced considerable growth, while Fontana has practically doubled in population and materially increased its production of grapes, citrus and deciduous fruits. Throughout the county similar conditions prevail, with the major cities of Redlands and Ontario making forward strides unequaled anywhere except in the Inland Empire of Southern California.

In a beautiful setting amidst the grass and trees of Pioneer Park, one of the oldest parks in the south, is the Municipal Auditorium of the City of San Bernardino. Recently completed at a cost of over $250,000, this building stands as an expression of the community spirit of the city. The auditorium is capable of seating 3,000 people and is equipped with a large, modern stage with every facility. The acoustics of the building rival those of the famous tabernacle in Salt Lake City, and the Auditorium makes San Bernardino the convention city of many organizations.

What a bountiful water supply means to any city in Southern California is most aptly expressed by the well-known phrase, "In Southern California, Water is King." The water department of San Bernardino is municipally owned and operated. All water for domestic purposes is pure mountain-stream water or deep artesian-well water, pumped directly into the mains so that there is no possibility of pollution. The water supply is ample, and a better water for domestic use cannot be found anywhere.

A modern and comprehensive school system, beginning with the kindergarten and primary grades and culminating in a Polytechnic high school of the very first rank, makes up the city's educational facilities. In the twenty-five school buildings of the city are housed over 8,150 pupils, and the rapid growth of the community has made it necessary to enlarge the school facilities by the building of several new elementary-schools in the past year and a new Junior high-school.

A group of six modern, up-to-date school buildings, including administration, science, classics, home economics, manual arts and gymnasium, make up the San Bernardino Polytechnic high-school, attended by more than 1,250 students daily. The administration building contains a large auditorium, library and spacious office rooms, while the other buildings are well equipped with large classrooms and every modern school appliance. The group rests in a spot of scenic beauty on an extensive plot of ground, landscaped with trees, shrubbery and flowers, facing an impressive panoramic view of the San Bernardino Mountains.

High among the wooded ranges of the San Bernardino Mountains is the "Rim of the World," California's finest mountain playground, where a short day's outing or a long vacation will yield unbounded enjoyment, recreation and inspiration all the year round. Here, mountains, forests, lakes and streams combine to make this the ideal resort section, open all the year round, satisfying that everpresent hunger for the breath of the skies and the glorious cool of the heights.

end of the "Rim of the World Drive," a mile high for 101 miles. The mountains are the playground, winter and summer, of not only the people of San Bernardino, but of all Southern California. Astonishing as it may seem, over two hundred thousand people toured the "Rim of the World" and its wonderful resorts during more than 101 miles the drive winds its way, a mile above sea level.

Leaving San Bernardino the route is northward, via Arrowhead avenue, over paved highways to the entrance of Waterman Canyon, passing the world-famous Arrowhead, chiseled by Nature, high upon the mountainside. Through panorama lies below; the Mojave Desert, with its weird wastes and ever-changing sands, stretches out to the northward, and far to the south can be seen Mount San Jacinto and the distant Colorado Desert and Imperial Valley. To the west, the setting sun and the Pacific Ocean, and, on a clear day, the island of Catalina can be easily seen. This wonderful view is had from time to time, ever changing, as the highway follows along the crest of the mountains. Leaving Pinecrest, the trip continues along the "Rim of the World" to Big Bear Lake, whence the road returns to San Bernardino, either by Mill Creek or the City Creek cutoff roads.

Colored a deep, dark blue, caused by its depth, Lake Arrowhead lies nestling in the heart of the Arrowhead woods on the "Rim of the World," 5,100 feet above the level of the sea, making it the choice of everyone for ideal recreation and vacation the year round. Further on to the east, 7,000 feet above sealevel and over seven miles long, lies Big Bear Lake, the largest mountain lake in Southern California. Lake Arrowhead and Big Bear Lake furnish some of the finest trout fishing in California; many limits are taken each day of the season on fly, spinner and bait. Numerous mountain streams afford the best of stream fishing.

During the season, Big Bear Lake, Lake Arrowhead and Baldwin Lake make a veritable hunter's paradise, as all kinds of ducks cover the crystal surface of these mountain waters. Rowboats, canoes and power boats may be readily obtained. Several launches make daily trips around the lakes. Those who enjoy the freedom of exploiting the numerous bays, inlets and coves may engage boats by the hour, day or season. The entire region is interlaced with trails, some easy and gradual and some that

The "Rim of the World Drive" is a scenic tour, never to be forgotten, over the longest and highest automobile road in the United States. Traversing over 101 miles of the most stupendous mountain scenery, through deep canyons, broad mountain meadows, forests of majestic pines, towering peaks capped with snow, for Waterman Canyon the road follows along the course of a mountain stream, Waterman Creek, until the ascent begins upon the mountainside from which vantage point four roads can be seen at one time below. The crest is soon reached and the scene stupendous reaches out far below, as far as eye can see.

In the distance, Mount San Antonio, "Old Baldy," rears its snowcapped peak; the beautiful San Bernardino Valley spread out like a great test the skill of the most expert. Canyon trails, mountain trails, valley trails, all furnish a new hike each day in the week. Commanding view of broad areas of the Mojave Desert, fertile sunlit valleys, snowcapped peaks and orange groves beckon the hiker and his camera.

Miles of broad, shaded, cone-strewn paths through primeval pines invite the horseman to spend many enchanted hours or days in the saddle visiting the more remote points of interest. Aquatic sports from the beach or pier as well as in the swimming pools filled with fresh mountain water are indeed refreshing and full of zest. By all means, don't forget your bathing suit.

The Lake Arrowhead and Pinecrest regions are open all the year round and offer to the many who desire winter sports the keenest enjoyment in snowshoeing, skating, tobogganing and kindred delights of winter.

To the north of the mountains is that great region stretching to the Colorado which is still called the "desert"—largely because its millions of fertile acres await water to make them a productive garden. This area is now dotted with growing towns, and thousands of acres are being developed into fertile farms and orchards through individual development of water.

This desert empire is a veritable mineral treasure house. It has known and developed mines of great value in gold, silver, iron, copper, platinum, marble, cement, talc and potash, and yet its resources have scarcely been explored. At Randsburg is located the largest productive silver mine in the United States, and the "Rand District" is only beginning to be developed.

In the Victor Valley, just over the mountains from San Bernardino, irrigation districts are being formed, and already at Adelanto, Apple Valley and Hinkley several hundred acres are under cultivation from water developed on the land. The country has proved itself particularly adapted to the apple and pear culture. There are well-formed plans for putting thousands of more fertile acres of this region under cultivation.

The climate of San Bernardino and the surrounding territory is well defined into a rainy and dry season, the rainy season extending from December well into March. However, the rainfall is not excessive at any time. The yearly average, computed for a period of over fifty years, is sixteen and ten one-hundredths inches.

San Bernardino being located at an elevation of 1,054 feet and inland from the coast a distance of some sixty miles or more, the absence of the damp sea fogs is a particularly noteworthy feature of the climate. During the summer months the heat is not oppressive, the nights always cool and comfortable, due to the fact that there is no humidity in the atmosphere. The San Bernardino Valley is open to the west, there are no obstruction in this direction, and in the summer the trade winds blowing in from the ocean have easy access to the valley. The result is, that every afternoon and evening, from May until October, the San Bernardino Valley is treated to a delightful sea breeze. The cooling effect of these winds is very noticeable on our summer climate.

San Bernardino invites the manufacturer who appreciates the value of distributing facilities, cheap fuel or electric power, ideal working conditions which contribute to the maximum efficiency of labor. It invites the wholesaler who can appreciate its situation as the nearest point of distribution to a consuming territory of vast extent and will realize that its situation both as to tidewater terminals and inland distribution has by the ruling of the Interstate Commerce Commission been established permanently and most favorably.

It invites the homeseeker who will be appealed to by the healthfulness of its location, its civic progress, its municipal attention to sanitation, and its appeal through the natural and artificial beauty of its streets and parks and general environment; by reason of its unsurpassed school facilities, its churches, fraternal and social advantages, its proximity and easy means of access to every city of importance every pleasure resort whether of mountains valley or sea, in the whole of Southern California.

A letter to the secretary of the San Bernardino Chamber of Commerce, making any specific inquiry in regard to San Bernardino or to the county by anyone interested, will receive careful consideration and an immediate reply.

thirty years ago park trails climbed from San Bernardino to start that great project which some have come to be Lake Arrowhead.

In the years that have followed millions of dollars and the toil of thousands of artisans have been invested. The high lake has become a place of delight where natural beauty has been enhanced by man's handwork.

Thus Arrowhead has become California's Finest Playground. Besides in Arrowhead Woods there is growing the most unique colony of mountain lodges in America.

CALIFORNIA INDIAN TREATIES

jected. But that the sentiment in California was more generally hostile than friendly is evidenced from the action of the Legislature of the state, which may be looked upon as a crystallization of the feelings of the people of the commonwealth.

The discussion of the treaties was begun in the Legislature soon after the session of 1852 began. On January 16, before most of the treaties had reached Washington, the following resolutions were introduced and adopted in the state senate: "Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed whose duty it shall be to prepare joint resolutions instructing our Senators in Congress the course this Legislature desires them to pursue in relation to the confirmation of the treaties, made by the United States Commissioners, Messrs. Wozencraft, McKee and Barbour, with certain tribes of Indians in this State, wherein they reserve to them extensive tracts of valuable mineral and agricultural lands, embracing populous mining towns, large portions of which are already in possession of, and improved by, American citizens. Resolved, That said committee be instructed to report to this body such facts as may be within their reach, in regard to the value, condition and location of all Indian Reservations in this State, together with their opinion of the character and disposition of the various tribes to whom grants have been made, and the effect which the confirmation of said treaties may have on the interests and future prosperity of California." On the same day, the president of the senate named the special committee called for by the resolutions.

The majority report of the committee, presented on February 11, held that, notwithstanding the circumstances which impelled the great wave of population to the state, the commissioners had committed an error in assigning considerable portions of the richest mineral and agricultural lands to the Indians, who were unable to appreciate their value. Falling back on the Anglo-Saxon legal method of using precedent to determine justice, the committee asserted that the policy of the commissioners was not sustained by the practice of the Mexican republic, or by our own country for the preceding forty-five years. The policy of Spain and Mexico, it was claimed, did not admit the right of the Indians to the soil, while the policy of the United States had been to remove them to some suitable place apart from the Whites. For the California Indians, no such place existed west of the Sierra Nevada Mountains.

The majority report respectfully recommended the adoption of the following resolutions, with the concurrence of the assembly: "Resolved, As the sense of the Senate and Assembly of the State of California, that the policy pursued by the Federal Government towards the Indian tribes in the State, is wholly and radically wrong and should be rejected. Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed to oppose the confirmation of any and all treaties with Indians of the State of California granting to Indians an exclusive right to occupy any of the public lands of the State. Resolved, That the policy so long and steadily exercised by the General Government, of removing the wild Indians beyond the jurisdiction of States, is conceived in wisdom and dictated by humanity, and is productive of tranquility and happiness to the whole country, and that no other can with safety be adopted within this State. Resolved, That our Senators be instructed, and our Representatives requested to use their best endeavors to procure this adoption by the Federal Government, of the same course, towards the Indians of this State, that has been pursued in other States for the last quarter of a century. Resolved, That the Governor be requested to present to our Senators and Representatives, each a copy of the foregoing report and resolutions."

The Indians had one staunch friend on the committee in the person of J. J. Warner, a noted pioneer whose name is a familiar one in Southern California. On February 13, he alone submitted a minority report. He contended that the proposition to remove the Indians from the state was impracticable, since there was no suitable place in which to locate them. He claimed that there were suitable portions of land in the state where they could be provided with a permanent home without injury to the new claimants to the land of the state. He argued with plausibility, but to hard hearts and deaf ears, that the Indians already looked upon the treaties as solemn agreements, and that their rejection would be looked upon by them as a breach of faith. He urged that the members of the United States Senate from California be instructed to examine fully the treaties made, and if in their judgment these were found impolitic, or onerous to the people of the state, they were to use the influence of their position to have such alteration or amendment of the treaties made as would conform to the interests of the state and the will of its people. Subsequent action by the senate may indicate that Warner's saner views had influence upon the better judgment of that body.

The majority and minority reports of the senate special committee, whose consideration was postponed for a later day, doubtless presented the sentiments of two groups in that body: a large group, hostile to the Indians and opposed to granting them rights which appeared to conflict with the people's interests; a small group, with kindly feelings toward the natives and desirous of giving them human consideration. In the end the majority report and resolutions did not pass, but this does not mean that they did not represent majority sentiment in most of their statements, but, as will be pointed out, the opposition to the treaties found its expression in a modified form through another set of resolutions.

The subject of the Indian reservations came up, also, in the early sessions of the assembly. Here, too, intense hostility was shown to the policy pursued by the Indian commissioners. A committee, which had been asked to consider the subject, made its report on February 16. Unfeigned regret was expressed that many and extensive reservations of land had been set apart in various sections of the state for the exclusive use of Indians. The committee had learned that, in many cases, these embraced tracts of very desirable mineral and agricultural lands, upon which were located populous settlements of enterprising American citizens who had located on the lands and acquired rights long anterior to the treaties with the Indians. These rights, it was asserted, had been acquired by the miner and agriculturist in good faith, upon the implied assurance that the same privileges and immunities would be extended to the toil-worn immigrants into California as had been extended to settlers in other parts of the country. These persons, it was said, had expended time and labor to establish themselves, only to be told that their lands were eligible sites for Indian reservations. The committee claimed to believe that the reservations from which the Whites had been ordered were occupied by as many as 20,000 American citizens, and possessed a value of $100,000,000. The inclusion of these lands in reservations, it was pointed out, would not only bring hardship to settlers, but would also work to the disadvantage of the state by greatly reducing its taxable area.

The committee had other effective objections to present to the work of the commissioners. Its members claimed to have satisfactory information that persons in the employ of the Indian agents had invested considerable sums in mining claims within the reservations, to whom the claims had been sold by the miners at low prices, under the impression that they would soon have to abandon the mines. In Scott's Valley, it was alleged, preemption claims had been taken up and mining claims purchased on the reservation by the very men who accompanied Commissioner McKee to that section. It was claimed, also by the committee, that the several agents, instead of giving out the contracts for supplying beef and other supplies in the usual way, by publishing for the lowest bidder, gave the contracts to persons who had been, and still were, furnishing supplies to the Indians at immense profits, and to the injury of the government to the extent of many thousands of dollars.

The committee, after making its ringing charges, partly true and partly false, a compound of hearsay, imagination and egotistic provincialism, but tremendously appealing when being told to a popular legislative body, then presented for adoption the following striking resolutions:

"Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested to use all proper measures to prevent Congress confirming the Indian reservations which have been made in this State, but respectfully to insist that the same policy be adopted, with regard to the Indian tribes in California, which has been adopted in other new States. Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested to urge upon Congress the great evils that would inevitably result to the people of California, the National Government, and the Indian tribes, by the confirmation of those reservations. Resolved, That our Senators in Congress be instructed, and our Representatives requested to urge upon the proper authorities, at Washington, the importance of instituting a rigid inquiry into the official conduct of the several Indian Agents, for California as in the opinion of the Legislature, high-handed and unprecedented frauds have been perpetrated by them, against the General Government, and the citizens of California. Resolved, That the Governor be, and he is hereby requested to transmit a copy of each of the foregoing resolutions to the President of the United States, and to each of your Senators and Representatives in Congress."

Some ineffective influences tried to hold back the tide of opposition to the treaties. The cheap politics of the resolutions, the exaggerated statement of the report as to property and persons affected, and the specious statements about Indians being moved to lands so long occupied by Whites, when the Indians had been on them for ages, in fact, until fear of the Whites caused them to flee to the mountains, were pointed out by friends of the Indians, but without avail. Both Wozencraft and McKee met with representatives of the Legislature on several occasions to explain and defend their policy as Indian commissioners. In these interviews, they tried to answer the criticisms that had been made of the reservation policy, and to point out what they claimed was the incalculable good that would result to the United States, the State of California and the Indians, by confirmation of what they had done. They tried to persuade the legislators to pass no hostile resolutions.

The subject of the resolutions was before the assembly for discussion on March 1, and again on March 4, when it was moved to recommit the resolutions to the committee on Indian affairs which was directed to report on March 9. The report of the committee was not made until March 22. Mr. Coats, who spoke for the committee, reported that since the recommitment of the resolutions the committee had had an interview with Mr. McKee. Coats reported that, after having heard a full explanation of the policy of the commissioners, the committee was confirmed in the opinion expressed in their former report that the reservation of lands which had been made for Indians within the state would, if confirmed, prove most ruinous to the interests of both the Indian and White population. McKee had told the committee that the special agent appointed to superintend the several reservation had the authority to grant permits to persons to work mining claims, or to pursue other occupations within the reserves, when they might think it proper to do so. This, the committee held and perhaps correctly, was an extraordinary grant of power which might be wielded to enrich favorites. Because they considered that the interests of the state would be jeopardized by the confirmation of the treaties, the committee recommended the adoption of the resolutions. After the third reading, they were adopted by the large vote of thirty-five to six.

The opposition to the treaties in the senate was given its final expression in connection with the adoption of a memorial to Congress on the subject of the disposal of the public domain in California. A committee appointed to consider the subject of the public domain made its report to the senate on February 12. The first part of this report and memorial was a plea, first, for leaving the whole of the public domain, which was suited to agriculture and grazing, forever open to every actual settler, the government to make a donation to each of one hundred and sixty acres of land; and second, a demand for protection of the quartz miners by making them secure in the title to their possessions.

It was in connection with these matters that the memorialists called attention to the policy of the Indian commissioners, which proposed to set apart presumably valuable mineral and agricultural lands to the Indians. The committee considered the proposed reservation tracts as unsuited to the Indians after their former mode of life. They were much too large for their agricultural uses. As drawn, they included some of the ferries of the Merced River on the great thoroughfare leading from Stockton to Mariposa. Also, they would intersect the Stanislaus and Tuolumne Rivers on the same routes. In addition to these alleged unfortunate facts, the memorial stated that, from knowledge of what was transpiring in the mining country and the public feeling there, it would be impossible to prevent continued collisions between the miners and the Indians unless some sufficient amendment changed materially the plan proposed in the treaties of permanently disposing of the public domain.

THE VENDING MACHINE AGE

We feel that we have a special message to the "Grizzly Bears", for you are the pioneers and Native Sons of California, and our plan of financing and marketing, founded by Mr. L. G. Kellogg, our President, was originated in your Home State, California. We are truly living in a "Vending Machine Age", and we know that you will be interested in a new industry that is

ATTRACTING THE ATTENTION OF THE ENTIRE CIVILIZED WORLD

The L. G. Kellogg Company, with its unique plan of financing, made possible the Jeffries sandwich and pie machines, which we call the "Silent Servers", thousands of which are now in operation and rapidly being placed in the principal cities of the United States.

Six months ago we believed, with the faith of pioneers, in an idea and a principle; today we have proven that our theories are correct, and we have founded for the world a new business enterprise which is quickly taking its place among the large industries of the country.

We are mentioning below just two of our "Silent Servers". We have other machines in which we know you will be interested.

L. G. Kellogg Company Financed and Made Possible The Jeffries Automatic Service Co.

THE AUTO BEVERAGE SERVER is an automatic vending machine for vending liquids and maintaining them at a desired temperature. Each machine contains sixty cupful of beverage. It operates by dropping 5c in the slot, pressing a lever, and instantly the machine pours out a cupful of hot coffee or cold liquid into a sanitary individual cup. Neither the liquid nor any part of the machinery through which the liquid passes is ever exposed to the air or dust. When you stop to think that there are 240,000,000 cups of coffee consumed daily in the United States alone, you can readily see that the Auto Beverage Server is economically right to fill a long-felt want, not only in restaurants, cafes and hotels, but in stores, office buildings and industrial plants,—bringing restaurant service to the consumer instead of the consumer being compelled to go to the restaurant.

THE DMO BALL GUM VENDING MACHINE is different from other machines, not only because of its simplicity of operation and small number of working parts, but also because it serves six balls of gum for 3 pennies in the following manner: One ball of gum for the first penny; two for the second penny; and three for the third penny. We have discarded the old paraffine base in favor of a high-quality product of real chicle, deliciously flavored and attractively colored. Sixteen hundred of these machines are now operating successfully in Los Angeles and paying handsome returns on the investment. You are well aware that several large American fortunes have been founded on the chewing gum industry. The DMO Gum Machine is merely a new appeal, financed and marketed under the proven and successful "L. G. Kellogg Company Plan."

VISIT OUR GROUND FLOOR DISPLAY, 320 WEST NINTH STREET, LOS ANGELES

In addition to the above, the L. G. Kellogg Company is preparing for the American market the SPH/NX OIL MACHINE, which opens an entirely new vista in the plan of marketing lubricating oils, for automobiles, to the American public. It makes possible, for the first time, through a sealed container, the absolute guarantee of getting the motor oil THAT YOU ORDER. Our trademark—unique in itself—"SPH/NX MOTOR OIL—SILENCE FOR YOUR MOTOR"—tells the story, in a one-line slogan, of our 100% paraffine base Eastern Oil.

Another of our new vending machine successes is the "Purity Milk Machine," better termed the "Iron Cow." This machine, through perfect refrigeration, keeps milk fresh and sweet. It holds thirty-one pint bottles made of paper, treated by a special process (passed on by Pure Food Inspection), arranged in such a way that you merely drop a dime and get your pint of milk,—no cost for the bottle. This not only eliminates the bottle nuisance, but by placing these little vending machines in drug stores, factories, department stores, apartment houses, etc., makes possible the purchase of a bottle of milk at any time of the day or night.

To those of you who are not attending the Convention, we would suggest that you write or phone our LOS ANGELES or SAN FRANCISCO office, and we will have a representative from our nearest branch call on you in person.

CALIFORNIA UNIQUE

shortly after the feverish excitement of Marshall's discovery of gold in January 1848. The people had come from every quarter of the globe. It was a hurriedly assembled population, most of whom arrived in the state following the discovery of the rich placers in the Mother Lode. This wonderful discovery stimulated the imagination of the people of all lands and turned the eyes of the world toward the Golden Gate, but it was only the strong, hardy and adventurous amongst them who risked the dangers and survived the perils of what was then a most hazardous journey.

It has been said that the Almighty chooses for us the place of our birth. It is true that the tender memories which cling about one's birthplace are treasured until the very end and it requires a powerful influence to wean one away from the land of his birth. But the constant stream of immigrants from all of the states of the union and all parts of the world, flowing toward the Golden State, is compelling proof that the lure of California is more powerful even than love of home and country.

For many years California has been threatened with an invasion by the uncounted millions from Asia, attracted to its shores by its natural beauties, its wealth, its fertile valleys and its delightful climate. These Orientals, in an amazingly short time, secured control of much of the fertile and valuable land in California and were increasing in numbers at such a rate that in another fifty years they would have been able to control the entire Pacific Coast. The Native Sons of the Golden West gave the warning signal and served notice upon the world that they would not submit to any further invasion, peaceful or otherwise, of hordes of Orientals who might later threaten the very existence of American supremacy in the West.

The Native Sons have been foremost in the battle to save California for the White race, and through their strenuous efforts and their unceasing vigilance they have finally prevailed upon the Federal Government to enforce restrictions which will not only prevent California from being swamped by an influx of unassimilable aliens but will also put an end to the constant friction which inevitably arises when the White race clashes with races of other colors. The Native Sons of the Golden West stand like a bulwark on the Western shores of the nation, ever vigilant to protect its interests, to assert its rights, to maintain its prestige among the nations of the world.

The tourist visiting the many points of interest in this Golden State is impressed by the tablets marking historical places and testifying to the assistance which has been rendered by the Native Sons in restoring those historical landmarks which played such an important part in the early history of California: the missions, Sutter's Fort, Colton Hall, the first Custom House in Monterey, and various other historic structures, as well as the monuments erected to the memory of the patriots and the pioneers of the early days, including the Donner monument, the Sloat monument, the Marshall monument and the monument to Kit Carson.

It has been said that Californians are boastful, but the real Californian does not boast. He may be thrilled by the beauties which nature has so freely lavished upon the land of his birth; he stands in awe of her magnificent snow-crowned mountains; he delights in roaming through her great forests of redwood, cedar and pine, or treading her golden hills, rich with history and tradition; he is proud of her great valleys, watered by the Sacramento and the San Joaquin, and capable of furnishing food supplies for the entire nation; he feels particularly grateful that the Almighty should have so favored California above all other states.

Possessing such a wonderful birthright, it would not be unnatural should he be jealous of its riches and splendor and anxious to preserve it for himself. But the hospitality and generosity which marked the early Californians rule the hearts of their present-day successors and the Californian of today welcomes with open arms the tourist, the traveler or the home-seeker; he invites them to come and stay; to share with him the beauties of his native land. He does not dream of claiming any superiority of birth over those who come from afar, nor would he for a moment discriminate against one on account of place of birth, but he gently insists that those who come here shall be patriotic and loyal to this country, ever ready to uphold its institutions and to obey its laws, to respect the memory of the Pioneers of old and whenever possible, to extend such aid as may be possible in the advancement and upbuilding of this great commonwealth. The Native Son believes in absolute toleration in religion and politics and throws upon the attempts of those who would create discontent in civil affairs or stir up hatred and dissension in religious matters.

The Native Sons of the Golden West, inspired by these beautiful sentiments, have pledged themselves to be ever ready to defend their country, whether in peace or in war; to uphold its laws and institutions; to be loyal to their state and to preserve its traditions and early history and cherish the memory of those who have made it one of the greatest commonwealths in the American Union. They strive at all times, to promote the best interests of California and to discourage those things which may interfere with her progress.

When one meditates upon the glories of the past and the possibilities of the future of this wonderful State of California, he can readily understand why there should be an Order of Native Sons of the Golden West and why such an organization should be first in the hearts of the people of California. Surely, as Sheare well said, the Native Sons of the Golden West is an American organization, which the rest of the United States should endorse and copy, or ganize and maintain.

The yearly subscription rate of The Grizzly Bear is now $1.50. Better invest that small sum and know California.—Advt.

"Fifty-Fifty"

During 1924 Los Angeles Gas and Electric Corporation paid, in round numbers, $1,380,000 in taxes.

The dividend on the Preferred and Common stock of the Corporation for the same period was approximately $1,420,000.

Thus, the Government and the Stockholders received nearly equal shares of the year's earnings.

This illustrates the manner in which the public utility corporation contributes to the support of the Government and at the same time yields "a fair return" to its investors.

ORDER NATIVE DAUGHTERS GOLDEN WEST GROWTH STEADY IN ACHIEVEMENTS AND CAPABILITIES

Catherine E. Gloster

(GRAND PRESIDENT, NATIVE DAUGHTERS GOLDEN WEST.)

CALIFORNIA'S JUBILEE YEAR. THE seventy-fifth anniversary of her statehood! What a year for retrospective contemplation, for present realization, and for plans for future achievement, not only for our great Western commonwealth, but also for that great patriotic organization so closely associated with the history, romance and traditions of California, the Order of the Native Daughters of the Golden West!

When that small group of great-souled, strong-minded women banded together in the little town of Jackson, Amador County, thirty-nine years ago for fraternal and patriotic purposes, I wonder if even the most far-seeing amongst them could visualize the present organization of fifteen thousand women of the highest type of womanhood united in promoting and contributing to the highest ideals of fraternity, of patriotism, and of citizenship.

Verifying the statement that "Mighty oaks from little acorns grow," the organization of Native Daughters of the Golden West has steadily grown in its achievements and capabilities, in social and civic prestige, and in public favor until now it is one of the foremost women's organizations in California, and to be a member of the Native Daughters of the Golden West is an honor to be sought.

Our membership is increasing; the Subordinate Parlors are in a flourishing condition, and are assuming and maintaining local leadership in all worth-while movements in keeping with our aims; our work of charity yearly becomes more markedly unselfish and far-reaching; harmony and prosperity are ours; and a roseate future lies ahead.

As Grand President of the Order, it has been my pleasure as well as my duty to travel the length and breadth of this Golden State of sunshine, fruit, flowers and eternal snows. Thus was brought to me, more forcefully than ever before, how splendid it is to have been born and bred in this Wonderland of America.

My journeyings have led me over rugged mountain trails blazed by the western explorers, the early pioneers, the goldseekers; they have led me past the sun-kissed missions of the coast and southlands over trails made sacred by the footsteps of the Franciscan padres.

Besides the scenic beauties, the romance, and the historic associations to charm and gratify the senses, there was added the satisfying knowledge of what is being accomplished by the sons and daughters of California, who imbibe inspiration from her scenic beauty and her romantic settings.

Here a group is restoring an old mission or other California landmark; another ministering in loving sympathy to the disabled soldiers; another beautifying with trees, shrubs and flowers a strip of highway or some neglected playground; another assisting in the americanization of the foreigner; another, in appreciation of the labors and sacrifices of those who worked and fought and died that western civilization might be assured, is erecting a monument to commemorate their valorous deeds; another is preparing tiny garments and playthings for homeless babes; still another is scattering seeds of golden poppies over the hillsides and valleys to replace the wild flower carpets destroyed by careless childhood or thoughtless older persons who wantonly pluck every flower they see, leaving none to make seeds for next year's blooms; and all are adhering to and passing on to posterity the highest ideals of home, of state, and of country which have ever been fostered by the true Californians.

One of the outstanding aims of the Order of Native Daughters is the promotion of the study of California history, and during my term of office as Grand President I have used my best endeavors in the furtherance of the study of this absorbingly interesting subject. It is indeed gratifying to me, especially so during this year when all California celebrates her diamond jubilee, to know that all up and down the state, whether within their own Parlor circles or through educational boards, the Native Daughters of the Golden West are promoting the study of California history; that the schools of the state are responding to their urge; and that the children of the state are being taught to appreciate their California heritage through an intimate study of California's history and traditions.

Among the projects of the Order in which much interest is manifested is the Mills College scholarship. This scholarship consists of the interest on an investment of $6,030, and amounts to $375 per year for four years. It is gained through a competitive examination. Those eligible to enter this examination are young women of California birth whose mothers are members in good standing of the Native Daughters of the Golden West. Beginning the school year of 1924, this scholarship was awarded to Hazel Dell Werner, a native of Plumas County and a graduate of the Modoc Union high school in Alturas, Modoc County.

A worthy undertaking that is rapidly gaining favor, now that its purpose is more thoroughly understood, is the Native Daughter Home. This home, established in San Francisco through the efforts of a few great-hearted sisters whose sympathy for those less fortunate than themselves gave them a vision of future service by the Native Daughters of the Golden West to its needy members, is developing from a very small and poorly-equipped dwelling to a pretentious establishment in which the inmates are surrounded with all the comforts of a modern home. And be it known that the vision of the twenty-one members who make up the home committee is not circumscribed by the walls of this building, remodeled from two old-fashioned residences, but it looks forward through future years when a mass of steel and concrete, raised by the skilled hands of engineers and other workmen, will take the form of a magnificent edifice which will house in luxurious comfort not only those members of the Order whom unfortunate circumstances would otherwise render homeless, but also maintain clubrooms for visiting members of the Order and the office and headquarters of the Grand Parlor, and be a lasting memorial of the altruistic spirit of the Native Daughters of the Golden West and a source of pride to every member that does her part in its creation and erection.

MISS CATHERINE E. GLOSTER OF ALTURAS,

The Order's activities in caring for and securing homes for the homeless children of California is still its most popular work. In co-operation with the Native Sons, we have placed in splendid homes more than twenty-five hundred little ones, besides caring for many more, during the fourteen years we have been engaged in this humanitarian work.

Other fraternal organizations are most efficiently caring for the orphaned children of their own members, but the Orders of Native Daughters and Native Sons of the Golden West are the only organizations whose labors in this field are not limited by race, color, creed or fraternal affiliations. We are the friends and protectors of all the children in California.

The Subordinate Parlors of the Order respond most generously to the call for funds to be used for the benefit of the homeless children. Many and interesting are the stories sent in from these Parlors, telling how they devised ways and means of raising the amounts donated. One Parlor reports a bazaar; another an amateur theatrical or moving picture; another, a carnival; still another a benefit ball; and one Parlor in the southern part of the state makes an annual event of poppy day every February. For weeks beforehand the members are busy making yellow crepe paper poppies, which are sold on the streets for ten cents apiece on poppy day. From the proceeds of these sales a donation averaging $1,500 per year is turned into the homeless children's fund. Thus is the good work carried on.

The Order is ever ready to lend its support to any worthy movement which has for its purpose the conserving of our natural resources, the improvement of our laws, the betterment of our citizenship in general. To this end, I invite the attention of members to the fact that it is their civic duty to participate in the management of the affairs of the government. We are not justified in criticising mismanagement of governmental affairs if it is our lack of interest that places the management in improper hands. If all is not right with our state or country, we must labor to improve conditions.

Every member should cast her vote intelligently and become acquainted with all proposed legislation, give support to all progressive measures, and as strongly oppose any bill that will tend to exploit our resources, disintegrate our state or demoralize our people.

The Grizzly Bear, our official organ, keeps the membership at all times well informed of matters of interest to all California. The numerous items from different parts of the state published in its columns indicate the high place the Subordinate Parlors take in their respective localities and their inestimable service to the welfare of these communities. This publicity creates a spirit of profitable emulation; other sections are benefited thereby; and every member takes justifiable pride in being one of an organization that is contributing to so many benevolent movements.

Our seventy-fifth anniversary of statehood is close at hand. We are all uniting our efforts to make the visit of the thousands of people who will enter our state this year for the first time a memorable one. We want them to feel our hospitality, to see every part of our state, and to know the important features that contribute to California's pre-eminence and make life within her confines so interesting and agreeable—the healthful climate, orderly government, scenic beauty, ease of transportation, fertile valleys; fruits of field, orchard and vineyard; splendid cities with countless shops and stores displaying tempting arrays of varied merchandise; well-appointed hotels, incomparable parks and places of amusement and recreation; magnificent institutions devoted to commerce, trade, science, education and art; the boundless opportunities for the promotion of every legitimate business enterprise; and her loyal sons and daughters, whether by birth or adoption, who each day use their God-given gifts for the advancement of a greater and better California.

It is a privilege and a duty for every Native Son and Native Daughter to assist in portraying and visualizing our splendid growth and remarkable progress of seventy-five years in a celebration that will herald the glories of California to the world. When the great celebration is over and a new era opens, may we still work harmoniously together for a greater destiny that lies ahead.

EXCELLENT SELECTION.

Santa Cruz City—The California Federation of Women's Clubs, in annual session, selected Dr. Mariana Bertola of San Francisco, Past Grand President of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, to preside over the destinies of the federation the ensuing year.

A burned city may be rebuilt in a few years. It takes a century to regrow a forest destroyed by human carelessness with fire.

REJECTION OF CALIFORNIA INDIAN TREATIES

A STUDY IN LOCAL INFLUENCE ON NATIONAL POLICY

Prof. W. H. Ellison

THE MEMORIAL ASKED FOR AN ENTIRE modification of the treaties. It is not clear why the proposal of this committee, while suggesting marked modification of the treaties, was so much less radical than the report made by the special committee on February 11. The memorial did not recommend sending the natives from California. The features of payments and arrangements for provisions provided for by the treaties were approved, but a complete change was asked in the proposals concerning land. A system of missions for the Indians was proposed, to be under the superintendence of one Indian agent and two subagents. These missions, it was suggested, could be located at a few points convenient for the Indians to receive their annuities, and where they could be assigned parcels of land. The Indians would have the same hunting and grazing privileges as the Whites, as well as the right to dig peacefully in the mines. The Indians who resided on private lands with the consent of the owners, of whom the memorial held there were many, were to be permitted to continue in this good school of civilization. Such a plan, it was held, while obviating the contemplated disposal of a large portion of the mineral and arable lands, would promote peace and satisfy the citizens in a way the reservation plan would not be able to do.

The memorial was fully discussed in the committee of the whole on March 17 and 18. Sentiment was strongly in favor of what was proposed. The result was the adoption of the memorial, together with resolutions addressed to the California delegation in Congress asking their approval, by a vote of nineteen to four.

The original copies of the treaties which aroused so much resentment in California were received at the Indian office in Washington on the following dates: those negotiated by the full board on February 18, 1852; the ones by McKee on the same day; those by Barbour on February 2, 1852; and those by Wozencraft, one on July 9, two on September 22, three on November 3, 1851, and two on February 18, 1852. They were not transmitted to the secretary of the interior by Lea, commissioner of Indian affairs, until April 13, because he considered it necessary to secure further information before the department could "judge correctly as to their merits and the action required in regard to their final disposition." It was known by him at the time that there was violent opposition to their ratification by the Legislature of California, and that the California delegation in Congress, responsive to the sentiment at home, was solidly against them.

On May 7, A. H. H. Stuart, secretary of the interior, asked Lea to report to him any information in his possession relative to the treaties. He wished to know particularly whether they embraced any new principle, and to learn whether, in Lea's judgment, the public interests would be promoted or impaired by their ratification.

On May 14, Lea replied that some of the stipulations were regarded as new. The most important of these was the one "providing for an entire relinquishment of title by some of the tribes, and their permanent settlement within the limits of a state on lands not previously owned by them." This provision, which Lea regarded as without precedent, was considered "both necessary and proper in consequence of the impracticability of removing the Indians beyond the limits of the state and of the expedience of withdrawing them from their inter-mixture with the White population." Another peculiarity was that they stipulated for no annuities to be paid in perpetuity, or for a series of years, according to the common practice. Lea considered this fortunate, for when the annuity system was once adopted, it was almost impossible to get rid of it. Another new provision was that all difficulties among the Indians were to be adjusted by the agent of the United States, while controversies between Indians and Whites were to be settled by the civil tribunals of the state. These various new provisions were approved by Lea, and though he did not commit himself directly as to whether the public interest would be promoted or impaired by their ratification, he concurred with Edward F. Beale in the opinion that, "a rejection of the treaties without the adoption of precautionary measures against a general outbreak on the part of the Indians would be hazardous and unwise."

Beale, who had just been appointed superintendent of Indian affairs for California, had been asked by Lea, on May 11, to give his opinion of the treaties. In reply, he stated that he regarded "the general line of policy pursued by the commissioners and agents in negotiating with the Indians as proper and expedient under the circumstances." He added that his own "personal knowledge and experience in Indian affairs, and particularly in reference to the tribes within the State of California, incline me to the opinion that to secure their peace and friendship, no other course of policy, however studied or labored it may have been, could have so readily and effectually secured the objects in view." He approved the system of reservations, because of the impracticability of removing the Indians, as some had suggested, east of the Sierra Nevada, or into Oregon. He objected, however, to the provisions for supplying the Indians with agricultural implements and the establishment of schools among them, because he did not consider the California Indians disposed to engage in agriculture, nor capable of appreciating the benefits to be derived from instruction in the schools. But the provisions for supplying beef cattle and brood stock to the Indians, in view of the extinguishment of their title to lands, he considered wise. To those who objected to the novelty of some of the stipulations, he said "that beef and flour are but substitutes for annuities in money, powder, lead and guns, and that while the treasury is being drawn upon annually to fulfill the obligations of other treaties, these supplies are to cease after the short term of two or three years." Beale, it is seen, was decidedly in favor of the treaties.

On May 23, Secretary Stuart submitted the treaties, together with a mass of documents, to the president. In doing so, he said that the treaties had been held by him until he could inform himself as to their merits, and be prepared to express himself with some degree of confidence as to the propriety of recommending their ratification or rejection. "A slight examination of the treaties," he said, "and accompanying documents will suffice to show that it is impossible to form such an opinion from the information now in the possession of the department. . . . and as the department has no present means of obtaining further or more reliable information, and as one of the Senators [Gwin] from the state [California] more immediately interested has complained in his place, that the treaties have been improperly withheld from the Senate, I now submit them for your consideration, and respectfully recommend that they be communicated to the Senate, to be disposed of in such way as that body in its wisdom shall direct."

The eighteen treaties, with a copy of Beale's letter, and other correspondence, were submitted to the senate by the president on June 1, 1852. On June 7, the president's message was read to the senate, and, with the treaties and accompanying documents, was referred to the committee on Indian affairs. The message and documents were then ordered printed for the use of the senate. The treaties were then considered in a secret session of the senate, and were rejected by that body.

The reasons for the senate's action do not, of course, appear in the records. It is quite certain that the methods of the commissioners in piling up immense claims against the United States was a factor in their rejection. More potent than this, however, was the violent opposition in California to their ratification, because they removed from public and private use such large areas of land containing potential wealth. The California sentiment made certain the opposition of the California members of Congress to the treaties, even if they were not already opposed, as they probably were, and in a matter of this kind, the senate would be inclined to accede to the wishes of the California members. Senator Weller of California, speaking for the California senators, said: "We who represent the State of California were compelled, from a sense of duty, to vote for the rejection of the treaties, because we knew that it would be utterly impossible for the General Government to retain these Indians in the undisturbed possession of these reservations. Why there were as many as six reservations made in a single county in the State of California, and that one of the richest mining counties in the state. They know that those reservations included mineral lands and that, just as soon as it became more profitable to dig upon the reservations than elsewhere, the White man would go there, and that the whole Army of the United States could not expel the intruders." He summarized his thought about the whole matter by saying, "Public policy demanded that these treaties should be rejected."

Congressman McCorkle, a member of the house of representatives from California, who of course had no vote on the treaties but who did have influence, said of the commissioners and their work: "The history of the Republic does not present an instance so flagrant of the usurpation and abuse of power as that exhibited in the action of the commissioners. They have not only usurped powers reserved in the Constitution to the President and Senate in making and executing treaties, but they have assumed to themselves a power expressly given to the House of Representatives, in the appropriation of money, and have absolutely, with an arrogance unheard of, drawn upon the Treasury for hundreds of thousands of dollars. The absurdity and ridiculousness of their official action almost forbids one from characterizing and denouncing it in the terms it deserves." The words of the agitated congressman lack a little of the judicious and misrepresent the actual facts, but they are an expression of a popular view at that time, and popular views, whether true or false, are powerful in effecting or preventing legislation.

Certain general things should be said concerning the treaties and their rejection: The commissioners faced an immense and difficult task which they tried to handle to the best of their abilities. Wiser and more experienced men would have been unable to have charted the wisest course, for no one could have foreseen, under the circumstances, what that course should be. The separation in time from the authorities in Washington made impossible the cooperation of Indian office officials. The commissioners were in a difficult situation. Certainly they were presumptuous in assuming such immense obligations against the credit of the United States. The general idea of the treaty-making had much to commend it, but an examination of the treaties shows that they were hastily and carelessly drawn, and one must conclude that they would have been difficult of execution under more favorable conditions. Could the treaties have been carried out, some of what are now the most populous and prosperous regions of California would have remained peopled by a few undeveloped natives, whose capability for development seems exceedingly doubtful. Though some injustices were involved in the way things turned out, and the strong and developed have profited by the deprivations and misfortunes of the weak and defenseless, the judgment of history must be that the commissioners badly blundered, and that the rejection of their work has resulted in economic and cultural opportunities for millions of people.

The claims against the United States, which grew out of the unauthorized action of the United States Indian agents in making large contracts for supplies, caused some embarrassment to the government, and considerable losses to some persons, for the claims were never all paid. The losses were not as great as would appear on the surface, for there was much fraud involved in the transactions.

The question for the government's responsibility for the obligations assumed by the commissioners was first brought up in Congress on March 26, 1852, when Representative McCorkle of California, acting like a congressman is supposed to act who is interested in what his constituents think of his solicitude for their welfare, proposed the following amendment to the deficiency bill then under discussion: "For paying the drafts of the Indian Commissioners of California, drawn upon the Department of the Interior, for supplies furnished, and expenses incurred in the negotiation of treaties with the various Indian tribes of California, the sum of $520,000." McCorkle admitted that he knew practically nothing about the claims, except that they had been presented from California against the United States. No one else knew much about them. Nevertheless, the amendment was strongly supported by several members, on the ground but, however much the commissioners had erred in creating the debts, the persons who furnished the supplies did so in good faith, believing, as they had a right to do, that the commissioners had authority to make the contracts. It was argued that innocent persons ought not to be made to suffer because of the incompetency or dishonesty of government officials. The opposition argued that the agents had absolutely no authority to involve the government, and that in any case, the information on the subject before the house was too limited to justify action. The latter sentiment prevailed, and no action was taken at this time.

The next step in the direction of facing these claims was taken on April 6. Under this date, the senate called upon the department of the interior for information as to whether the Indian commissioners in California had contracted any debts for which the government was liable, and if so, the amount; and whether or not drafts drawn by the commissioners had been protested, and if so, for how much.

Will A. Graham, acting secretary, secured the information desired from the Indian office, and communicated this to the senate on April 14. From the report, it appeared that the commissioners had contracted debts to the amount of $176,394.79; that Adam Johnston had also made contracts for a considerable sum, believed to be upwards of $50,000, the precise amount not having been given; and that to all of this was to be added a claim for $13,402 by Dr. W. M. Ryer for his services in vaccinating Indians. The communication was accompanied by documents presented as evidence of the validity of some of these transactions for which the government was held to be liable. Among these were the account and contract with John C. Fremont for beef furnished, and a letter concerning this account from Senator Benton, Fremont's father-in-law, to the secretary of the interior, together with statements of various persons testifying to the delivery of the beef and the justice of the price charged, among which was one from Edward F. Beale.

Some of the senators believed that a thorough inquiry should be made into the whole subject. Accordingly, on May 13, after being instructed from the committee on finance, which had received an estimate of the amount needed from the department of the interior, Mr. Hunter proposed the following amendment to the appropriation bill to enable the department to investigate the conduct of the Indian commissioners for California: "To enable the Secretary of the Interior to investigate the conduct of the Indian agents in California, who, without authority of law, or official instructions, have contracted heavy liabilities for beef and other supplies, alleged to have been furnished to various tribes of Indians, while negotiating treaties; and to ascertain whether the government may properly be held liable to claims on account of such contracts, $10,000." The amendment was not then passed and the subject was laid aside for the time being.

On August 6, the question came up as an amendment to the measure providing appropriations for Indian purposes. The California representatives, aided by a number of others, supported the amendment on the grounds that large contracts had been drawn for supplies, that many persons believed there was fraud in the transactions, and that many innocent third parties had become involved in the contracts. Since the government was called upon for payment of the drafts, it was contended that justice to all parties concerned demanded that an impartial investigation should be made. Those opposing the amendment did so, for the most part, because they were opposed, under any circumstances, to an appropriation being made to pay the obligations involved in contracts which the agents had no authority to make. There were some who favored an investigation, but who believed an appropriation for the purpose unnecessary, since, in their judgment, the superintendent for California should perform that service. They did not consider as sufficient the objection urged to this, that Mr. Beale was an intimate friend and business associate of Fremont, who had a claim against the government for more than $180,000. The debate took a wide range before the discussion ended. Much was said against and in defense of the agents. When the vote was taken on the amendment it was defeated.

Certain of the claims were modified or disposed of in the early part of 1853, when Wozencraft reported in person at Washington. He gave to the department a supplemental and final account of his disbursements and liabilities. This account contained marked changes in some of the

KNOW YOUR HOMELAND

(ANNA G. ANDRESEN, Chairman California History Committee N.D.G.W.)

HOMELAND IS A MAGIC WORD! ITS mention, when far away, makes the pulse beat quicker and the heart warm with emotion. It stirs recollection and fills one with pride. This is a feeling common to all, but the measure of our pleasure is limited by our knowledge of what that homeland really is. The depth of our sentiment is the depth of our knowledge, and a knowledge of California history is a wealth of human transactions that fills us with a pride and glorification that but few lands can give.

So, if you really want to feel the real thrill of "Home Sweet Home," know your state history. Its study and knowledge, because of its rugged and common honesty, its fearlessness, and its bravery and hope, fit us in spirit for intelligent work in every department of activity today.

Here we have the real West, "far from the maddening crowds' ignoble strife," where life is candid and dealings are straightforward, and where the spirit, "a man's a man for all that," still prevails in our daily contact. Here independence is truly expressed, not in a boastful and offensive way, but in a sincere and manly fashion. The liberal sweep of our valleys affects the liberality of our lives, and the towering eminence of our mountains lifts our thoughts in true steadfastness for the bounty bestowed upon us. To feel and possess this spirit, however, we must do homage to the past, for what we are and feel is because of what our forebears were and felt.

We must remember that California was reclaimed from a wilderness not by arms, but by the cross, and that the strongholds of civilization along the coast, as civilization progressed, were not a succession of forts but a succession of missions. We must remember that its wilderness and the native children that dwelt there were first startled not by the boom of cannon or other instruments of destruction but by the sweet notes of the angelus.

We must also remember that the Pioneer who came at a later day was stamped by character, courage and enterprise. No weakling, however alluring the news of gold, had the temerity to make the long and dangerous journey to the new El Dorado. Every man who came to California in that day came as a man of achievement, for the journey alone required mettle and grit. These men came to seek gold, it is true, but the gold they found and kept came from its native bed in the mountainside and was not coined out of the sweat and misery of man.

Keeping in mind these thoughts of those to whom we owe our present-day prosperity and our proud place among the states of the union, we must equip ourselves to meet the problems of the hour in true California spirit. Now, can we do this and be ignorant of those men who, with their expiring breath, passed the task to us and left the California of the future in our keeping?

"I like to see a man proud of the place in which he lives. I like to see a man who lives in it so that his place will be proud of him. Be honest, but hate no one; overturn a man's wrongdoing, but do not overturn him unless it must be done in overturning the wrong. Stand with a man while he is right, and part with him when he goes wrong."—Abraham Lincoln.

FORTY-EIGHTH GRAND PARLOR, NATIVE SONS GOLDEN WEST SUMMARIZED PROCEEDINGS OF THE SAN BERNARDINO SESSION

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE FORTY-EIGHTH GRAND PARLOR of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West was in session at San Bernardino, May 11, 13 and 15, with Grand President Edward J. Lynch presiding. Many of the transactions dealt with matters which have heretofore been given extended mention in The Grizzly Bear. The attempt to abolish benefits developed a lengthy, and occasionally heated, debate, and the resolution proposing it went down to defeat, as did also that which proposed a curtailment in the Grand Parlor representation of the smaller Subordinate Parlors. Practically all the business of the Grand Parlor is transacted via the resolution route, and the resolutions were numerous in number. Some were withdrawn and others failed of passage, and no reference is made to them in this summarized account of the Grand Parlor proceedings—except as instanced above.

GRAND PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

Immediately following the formal opening of the Grand Parlor in San Bernardino's beautiful Municipal Auditorium, Grand President Edward J. Lynch presented his report, in part as follows:

"I feel certain that our Order is now in better condition than ever before. Our progress has been steady, even though slow, but our foundation is a permanent one and experience shows that the Order is being given more recognition as time goes on and that at all public functions those in charge seem to feel that the occasion would not be complete without a representation from the Native Sons of the Golden West. In many instances the sentiment is strong in having our Order officiate at these public ceremonies.

"During the past year the highest courts of our state and nation have upheld the constitutionality of the various immigration and land laws enacted to prevent Orientals from overrunning our state and acquiring its most fertile and valuable lands. Although the fight is apparently won, we have reliable information to the effect that the Japanese government, assisted by its friends in America (who display more concern for the Orientals than they do for their own people), will make a strenuous effort at the next session of Congress to reopen the question of immigration and endeavor to have the present law amended so as to allow Japan a quota on the same basis as the nations of Europe. Until this menace is removed we must give our support to the present immigration committee, composed of representatives from the American Legion, the State Grange, California Federation of Labor and the Native Sons of the Golden West, and including Senator James Phelan, treasurer, V. S. McClatchy, secretary, both of whom are members of Pacific Parlor No. 10, and also Attorney-General U. S. Webb."

"Next September we will celebrate the diamond jubilee of our state, at San Francisco. The general celebration is in the hands of a local committee appointed by the mayor and having representatives from all the various public bodies and organizations in the city. I called upon the Parlors of San Francisco to appoint a committee to make arrangements for the participation of our Order in the celebration, and this committee has been organized and is meeting regularly and doing its work in a most efficient manner. The celebration will no doubt be one of which every Native Son and Daughter will be proud. I believe it will excel in beauty and spectacular effect anything that has ever been attempted before. I hope that every Parlor in the Order will be represented in the parade. The celebration will extend over a period of one week, commencing on September 7, 1925.

"Our Order has suffered a serious loss in the death of our beloved Past Grand President, Maurice T. Dooling, who passed away on November 6, 1924. He was a tower of strength in our fraternity, and his life was an inspiration to every young Californian. No man could have displayed greater loyalty than he did, and although he knew that he was in the shadow of death, he insisted on attending the last session of our Grand Parlor, only a few months before he died. His funeral was a testimonial of the love and respect in which he was held. Almost every past grand president and grand officer attended the funeral. The family of Judge Dooling has the deep sympathy of every member of our Order.

"I am indebted for the able assistance given me during my administration by the deputy grand presidents appointed as organizers and by the district deputy grand presidents and members of the various committees of the Grand Parlor appointed by me. I am also grateful for the assistance received from the Grand Secretary's office and take advantage of this occasion to express my appreciation for the efficient and businesslike manner in which our Grand Secretary, John T. Regan, conducts his office. I am also thankful for the aid which has been rendered by Junior Past Grand President William J. Hayes, who did not go into seclusion when his term as Grand President expired, but has taken a most active part as a member of the Board of Grand Officers.

"There is no organization in this state, or elsewhere, which can boast of a more loyal or efficient Board of Grand Officers than the Native Sons of the Golden West. The members of this board have displayed at all times a most fervent interest in the Order and a desire to be of assistance whenever called upon. No other board was into the Order a large percentage of men of ability, talent and high standing. Many men of this class look upon secret work and antiquated ritualistic proceedings as so much 'hokum.' It is men of this type who form the successful leaders in our commercial and industrial organizations, chambers of commerce, etc., and there is no reason why the Order of the Native Sons should not have a larger percentage of men of this caliber. Many of them are the heads of large corporations or are employers, and the membership in the Order will establish a bond of fraternity between employer and employee and will encourage the younger men to see association with those who have already attained a high place in the commercial, professional or industrial world."

"Shortly after the last Grand Parlor we organized the Native Sons' Luncheon Club of San Francisco, and it has been an unqualified success ever elected by the Grand Parlor which has so ably and faithfully carried on its work. You will elect at this session of the Grand Parlor, as my successor, an able and distinguished Californian, in the person of Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler. Under his administration our Order will gather strength and standing, and I am certain that he will exert himself to the utmost in the interests of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Following him will come those very loyal Grand Vice-presidents—Hilliard E. Welch and Charles A. Thompson."

"I know that there are many thousands of Californians in commercial, professional and industrial life who hesitate to join the Order, feeling that they are only 'joining one more fraternity.' If we can so arrange it that these men can become members after being elected, by taking the obligation, it will help us to bring

Luncheon meetings are held twice a month and arrangements are made for prominent speakers to address the club, or some form of entertainment provided. The meetings are very well attended and serve to create a more cordial feeling between the Parlors and to bring together many of the members and encourage them to take an active interest in the affairs of the Order. At my suggestion, a luncheon club was also organized in Sacramento, and I believe it would be well to have similar clubs started in all the cities and the larger towns of the state.

"Our official publication, 'The Grizzly Bear Magazine,' is entitled to more generous support from the Grand Parlor, and also from the members and Parlors of our Order. It is impossible to estimate the value of the benefits derived by us from this magazine, and with a little additional financial aid the magazine might be made even more attractive and interesting. investigation by the members of the Board of Grand Officers, the opinion was freely expressed that we should make a large allowance to the magazine.

"For the high honors which have been conferred upon me by our Order and the Grand Parlor I am deeply grateful. I have found the Parlor throughout the state ever ready to co-operate and render whatever assistance they could, whenever called upon. The demonstrations of loyalty and love for our state and Order among our members are such that we can look forward with absolute confidence to a glorious future for the Native Sons of the Golden West."

PRO-JAPS RAPPED.

Deploing the efforts being made by certain interests to repeal or modify the exclusion provision of the Federal Immigration Law, the Grand Parlor adopted the following resolution:

"Whereas, The Congress of the United States, by almost unanimous action, has settled one phase of the Oriental immigration question in the provision of the Immigration Law excluding from the immigration quota all aliens ineligible to citizenship; and

"Whereas, Certain individuals and organizations in the pay of Japan or under the domination of Japanese influence are actively promoting a movement aimed at securing in the next Congress a repeal of the exclusion provision of the Immigration Law; and

"Whereas, Such repeal would be an abandonment of the basic principle upon which rests the nation's established policy of excluding aliens ineligible to citizenship and would force either admission of all Asiatics or offensive discrimination against all races, except Japanese, now barred, and would furthermore entail surrender of our sovereign right to control immigration at the behest of a foreign nation which has sought the aid of other nations to force compliance with the demand; and

"Whereas, Continued agitation of this question, now settled in the only manner compatible with American ideals and satisfactory to the American people, can only cause a strain upon and endanger the amicable relations now existing between the American and Japanese peoples; therefore be it

"Resolved, That the policies and activities of the California Joint Immigration Committee, representing, in connection with others, the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, the California State Bodies of the American Legion, the American Federation of Labor and the California Grange, be warmly commended, and that the support of the Grand Parlor be pledged to the committee, while conditions justify continuance of its labors."

ADEQUATE DEFENSES URGED.

By the adoption of the following resolution, the Grand Parlor went on record as favoring adequate defenses for the Pacific Coast:

"Resolved, That the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West, in Forty-eighth annual session assembled in San Bernardino, respectfully petition the Federal Government to provide the Pacific Coast with an adequate naval base and such other defenses as may assure the complete protection of Western United States.

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded to the President of the United States, to the Secretary of the Navy, to the Secretary of War and to each of California's representatives in the National Congress."

GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY.

Attention was directed to the Order's fiftieth anniversary by the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Whereas, On the 11th day of July, 1875, the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West was organized by the institution of California Parlor No. 1; and whereas, through the efforts of the charter members of the Order and those initiated since, the Order has prospered and been a great credit to our glorious state; and whereas, we are about to reach our fiftieth anniversary on the 11th day of July, 1925; and whereas, there are still twelve members in California Parlor No. 1 who have been continuously members of the Order since its formation; now therefore, be it

JUNE THE MONTH OF BRIDES

SUMMER, IN CALIFORNIA, BREAKS into a sunny smile, most welcome after a rainy spring. There is none too much artificial heat here at any time, and to be able to bask in sunshine instead of toasting before a tiny fire in a grate that has yet to grow up, is the foremost luxury of an early summer. Flowers scent the air and charm the eye, but not even the display in the flower market is more gay and refreshing to look upon than early summer attire as it takes form in and about the shops. The mannequins are constantly upon dress parade, as it were, and all are very busy behind the scenes turning out what has been ordered.

Brides of the regal month of June find roses and June bridal gowns progress from bud to blossom almost in the same breath. How lovely they both are! White net, as light as clouds in the June sky, would make the plainest bride pretty, especially with soft silver roses crushed against a silver girdle and dripping silver petals hung over the full-tucked skirt. The silver embroidered bodice is molded a trifle to the form and a long lacy veil floats off to become a train. White satin slippers have square buckles of white enamel flowers and rhinestones frilled around with white net.

Not a shade less important than the best man is the maid-of-honor, all in white except for the shell-pink satin sash and wreath of pink silk roses at the neck. Her frock is of embroidered batiste, hand tucked in the most fetching manner and inset with filet edgings and insertions. A deep cape collar and an apron front show what charming purposes lace and embroidery may serve with a lingerie frock. The maid-of-honor may wear blonde satin slippers with little buckled straps over the instep.

"Going away" allows the bride a wide choice among ensembles. Something a little gay tempts her in this lovely month. A dress and jacket combination is made of red and black crepe. The sashed bodice is red and the black coat has red sleeves. Red, white and black embroidery is introduced in trimming bands around the bottom. A pleated panel lengthens the back and, of course, red crepe lines the coat and faces the roll collar, as tiny as a collar may be. A red crepe turban is chosen with a "spool" twist over each ear and an embroidered band to match the blouse.

Sports clothes in this royal month naturally find a most important place in the scheme of things, and this season the little two-piece jumper frock is sure to play the leading role. A model in yellow-peach crepedechine has one of the new tie collars, cut cleverly in one with the blouse, and cluster pleats or tuckings, a few for the yoke and a few at the wrist with smart buttoned bands below. A sport hat of wood-brown straw with grosgrain ribbon trimming and tan calfskin brogues completes an effective morning array.

Even for the bride, formalities exist and she must doff the sports frock or the dance dress occasionally, and go forth formally of an afternoon. There is nothing more charming for this purpose than the georgette ensemble, particularly in gray. A georgette coat is trimmed with a silver collar, tie, embroidery and ball buttons. A very simple hat is best with this, with gray grosgrain perhaps draped into a bow at the side. Shoes may be gray and are worn with the sheerest of sheer gray stockings.

An ensemble suit of bengaline is both fashionable and exceedingly serviceable. The suit may be made entirely of the heavy henna-colored bengaline, combined with a heavy flowered crepedechine of the same henna shade.

A warm, heavy coat is a most necessary article of clothing on any trip, and for the honeymoon, which nowadays is so frequently a two-week automobile tour or a sea voyage, it is essential. The heavy camelshair is an ideal material for such a coat. It makes up beautifully into one of the straight tailored models that are always in good style.

For the dansant, dinner and informal evening wear, nothing could be more charming than the lovely coat made of flowered chiffons that are so desirable this season. The large floral patterns are to be found in scroll designs of pastel blue on a background of white, which suggests the delicate tracery of the spider's web.

Florists' windows are not the only spots so brightened, for wherever a bit of chiffon flourishes there lurks a rose. Thin materials are sprinkled with roses, and roses of silk and velvet dot the most fashionable frocks and find congenial association with all manner of lovely silks and satins. The streets are gay with these flower-bedecked windows, and even the soberest mannish tailored costume must have its bright and flippant boutonniere. Then, little chokers have their clusters of buds, to say nothing of many rose-trimmed hats and violet-decked and tinted chapeaux.

One sees any number of bordered fabric dresses designed, of course, to feature the borders most effectively. Bordered crepes make morning frocks, and bordered chiffons are used for afternoon styles. Most wonderful things are done in the applique of flowered chiffons upon plain chiffons. A single rose or a flower cluster will be cut out of the chiffon and applied with tiny hand stitches to the plain ground.

A lace-trimmed black chiffon dance frock has a flounce dotted all around with a single large chiffon rose at regular intervals in most exquisite medallion effect. The treatment is similar to that of the cretonne applique.

Beaded dresses remain a happy choice, but the all-over beading has been replaced by the elaborate deep border of beads. Steel is quite prominent in the beaded effects and is often combined with rhinestones.

A novel note in buttons is the pearl button steel rimmed, or the black tailored button rimmed with gold.

If, in the depths of your treasure-chest you have any fine laces put away, bring them forth now, for this is the festival of all the laces—the creams, the blacks, the blondes and the laces of colored dyes.

Truly, the flowers that bloom in June have much to do with the hat, provided they are wisely chosen as to color and discreetly placed at the side or front of a modish shape, fitted rather closely to the head. With the crown of paramount concern, the slightest brim wanders fancifully where it may, as in the case of one flattering model of gay orange pleot straw and grosgrain. Pleot and supple silky straws vie in popularity with crepe, satin and faille, and at times graciously consent to join hands in one alluring creation.

Flowers, too, in nature's richest colors, ranging from the most queenly of full-blown American beauties to the demure little rosebuds, perch themselves against high crowns or swing coquettishly up and down on soft rippling brims. Silk or velvet flowers, in flat applied designs, are always a mark of distinction, when placed about the crown of a large hat, and how fetchingly this is expressed in the soft drooping picture hat of transparent hair in a becoming color.

Lingerie ensembles underline the mode. Gracefully clinging underthings harmonize their bright tones with the flimsy summer dresses. They harmonize in color scheme with the chosen costume of the hour. Following the present-day fashion for matching accessories, one may have the intimate delight of wearing undergarments that blend in shade with the frocks one chooses to wear.

One often finds the finest of french lingerie fashioned of sheer chiffon and glossy triple voile. Lace or net trimmings, usually in tones of ecru, ochre or deep cream, are set flatly into the material by means of an attractive hand-rolled stitch. Simplicity of line, trimmings of exquisite lace or handwork, and fine fabrics of fascinating colors are the marks of distinction in lingerie that strike at the very depths of the mode.

The flare, whether of godets or circular form, flits lightly from the old season into the new one without losing a bit of its prestige. In lace it is charming, of course, for lace is always charming. Judging by the amount of it employed the lace flounce and the lace godets are two fashionable mediums for the flare.

Panel was never more pronounced. A cape divides itself into two panels in the back, which may be used as a scarf. Thus does the panel serve many uses. It is nothing at all for an evening gown to be paneled from top to bottom in narrow panels, like ribbons, revealing a glimpse of contrasting underdress. For the flare, the underdress bursts out into fluffy godets below the knees, and the panels cheerfully part company to give the godets full play.

One senses that the waistline has heard the call of variety and decided upon a change. Not all, but certainly a third of the smart clothes seen in the shops and on the street stress a fuller skirt and a higher waist. The back remains flat and even beltless, but across the front there is a rather high gathered fullness.

The coats that go in for this new line are the lighter silk and crepe models. Never have there been so many silk coats in evidence. They are considered quite essential to the correct wardrobe. Even flat crepe, ordinarily considered light for the outer garment, has won its place. The other favored coat silks are heavy wool-back satin, faille and the heavy corded bengaline. Many coats that appear rather plain have intricate trimmings of self folds and straps. Selfies are used at the waist and self-scarfs at the neck finish. Collars amount to little or nothing, except where the scarf makes them important.

The coat of georgette or roma crepe is a delight and is worn over the brilliant prints and floral dresses. The smartest are of plain black or white and help the color scheme along.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

JUNE WAS THE GREAT CONVENTION month of 1875 in California. The quadrennial election of state officers was being prepared for. Four state tickets were in the field, and there were about 2,000 candidates. For governor, the Republicans nominated Timothy Guy Phelps of San Mateo County; the Independents or "Dolly Vardens" named John Bidwell of Butte County to head their ticket, and the Democrats headed theirs with William Irwin of Siskiyou County. W. E. Lovett was the Temperance party's gubernatorial nominee.

A rainstorm developed June 13 and dropped about an inch of moisture in the counties north of Tehachapi without doing any particular good.

The town of Winters, Yolo County, came on the map this month. Town lots were first put on sale May 22 and were in steady demand. The Vaca Valley railroad was expected to reach there in July and the town had 1,500 population when it arrived.

E. J. Baldwin, known better as "Lucky," began preparations this month to build the Baldwin hotel on the corner of Market and Powell streets, San Francisco, at a cost of $800,000.

That Fresno County was a great sheep-raising section was shown by the fact that 135,000 sheep were driven through Fresno Flats this month moving to mountain pasturage.

John Guilletta, erected a wine cellar at Saint Helena, Napa County, with a storage capacity of 150,000 gallons, to accommodate this season's vintage, of which 70,000 was expected to be made from his own vineyard.

Los Angeles shipped from its orange crop 5,350,000 oranges and 620,000 lemons to the San Francisco market, which had a demand for as many more and imported them from Mexico and the Sandwich Islands.

The steamer "Orizaba" arrived at Santa Barbara with a large consignment of grouse, pheasants and other gamebirds to stock the adjacent Santa Cruz Island.

A Fresno farmer was boasting of raising fourteen and a half tons of potatoes on one and a quarter acres of land.

Over 1,000 men were now employed in putting the finishing touches on the Palace Hotel in San Francisco. The 745 rooms were all to be open to sunshine at some time of the day.

QUAIL NUMEROUS IN EL DORADO.

The first rail of the Stockton and Ione railroad was laid at Stockton June 10 with appropriate ceremonies. The road was expected to reach Linden in sixty days, and it is probably there yet.

The new 20-cent piece, authorized by the government to save the nickel lost in a two-bit transaction, was begun to be struck off by the mints this month.

A carload of sealions, sixteen in number, were sent East June 18. They had been captured at Saint Nicholas Island, off the Lower California coast, by being lassoed. The largest weighed over 1,000 pounds. They were kept in separate boxes, and were to be exhibited at the Centennial.

A Chinaman fishing in the Feather River at Bidwell's Bar, Butte County, caught a sturgeon weighing 150 pounds June 15.

A German man-of-war named "Areona" came into San Francisco Bay June 2, and exchanged salutes with the United States forts. It had been away from Germany since 1872, going to different parts of the world, and expected to stay in San Francisco a month.

Flocks of quail were so numerous between Placerville and Coloma, El Dorado County, they had to be driven off the roads by passing vehicles, or be run over.

Judge E. B. Crocker, connected with the Central Pacific railroad since its organization, died in Sacramento June 24. He was a native of New York, 57 years of age. He came to California in 1852 and was a Supreme Court judge in 1862. He created the Crocker Art Gallery, one of the assets of Sacramento.

George Rowland, ex-postmaster of Sacramento and one of its prominent citizens, died June 3, at the age of 59. He came from Connecticut in 1849 and engaged in the hardware business.

MINING EXCITEMENT IN SISKIYOU.

Donna Juana Pacheco, born in San Jose in 1795, a member of the well-known Alviso family, died June 23. She was once very wealthy, but, too generous, gave most of her money away.

Thomas H. Selby, once mayor of San Francisco, died June 9. He was the founder of the Selby smelting works.

June 5 the Eagle club played the Young Americans at Sacramento a game of baseball that resulted in 50 runs for the former and 36 for the latter.

The True Blues of Grass Valley, Nevada County, played the Intrepids of Marysville, Yuba County, June 10 at the latter town, and lost by a score of 31 to 23.

A suit was brought in San Francisco June 11 by the estate of F. L. A. Pioche against O. Chauvin and others on a promissory note given June 9, 1870, for $60,000, at 1½% interest a month. The Rancho San Felipe Ausaymas, containing two square leagues of land, was the security. The note and interest now amounted to $144,279.

A mining excitement broke out in Siskiyou County over the discovery of rich rock by prospectors near the boundary line of Siskiyou and Shasta Counties. Assays as high as $150 a ton had been obtained.

At Grass Valley, Nevada County, June 21 Albert Sheperd saw a glitter in the pathway and, picking it up, was surprised to find a four-ounce chispa, worth $78, that had been uncovered by recent rains.

A rich cinnabar deposit was found June 10 on the ranch of Dr. Hastings, near Benicia, Solano County. It was fifteen feet wide.

The Green mine, in Placer County, after a thirty days' run, cleaned up $7,000. The Saint Patrick mine, not far away, got $5,000 from 300 tons of rock.

The New York Hill mine, in Nevada County, crushed 160 tons of rock and cleaned up $8,360, or over $52 a ton.

ROGUE SITS "PAT."

The hoisting works of the Murchie mine at Nevada City, Nevada County, burned June 21. There were five White men and a Chinaman in the shaft, 400 feet below. John McCourt, Samuel Hecker and Thomas Jenkins were killed by foul air, but Dan O'Donnell, Jackson Stephens and the Chinaman escaped.

John Miller, prominent in business circles on account of being the secretary of the Western Development Co., formerly the Contract and Finance Co., an adjunct of the Central Pacific, was arrested on a northbound train at Marysville, Yuba County, as he was making his exit into Oregon. Rumors were afloat that he had embezzled from $200,000 to $1,000,000. This money he had invested in property held in a name other than the one he was known by. It developed that Miller was an astute rogue. He had levanted from an Eastern state some years previous leaving, besides a financial mess, a wife. His name was Woodruff there. He came to California and changed it to Miller, obtained a lucrative position with the Central Pacific, married a rich widow in San Francisco, invested large sums that he "borrowed" from his employer in real estate and business enterprises, lived in a palatial residence that belonged to his second wife, and was now evidently sitting "pat." A singular thing connected with the affair was, that both wives were endeavoring to help him get out of his difficulty.

The Forbestown stage was stopped near Bangor, Butte County, June 1 by highwaymen and the passengers robbed of $40.

The stage from Santa Cruz on arrival at San Jose June 29 was upset by collision with another vehicle and its fourteen passengers thrown out.

Louis Revard of Rio Vista, Solano County, buried June 1 the fifteenth of his nineteen children.

LIBERAL REWARD.

On the train from San Francisco June 11 were an old couple, enroute to visit a son at Virginia City, who had made a raise in the bonanza stocks. The father was 98 and the mother 100 years old. The latter carried a bottle of the "ould crature," and both frequently imbibed. When they passed through Sacramento they were in a singing mood, but differed as to what to sing. He was for "Wearing of the Green," while she seemed to prefer "Kitty from Cork."

June 19 James T. Edwards, a businessman of Stockton, lost a memorandum book with $410 in bills. A lad named Russel found it a few days later, returned it to its owner, and received a reward of $100.

Charles Rednall and Thomas Pyle, at Chico, Butte County, took a contract to move a church from one location to another and quarreled over the settlement of the proceeds. June 2 Pyle went to Rednall's house with a rifle and, taking

"STRUCK OIL"

LAY M. GREENE ENTERTAINED April 20 the members of the California Historical Society at their monthly luncheon in San Francisco by weaving a chain of personal reminiscences concerning the early history of San Francisco, with special reference to the pioneer playhouses and the men and women who were on the stage. He substituted for Senator James D. Phelan, who was incapacitated by an accident.

The elder Booth was recalled by Greene and some of his characteristics were described, giving a glimpse of his social habits, which were in keeping with pioneer customs. His greatness as an actor won condonement for pre-Volstead-ean transgressions. Booth the younger and his contemporaries were appraised, and a current account of the rise and fall of the major theaters of the city was given. Responding to a request by Charles G. Yale, the speaker told of his connection with the play called "Struck Oil," in which J. C. Williamson and Maggie Moore first appeared in San Francisco. Greene said:

"'Struck Oil' was written as a one-act curtain raiser by Sam Smith, a woodchopper. Smith's regular business was splitting out railroad ties, and between times he would write farces and comedies and the like. Williamson seeing its possibilities as a melodrama, in 1871 engaged me to expand 'Struck Oil' into a three-act play. After my work was completed we haggled over the pay. Williamson insisted that $150 ought to be enough, and as I was inexperienced and had given no thought to royalties or anything of that kind, I accepted.

"The play did not win much applause in California, but when Williamson and Maggie Moore took it to Australia it met with immediate and wide acceptance. Elder, the commissioner from Australia who came to San Francisco to greet the American fleet, told in the Bohemian Club last week that Williamson acquired a fortune of £400,000 (about $2,000,000), the beginning and foundation of which he ascribed to the money-making powers of 'Struck Oil.' At any rate, I got my $150 for my part of the production before it was performed."

EMBARCADERO SUBWAY DEDICATED.

Headed by Grand President Edward J. Lynch, the Native Sons dedicated May 2 the Embarcadero Subway, the first of its kind in the City and County of San Francisco, by formally placing thereon a bronze tablet which reads: "The Embarcadero Subway, Dedicated by the Native Sons of the Golden West, May 2, 1925." Assisting Grand President Lynch in conducting the ceremonies were: Junior Past Grand President William J. Hayes, Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand Third Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan. Other grand officers in attendance included: Grand Trustees James A. Wilson, Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, Seth Millington, John S. Ramsay, John T. Newell and Alfred H. McKnew, Grand Marshal Herbert Dela Rosa, Historiographer Frank C. Merritt, Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington.

Before the dedication ceremonies there was a parade from the Civic Center to the Ferry Building in which Native Sons and Native Daughters participated. Charles Pratt was chairman of the day, and the speakers included Governor Friend W. Richardson, Supervisor Ralph McLeran, President of the State Board of Harbor Commissioners Charles Spear.

PROUD PAPAS.

An eight-pound native son made his advent into the home of I. M. Peckham, past president Olympus Parlor No. 189 N.S.G.W., April 27, and Secretary Frank I. Butler immediately sent Master Jordan Neville Peckham an application for membership blank. Incidentally, at the meeting of the 1925 Celebration Committee, the youngster was awarded the first "Casa Roma" ticket. The following day an eight-pound native daughter arrived at the home of Lester Castillo, also a past president of the Parlor, and many Native Daughter Parlors sent Miss Eleanore Jeanne Castillo membership application blanks.

The Olympus monthly dances, given jointly with Fremont Parlor No. 59 N.D.G.W., are proving quite successful. They are under the management of Thomas McConnell and Ella Becker. Admission is but 25 cents, and everybody is welcome. The proceeds go into the Parlors' Admission Day celebration fund.

"MOTHER" TELLS HISTORY.

Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W. May 11 initiated six candidates, following which the mothers of the members were entertained at a banquet. Each was presented with a beautifully-versed card. The "mother" of the Parlor related interesting incidents associated with the organization of Golden Gate. After farewells had been exchanged, all departed with pleasant memories of 158.

BRIDE-TO-BE SHOWERED.

Linda Rosa Parlor No. 170 N.D.G.W. was hostess at a surprise shower in honor of Miss Gertrude Ross, one of its members, who will be a June bride. The banquet-room was very

INSPIRATORS BEHIND EXCLUSION REPEAL

V. S. McCLATCHY OF SAN FRANCISCO, secretary of the California Joint Immigration Committee and a member of Pacific Parlor No. 10 N.S.G.W., addressed the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West at San Bernardino, May 11, on "Results of the Immigration Act," considering particularly the provision excluding aliens ineligible to citizenship and the course of Japan and its friends in connection therewith. The California Joint Immigration Committee represents the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, the American Legion of California, the American Federation of Labor and the California Grange. McClatchy quoted Chairman Albert Johnson of the House Immigration Committee to the effect that during the first six months' operation of the 1924 law only 453 Japs had been admitted to this country, all of them for temporary sojourn only, while during the year previous, under the "gentlemen's agreement," 8,481 had been admitted, nearly all for permanent settlement. This fact, alone, he claimed, fully justified enforcement of exclusion as was contemplated by President Roosevelt should the agreement fail to secure the desired results.

The speaker recounted the efforts made by Japan since passage of the new law, through direct demand and through appeal to foreign powers and various American interests, to have Japs excepted from operation of the exclusion measure. He described the campaign conducted for the purpose by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ of America and allied missionary, church and peace organizations, culminating in the recent movement headed by Sidney L. Gulick and George W. Wickersham to have a thousand prominent Americans petition Congress to grant immigration quota to Japan in 1927. He claimed that the quota could not be granted to Japan without violation of the long-established policy of the nation as to exclusion of aliens ineligible to citizenship and that neither Congress nor the American people are prepared to abandon that policy.

McClatchy charged that this entire movement is inspired in Japan's interest by Sidney Gulick, who came here from Japan ten years ago and has devoted his time since to attempted conversion of this nation to his "new Oriental policy," which would insure to Asiatic peoples, and particularly Japs, the same standing as to immigration and citizenship as is accorded Europeans; that Gulick uses various organizations for this purpose, including the Federal Council of Churches, of which he is oriental secretary; its subsidiary organization, the Commission for International Justice and Goodwill, of which he is executive secretary; and two other bodies, which he organized and which he serves also as executive secretary—the National Committee for Japanese-American Relations and the National League for Constructive Immigration Legislation; that the missionary element support Gulick's campaign in the belief that evangelization in Japan will be made difficult, if not impossible, unless this country admits Japs as immigrants; that George W. Wickersham, who acts as chairman for the second and third of the four bodies named, is attorney for the Japs and has appeared for them before the United States Supreme Court in cases wherein they contested state and na-

A BIT O' FARMING

AGRICULTURE AND LEGISLATION

CALIFORNIA AGRICULTURE FARED well at the hands of the recent Legislature, and while the governor has vetoed some of the measures desired by the farmers, on the whole the session was quite satisfactory. Two measures advocated by the farmers failed: reapportionment and the taxation of publicly-owned utilities. As regards the former, it may be said the farmers' proposal for reapportionment came much nearer passing than any other. As to the latter, while it was much desired by the agricultural interests of the state, even the defeat was a victory, for now the whole taxation system of the state has been opened up for investigation, and there is no doubt the unequal burden of taxes the farmer has been carrying will be eventually adjusted.

The commission merchant bill; the oleomargarine bill; the tuberculosis eradication bills; half a dozen bills providing for the eradication of pests; standardization revision and additions including canned fruits, fresh fruits, grains and vegetables; the bill to prevent false weights in buying as well as in selling; the egg grading measure, establishing real egg grade; the bill providing cannery inspection, and many others, were passed. On the other hand, undesirable bills were killed, not a single one opposed by agricultural interests getting through. These included the bills to prevent orchard smudging, to destroy "abandoned" orchards, to levy a state income tax, to change the assessment date from March 1 to January 1, amending the minimum wage for women, requiring the name of the grower on every package, preventing the destruction of any food product whether it would pay the cost of marketing or not, providing a six-day week for all labor including that on the farm, and several agricultural lien bills that would have injured farm credit.

The success of the farmers in the Legislature is due for the most part to the Agricultural Legislative Committee, composed of thirty-two commodity organizations in the state, with 70,000 grower members. This committee worked closely with the California Farm Bureau Federation, the Farmers' Co-operative and Educational Union and the California State Grange. The results of this co-operation of farm organizations are so patent it is hoped it may be continued along all lines, and not be restricted to legislative matters.

SUMMER CARE OF ROSES.

Roses play an important part in the beautification of the farm, as well as the city, home. At about this time of the year comes the greatest enemy to the rose known in California, the mildew. If it gets a start, dust with finely-ground sulphur. Take a coarse bag and fill it with the sulphur, then dust over and around the leaves. Prevention is better. Don't water the roses in the afternoon, never in the evening, for the fungus thrives on moist conditions in the cool of the night. Bordeaux spray will be found effective in repelling mildew, too, and as well the eating insects. Aphis must be handled when they come and nicodust or blackleaf forty spray will remove them in short order. For the eating insects, use arsenate of lead. Neglect of the roses this summer means less beauty of bloom next spring. Care for the roses, and they will repay the care.

PRESERVING EGGS.

Eggs are cheap in the spring and early summer, and may easily be preserved for winter use by preserving in waterglass, obtained at any drug store. Mix thoroughly one and a half quarts of this solution with eighteen quarts of boiled water. A stone jar is best for a container. Two six-gallon jars or three four-gallon ones will hold thirty dozen eggs with the proper amount of the solution. Be sure the jars are clean, and that two inches of the solution cover the eggs when the jars are filled. Cover the jars to prevent evaporation and set them in a cool place where they need not be disturbed. If the solution becomes thick through evaporation, simply add more water.

HARD MILKING COWS.

Some cows are hard to milk. Nearly every herd has its hard milkers, and many family cows are a problem to handle in this way. This often leads to improper and incomplete milking, or the udder is ruined through the use of dilators or tubes. A better method is to employ the services of a competent veterinarian. The trouble is caused by a stricture in the teat canals, and a simple operation can be performed to relieve the trouble. This always should be done when the cow is in milk, and with proper observance of the rules of surgical cleanliness.

THE FARM HOME.

Speaking to the members of the Traveling Conference of the California Farm Bureau Federation and the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, W. A. Lloyd, in charge of agricultural extension in eleven Western states for the United States Department of Agriculture, made the assertion that the basis of agricultural prosperity is the farm home.

"After all," said Lloyd, "the woman is the basis of agricultural prosperity. Give her surroundings she likes, make her satisfied, and the work of the farm goes along smoothly and profitably. If she has no modern conveniences, if she has nothing of which to be proud in and about her home, inevitably she is not contented, and this can lead to nothing but dissatisfaction and friction that must impede the work of the farmer."

Lloyd was deeply impressed with the work being done by the Farm Bureau and the Agricultural Extension Service in California, in home beautification, both on the outside by landscaping and on the inside by refurbishing; and the improvements that make the woman's work easier and life more livable, such as sanitation, running water, electric lights, etc.

NEW STATE FAIR HEAD.

In the selection of Robert A. Condee of Chico, San Bernardino County, as president of the California Agricultural Society, the organization operating the State Fair, the directors of that association have chosen wisely. Condee is a man closely associated with agricultural interest, particularly livestock, and whose sympathies are with the encouragement of the farming industry rather than doubtful entertainment features in the State Fair. He succeeds the late H. A. Jastro of Bakersfield, Kern County, for many years head of the State Fair. T. H. Ramsay of Red Bluff, Tehama County, another man intensely interested in agriculture, was chosen vice-president to serve with Condee.

SAVING TIME ON REPAIRS.

There is one California farmer who loses little time in ordering parts for the repair of his machinery. Instead of scraping rust and dirt and grease from broken parts in an endeavor to find the letters or numbers by which they are to be ordered, he merely consults a notebook. When he buys a machine, he writes down the name, the model, the year and the size. Under this he lists all the parts, by catalogue designation, or at least the important ones or those liable to be broken. His system requires but a few minutes of time, and saves hours when minutes count at harvest or planting time. The plan is worthy of adoption, and even if no new implements are purchased this year, the farmer will find it to his advantage to go over those he has, and make such a parts' list.

WORMS ON TOMATO VINES.

Worms on tomato vines cause much trouble during the summer, and so far no method of control is known that is more effective than handpicking. Watch the vines and pick off the worms. It takes little time, and is a sure control. However, one pound of powdered arsenate of lead to four parts of finely-ground hydrated lime will go far toward control, always remembering, where ripe tomatoes are on the vines that arsenate of lead is poison.

SPANISH ALMERIA GRAPES.

Another effort is being made by the growers of grapes in the Almeria district, Spain, to gain entrance for their product into the United States. Dealers in the East, whose thought is of profit, not of protection to American horticulture, are aiding in this movement, claiming California and other growers in this country want the embargo merely to eliminate competition.

It may be frankly admitted the barring of Spanish grapes does help in the situation where there is an oversupplied market, but this is merely incidental. No fruit from any country should be admitted, where there is as serious a menace as the Mediterranean fruit fly, and the Federal Horticultural Board is standing firm in its position barring Almeria grapes. Spanish growers claim the pest has been eradicated, but American vineyardists point to the fact that never, where this pest has gained a foothold, has it ever been cleaned up entirely.

DAIRY DEVELOPMENT PROBABLE.

Twenty five million cows in the United States produce an average of 1,000 pounds of milk annually. In Holland, the average is 7,500 pounds per year. This gives the dairyman something to think about. Production can be increased. Holland has proved that, and the development of the dairy industry in the United States shows it can be done here. California's production is higher than that of the United States, but it is not high enough. Prof. G. D. Turnbow of the California College of Agriculture believes there must come a revision of the products of the industry in marketing.

At the present time only the butterfat is marketed, and in most cases, at least, the industry bases its returns on butterfat. But butterfat, on an average of all breeds of dairy cattle, represents but 3.7 percent of the entire product; and 96.3 percent of the product usually is wasted, or nearly so. Of course, most of this 96.3 percent is water, but there is albumen and casein in quantities that should prove profitable, and there is no question there must ultimately be some adjustment whereby the dairyman can realize upon more than a very small fraction of his output.

BEEF INDUSTRY RETURNING.

Perhaps the last of the agricultural industries to get back to anything like pre-war normal is that of beef production. Prices have continued very low during the years since the war, and in California the dry seasons have contributed to the seriousness of the situation. Forced liquidation has reduced the herds until now there appears a likelihood of under-production and consequent better prices.

The trend of the market now is strong, and upward. Feed never has been better in the ranges, and in the central and northern parts of the state cattle will be held in the valleys later than usual. The moisture in the ground assures a good crop of dry feed when the cattle return in the fall. Apparently, the beef cattle industry is returning to normalcy, and the stockmen of the state bid fair this year, for the first time in many, to show an actual profit on operations.

FISTULA IN HORSES.

Contrary to a popular conception, fistula is not contagious in horses, but is caused by some injury to the withers. That it appears on a number of horses on one farm is due, usually, to the fact all are exposed to the cause, which may be a low barn door, a low-hanging branch of a tree in the pasture, or a stony lot in which the horses roll. Poor-fitting collars sometimes cause the trouble. The cure sometimes is found in bacterin treatment; but often surgical attention, followed by systematic local treatment, is necessary. Prevention is much easier than the cure, in this trouble.

ORCHARD FROST PROTECTION.

The frost danger season has passed, with little damage done. Heaters and smudge pots were freely used in some districts, and in others, where they were not, losses are reported. One of the greatest problems before the grower of annual crops that are susceptible to frost danger is the protection from that peril. The smudge pot has been found efficient to a great degree, the heater even more efficient, but both have their shortcomings.

In Napa County several firms interested in the sale of electrical equipment and in the distribution of electric current, are working with the agricultural extension service to see how economically electricity may be employed. This, if it can be worked out, would solve every problem, save that of cost of installation and operation. The heating plant could be put into action by the turn of a button or the reaction of a thermostat. There would be no soot nuisance or fuel problems. However, it is doubtful if the costs can be brought within a practical range.

Another suggestion is given by an orchardist who plans to install a large furnace with a powerful fan, and blow hot air through his irrigation pipes to the various parts of the orchard. Here comes another problem in economics that must be developed.

Del Norte Fair—The Del Norte County Agricultural Fair will be held at Crescent City, September 24, 25, 26, 27.

The yearly subscription rate of The Grizzly Bear is now $1.50. Better invest that small sum and know California.—Advt.

PLACER COUNTY PARLOR MAKES

150% MEMBERSHIP INCREASE.
ROSEVILLE—ROCKLIN 233 MADE A 150 percent membership gain May 6, when forty-three candidates, secured by Deputy Grand President Newman Cohn, were initiated by the ritual team of Sunset 26 (Sacramento) composed of: Myron E. Greer, president; H. R. Penner, senior past president; E. A. Kuechler, junior past president; C. E. Brye, first vice-president; E. O. Fulgham, second vice-president; R. L. Poston, third vice-president; H. R. Chalmers, marshal; A. H. Chris, inside sentinel; C. O. Tolmie, outside sentinel. The team made a second trip to Roseville May 13 and initiated several more candidates unable to attend the May 6 function.

Previous to the initiation the Sacramento Parlor's drum-corps led a parade headed by Mrs. Anna Bond, president La Rosa 191 N.D.G.W., and Deputy Grand President Cohn. Following came the local Native Daughters and Native Sons from Sacramento, Folsom, Auburn, Lincoln and Marysville, with the candidates bringing up the rear. Following the initiation D.D.G.P. John R. Strachan installed the officers of Roseville, Lucas Schaffer becoming president and Thomas R. Elliott recording secretary.

At the ceremonies' conclusion all adjourned to the banquet-room, where a splendid repast was served and enthusiastic addresses were listened to. J. W. Hines was the toastmaster, and among the speakers were Past Grand President Fred H. Greeley, Assemblyman Percy G. West, Deputy Grand President Cohn, President Schaffer and Joseph L. Velosquez, the latter speaking for the initiates.

Flagpole Presented County.

San Diego—San Diego 108 proved itself an ideal host May 3 when, at El Monte Grove, one of the breathing spots in San Diego County provided by the Board of Supervisors, it served a barbecue, prepared by Jimmy Murphy and John Fruschnicht, to 1,500 guests. The occasion was the presentation to the county by the Parlor of a flagpole from which the American and State (Bear) Flags will in future fly.

Albert V. Mayrhofer, as master of ceremonies, introduced as the chief speaker Fred Heilbron, who recalled how the forty-niners, after their week's work in the mines, gathered in camps and towns on Sunday for pleasure, and said: "Today we Native Sons and Daughters of the Golden West dedicate this flagpole, made of California pine, by raising upon it the flag of our country and the Bear Flag of the republic of California." Edward H. Dowell called attention to the state's diamond jubilee being celebrated this year, President Wilbur Kelley spoke of the proposed Cabrillo monument at Point Loma, and Secretary Dan Shaffer told of the work of the Order of Native Sons. Representing San Diego 208 N.D.G.W., Trustee Edith De Voe raised the American and State (Bear) Flags while the assemblage, led by the schoolchildren, sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

High School Dedicated.

Daly City—May 3 grand officers of the Order of Native Sons dedicated the Jefferson Union high-school, located in San Mateo County, between Colma and Daly City. The auditorium was crowded to overflowing by those anxious to witness the ceremonies, which were conducted by Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Junior Past Grand President William J. Hayes, Grand Trustee James A. Wilson, Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge and Grand Secretary John T. Regan. Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler delivered the dedicatory address, and Grand President Lynch spoke on the development of the study of and research work in California history. Other speakers included State Superintendent of Public Instruction Will C. Wood, Superintendent of San Mateo County Schools McLeod and Sue J. Irwin, Grand Vice-president of the Native Daughters who, on behalf of El Carmelo 181 N.D.G.W. and El Carmelo 256 N.S.G.W., presented the school with silk American and State (Bear) Flags. Interspersing the addresses were musical numbers.

Cabrillo Revived.

Ventura—Through the efforts of Grand Trustee John T. Newell and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, Cabrillo 114, which had long been on the inactive list, was completely revived May 1. In attendance was a big delegation from Los Angeles 45. Adolfo Camarillo was selected to represent the Parlor at the San Bernardino Grand Parlor.

May 31 a large class of candidates will be initiated for the Parlor, and an immense attendance of grand officers and representatives from all the southern Parlors is anticipated. The ceremonies will be conducted at Seaside Park, and will be followed by a barbecue in charge of Fred Hartman.

Door Prizes to Stimulate Attendance.

Sacramento Business is good with Sutter Fort 211. The boys are taking a lively interest in the work of the Parlor and of the Order in general, and a noticeable increase in attendance has been shown. To stimulate attendance an arrangement has been made whereby attractive door prizes will be distributed at each regular meeting. May 6 a large number of the members journeyed to Roseville to attend the class initiation and entertainment staged by Rocklin 233.

During the week of May 18 the Sacramento high school presented for the benefit of the students a number of special programs covering the various periods of early California history. The programs were staged during the noon hour, different periods of history being taken up on each occasion. The entire series was planned as a forerunner of and in preparation for a proper observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the admission of California into the union, which is being planned for the early part of September. By invitation of Principal Dale, Sutter Fort was represented at each of the daily programs by members of the Parlor. May 27 the monthly class initiation was held with the regular officers of the Parlor putting on the work in first-class manner. Following the initiation the Parlor was left to the "tender mercies" of the entertainment committee, under the direction of D. L. Durst.

To Visit Home County.

Sonora Plans are being perfected under the direction of County Clerk Ed L. Gorgas for a big gathering June 20, when several candidates will be initiated for Tuolumne 144 and Columbia 258.

Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, who was born in Tuolumne County, will be among the grand officers in attendance, and there will be large delegations from Modesto, Merced, Oakdale and Stockton.

"Bear River" Goes to Sacramento.

Petaluma—To Sacramento 3 has been delivered the oil painting "Bear River," disposed of by Petaluma 27 for the purpose of raising funds with which to make needed improvements at the historic Vallejo adobe, the property of the Parlor.

The Parlor accepted the invitation of Petaluma 222 N.D.G.W. to attend its third institution anniversary celebration. Plans are under way for participating in the San Francisco Admission Day celebration.

Visitors Exemplify Ritual.

San Rafael—The officers of Mission 38 (San Francisco) initiated a big class of candidates for Mount Tamalpais 64, April 20, and were highly commended for the brilliant manner in which they conducted the ceremonies. Parlors represented at the gathering included Pacific 10, Rincon 72, National 118 and James Lick 242 of San Francisco, and Nicasio 183.

After the meeting a delicious repast was served. Addresses were made by Grand Trustee Alfred H. McKnew, who expressed approbation of such fraternal gatherings; Albert Wheelan, who described the glories of the California missions; Sidney Bernstein, who lauded the organization work of Newman Cohn, a member of Mount Tamalpais, who received an ovation, and dwelt on the homeless children work. "Hen" Nickels rendered several vocal selections. In the near future Mission will entertain Mount Tamalpais in San Francisco.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

San Francisco—Grand Secretary John T. Regan reports the standing of the Subordinate Parlors having a membership of over 400 May 20 as follows, together with their membership figures January 1 1925:

| Parlor                  | Jan. 1 | May 20 | Gain | Loss |

MERCHANT MARINE MUST BE MAINTAINED AT ANY COST

W. B. SHEARER OF PHILADELPHIA, who is attempting to arouse public interest in the necessity for adequate national defense and whose statements of facts have been extensively quoted in previous issues of The Grizzly Bear, addressed the Grand Parlor of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West at San Bernardino, May 13. He said, in part:

"Official Washington and the American public seem to be confused as to what is necessary for national defense. We are the only nation that will not agree on military and naval values. The fault lies in the lack of a defense policy. The reason for the lack of a policy is political interference without regard to an adequate national defense.

"This fault can only be remedied by permitting the officers of the army and the navy to state the true conditions of both services. If political leaders will not accept the authentic military and naval advice based on merit of facts, then the great danger of the officers losing their initiative is certain. With that gone, we cannot remain a first-class power.

"Certain political pressure, pacifist propaganda, foreign and local lobbies, advocating disarmament, are dangers. We must be practical and realize that if every type of warship of every power was scrapped, the merchant marine would rule the seas. You cannot scrap the merchant marine. That hauls the commerce of the world. The merchant marine, armed, simply means changing to a different type of fighting ship. Nations not participating in what they would consider a fair share of the world's commerce would build a ship to destroy the merchant ship. Then the race for naval supremacy would again commence, until we reached the most modern of capital ship of today."

"In this fight for national defense, it has been conducted on comparison, not malice. It has been necessary to expose and tell secrets to arouse the American people to a condition that must be met. Our navy must be maintained to the fullest point of efficiency. We must encourage the officers and men and make the navy's attractions such that every American will be proud of it. The same applies to our merchant marine. America must have, and maintain, a merchant marine, not only to participate in the world's commerce, but in the interest of peace and as an auxiliary to the navy. In time of war the navy and the merchant marine are one. America must guard and maintain her merchant marine at any cost."

"The trade of the world belongs to merchant ships. Merchant ships can only survive with a powerful navy behind them. The plan to weaken both seems to have succeeded. In our latest attempt to maintain a merchant marine under the American Flag, we uncover a situation that should be well considered. Certain railroads are accused of discriminating in favor of British and Japanese lines. If these charges are true, it is not in the best interests of the United States. The railroads that discriminate are un-American in their policy.

"The railroads should remember that the $8,900,000,000 of common stock which represents all the common stock value of all the railroads of this country, are permitted to operate under an increase of 50% surtax on Pullman fares, over 50% on passenger fares and over 60% on freight rates; that, according to the Interstate Commerce Commission, that stock is owned by 777,000 stockholders which represents seven-tenths of 1% of our population; that 99 3/10% of our population are paying for the benefit of seven-tenths of 1% of our population through privileged legislation. In discriminating against American ships, the railroads are killing the American merchant marine, which is against the people and the best interests of the nation. The railroads must know that the repeal of the Esch-Cummings act is in the hands of the people.

"There are several British steamship lines which are acting with Soviet representatives to deliver to our shores undesirable and Soviet bolshevik representatives. The government is in possession of these facts and knows the system used to get around our immigration laws. If there is a plot against our merchant marine, a plot against our immigration laws, then it is about time American interests get behind a constructive plan to keep the American Flag on the seas."

"Another piece of information comes from Berlin from a reliable source. Alleged secret clauses of the Russo-Japanese treaty signed at Peking in January 1925, provide that in case of English, American or French menace to China, Russia would put 200,000 men at China's disposal; that Japan should get all Saghalien in five years for giving Russia a fleet of cruisers, submarines, etc., and that China's army should be instructed exclusively by Russian and Japanese officers and should purchase its war materials from those two countries.

"While with us, things are quite different. The alleged paid agent of Mitsui & Co., Japanese bankers, tampers with the exclusion law. These puppets, with the smell of Benedict Arnold, would sacrifice our future nationalization. In breaking down our immigration law, they foster the Bolshevik plots against our institutions and help the Japanese menace against our institutions, government and race. They are traitors to every inheritance.

"If international situations warrant placing the United States Navy on the Pacific, those same situations are justifications for a naval base to answer the demands of our entire navy in every respect. Is naval strategy based on the residential locations of senators and congressmen, or on the location of the fleet? The East coast of the United States has sixteen naval establishments. The West has three, and not one naval base.

"Our policy to date has been to build and maintain naval bases on the East coast but keep the fleet on the West coast. To maintain that idiotic policy, a few Western politicians are helping to block a naval base on the Pacific. In any other country, a board would act on their sanity. Why should any part of the United States be favored in national defense?"

"Admiral Robert S. Coontz stated at San Francisco, before leaving for Hawaii, our urgent need on the Pacific Coast is a naval base in San Francisco Bay. Admiral S. S. Robison, commander of the battle fleet, stated that if we are not prepared to build and maintain, we had better quit. I wish to add, build without delay an adequate air force, keep and maintain an American merchant marine under the American Flag. Keep your army and navy up to the highest standards; be careful that nothing is done to discourage the personnel further. National honor is the only shield to the immortality of a nation!

"I want to go on record as stating the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is the first patriotic body that has fearlessly placed service before self. Its national honor is an example to the rest of the nation, to hold California for the White race."

CAMPAIGN INAUGURATED TO #### DECREASE AUTOS' DEATH TOLL.

Plans for a statewide safety campaign, having as its objective the further reduction in the death rate from auto accidents, have been announced by Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles. A preliminary step will be the organization of a safety department within the division in charge of a responsible head where information concerning accidents will be gathered and tabulated and a check kept of points in the state where fatalities are most frequent.

Simultaneously, a drive will be conducted throughout the state for the purpose of organizing safety councils and clubs in every town composed of motorists who have pledged themselves to drive carefully. Schools of the state will be asked to assist. During the same period traffic officers will conduct a strenuous campaign against violators of the law against glaring or illegal headlights.

An extension of sign posting at dangerous points along the highways will be sought, and surveys will be made to determine where danger points are located. Causes of accidents will be traced and efforts made to remove them.

In a bulletin issued to the automobile clubs Marsh points out that concerted action on the part of those interested in safety was responsible last year for a sharp decrease in the death toll. He added that a further reduction can be accomplished this year.

Auto Registrations—Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, announced May 13 the auto registrations for 1925 had reached 1,250,119. Last year's total registration was 1,350,759. The difference between the two totals is represented by cars that have been scrapped or by those not driven since January 31. Net receipts to May 13 amounted to $6,316,457, as compared with $7,011,112.63 for last year. This money is used for highway purposes by the state and counties.

To License Light Adjusters—To weed out incompetents, Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles, declares that all adjusters of motor vehicle headlights operating at the 1,500 official testing stations located throughout the state will be required to secure a license from the division before they will be permitted to adjust lights. The plan is preliminary to another statewide campaign by traffic officers against glaring headlights, which are responsible for numerous accidents.

Guard California's forests as you would your home. They are yours. Help protect them from the ravages of fire.

NEWEST PUBLIC SCHOOL INNOVATION

LOS ANGELES HAS SO MANY OF THE "greatest" or "best" things that it is difficult to enumerate them all, and because of that some of the important things are frequently overlooked. For instance, probably few people realize that Los Angeles has the largest high-school in the United States. Polytechnic evening high-school has an enrollment of over 8,100 students—larger than any other educational institution in the state, except the University of California at Berkeley.

Its size is not the only remarkable thing about that school. It is renowned for its advanced educational policies, having on more than one occasion sponsored some new educational department. The newest and most outstanding innovation is the professional law department. This was organized a year ago, with eighteen students. It now has an enrollment of 110, which is steadily increasing. It started with one instructor, and now has five. At the beginning of each new semester the enrollment about doubles.

During the present semester, the first three semesters' work of a four-year course in law is being given. At the beginning of each new term at least one new semester's work will be added until the course is complete. The same subjects will be given as are taught in all of the more important law schools of the country. A combination of the "case" and "text and case" methods is used.

Enrollment for the summer session will begin June 15. The fall semester will open September 8. All of the courses now being given and those to be given in the summer will be repeated, and in addition there will be offered other subjects. Plans are being made to add ten instructors to the faculty in September.

Nothing of this kind has ever before been attempted in the United States. It means that the public-school system is offering to young men and women of the city an opportunity to learn a profession in the public-schools. There is no tuition fee. The only expense is for textbooks. It is bringing education down to its most democratic state. Classes are held from 7 to 9 o'clock every evening.

The students have perfected a student-body organization under the name "Professional Law Association of Polytechnic Evening High School." A. L. Barker is president, J. H. R. Perkins vice-president, Miss Kuhne Jantzen secretary and Miss Josephine Forsman treasurer. Full particulars regarding this course may be obtained at room 205, Polytechnic high-school, between 7 and 9 o'clock in the evenings.

PROVE YOUR AMERICANISM.

The city election will be held Tuesday, June 2. Prove that you are a worth-while American citizen by voting. Among the Native Son candidates for the city council are: C. E. Downs, tenth district; M. A. Pierce, tenth district; Joseph F. Fitzpatrick, thirteenth district; James H. Dodson Jr., fifteenth district.

On the June ballot, too, will appear the following propositions: No. 1, $8,000,000 water bonds; No. 2, $2,000,000 Colorado River aqueduct bonds; No. 3, $500,000 branch library bonds; No. 4, $500,000 bridge and viaduct bonds; No. 5, $350,000 pedestrian tunnel bonds; No. 6, jitney bus amendment; No. 7, straw vote on metropolitan water district.

ROUSING WELCOME.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. had a rousing meeting May 21, when its treasurer, John T. Newell, re-elected Grand Trustee at the San Bernardino Grand Parlor, was welcomed home. It was also "old timers" night, and there was a big attendance, including visitors from northern parlors.

Sid Witkowski presided at the social session. Between several vaudeville acts, addresses were made complimentary to Los Angeles Parlor and Grand Trustee Newell by Past Grand President William J. Hayes, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Finance Committeeman Gus Gerhard, Henry Smith of Mission 38 (San Francisco), Fred H. Nickelson, John J. Ryan and Fred A. Schuler of South San Francisco 157. Refreshments were served under the supervision of a committee headed by "old faithful," Al Cron.

Earl Lemoine featured a boxing fest May 23 which was largely attended and greatly enjoyed. The Parlor's good of the order committee is outlining an attractive program of entertainment events for the "summer" months.

ANNIVERSARY BARBECUE.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. initiated several candidates during May, bringing its membership to the 1,265 mark. The high jinks of May 9, put on by the good of the order committee, "Bill" Coffey chairman, was attended by many delegates from the north enroute to the San Bernardino Grand Parlor.

Officers of the Parlor for the ensuing term will be elected June 5. On the 12th the Parlor's thirty-eighth institution anniversary will be celebrated at a barbecue at Sepulveda Park, White's Point, just out of San Pedro. The committee in charge is Walter Slosson (chairman), Charles Russell, Glen Packer, Dwight Crittenden, Irving Baxter. Sevastian Ochoa will look after the barbecuing. Another class of candidates will be initiated June 19.

MOCK TRIAL, JUNE 18.

Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. will elect officers June 2. A committee consisting of Henry Bodkin, Joseph Sproul, Peter Muller, Cy Casner, Harry Jorder and Wayne Jordan has been put in charge of the entertainment for June 18, when a mock trial is scheduled to be pulled off. During alterations to its meeting-place the Parlor will recess during July and the early part of August.

Corona will hold its annual picnic at the Riley ranch July 12. All Natives are invited to participate. Those who were on hand last year, at the same place, know what an enjoyable event the outing proved to be. "This year's," John Topham says, "will surpass it in every particular," so make plans now to be there.

MOVES TO NEW QUARTERS.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. initiated a class of six candidates May 1. A committee attended the tree-planting ceremonies at Hollywood Bowl May 2. Commencing June 3 the Parlor will meet the first and third Wednesdays of each month at Foresters' Hall, Tenth and Olive streets.

The bazar and dance May 29 was well attended and proved a great success. Mrs. Grace T. Haven was chairman of the general committee in charge. May 22 the Parlor celebrated the birthdays of the April and May "girls" at a songfest. The occasion was most enjoyable and refreshments were served. Kathryn Roman was chairman of the song committee and Jennie D. Raymond of the birthdays. Gertrude Allen, Florence Peters, H. Adele White have been appointed a committee to arrange for Los Angeles' visit at "La Golandrina" at San Gabriel. Twenty-two members made up the party from the Parlor which paid a fraternal visit May 8 to Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 at San Pedro.

VOTE FOR BRANCH LIBRARIES.

"Approval of the proposed $500,000 bond issue for construction of branch libraries will be an epochal event in the development of the Los Angeles Public Library," says Librarian Everett R. Perry. "It will mean neighborhood library service for many districts that now have no adequate library facilities. We can boast then of having a city-wide library service. Also, we can have the satisfaction of knowing that Los Angeles stands second to none in promotion of the modern idea that schools and libraries alike are indispensable to our American plan of education.

"Proposition No. 3 on the June 2 ballot needs the voters' support. Our appreciation of the whole-souled and invaluable aid heretofore given is evidenced by the fact that we ask them to help us put over this bond issue. No more money will be asked for completion of the central library building. Accordingly, our building program now is concerned solely with giving adequate library service to every section of our widespread metropolitan area.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

"The library is a popular institution. Notwithstanding that, we need aid to arouse indifferent voters and to appeal to the unknown. With that aid we can accomplish our purpose, of taking the library to the people. Particular attention is directed to the educational work of the library, and to its value as an adjunct to the work of the public schools. We must have more branch libraries. With the voters' aid, we will have them, and provide public education for everybody in Los Angeles."

THE DEATH RECORD.

Bradner W. Lee, father of Bradner W. Jr. and Kenyon F. Lee (Ramona N.S.), died April 28, aged nearly 75. He was favorably known in legal and civic circles.

Mrs. Wilhelmina Muller, mother of Walter Muller (Ramona N.S.), passed away April 28, at the age of 61.

Mrs. Tefolio Cota, mother of Alex. and Benard Cota (Ramona N.S.), passed away May 1, at the age of 63.

John Otto Furrer, affiliated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., died May 4. He was a native of Los Angeles City, aged nearly 39. Among the surviving relatives are Herman and Ernest Furrer (Ramona N.S.), brothers.

Peter McGann, affiliated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., died May 12. He was born at Swansea, Inyo County, March 23, 1872.

Frank Edward Dominguez, affiliated with Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., died May 24. He was born in this city May 11, 1876.

"LOS ANGELES' OWN."

The One Hundred and Sixtieth Infantry, adopted by the city's officials as "Los Angeles' Own," goes to camp from July 3 to July 19, inclusive, for its annual two weeks' field training under selected officers of the Regular Army. This regiment is fully organized and equipped and instantly available in case of local catastrophe or national emergency.

These young men are insuring the integrity of you, your home and your business interests. Encourage them. If any are in your employ give them two weeks of vacation between July 3 and July 19. Many private and public institutions are now giving to employees engaged in this work two weeks of vacation, plus their regular vacation, with pay.

Your regiment encourages good citizenship; it fosters public service from high motives; it brings more than $250,000 annually to this community through federal and state appropriations, and is instantly available to protect your constitutional rights.

PERSONAL MENTION.

William G. Newell (Los Angeles N.S.) was a visitor last month to San Francisco.

Ed. F. Cohn (Sacramento N.S.), now residing in San Francisco, was a visitor last month.

John W. Maltman (Ramona N.S.) and family departed May 7 on an extended tour of Europe.

At the May primary Boyle Workman (Ramona N.S.) was elected to the city council from the fourth district.

Arthur W. Kennedy (Ramona N.S.) departed last month for Atlantic City to attend the Supreme Council of the Royal Arcanum.

Juan de la Guerra (Ramona N.S.), descendant of one of the state's earliest settlers, celebrated his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary May 23.

Natives recently arrived at the following homes: Carl Albrecht, Dr. William P. McNamara, Walter F. Keen and William H. Maxwell (all Ramona N.S.).

William W. Winn (Sacramento N.S.) has again taken up his residence here, having arrived early in May from Portland, Oregon. "Bill" is a grandson of General A. M. Winn, Founder of the Order of Native Sons.

John T. Regan (South San Francisco N.S.) of San Francisco, Grand Secretary N.S.G.W., and Mrs. Regan (Genevieve N.D.) were among last month's visitors, as was also Charles L. McEnerny (James Lick N.S.) of San Francisco.

PROMINENT TUOLUMNE COUNTY

NATIVE SON PASSES TO REWARD.

Sonora (Tuolumne County)—Senator John B. Curtin, familiarly known as "Constitutional John" and one of the best known men in legal and legislative circles of the state, died May 13, survived by a wife. He was a native of Gold Springs, Tuolumne County, aged 58, and had long been affiliated with Tuolumne Parlor No. 144 N.S.G.W. of Sonora.

Curtin first came into prominence as district attorney of Tuolumne County. In 1898 he was elected to the State Senate and was a member of the Legislature for sixteen years. He was recognized as an authority on constitutional law.

"LET'S KNOW SOME TREES."

Charles H. Shinn, veteran newspaper man and conservationist, did many unselfish acts of public service during his long years of work in the United States Forest Service. But there is none which will more endure him to the people of California, and help to keep alive the memory of his valiant fight for the preservation of our forest and mountain wonderlands, than his last public effort, the preparation of a little booklet telling, in simple language, the story of California's trees.

"Let's Know Some Trees" was written by Shinn at the suggestion of the editor of one of the larger country papers of California. It contains simple descriptions of seventy California tree species, set forth in language that even children can understand. Thirteen illustrations add to the interest of the booklet, which has been published by the United States Department of Agriculture as Miscellaneous Circular No. 31.

It was Charles Shinn's wish that every Californian who loves trees and mountains and the great outdoors might have a personal copy of this little publication, and the United States Forest Service, Ferry Building, San Francisco, announces that free copies may now be secured on request.

HARBOR DISTRICT HISTORY DATES BACK MANY YEARS

SAN PEDRO IS A PART OF THE CITY OF Los Angeles, located twenty-four miles south of the center thereof, at the southernmost extremity of the County of Los Angeles, on the Bay of San Pedro, which is five miles in length, two and a quarter miles in extreme width to the breakwater, and in area is approximately ten square miles.

San Pedro's history dates from the discovery of this harbor in 1542 by the Spanish navigator, Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, to whose memory the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is to erect an imposing monument at Point Loma, near San Diego. For 382 years San Pedro has been a port of call for vessels of all kinds, and has developed into one of the world's greatest seaports.

SAN BERNARDINO INVADED.

Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. members, along with many other San Pedrans, made a peaceful invasion of San Bernardino, where the Native Sons' Grand Parlor was in session, May 13, as the opening charge of a campaign to secure the 1927 Grand Parlor meeting for San Pedro. The Chamber of Commerce and other civic organizations joined in the drive, and to instill enthusiasm the Fort MacArthur band accompanied. After marching through the Grand Parlor meeting-place, the invaders paraded San Bernardino's streets, and made a great hit.

At the meeting of Sepulveda May 7, another class of candidates were initiated, the following officers of Long Beach Parlor No. 239, assisted by President Ronald M. Ross of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, exemplifying the ritual: Harold Leedom, president; Percy Hight, junior past president; C. E. Crowell, senior past president; W. B. Schweizer, first vice-president; Elmer L. Hann, second vice-president; J. A. M. Schlemmer, third vice-president; Ray J. Poque, marshal; E. C. Crowell, inside sentinel. Sid Witkowski (Los Angeles 45) presided at the piano during the evening.

There was a program of enthusiastic, and also humorous, addresses, President James H. Dodson Jr. calling on the visitors, who represented several Parlors. Among those who responded were Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, Edgar McFadyen (Long Beach 239), President Ross (Los Angeles 45), John Cadogan (Sacramento 3). At the meeting's close refreshments were served.

At the May primary, James H. Dodson Jr., president Sepulveda Parlor, won a place on the June ballot as a candidate for the Los Angeles City Council from the fifteenth (harbor) district, receiving a flattering vote.

RUDECINDA WAS THERE.

Although organized but a short while ago, Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. will be represented at the Grand Parlor at Placerville, El Dorado County, this month by four delegates.

Ten candidates were initiated for the Parlor May 8 by the officers of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. Short talks were made by Annie L. Adair, secretary of the Los Angeles County Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Homeless Children Committee, and Miss Marvel Thomas, president Los Angeles Parlor. Refreshments were served by a committee composed of Katherine Dodson (chairman), Charlotte Sandstrom, Myrtle Herzberg, Madeline Boone, Mary Warren, Mary Halverson, Viva Foot. Among the visitors was D.D.G.P. Carrie Lenhouse. Rudecinda's adopted seal is a design of Deadman's Island, with the surrounding "Bay of Smokes."

The Parlor voted to join Harbor City Post G. A. R. in the observance of Memorial Day, May 30, and named the following committee to co-operate with Commander William Savage: Mary Bailey, Charlotte Bennett, Victoria Adler.

The first Rudecinda baby recently arrived at the home of Ida May Porter Gelnette.

Rudecinda was represented at San Bernardino in the May 13 "San Pedro 1927" parade during the Native Sons' Grand Parlor by Recording Secretary Charlotte K. Bennett, whose car bore banners carrying the endorsement of the Parlor.

PLACES OF INTEREST VISITED.

The May 9 meeting of the Historical Society of Southern California, Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt president, was the most interesting of the year.

Through the courtesy of Thomas F. Keaveny of the harbor department it was devoted to a tour of the historic sites of Wilmington and the Los Angeles harbor district. Many places of interest were visited, and a tour of the harbor was made by launch.

CALIFORNIA'S DIAMOND JUBILEE

SAN FRANCISCO—CALIFORNIA'S Diamond Jubilee Citizens' Committee wants the poets of California to sing the celebration of the state's seventy-fifth anniversary in metre and verse.

For the poem deemed the best expression of the history and romance of California, the citizens' committee will award a diamond-studded medal. The fame of its author will be established, or added to, during San Francisco's jubilee celebration in September, when hundreds of thousands will read the poem.

The poem should picture the romantic history, lure and beauty of the state. An appropriate committee will be named to pass upon its excellency. The successful poet, man or woman, will be presented with a specially inscribed gold medal, diamond studded. The length of the poem is left to the poet. All poems must be in the hands of the citizens' committee by August 10. They should be sent to diamond jubilee headquarters, room 1032 Merchants Exchange Building.

California has inspired many great poets, from Ina Coolbrith and Joaquin Miller in the early days of the state to George Sterling and Edwin Markham. The list of famous poets, storytellers and painters produced by the state in the last seventy-five years is a long one. A new name may be added to the list by the diamond jubilee poem contest. The citizens' committee wants to blazon that name to the world and to fame.

It is planned to make San Francisco a blaze of yellow, red and green during the week of celebration. During the summer the wearing of boutonnieres of the festival colors will be advocated throughout the state. Arrangements have been made to have the colors adopted as a background in store-window decoration. Railroads, steamship companies, hotels and all agencies in contact with visitors and travel to California will use the colors in a variety of ways to publicize San Francisco's impressive celebration of California's seventy-fifth birthday.

REJECTION TREATIES

items contained in his statement of June 27, 1922. Certain of the claimants had cut down the amount of supplies they had contracted to provide. Others preferred to receive their property back rather than be uncertain creditors of the United States. The final total due his creditors was $394,194.80.

On his arrival in California, Superintendent Beale carried on a sort of investigation with very indefinite results. It was quite clear from this, however, that there was fraud on a large scale connected with the sale and delivery of cattle. Wozencraft himself, in the case of the contract made with S. Norris, whose claim was $101,998, admitted to Beale that he had no proof that the cattle charged for were issued to the Indians, and that in other cases he was ignorant of what transactions actually took place in the matter of delivery. Beale did not doubt but that huge frauds had been perpetrated. The evidence collected by him was transmitted to W. K. Sebastian, chairman of the senate committee on Indian affairs, by Secretary Stuart on March 3, 1853.

TRIM HOG'S HOOFS.

Why is it that so many hog-raisers fail to realize the need of trimming the hoofs of heavy brood sows and herd boars? Many know that it should be done, but do not put their knowledge into practice. Bad feet and broken down pasterns are the certain penalty of such carelessness or thoughtlessness. Most hog-breeders that raise valuable animals for show or sale are very careful to attend to this important detail, however.

This is the way to do it, easily: When only a few animals are kept, take one hog at a time, throw it on its side and hold in this position while the trimming is being done. Trim the bearing surface of the wall with nippers and rasp from the toe to a point one-half way back from the heel, but on the outside only. Never trim the inside, for if the outside touches the ground first the toes will spread apart and prevent proper shaping of the foot.

It is important to trim the toes well, even to the point of making them bleed slightly in order to permit the pasterns to straighten up to the normal angle. If excessive bleeding follows trimming, saturate the hoofs with a five-percent solution of any good coal tar disinfectant or paint with iodine after bleeding stops.

When a large number of hogs are to be treated, it is less work if a breeding crate is employed instead of throwing each animal. Take the bottom out of the crate, nail a piece of 2x4 longitudinally in the middle from sill to sill so that the hog's legs will straddle it. Rig up a strong rope and block and tackle. Drive a hog into the crate, then raise the crate with the tackle to a height that will permit the operator to work comfortably sitting down under the crate. The hog will not mind being up in the air after the novelty of the first minute or so has worn off. The operator may then proceed with his trimming in comfort.

CITY CONTROLLER

With wide indorsement of prominent men and women of various civic and other organizations, Councilman W. C. Mushet on June 2nd will submit to the voters his candidacy for the office of City Controller of Los Angeles.

Mr. Mushet has had a long public record as an expert certified accountant, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the City Council, and has experience thoroughly qualifies him for the office.

"Although I believe the question of ability is the only one pertinent to the discussion of qualification to fill the office of City Controller, I shall out of deference to the thousands of voters who have the erroneous belief that I am against municipal ownership in general the Bureau of Power and Light in particular, emphasize that I am and always have been in favor of municipal ownership under proper business conditions," says Mr. Mushet.

My sole criticism of the Bureau of Power and Light has been with the respect to its "cost accounting." This has been instilled in my mind, by the fact that the Water Bureau has adopted one theory of depreciation and the Bureau of Power and Light another. Such men as Mr. Mulholland, Mr. Koser, City Manager of Pasadena, Arthur Lowe Dickenson, the head of Price, Witterhouse Company, and many others adopt the theory of depreciation of the Water Bureau in figuring costs."

GRIZZLY GROWLS

WHY?

ANOTHER LOOPHOLE THROUGH which the pesky Japs have secured unlawful possession of and illegal title to vast quantities of rich California agricultural land was plugged, so far as the courts are concerned, when the United States Supreme Court May 11 declared constitutional section nine of the California Alien Land Law.

Section nine, among other things, provides against deeding land to the American-born children of aliens ineligible to citizenship with a view to evading the law which prohibits ineligible-to-citizenship aliens from owning or leasing, directly or indirectly, agricultural lands.

The case at bar was on appeal from Sonoma County, where a Jap, S. Ikada, and his attorney, W. A. Cockrill, were convicted of attempting to evade the law, and whose convictions were upheld by the California courts. Ikada put up the money to buy the land and, to beat the law, Cockrill purchased it in trust for the Jap's American-born children, the ineligible-to-citizenship Jap, of course, farming the land and benefiting thereby.

Incidentally, Cockrill was disbarred from the practice of law in California, and there are numerous other attorneys in this state who should be likewise dealt with. They are responsible for much of the success that has attended the Japs' "peaceful invasion" of the state.

Whether Ikada still holds the land involved in this decision we are not informed, but in all probability he does, and will continue to do so. Japs in California are in possession of numerous parcels of land, obtained either by direct violation or indirect evasion of the Alien Land Law. The law provides that, in case of conviction for violation or evasion of the law, the land involved shall be escheated to the state. In not one single instance, however, has the escheat penalty been exacted. Why? Ask the attorney-general of the state and the district-attorneys of the several counties in which the Japs have "gotten by" with their land-law deft.

The Japs care nothing about the law; what they want is the land, and they are not concerned as to whether it is obtained within or without the law. The authorities devote all their efforts to court decisions, but appear little interested in recovering the land. That policy, on the part of the authorities, can be carried on until doomsday—the Japs should worry!—and the Jap menace will be neither solved nor lessened.

There is but one thing to do to procure desired results—make every effort to have escheated to California every foot of California land to which the Japs claim title. Take away from the Japs the soil to which they have no right, either in law or in equity, and the pests will depart. Permit them to retain it, and eventually California will pay the penalty for the neglect of duty on the part of the authorities and for the traitorous association with Japs of attorneys of the Cockrill type.

Hurrah for the Santa Barbara Post of the American Legion! It declined to attend Memorial Day exercises because Dr. Frederick J. Libby of Washington, D. C., had been invited to be the speaker by the Ministerial Union, to which had been delegated the authority by the G. A. R.

Libby is a propagandist for the pacifists who are banded together as the National Council for the Prevention of War. In the resolution declining to be a part of the doctor's audience, the Legion also requested the Federal Secretary of War to dismount all the guns from the naval vessels, "in order to pacify the pacifists."

The City of Placerville, El Dorado County, will be peacefully invaded June 15 by hundreds of Native Daughters of the Golden West, who will spend a week there in Grand Parlor session.

Placerville was originally designated Hangtown, and much of California's gold-days' history centers thereabouts. The pioneer spirit still prevails in the modern city, and the visitors are assured of that hospitable welcome which characterized old Hangtown of the days of '49.

Rear Admiral Bradley A. Fiske, retired, declared before the Foreign Policy Association of New York that, "In the dangerous situation which exists between the United States and Japan, Japan holds all the trumps."

And yet, with all the notes of warning that are being sounded by those who know whereof they speak, the citizen-pacifists continue to clamor, at the behest of alien-lobbyists and foreign-tricksters, for a further weakening of this country's war-hand.

John Steven McGroarty of Los Angeles, in an appeal to the Native Sons of the Golden West, in Grand Parlor assembled at San Bernardino last month, to save the missions, said that while the Order has been active in landmarks work it has done nothing toward the preservation of the missions.

Which is not a fact! On the contrary, the Order has spent thousands of dollars in an attempt to preserve various mission properties. Just recently, nearly $3,000, obtained from the Subordinate Parlors, was expended for needed repairs at San Fernando Mission.

The missions, the most revered of California's many historic landmarks, should be completely restored—by the state. A bond issue to acquire and restore all the mission properties would, we believe, meet with public favor and would solve the perplexing mission-preservation problem.

That the Japs here have their eyes and ears always open, for the benefit of their homeland, is evidenced by the following bit of information which comes to The Grizzly Bear from a reliable source:

During the Pacific fleet's recent battle practice off San Pedro, a Jap oil-tanker was close at hand, taking in the maneuvers. When the fleet departed for San Francisco, the Jap oil-tanker did likewise, in close proximity, and it also trailed the fleet to Hawaii.

The recent Legislature failed to provide the machinery necessary for the collection of the polltax, authorized by a constitutional amendment adopted at the 1924 general election by a goodly majority.

California's legislators, as a rule, give little heed to the expressed wishes of The People. If the Legislature met every quarter-century, instead of biennially, California would be greatly benefited, and perhaps then the citizens would

GOOD TIMBER

(DOUGLAS MALLOCH.)

The tree that never had to fight
For sun and sky and air and light,
That stood out in the open plain
And always got its share of rain,
Never became a forest king
But lived and died a scrubby thing.

The man who never had to toil
To Heaven from the common soil,
Who never had to win his share
Of sun and sky and light and air,
Never became a manly man
But lived and died as he began.

Good timber does not grow in ease;
The stronger wind, the tougher trees;
The farther sky, the greater length;
The more the storm, the more the strength;
By sun and cold, by rain and snows,
In tree or man, good timber grows.

Where thickest stands the forest growth,
We find the patriarchs of both;
And they hold converse with the stars
Whose broken branches show the scars
Of many winds and of much strife—
This is the common law of life.

receive, at the hands of the legislators, what they desire in the way of needed legislation.

Pierre Loti's "Madame Chrysantheme" deals to a large extent with the ways and manners of the Japs in their own country. The author sums up his opinion of these muchly-overestimated people thusly:

"At the moment of my departure (from Japan) I can only find within myself a smile of careless mockery for the swarming crowd of this iliputian, curtsying people; laborious, industrious, greedy of gain; tainted with a constitutional affectation, hereditary insignificance and incurable monkeyishness."

In a recent address at Sacramento, Dr. Lincoln L. Wirt, secretary of the western division of the National Council for the Prevention of War, said, "If we could get the people of the nations together, there would be no more war."

Everyone knows that. The trouble is with the "if." It being impossible to "get the people of the nations together," there will be more war. And, from our viewpoint, one is plainly discernible in the near future and the United States will have a very prominent part therein.

Every true American should digest this thought, expressed by Senator William E. Borah of Idaho, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, before the Izaak Walton League of America at Chicago, April 4:

"The philanthropy of the American people from the beginning of the government and especially of late years has no parallel in history.

"After all this we are still lectured day by day, and week after week, from abroad and at home, as to our duty to other nations. I take this opportunity to say that whatever we owe elsewhere, our first and highest obligation is here in America, our first concern is our own people. And it is high time we respond to the call of conditions at home.

"Who can recall at any time or in any country so many searching problems involving industrial welfare and national power as now confront our people?"

The "Los Angeles Herald" of May 11 said, editorially: "The history of California has by no means all been written. Much is still in the form of tradition and one of the valuable functions which the Native Sons have been performing is to sift this out and find the exact facts. A great deal has been done along this line, but there is plenty of room yet for research.

"The society should have the encouragement of every citizen, whether native born or not. It is fulfilling an important mission, which will be more generally recognized as the years go by."

a position at the gate, rested the gun on the fence, pointed it toward the door, and called for Rednall to come out. Rednall picked up a crowbar and advanced on Pyle who, with a determined look, ordered him to drop it, and he did so. Pyle then ordered Rednall to precede him, go to the bank and draw and pay him $200 or be shot. Fearing Pyle might shoot, he proceeded to do so. Lizzie Rednall, his daughter, followed. On the way she caught Pyle by the arm and turned him around. A moment later Rednall was on top of him, and then began a struggle for the rifle and command of the situation. The rifle was discharged in the melee and was dropped where the brave Lizzie could pick it up. This she did, and clubbed Pyle so hard she knocked all the fight out of him and broke the rifle in two.

BRILLIANT SOCIAL FUNCTION

FEATURED BY LARGEST PARLOR.

STOCKTON—THE ROSE WHIST AND dansant of Joaquin 5 April 23 was the largest attended and one of the most brilliant functions ever held here. To accommodate the whist players 207 tables were required. A typical spring garden abloom with pink roses formed the pretty setting, with shrubbery, roses and festoons occupying ceiling and wall spaces, and a huge basket of roses, ferns and hawthorne gracefully suspended from the center. The success of the party was due to the untiring efforts of the Parlor's jubilee booster committee: LaBelle Aldecoa (chairman), Mary Ricker, Lottie Boyd, Manuelita Aldecoa, President Marian Stormes, Edna Wollaston, Hazel Forward, Caroline Curnow, Gertrude Beck, Della White, Virginia Hill, Bertha Fishbacker, Lucy Mario, Anna Ruggles, Adele Camponoclio.

April 28 the Parlor enjoyed an indoor picnic. The hall had been transformed into a smooth lawn, fringed by rows of California poppies. Trees and shrubs further added to the outdoor effect and the scene was enhanced by overhead lights encased in lanterns. Box lunches were served on the grass. In charge of the affair was this committee: Mrs. LeRoy Porter (chairman), Hattie Kell, Genevieve McQuigg, Grace Bessac, Marjorie McIntosh, Lulu Schneider, Margaret Paxton, Camille Heinman, Delia Garvin, President Marian Stormes.

Joaquin, the largest Parlor in the Order and still climbing, celebrated its thirty-eighth institution anniversary April 14. The charter members present were Past Grand President Carrie Roesch-Durham, Mrs. Belle Stockwell, Miss Hannah Grey, Miss Clara A. Stier. President Marian Stormes opened the evening's program with remarks. The toyland motif was carried out in the appointments of the banquet which followed

Fourth Annual Luncheon.

San Jose—The fourth annual district luncheon of Santa Clara County Native Daughters May 2 was most successful. It was arranged by San Jose 81, Vendome 100, El Monte 205 and Palo Alto 229. D.D.G.P. Clara Briggs extended greetings and Past Grand President Mamie Pierce Carmichael was the toastmistress. There was a program of vocal and instrumental selections, and toasts were responded to by the following:

"Our Native Land," Miss Genevieve Harris, first vice-president San Jose; "California, a Generous Mother to All Her Children, Both by Birth and by Adoption," D.D.G.P. Eldora McCarty; "Fraternity," Miss Kimball; "Builders of Our State," Mrs. Schinhan; "Why Her Native Sons and Daughters Love California," Thomas Monahan, Past Grand President N.S.G.W.; "California's Diamond Jubilee," Judge Urban A. Sontheimer; "Our Flag," Mrs. Margaret Weber, president Vendome. At the conclusion of the luncheon an auto pilgrimage was made to Santa Clara and Stanford Universities.

Pioneer Mothers Entertained.

Quincy—Carrying out its annual custom, Plumas Pioneer 219 entertained at a Mothers' Day reception May 10. Amid a beautiful floral bower of choicest spring blossoms the guests greeted old acquaintances and made new friends. President Sarah Wilson extended the welcome and a delightful program was presented. Following this delicious refreshments were served to the seventy guests—Pioneer Mothers and Native Sons—and members. The invited guests unable to be present and also the Parlor's "shut-in" friends were remembered with dainty baskets of cake and candy topped with a white carnation, the symbol of Mothers' Day.

D.D.G.P. Louise Lee Stephens paid an official visit to the Parlor April 20. The ritual was exemplified by the officers, who were highly commended for their efficiency. In appreciation for faithful service Mrs. Stephens was presented with a beautiful gold bracelet. Refreshments were served at the meeting's close.

Anniversary Observed.

San Diego—San Diego 208 observed the tenth anniversary of its institution by entertaining the families of its members, and the members and families of San Diego 108 N.S.G.W. April 28.

A program was presented, followed by dancing and refreshments. The members whose birthdays came in April made up the committee of arrangements. Real California hospitality was extended.

"Darkies" Create Fun.

Placerville—Following the initiation of a candidate May 6, members of Marguerite 12 were entertained by Marian and Laura Bell in a pleasing manner. Josephine Perry and Emma McCumsey, dolled up as darkies, created a lot of fun. Jane McCusker and Nora Gray gave interesting readings. Refreshments were served.

Mothers Remembered.

Oakland—May 14 Piedmont 87 was hostess to the mothers of its members. A splendid program was followed by refreshments. Lovely gifts of handwork were presented the mothers, who appeared to have spent a delightful evening. Much credit is due Chairman Marion E. Ring and her splendid committee, made up of the May birthday committee and Gretta Murden, Alice Bertheaud, Harriet Emerson, Augusta Huxsol, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, President Edna Healey.

Piedmont intends to turn out in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco along with Piedmont 120 N.S.G.W. To raise funds to defray the necessary expense it is giving a series of successful whists.

Bazar Great Success.

Calistoga—Calistoga 145 gave a bazar April 25 which was a great success, financially and socially, due to the efforts of the members and the co-operation of the townspeople generally.

A booth, "it pays to advertise," was the outstanding feature, and practically every storekeeper was a liberal contributor. Booths for the disposal of flowers, fancy work, candy and foods were also provided. On an electric stove many delicacies were prepared, which were served at luncheon. In the evening a splendid program was presented. Callistoga is very proud of its success.

Red Letter Occasion.

Fort Bragg The initiation of a class of thirty-six candidates was a "red letter" occasion in the history of Fort Bragg 210. The candidates were received as a result of the efforts of three teams headed by Mrs. Grace Reynolds, Mrs. Mabel Royster and Mrs. Ruth Roberts. The ritual was efficiently exemplified by the Parlor's officers, headed by President Margaret Walsh and assisted by D.D.G.P. Grace Reynolds.

The Reynolds team won in the membership drive and so, as agreed, the losing teams entertained following the initiation. The banquet-room was beautifully decorated, and an appetizing menu was served. With Mrs. Ruth White at the piano, Mmes. Royster and Roberts entertained with vocal selections.

Old Timer Honor Guest.

Sierraville—Mrs. Mary Leichty, a resident of this place for twenty-nine years, was a recent guest of honor at a chicken dinner given by Imogen 134. Many of her old women friends were included among the guests. Those present were: Mmes. Mary Darling, Elizabeth Peterson, Emma Perry, Emma Nichols, Amy Blatchley,

MRS. MARY LEICHTY.

Elsie Leichty, Mary Leichty, Joy Nichols, Clara Miller, Mabel Werry, Olive Dubourdiou, Ella Webber, Helen Turner, Nonie Dearwater, Callie Banks, Jennie Copren; the Misses Tena, Bessie and Thelma Leichty, June Dubourdiou, Addie and Oneta Webber, Thelma and Myra Banks, Elizabeth Werry, Margaret Copren; Master Willie Copren, Frank Werry, Daniel and Ira Miller, W. J. Copren.

Grand President Visits.

San Jose—May 21 was a gala day for Vendome 100, the occasion being the official visit of Grand President Catherine E. Gloster. A dinner at 6:30 was largely attended. At 9 o'clock fourteen candidates were initiated, the hall being beautifully decorated. Refreshments were later served, and a program, directed by Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael, was presented. Every minute of the occasion was thoroughly enjoyed by the grand officers, past grands and representatives of many Parlor in attendance.

A series of "diamond card parties" are being sponsored by Vendome to finance its part in the Admission Day festivities and its various charity activities. The fourth party will be held June 4, when Mrs. John Corotto will be the general chairman. Miss Tillie Brohaska and Mrs. Clara Gairaud visited the Preventorium during May and took along an auto load of dolls, books, puzzles, games and candy for the tubercular children. They also visited the County Hospital, where magazines to cheer the patients in the isolation ward were left. The Parlor's Past Presidents' Club, after a two-year study of the California missions, is now considering the state's wild flowers, and the subject is proving very popular. Early in June the club will feature an evening picnic at the pioneer bungalow in Alum Rock Park.

Anniversary Observed.

Petaluma—Petaluma 222 celebrated the third anniversary of its institution May 19 with a dance and entertainment. All the Sonoma County Parlor of Native Sons and Native Daughters were represented among the many in attendance. Refreshments were served.

A birthday surprise was held for those members whose birthdays are in May—D.D.G.P. An-

JOHN R. TIPPETT.

To the Officers and Members of Plymouth Parlor No. 48 N.S.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions expressive of the sentiments of this Parlor on the death of our brother, John R. Tippett, submit the following: Whereas, in obedience to the decree of our Divine Father, Who ordereth all things for the best, our brother, John R. Tippett, has been transferred to the Heavenly Parlor on High, and whereas, we realize that, in his passing, our Order has lost a worthy member, our county a conscientious and capable officer and an upright citizen and his family a loving husband and father, therefore, be it

Resolved, That in evidence of our sorrow our charter be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days, and that in token of our sympathy for his bereaved family, a copy of these resolutions, under the seal of the Parlor, be sent to them; and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread in full upon the minutes of this Parlor and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear and the "Amador Ledger" for publication.

THOS. D. DAVIS,
GEO. L. CLARK,
O. E. HARRELL,

Committee.

Plymouth, May 20, 1925.

ETHEL HOOPER.

"There is no Death!
What seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian Whose portals we call Death."

The angel whose call none can gainsay has entered our portal and summoned to a life of greater usefulness and peace our beloved sister and friend, Ethel Hooper, and whereas, while bowing in submission to the Divine Will, we deeply deplore the loss of our sister whose kindly qualities of heart and mind endeared her to us and whose life of noble fortitude left an example for emulation, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her bereaved family, that our charter be draped in mourning, that a page of the records of Manzanita Parlor No. 29 N.S.G.W. be dedicated to her memory on which these resolutions be spread, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family and one sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine.

MAE FRASER,
MELITA HUTCHISON,
ANNE F. CONLIN,

Committee.

NATIVE DAUGHTER NEWS

derson, Sister Fiske, Genevieve Bettinelli, Eva Pedrotti—and each was presented with a useful gift. Dutch whist was played, and prizes donated by Mary Pedrotti and Eva Pedrotti were won by A. Wrobloff, Nellie Pometta and Josephine Reeher. Delicious refreshments were served and a delightful evening was spent.

New Regalias Presented.

Redwood City—Members of Redwood 66 N.S.G.W. were special guests of Bonita 10 at its anniversary dinner April 30, served by a committee headed by Mrs. Mary Junker. In attendance were Mmes. Mamie Glennan, Mary Murray, Lottie Heise, Emma Mengels and Sophie Offerman, charter members of Bonita, who were presented with tokens of esteem, and Herman W. Schaberg, John F. Johnson and William Plump, charter members Redwood Parlor. A musical program was presented, and during the evening Secretary A. S. Liguori of Redwood presented Bonita with a new set of officers' regalia.

Mothers' night was celebrated May 7 by Bonita, jointly with Redwood. Lewis F. Byington, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., delivered a splendid address on "Mother," and there was a program of solos, duets, recitations and sketches. Following refreshments cards and dancing were in order. To each mother and father was presented a carnation.

Regular Birthday Party.

Sutter Creek—Amapola 80 had a regular birthday party April 24, with candles, cake and everything. A banquet was served, after which one candidate was initiated. Many charter members were present, and also a delegation from Ursula 1 (Jackson), the mother Parlor. After the meeting a number of musical skits and plays were presented. It was truly a most happy party for all.

Grand Vice-president Candidate.

Tracy—The Grizzly Bear for May announced that Pearl Lamb, a member of El Pescadero 82, would be a candidate at the Placerville Grand Parlor in June for the office of Grand Marshal.

This was an error, as Mrs. Lamb is a candidate for the office of Grand Vice-president.

CHARTER N.D. MEMBER PASSES.

Menlo Park (San Mateo County)—Laura Foley, charter member of Menlo Parlor No. 211 N.D.G.W., passed away recently in San Francisco. Among the surviving relatives is a sister, Frances E. Maloney, recording secretary Menlo Parlor. Funeral services were conducted by the Parlor from deceased's home in Burlingame.

The yearly subscription rate of The Grizzly Bear is now $1.50. Better invest that small sum and know California.—Advt.

BOOK REVIEWS

(MARGERY BOYD.)

"THE INDESTRUCTIBLE UNION."

By William McDougall; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.50.

The ten chapters which compose the book, "The Indestructible Union," abound with national and international questions of the day. Such topics as, "The New Immigration," "The Theory of the Melting-Pot," "The Policy of Laissez-Faire," "The Negro Race and the Melting-Pot Theory," are impartially and studiously discussed from every angle.

McDougall is well known as an expositor on the subjects of eugenics and psychology. His understanding of the two make the author well able to deal with such a comprehensive study as the indestructible union and to present the problems that beset nationalism in an interpretative and elucidating light.

"THE ISLE OF DEAD SHIPS."

By Crittenden Marriot; J. B. Lippincott Company, Publishers, Philadelphia; Price, $2.00.

Imagine a great ocean liner, wrecked at sea, drifting in a current that is rapidly carrying it into the Sargasso Sea, a floating mass of seaweed, the ultimate rendezvous of all lost ships. On board are three survivors, a beautiful young girl, a detective and his prisoner, a lieutenant of the United States Navy, convicted of murder.

The story of the mysteries that these three encounter, together with the drama and romance of their enforced adventure, is a fascinating one. Exceptionally adapted for the camera, the motion pictures were not slow in converting it into a film that surprisingly loses nothing, but rather enhances it as an unusual and thrilling drama.

"ETHAN QUEST."

By Harry Hervey; Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

"One day when Ethan was ten he wandered down to the riverfront and into adventure." The glamour of that day cast its spell on Ethan. A splendid sailor had given him a gaudy strip of soft oriental cotton stuff, a sarong. Years slipped by. The sarong faded and its colors grew dim, but it was as though its life drained into Ethan's dreams, intensifying and quickening them, drugging him with their splendor. In a desperate attempt to realize these visions he severs himself ruthlessly from his former life and its obligation. Alone he begins the pilgrimage to the lands of his dreams.

Hervey writes straightforwardly, without the usual attempt of the novelist of an unusual book to intrigue the reader with melodrama. "Ethan Quest" is sombre in tone, poignantly sad. Splendid, colorful words and the several bits of beautiful description characterize the story as exceptional.

"SOUNDINGS."

By A. Hamilton Gibbs; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

John Farrar, editor of "The Bookman," says: "'Soundings' is a love story so deeply conceived, so ably executed, that it leaves the reader breathless. It is as striking from an emotional standpoint as anything I have read in years and beautifully written besides." Yet "Soundings" needs no recommendation. It is one of the rare books which can stand upon its own merit.

The story of Nancy Hawthorne and her artist father is written with great charm and sincerity. Reading it, one is not conscious of pages and chapters; rather, it is as if the reader, endowed with a cloak of invisibility, were allowed to "stand by," an absorbed and sympathetic spectator.

This is Gibbs' first serious novel. It is with great interest and anticipation that the next is awaited.

"NOT UNDER THE LAW."

It is Economy

... when you choose a reproducing piano to be satisfied with nothing short of perfection ... the Duo Art reproducing piano.

It truthfully and accurately reproduces the playing of the world's greatest pianists ... every accent—every pause ... just as they play.

And the Duo-Art in the Steinway, Weber, Steck or Stroud pianos is an investment in economy for there is no substitute for quality.

Law." While the diction and literary ability of Miss Hill is not of the same standard as that of Miss Porter, the gist of the two stories runs parallel. Both novels are intensely religious, and both extol the virtues of the sanctimonious girl.

The romance of the heroine, Joyce Radway, in "Not Under the Law," is an exemplary one. Having admitted that, further comment is unnecessary.

TIMBUCTOO LANDMARK RESTORED

SMARTSVILLE (YUBA COUNTY)—Under the auspices of the landmarks committee of Marysville Parlor No. 6 N.S.G.W. and Marysville Parlor No. 162 N.D.G.W., the restored historic Timbuctoo store was dedicated May 10 in the presence of 250 citizens of Yuba, Butte, Sutter and Nevada Counties. Miss Esther R. Sullivan, Grand Inside Sentinel N.D.G.W., presided, and in addition to a program of musical numbers there were several addresses.

Fred H. Greely, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., was the principal speaker, and related many interesting incidents connected with Timbuctoo, as he learned them from old Pioneers and from reading the history of the once-lively mining camp. He pointed out the location of the old hotels, theater, bakery and homes of the mining camp, all now a memory, with the old store, which housed the express office, the only building now left to guide any who knew the old camp. He referred reverently to Jonas Specht, Colusa County Pioneer, who was among the first to discover gold in Yuba County, almost contemporaneously with the discovery of the precious metal by Marshall at Coloma, El Dorado County. He said Timbuctoo derived its name from the fact that one of the first to mine in the rich diggings about the place was a Negro, who was supposed to have come all the way from Timbuctoo, Africa, to seek his fortune.

John Havey, pioneer resident of Smartsville, and one of those who dug for gold in the Timbuctoo diggings, gave a highly interesting talk on early-day methods of mining and the big-heartedness of the Argonauts who shared in his experiences.

LONG BEACH RECREATION

Squire F. DuRee

(SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC RECREATION.)

LONG BEACH IS, LIKE MANY OTHER cities, confronted with a problem of providing recreation for its industrial district, which is becoming more acute daily, for the time has come when recreation has become as essential to the community welfare as any other phase of industrial or commercial life.

It is recognized by all scientists and students of psychology that we cannot maintain and build up the morale of a community unless we provide for the leisure time of the people, adults as well as children. Long Beach is yearly becoming more active in providing good, wholesome amusement and recreational advantages.

The Recreation Department has charge of all demonstrations of a public nature, such as parades, special celebrations, Armistice Day, Carnival of States, Fourth of July and Christmas programs, and the decorating for same, and spends an average of over $170,000 per year for the entertainment of citizens and tourists.

A municipal band of fifty members plays two concerts daily, with the exception of Mondays, during the entire year, and is maintained at a cost of over $128,000 per year. This band is composed of the finest musicians to be had and is very popular in parades, special concerts, state picnics and radioland, arrangements having been made with the local broadcasting station to broadcast daily the afternoon concerts.

Long Beach's new Recreation Park, covering 400 acres, is under way for full development. At present it has a municipal 18-hole golf course, covering ninety acres of ground, with an average of 20,000 to 25,000 players per year, with a clubhouse where light refreshments can be had at all times, and where private parties and dances can be held. This park also has free picnic grounds, a new field developed for soccer, lacrosse and football, which is in constant use by various organizations and clubs; also a new league ball ground and grandstand, with seating capacity of 1,200, at an approximate cost of $32,000.

A municipal camping ground is also provided in Recreation Park, with privileges of running water, shower baths, electric lights, gas plates, etc., and with a custodian in charge to keep perfect order and harmony.

The Municipal Auditorium, with a seating capacity of 3,000, is maintained for the free use of the people for concerts, entertainments and political meetings, with a picnic pavilion located on the lower floor that will accommodate 2,000 people, having kitchen equipped with facilities for making coffee, with free use of cups and spoons.

A Service Men's Club, located in the sun parlor on the end of the Municipal Pier, is maintained for the sailors and soldiers who frequent Long Beach. A very attractive lounging-room is provided with reading and writing material, games, dancing and various other entertainments. This club has an average attendance of over 8,000 yearly.

The most popular picnic ground is Bixby Park, fully equipped with kitchen for making coffee, with free use of cups, spoons, pitchers, tables and benches, and with a caretaker in charge to look after the needs of the picnickers. There is a very complete, modern set of playground equipment in this park, and the bird aviary and zoo also attract both young and old. Many state picnics are held here also, with an average attendance of from 1,000 to 70,000 people to each state gathering; also, thousands of private parties and other organizations hold picnics here during the year. During the summer months community song services are held at Bixby Park each Sunday afternoon, with an average attendance of 1,000 people.

The Long Beach Community Service provides musicals, concerts and entertainments for the Service Men's Club, local hospitals, county farm, submarine base and the hospital ship of the United States fleet, as well as regular weekly community sings and games in the Auditorium.

The all-year-round life guard system of Long Beach is one of the most efficient in service and has one of the best-known life-saving crews in the United States. Over 126 rescues have been effected since the first of May, 1924, when the bathing season opens. This record is perhaps due as much to the system of life saving employed here as to the diligent watchfulness of the twenty-four guards on duty.

Seven roque courts and one horseshoe field are located in Lincoln Park, and attract the interest of a large number of tourists the year round.

Grounds for Houghton Park have recently been donated to Long Beach and rapid plans for development are well under way, consisting of playgrounds, ball ground, tennis court, one 9-hole golf course, basket ball, volley ball and a small zoo. Also, picnic grounds with outdoor furnaces and a good-sized clubhouse. This park will be used for a Recreational Welfare Center, with a custodian in charge to care for the needs of the public.

Located in Lincoln Park is the Long Beach Public Library, which is used regularly by a large percentage of the city's residents. About 800,000 books were borrowed from it for home reading last year—an average of between seven and eight books per person, and a turnover of ten times per year for its collection of 83,000 volumes. The aim of the library is to serve the entire literate population of the city and to make its resources as freely available as possible. As practically every subject of human interest has its literature, the library dovetails into all the community activities.

Because Long Beach has a large leisure population, the library is much used for recreational reading, but this is only one phase of its service. Aside from the use of the library by students of all kinds, a large number of people are depending on it for practical information in almost every line of business, from office stenographers, carpenters and mechanics to architects, bankers, investors and engineers. Another class of readers who find the library valuable are those whose educational advantages have been limited and who now have the leisure and the opportunity, through the library, to pursue regular courses of reading. The library assists these readers with suggestions and is gradually building up a collection of such study courses for distribution.

The magazine and newspaper reading-room is especially popular in Long Beach, due in part to the tourist population's interest in reading the home news. Sixty-nine newspapers from all over the country are on file and over four hundred and fifty different magazines. There is also the children's department, under the direction of a special supervisor whose business it is to plan and execute methods of interesting more children in better books. Long Beach is a city of readers, and its children are being trained in the use and appreciation of books. A good public library, extensively used, is one of the best indications of the intelligence of the community and its desirability as a place in which to live.

BIG SUCCESS.

The dinner dance of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., April 29, was attended by over 200 and proved a complete success. In general charge was a committee composed of Mmes. Leonora Dodd, F. E. Brittain, Charlotte Wharton, Lillian Lasater, and the Misses Bernice Rankin, Maude Klasgye. A splendid orchestra furnished music for the dancing which followed the bounteous dinner.

The guests were received by a committee consisting of Mmes. Kate McFadyen, Julia P. Arbon and Jessie N. Bougher. Under the direction of the Thimble Club of the Parlor the delicious home-cooked dinner was served by Mmes. Fred Johnson, Carrie Lenhouse, F. E. Brittain, Arborn, Lena Hansen, Fannie McPherson, Kittle Dillon, Stanley Coates, Bertha Hitt, Bougher, assisted by the Misses Mabel Emery, Margery Curtis, Dorothy Curtis, Wilhelmina Curtis, Bernice Rankin, Maud Klasgye.

PROGRAM ACTIVITIES OUTLINED.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. had an enthusiastic meeting May 6, when a candidate was initiated. Among the visitors and speakers were Grand Trustee John T. Newell and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer. The Parlor will join the Los Angeles County delegation in the Admission Day parade at San Francisco. A program of activities for the coming months was outlined, and a campaign to materially increase the membership will be undertaken, with every promise of great success.

May 7 a large delegation of Long Beach's members journeyed to San Pedro, where the Parlor's officers exemplified the ritual for the benefit of a class of Sepulveda Parlor candidates in a very creditable manner. Frank G. Wisker, a member of the Parlor who, in the early days of the Order was affiliated with one of the San Francisco Parlors, died May 14, at the age of 74.

calling upon all Parlors to observe the occasion by appropriate ceremonies; and be it further resolved, that this Grand Parlor congratulates and applauds the charter members of this Order for their years of untiring effort in the upbuilding of this Order and wishes them many years of health, happiness and prosperity; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this resolution be forwarded by the Grand Secretary to each and every charter member of the Order, who is now a member of the Order."

MAURICE T. DOOLING.

Attesting the Order's loss in the recent passing of Past Grand President Maurice T. Dooling, the following resolution was adopted by rising vote:

"Whereas, Since the last session of our Grand Parlor, God, in His wisdom and mercy, has called from the ranks of our fraternity and the bench of our state, one of the most loyal and beloved sons of California, Past Grand President Maurice T. Dooling; . . . therefore, be it

"Resolved, That in the death of Brother Past Grand President Maurice T. Dooling this Order has lost an active and loyal member, his friends a loving companion, and the state an upright and conscientious public servant; and be it further resolved, that we extend our sympathy to the family of Brother Dooling in their affliction; and be it further resolved, that an engrossed copy of these resolutions be transmitted to them from this Grand Parlor."

OTHER RESOLUTIONS ADOPTED.

Requesting the Grand President "to have issued each year a proclamation calling to the attention of each Subordinate Parlor the importance of observing 'Mothers' Day' in a fitting manner, at the meeting night preceding the second Sunday in May."

Urging the governor to sign a bill, passed by the Legislature, appropriating $500 for the restoration of Fort Ross, the property of the state, in Sonoma County.

Urging the governor to sign a bill, passed by the Legislature, appropriating $2,500 for the restoration, care and upkeep of Mission San Francisco de Solano, the property of the state, at Sonoma City, Sonoma County.

Urging the governor to sign a bill, passed by the Legislature, appropriating $10,000 for the proper arrangement and preservation of the historical relics now stored in Sutter's Fort, the property of the state, in Sacramento City.

Thanking Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 and the ladies' committee of San Bernardino, the various committees in charge, the citizens of San Bernardino, the Chamber of Commerce and the civic clubs, the local press and the press throughout the state, the various speakers, the Redlands Chamber of Commerce and the Mission Inn of Riverside, for the magnificent entertainment so successfully carried out.

Directing the Board of Grand Officers to fully investigate, and make a complete report at the next Grand Parlor, as to the best plan to be adopted by the Grand Parlor for the immediate repair and restoration of the California missions.

Endorsing the campaign of the American Legion and its auxiliary to establish a trust fund for the purpose of rehabilitating the war disabled and needy orphans of ex-service men and women, and requesting all members of the Order, as well as the public generally, to liberally contribute to the worthy cause.

Referring to the Board of Grand Officers the proposal to levy an annual tax for the creation of a permanent "benefit fund" within the exclusive control of the Grand Parlor.

Requesting the Landmarks Committee to ascertain when and where the first fruit tree was planted in California.

Authorizing the History Committee to cooperate with J. Harvey McCarthy of Ramona Parlor No. 109 in depicting California history in a theatre to be erected by him at Carhay Center, Los Angeles City.

Expressing approval of the movement undertaken within San Bernardino County to restore and preserve the San Bernardino Branch Mission, between the cities of San Bernardino and Redlands.

Designating Santa Rosa, Sonoma County, as the meeting-place for the Forty-ninth (1926) Grand Parlor.

Returning to the donors, Placerville Parlor No. 9 and Georgetown Parlor No. 91, property at Coloma, El Dorado County, deeded to the Grand Parlor several years ago with a proviso that a home for aged members be provided thereon, because "the Grand Parlor has made no pro-

Requesting, by telegram, the governor to give his approval to the bill, passed by the Legislature, providing for the establishment of the California State Historical Association and carrying an appropriation of $10,000 for history research work.

LANDMARKS' APPROPRIATIONS.

By adoption of the California Landmarks Committee's report, the Grand Parlor pledged itself.

To contribute $10,000, in five yearly installments, towards the erection of a Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo monument at Point Loma, San Diego County.

To contribute $200 toward the restoration of Saint Ann's Church at Columbia, Tuolumne County.

To contribute $150 to the fund being raised by Alturas Parlor of Native Daughters for the erection in Modoc County of a monument to commemorate the memory of General Canby and his valiant soldiers who lost their lives in the Modoc Indian War.

To reimburse, to the extent of $350, Sonoma Parlor No. 111 for moneys expended in improving the grounds surrounding the Bear Flag monument in the historic plaza at Sonoma City, Sonoma County.

NO REINSURANCE.

By adoption of the report of the special committee of the Board of Grand Officers, "the whole scheme of reinsurance, before the last two sessions of the Grand Parlor," was abandoned.

CHANGES SUB. PARLORS' CONSTITUTION.

Article VII, section 1, amended to provide that a Parlor may give a certificate of honorary life membership to "any member of the Order who shall have been such for a period of fifty years continuously."

Article VIII, section 1, amended to provide that sick benefits to a beneficial member "shall not commence until six months from date of admission to membership in the Order and shall not be paid for any illness which manifests itself within such period of six months."

Article XVI, section 2, amended to provide that restrictions governing transfer of moneys to the social fund "shall not apply to dues, fees or assessments collected from non-beneficial members."

RITUAL CHANGE.

The date of the admission of California into the sisterhood of states, September 9, 1850, was ordered "inserted in our ritual at the appropriate place."

THE BUDGET.

The budget, presented by the Finance Committee and carrying appropriations totaling $49,765, was adopted. It provides $11,500 for San Bernardino session mileage, $10,000 for organization work, $3,000 for the Order's University of California history fellowships, $2,000 for the Cabrillo monument fund, and $1,000 for carrying on the work of the California Joint Immigration Committee.

To raise the required funds, a $1.60 per capita tax was levied, payable 40 cents June 1, 40 cents September 1, 40 cents December 1, and 40 cents March 1, 1926.

tional laws as to citizenship and land ownership; that Wickersham was attorney for Mitsui & Co.

of Japan when it was charged before Congress as being the owner of two American airplane companies accused of fraudulent acts during the war; that in a speech in Congress, April 2, 1922, Congressman Woodruff of Michigan accused Wickersham of blocking the investigation of the airplane cases through action of Abraham F. Myers, for whom Wickersham had secured position giving supervision of all war fraud cases.

The speaker claimed that, through influence of Gulick and Wickersham, the Federal Council and allied organizations are being used in a un-American and disloyal attempt to discredit Congress and fortify the demands of a foreign power by deliberate misrepresentation of the facts upon which Congress based its practically unanimous action; that millions of patriotic church members throughout the union will repudiate this attempt when they learn the facts as has been the case already in California, where those facts were brought home to such members; and that the growing interference with national legislation by the Federal Council, and its apparent willingness to sacrifice national interest for church policy, must inevitably weaken church influence.

McClatchy called attention to President Calvin Coolidge's statement that the exclusion legislation is "a closed incident" and to the declared intention of both immigration committees of Congress not to reopen the question, and deplored an agitation which will only cause additional friction without benefiting Japan's cause. That agitation, too, he said, explains why the California Joint Immigration Committee, while aided in securing passage of the exclusion measure, remains on guard to protect the new law against unjust criticism and assault.

N.S. GRAND PARLOR

Francisco; Alfred H. McKnew (San Francisco 49) of San Francisco.

These newly-elected grand officers, along with Edward J. Lynch (Pacific 100) of San Francisco, who automatically became the Junior Past Grand President, were installed by Past Grand President William J. Hayes, assisted by Past Grand President Louis H. Mooser and A. J. Turner of Stockton Parlor No. 7.

Following his installation, Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler was presented with baskets of beautiful flowers by Ed L. Gorgas, clerk of Tuolumne County, where Judge Cutler was born, on behalf of Tuolumne Parlor No. 144 (Sonoma) and Columbia Parlor No. 258 of that county, and by A. V. McDonald, on behalf of Judge Cutler's home-Parlor, Humboldt No. 14 (Eureka).

Grand President Cutler, in a brief address, announced that he had received the consent of John Andreson Jr. of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 (San Bernardino) to serve the Order as Grand Director at a salary of one dollar a year. He also announced the appointment of Roy W. Cloud of Redwood Parlor No. 66 (Redwood City) as Historiographer, and of Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel of Bay City Parlor No. 104 (San Francisco) as Grand Organist.

NOTES, IN GENERAL.

Dr. Herbert E. Bolton, head of the University of California, Berkeley, addressed the Grand Parlor Monday afternoon and thanked the Order for the interest manifested in the preservation and expounding of California history. He was followed by three former Native Sons' history fellows, who expressed gratefulness for the opportunities afforded them through the Order's generosity: Professor Louis B. Leslie of the State Teachers' College, San Diego; Professor Roland A. Vandegrift of the University of Southern California, Los Angeles; Professor David B. Bjork of the University of California, Southern Branch, Los Angeles.

At the memorial services, the deceased members of the Order were eulogized by Past Grand Presidents Daniel A. Ryan, Lewis F. Byington and Frank L. Coombs, and Judge Rex. B. Goodcell of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110 (San Bernardino).

The "baby" Parlor, Sepulveda 263, put in a bid for the Fiftieth (1927) Grand Parlor for its home-city, San Pedro, Los Angeles County, and staged a demonstration.

On behalf of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, a telegram of greetings was received from Miss Catherine E. Gloster of Alturas, Modoc County, Grand President.

The Odd Fellows and Knights of Columbus of San Bernardino sent fraternal greetings in the form of baskets of choice flowers.

Thursday, American and State (Bear) Flags were presented the San Bernardino senior high-school, John Andreson Jr. as chairman of Arrowhead Parlor No. 110's Grand Parlor Entertainment Committee, introduced Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler, who made a wonderful address on the early history of California. Virgil M. Pinkley, president of the student-body, responded for the 1,000 students.

Wednesday the grand officers were guests of the San Bernardino Kiwanis Club at luncheon, and its members were enthused by addresses from Grand President Edward J. Lynch and Grand First Vice-president Fletcher A. Cutler.

DIVERSION.

The entertainment provided for the visitors to San Bernardino was delightful, and reflected great credit on Arrowhead Parlor No. 110, and the following auxiliary committee, which had in special charge the womenfolks: Mrs. William E. Keir (chairman), Mrs. A. E. Hancock (vice-chairman), Mrs. R. W. Brazelton (vice-chairman), Mrs. John Andreson (vice-chairman), Mrs. J. W. Jasper, Mrs. Edward Poppett, Mrs. Thomas McFarlane, Mrs. Louis Wolff, Mrs. M. Guy Hale, Mrs. Fred Kramer, Mrs. J. S. Mee, Mrs. George T. Brooks, Miss Helen Mee, Mrs. Edward Jones, Mrs. Charles Viall, Mrs. William J. Starke, Mrs. Charles N. Frost, Mrs. Lee Beam, Mrs. Strong Bemis, Mrs. Leon Horowitz, Mrs. Arline D. Coy, Mrs. Charles McElvaine, Mrs. James Metcalf, Mrs. Andy Bruhn, Miss Mary Doyle, Mrs. J. Rawicz, Mrs. Frank Keller, Mrs. Frank Cooley, Mrs. Bert Taylor.

The program was carried out as outlined in The Grizzly Bear for May, and each feature, managed to perfection, revealed the fact that not one single detail had been overlooked. The visitors were profuse in their praise for Arrow-

HOLLYWOOD HAS BANKING CENTER

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

TWO DECADES AGO THE FIRST BANK was established in Hollywood. A few years later another bank came. The two struggled along, buoyed principally by hope. That hope ended in fruition for the ambitions of those banking pioneers who, seeing through mists of discouragement a wonderful industrial future for Hollywood, had faith and backed that faith with their best efforts. Today there are fourteen banks scattered throughout the district known as Hollywood, with others on the way, rumor says.

Hollywood's first bank was the Bank of Hollywood, later the First National, founded by a small group of business men who had located there when the place was but a maze of citrus groves or small farm tracts, cut only by primitive roads and streets through which, according to city ordinance, but a small band of sheep was permitted to pass at one time, and when the town, boasting itself a city, had only 700 voters.

The year was 1903, and the bank, with G. W. Hoover as president, was installed in rooms at the northeast corner of Hollywood boulevard and Highland avenue. Under the name of the First National Bank the institution does business today in the same location, but under more modern conditions and in deluxe quarters.

In the year 1905 came the second bank, then known as the Hollywood National, with G. G. Greenwood the organizer. Dr. E. O. Palmer was the first president. This bank was started in a room at the southeast corner of Hollywood boulevard and Cahuenga avenue, now occupied by a drug company. There the bank transacted business for five years when, business increasing, it was forced into larger quarters at the southwest corner of the same intersection. For ten years the bank did business in the new location before it was bought out by the Security Trust and Savings Bank. Today the Security Bank is doing business in its own seven-story building, located at the northeast corner of Hollywood boulevard and Cahuenga, which represents to the institution an asset valued at $1,000,000.

SHARP CONTRAST SHOWN.

Records show that at the end of the year 1905 cash deposits of both banks amounted to $178,244.38. Conditions today set up a decided and notable contrast in figures.

Business having grown apace in Hollywood during the intervening years, there was found a need for a local clearinghouse and in the year 1921, February 1 to be exact, the Hollywood Clearinghouse Association was formally organized.

As a further index of the general increase in banking business and the growth of the community, it is shown that when the clearinghouse was formed there were only five members, as against the fourteen today. The first month's clearings, reported by the clearinghouse, reached a total figure of $10,646,030.03. One year and a half later, or at the close of September, 1922, clearinghouse business for a month was $15,319,035.99, and still a year later the amount was $25,572,134.29.

STILL INCREASING.

For the first week in the month of October, 1922, the report shows $4,166,950.53 as cleared, and for the corresponding week of October, 1923, the business cleared was $6,920,159.85. In the month of September, 1922, the amount was $11,373,678.08.

While these figures reveal a steady and almost startling upward movement of business during the period they encompass, the record they established in their day is utterly eclipsed by the records established in one week in May of this year when, on one day, Tuesday, May 12, the clearing-mark was $1,726,498, or practically

PAST GRANDS MEET.

The annual banquet of the Past Grand Presidents' Association was held Tuesday evening, with Dean John H. Grady presiding. The usual insurrection for the disposal of the dean and the election of some other ambitious "Past Grand" developed during the session, but resulted in a miserable failure for the "insurrectos." Using the prerogative of his office, Dean Grady refused to entertain a motion for his decapitation. This move caused a hasty retreat of the insurgents, who claim that they will renew the attack from another angle at the next annual session. In the meantime, Dean John H. Grady is "sitting pretty."
On account of sickness, Past Grand Presidents
Fred H. Greely, H. R. McNoble and John F.
Davis failed to attend. Robert Fitzgerald was also absent, being on a trip to Europe.
Resolutions of sympathy were conveyed to the family of the late Past Grand President
Maurice T. Dooling.
William J. Hayes of Oakland, after due ceremony, was admitted a member of the association and was presented with the emblem of a Past Grand by Lewis F. Byington.
Those present were: John H. Grady, Dr.
Charles W. Decker, William H. Miller, Lewis F.
Byington, Judge Frank H. Dunne, Frank L.
Coombs, Walter D. Wagner, Daniel A. Ryan,
Herman C. Lichtenberger, Clarence E. Jarvis,

DO YOU KNOW?

That 21,000,000 letters went to the dead letter office last year? That 803,000 parcels did likewise? That 100,000 letters go into the mail yearly in perfectly blank envelopes? That $55,- 000 in cash is removed annually from misdirected envelopes? That $12,000 in postage stamps is found in similar fashion? That $3,- 000,000 in checks, drafts and money orders never reach intended owners? That Uncle Sam collects $92,000 a year in postage for the return of mail sent to the dead letter office? That it costs Uncle Sam $1,740,000 yearly to look up addresses on misdirected mail? That 200,000,- 000 letters are given this service, and that it costs in one city alone (New York) $500 daily?
And do you know that this vast sum could be saved and the dead letter office abolished if each piece of mail carried a return address, and if each parcel was wrapped in stout paper and tied with strong cord?

Moral: Every man knows his own address, if not that of his correspondent. Put it in the upper left-hand corner!

JESSIE JOHNSON.

To the Officers and Members Aloha Parlor No. 10 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions to the memory of our departed sister, Jessie Johnson, would respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Angel of Death has again invaded the golden circle of fraternity in our Parlor and has called our beloved sister, Jessie Johnson, to her final rest; therefore be it

Resolved, That Aloha Parlor No. 106 N.D.G.W. feel most deeply the loss of its esteemed member, and while bowing humbly to the will of our Heavenly Father, we retain in our hearts a lasting affection for our sister, realizing that

"God is merciful and just;

And so, by faith correcting sight,

We bow before His will, and trust,

How'er it seems He doeth all things right."

and be it further resolved, that we extend to the bereaved family our heartfelt and sincere sympathy and commend them to our Heavenly Father for consolation; and be it further resolved, that a copy of this memorial be sent to the family of our departed sister, that a copy be inserted in the minutes of this Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

NATIVE DAUGHTER GRAND PARLOR PROCEEDINGS PLACERVILLE SESSION

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

THE THIRTY-NINTH GRAND PARLOR of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West, in session at Placerville, El Dorado County, June 15, 16, 17 and 18, has gone into history. By many, it was declared the most enjoyed gathering in the Order's history, largely due to the fact that the spirit of the Pioneers of the days of old Hangtown held full sway.

Grand President Catherine E. Gloster of Alameda, Modoc County, presided throughout the deliberations, which were frequently temporarily suspended to hear recounted by Pioneers and the daughters of Pioneers romantic, thrilling and history-making events of the days of old, the days of gold, the days of '49.

Here are recorded, briefly, the Grand Parlor's doings; many of the reports and transactions dealt with matters heretofore given publicity in the Grizzly Bear. Shortly after the convening of the Grand Parlor, Grand President Gloster presented her report, in part presented here, which was well received by the more than 400 Native Daughters assembled:

GRAND PRESIDENT'S REPORT.

"To the City of Placerville, the mecca of those early Pioneers who had dreams of great fortunes always ahead, who pressed onward with never a regretful backward look, and who were rewarded by the wealth of golden treasure which the hills and mountains hereabouts held in their veins, we have come. We seek not gold, but we do seek stimulating influence from the shrine where indomitable spirits proved that perseverance and fortitude have their compensation.

"We have assembled to consider the progress of our Order and to formulate plans for a continuance of our work of service to our beloved state and to those who are intimately connected to us by the bonds of fraternity. Here, if anywhere, far removed from the hum of toil, commercialism and strife, can we stand with untroubled hearts and minds unclouded by suspicion and speak and enact the things that will stand for solidarity and glorious upbuilding.

"What has been and is being accomplished by the thirteen thousand worthy women who make up the rank and file of Native Daughters of the Golden West cannot easily be summed up. So much is done that is never chronicled. Not even the Grand President, who spends one evening a year in each Parlor, can have any conception of what each Parlor means to its own locality, or of the helpful ministrations that are accorded the unfortunate members.

"Occasionally, as through a keyhole, an insight is obtained of the great encircling love that pervades the membership, making sisters indeed of those whose only claim on each other is the consciousness that they have worked side by side for a common interest, giving service cheerfully and uncomplainingly, and by so doing have learned of the storehouse of latent righteousness in every human heart.

"One group is restoring a mission or other California landmark; another carrying its cheer to the disabled soldiers; another is planting trees in some neglected playground; another is welcoming and Americanizing the foreigner who has recently acquired citizenship; another is erecting a commemorative monument to the valorous deeds of those who made possible Western progress; another is preparing tiny garments for homeless little ones; another is providing a fund for a bereaved mother of a deceased member that poverty may not be added to her cup of sorrow; and all are upholding the highest ideals of home, country and state.

"And what result is too great to expect when every member of each Parlor is using her gifts to the utmost in the furtherance of the principles of the Order? No discontent, lack of interest, petty jealousy or sordidness pervades the Parlors so engaged.

"I have made the pilgrimage of joy and duty, having visited every Parlor in the state either in its own home or through joint meetings, and take pardonable pride in reporting that the membership of these Parlors represent women of a splendid type of character, intelligence, loyalty and enthusiasm; and that the Order is yearly increasing in prestige and public esteem. With very few exceptions, the formal work of the Parlors was presented with impressiveness and dignity, and the business transacted with intelligence and dispatch. In many Parlors special features of entertainment and instruction were provided to sustain interest. The benefits gained from increased attendance justified this provision, inasmuch as the members who come to be entertained finally acquire a keen interest in the affairs of their Parlor and fit themselves for an active and responsible share in them.

"The year preceding the celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's statehood is bristling with interest in California's history, traditions and romance. Parlors have instituted history clubs, have celebrated historical events with commemorative recitals, tableaux, etc.; they have sent committees to boards of education and secured a more comprehensive course of California history in the public-schools, and have in every way shown a desire to become more familiar with California's past in which we rightfully manifest so much pride. This loyalty to the chapter of our history, just closing, while we are bending every effort and taxing every faculty of mind and body to transmit our heritage unimpaired in the fulness of its power and strength and glory to our posterity, is to my mind the highest attribute of patriotism.

MISS SUE J. IRWIN OF BERKELEY,

"The successful aspirant for the Mills College Scholarship this year is Hazel Dell Werner, a native of Plumas County, a graduate of Modoc Union high-school, and a most representative California girl who, upon reaching her majority, will become a member of the Order. The scholarship consists of the interest on an investment of $6,030 and amounts to approximately $375

IF I CAN LIVE

(HELEN HUNT JACKSON.)

"If I can live,

To make some pale face brighter, and to give
A second luster to some tear-dimmed eye,
Or even impart

One throb of comfort to an aching heart,
Or cheer some wayworn soul in passing by;

"If I can lend

A strong hand to the fallen, or defend
The right against a single envious strain,
My life, though bare,
Perhaps, of much that seemeth dear and fair
To us on earth, will not have been in vain.

"The purest joy,

Most near to heaven, far from earth's alloy,
Is bidding cloud give way to sun and shine;
And 'twill be well,
If on that day of days the angels tell
Of me, she did her best for one of thine."

per year. Members of the Order should make this scholarship an incentive to their daughters in high-schools to secure high rating and to compete for this very generous gift.

"In the earlier years of our Order's life members were endowed with health and strength, and many of us thought little of a time when these blessings might vanish and we might be bereft of family and friends to tender us the care that comforts and cheers the sick and the disabled; but a few thoughtful ones had the vision to foresee these exigencies, and planned to prepare a place of refuge for those unfortunate sisters. Their wisdom is now manifest to all. The Native Daughters' Home [San Francisco] is taking a providential place in the lives of sisters who are overtaken by sickness and unprovided for old age; and members all over the state gladly offer their mite to aid this humanitarian project. In a very few years, our efforts will produce a home that will be a lasting memorial of the love and altruistic spirit of the Native Daughters of the Golden West; a building of fine proportions, masterful design, and provided with all the modern conveniences; the seat of the Grand Parlor office, and the club-rooms of visiting sisters from every part of the state.

"The Order's activities in caring for and securing homes for the homeless children is still its most popular work, and the report of the charming secretary of the committee [Miss Mary E. Brusie] is one of the most highly appreciated reports received in Grand Parlor. In the pursuance of this work, besides the reaction of benevolent consciousness, we are obtaining the highest regard and esteem of the best citizens of the state.

"The last act in my official year is before me. If in the slightest measure I have added anything of worth in the fulfillment of the purpose for which the head of the Order stands, I am fully compensated for every effort I have made. I ask God's blessing upon this Grand Parlor assembled, that the members may have the divine assistance to legislate wisely, to deport themselves with justice and charity, and in all acts be a credit to the dignity and decorum of this grand session. I likewise reverently ask a continuance of His guidance in my own behalf, that this Grand Parlor may take its place in the history of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West as the peer of past and future Grand Parlors."

OTHER REPORTS.

The report of Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty was a detailed account of the numerous transactions of that office. As of June 1, 1925, it gave the present worth of the Grand Parlor as $15,410.59, and placed the total membership of the Order at 12,761. During the Grand Parlor year 1,200 candidates were initiated. Seventy-eight members passed away, and $12,416.33 was paid out in sick benefits by the Subordinate Parlors.

Grand Treasurer Susie K. Christ's report revealed the condition of the several funds: General—Receipts, $15,015.73; disbursements, $13,509.26; cash balance June 1, $10,723.93. Death Benefit—Receipts $4,618.94; disbursements, $5,625; cash balance, $3,268.46. Home—Receipts, $8,993.77; disbursements, $4,250; cash balance, $18,608.34.

The Native Daughters' Home committee reported an active year, with the purpose for which the home stands fulfilled. Reference was made to the establishment of a library, named in memory of the late Past Grand President Clara K. Wittenmyer, long secretary of the home, which contains fifty-eight volumes of her books and other personal treasures.

Past Grand President Ariana W. Stirling reported for the Travelers' Aid, which the Order has long supported. She stated, among other things, that last year 51,800 people were assisted in San Francisco.

Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley reported the mileage for the Placerville session as $2,567.34.

For the publicity committee, Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs reported good publicity had been given the Order throughout the state, the homeless children work attracting the most attention.

Past Grand President Dr. Victory A. Derrick reported on the splendid americanization work being carried on by the Subordinate Parlors.

MEMORIAL REDWOOD GROVE.

By passage of the following resolution, introduced by Past Grand Presidents Anna L. Monroe and Grace S. Stoermer, the Order of Native Daughters launched a movement to secure a grove of redwoods to be dedicated to the California Pioneers:

"That this Grand Parlor, assembled in annual convention at Placerville, California, set aside the sum of $500 as a nucleus for a fund to purchase a memorial to be dedicated to the Pioneers of California, said memorial to be a grove of redwoods, large or small, as funds shall provide, and to be located on the Great Redwood Memorial Highway extending from Marin County north to the Oregon line and furthermore, that the incoming Grand President appoint a committee to further the interests of this project."

PROCEEDINGS SUMMARIZED.

Sacramento City was selected as the meeting place for the Fortieth (1926) Grand Parlor.

The percapita tax was fixed at $1. In addition, Subordinate Parlors will be required to contribute fifty cents percapita for the support of the Native Daughters' Home.

Toward the restoration of San Juan Capistrano Mission, $50 was donated, and a similar amount was donated to the Santa Ynez Mission restoration fund of Reina del Mar 126, Santa Barbara.

Toward the erection of a memorial to mark the battlefield in the Modoc Lava Beds where General R. S. Canby and his men were killed in an uprising of the Modoc Indians, $100 was appropriated.

The Grizzly Bear Magazine was re-endorsed as the Order's official organ, and financial provision made for the publication therein of the official directory.

Legislation was enacted requiring any Subordinate Parlor which wishes to have the Grand Parlor meet in its home-city to submit the proposal to the Grand Parlor office by May 1, preceding the session at which the meeting-place will be selected, so that the mileage may be estimated.

The granting of charters to the following Subordinate Parlors by Grand President Gloster was ratified: Palo Alto 229, Rudecinda 230 (San Pedro), Tamalpa 231 (Mill Valley), Bret Harte 232 (San Francisco).

Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen, now affiliated with Coloma 212, Sacramento, had all the rights and privileges of a Past Grand President restored to her. She presided at the Twenty-first (1907) session at Watsonville.

Toward the restoration fund for Santa Ynez Mission in Santa Barbara County, $25 was subscribed by Grand President Gloster from her special fund. Reina del Mar 126, Santa Barbara City, has undertaken the restoration of this mission, and in its behalf Mrs. Annie L. Adair presented an interesting report.

Messages of sympathy were ordered transmitted to Founder Lily O. Reichling-Dyer, Past

SANTA BARBARA'S SPANISH FIESTA

(J. WILLIAM MacLENNAN.)

THE "OLD SPANISH DAYS IN SANTA BARBARA," August 13, 14 and 15, aims to keep alive the spirit of the old days when Spain held California and a colorful life existed, quite different from that of the rest of the country. Many of the traditions and customs of those days still survive in Santa Barbara, and the citizens of the city are determined to hold on to these and its picturesque past; old adobes are being preserved, old songs revived, and its spirit of romance and hospitality encouraged.

A beautiful feature, and marking officially the opening of the celebration, will be the landing of Cabrillo from a Spanish galleon in the bay and his reception by the Indians. Then will follow, first a pageant parade depicting the forces of Portola, Father Serra and other early explorers and settlers in which many of the descendants of the early Pioneers of California will participate. This pageant parade will differ from most other parades in that there will be no automobile floats and a large percentage of the participants will be mounted on some of the best horses that California has produced. Automobiles will be excluded from along the line of march and the don and the vaquero will hold sway in the streets, as in early days.

One of the notable events of last year's celebration, which will be repeated this year, is the reception at the De la Guerra house, made famous by Dana in "Two Years Before the Mast," given by the old Spanish family of Santa Barbara to their friends and the descendants of the early Pioneers. Many of the descendants of those who attended the festivities in Dana's time will be present at this function. The jewelry and other heirlooms handed down from that day will be worn; Spanish musicians and Grand Secretary Laura J. Frakes and Grand Trustee Loraine M. Kalck, the latter, on account of illness, being prevented from attending the session.

A letter of congratulations was ordered sent Miss Faye Lamphier, a member of Aloha 106, Oakland, winner, for the second time, of the first prize in the Santa Cruz beauty contest and known as "Miss California."

A telegram of greetings, on behalf of the Or-singers will render the old songs, and the interesting early dances will be revived again.

Thursday and Friday evenings, in the Peabody Stadium, will be an old-time fiesta centering around the wedding ceremony and fandango described by Dana. About three hundred people will take part in this, a strictly Santa Barbara production by Santa Barbara people. Other features will be street dancing in the Plaza De la Guerra, open to the public, wandering musicians and serenaders.

Santa Barbara will hold open house, and a large part of the festivities will be un-official. Many of the people of Santa Barbara and Montecito will entertain, the clubs and the hotel will feature costume balls and, in fact, in all private parties the Spanish fiesta idea will be predominant, and during these days the Spanish costume is correct for all social affairs.

As most of the townspeople will be in costume during the fiesta, it is hoped that all visitors to Santa Barbara will bring costumes as they may enter into the spirit of the celebration. The same week the California Yachting Association will hold its annual regatta in Santa Barbara, the Santa Barbara Horticulture Association will have a display of dahlias from Santa Barbara and Montecito gardens, the Art Club will have a special exhibit, at the Community Arts Theater, the Lobero, there will be a special production, and other organizations are planning special attractions.

Santa Barbara Parlor No. 116 N.S.G.W. is taking an active part in arranging for the fiesta being represented on the board of directors and various committees by Edward Borelin, T. Wilson Dibblee, R. G. Fernald, Francis Price, San J. Stanwood, T. M. Storke, Harry C. Sweetser Paul Sweetser and Charles D. von Neumayer.

Parlor must accept the date fixed by the Grand President for her official visit, and that delegates must attend the entire Grand Parlor session to secure mileage.

It was ordered that Subordinate Parlors be requested to purchase California pictures and present them to the schools in their vicinities.

The constitution for Subordinate Parlors was amended to provide: That Parlors may accept members of any age who do not care for sick or death benefits; that where a Parlor does not pay benefits a member of any age may procure same if she passes a satisfactory medical examination.

NEW GRAND OFFICERS.

At the election for Grand Parlor offices, 339 ballots were cast, and the following were selected:

Grand President—Sue J. Irwin (Berkeley 150) of Berkeley.

Grand Vice-president—Pearl Lamb (El Pescadero 82) of Tracy.

Grand Secretary—Alice H. Dougherty (Angelita 32) of Livermore.

Grand Treasurer—Susie K. Christ (Yosemite 73) of San Francisco.

Grand Marshal—Dr. Louise C. Heilbron (San Diego 208) of San Diego.

Grand Inside Sentinel—Lillian May Tilden (Sutter 111) of Sacramento.

Grand Outside Sentinel—Evelyn I. Carlson (Dolores 169) of San Francisco.

Grand Organist—Estelle Evans (Antioch 223) of Antioch.

Grand Trustees (in order of vote received)—Mary A. Quinn (Marguerite 12) of Placerville, Margaret A. Kelly (El Dorado 186) of Georgetown, Vida Vollers (Marinita 198) of San Rafael, Sallie Rutherford-Thaler (Aloha 106) of Oakland, Lillian Beguhl (Fresno 187) of Fresno, Josephine Johnson (El Carmelo 181) of Daly City, Esther R. Sullivan (Marysville 162) of Marysville.

These officers, along with Catherine E. Gloster (Alturas 159) of Alturas, retiring Grand President who automatically became the Junior Past Grand President, were installed just preceding the closing of the session by Past Grand President Amy V. McAvoy, assisted by Mae Himes-Noonan (Portola 172) as acting grand marshal.

On behalf of the Order, Past Grand President Emma W. Humphrey presented Miss Gloster with a diamond and ruby ring, and on behalf of the district deputies of the state Irma N. Laird (Alturas 159) presented a silver service.

RITUAL EXEMPLIFICATION.

The evening of June 17 Marguerite 12, the hostess Parlor, exemplified the ritual. District der of Native Sons of the Golden West, was received from Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler.

The activities of various Subordinate Parlors, particularly with reference to landmarks work, were related and reminiscences recounted. Relics of the pioneer days were exhibited.

A letter of congratulations was directed sent to Past Grand President Dr. Mariana Bertola, recently elected president of the California Federation of Women's Clubs.

To the fund being raised to purchase a radio for the Native Daughters' Home, $58, secured by "passing the hat," was added.

At the opening of the Grand Parlor, Placerville Parlor No. 9 N.S.G.W., through a committee composed of H. S. Lyon, E. Y. Gray and T. F. Lewis, presented a beautiful bouquet.

The salary of the Assistant Grand Secretary was increased to $1,200 per annum.

Legislation was passed to the effect that reports should be condensed, that a Subordinate

ANOTHER CONFERENCE MEANS RUIN

(ARTHUR RICHARD HINTON, Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W.)

THERE IS NO SERVICE THAT THE Native Sons of the Golden West can render our country and our state greater than the throwing of the whole weight of their influence against any move that has for its object the weakening in the slightest degree of our defense by land, on the sea or in the air, whether through mistaken economy, pacifist sentiment, internationalism, or the foolish theory of racial equality and brotherly love, and against any further international conferences or treaties by which our right to do exactly as we please at any time, with reference to national defense, is to be circumscribed or restricted in the slightest degree.

As American citizens we should demand that the United States shall retain absolutely in its own hands complete sovereignty and control over national defense, and that such control be exercised to the utmost to strengthen, not to weaken, our forces. California's senators and representatives in Congress should never again be allowed to repeat the mistake they made in voting for the last conference. Neither should they be permitted to cease for a minute their activities in behalf of the continual strengthening of our defense.

The Native Sons have heard through The Grizzly Bear from W. B. Shearer, renowned naval authority, such revelations of our national weakness and defenselessness that there should be no room for any difference of opinion in our ranks as to the need for action. We must not allow our defense to be undermined by controversies over the merits of battleships or airplanes. We need both. We need a naval base on San Francisco Bay. Let us demand of our senators and representatives that it be built, and that differences of opinion over locations shall not be permitted to hold up the work longer.

The Washington Conference for Limitation of Armaments was the greatest calamity possible to the Pacific Coast, although the menace which it has established has not had time to develop to the point when it will become obvious or to the point where the blow will fall upon us. Another conference will be our ruin! Last time we were outgeneraled diplomatically, just as we have been in nearly every such conference in our history.

Near the close of the Wilson administration, Secretary Daniels awoke to the Asiatic menace to California. Not only did he send to the Pacific the main American fleet, but he inaugurated a program of stupendous naval development which would have rendered us invincible at sea. With the great armada under construction completed, it would have been easy for us to have added whatever air strength we needed, and to have rendered ourselves absolutely safe for all time.

There was no possibility of any nation being able to compete with us in the building of the great ships we had under construction. When, in a moment of national madness, we proposed to destroy them, it is not surprising that other nations, particularly Japan, were delighted and ready to give any concession to gain such an advantage over us. In the building of smaller and less expensive ships, and in the air, it was easier for them to compete.

Our sleeping officials at Washington have asserted again and again that Japan has kept all the provisions of the treaty scrupulously. Probably it has, for it has lost nothing and has gained everything by such action. Recently the newspapers published a list of naval vessels the Japanese have destroyed to comply with the treaty, and the dates of their launching show them to have been so antiquated that they would soon have had to be destroyed in any event.

But the greatest gain to Japan has been the putting to sleep of public sentiment in our country generally, the encouragement of a false sense of national security which has kept us from building up such national defense as the treaty leaves all nations free to build up. Shearer has told the people of California, especially the Native Sons, how other nations, particularly Japan, have strengthened themselves while we have been steadily weakening ourselves.

Another disarmament conference is likely to spell ruin for us. California's greatest menace lies in such conferences. Our senators and representatives in Congress must be stirred to oppose them with all their might.

Defeated in attempts at peaceful invasion of the Pacific Coast, Japan unquestionably plans a naval attack upon us and military invasion of our country. There is no other possible explanation of its continued upbuilding of military, naval and aerial forces. There is no one planning to attack Japan; there is no nation with a motive for attacking that country.

Let us not deceive ourselves! It is the United States, California particularly, that the mikado seeks to conquer. We may smile at the idea. We may say it is impossible, but let each citizen put himself in the place of a Japanese and try to see the thing through Japanese eyes and he may find that to the Japanese mind there is nothing impossible in the idea of a successful military invasion and even permanent conquest of California. Unless we are ready for him, sooner or later, when he thinks we are sufficiently weakened by pacifist teachings and perhaps by internal quarrels, and when he thinks he has strengthened himself sufficiently in all that he needs, the mikado will strike!

MORE BONDS.

With about thirty percent of the electorate participating, 117,766 votes being cast, the citizens of Los Angeles City at the June 2 election voted to permit busses on Hill street and to join in forming a metropolitan water district for the purpose of securing a domestic water supply from the Colorado River.

Additional bonds were authorized, as follows: $8,000,000 to secure lands and develop water rights in the Owens Valley; $2,000,000 for the Colorado River water project; $500,000 for branch libraries; $500,000 for Glendale boulevard bridge across Los Angeles River; $350,000 for pedestrian subways.

TEACHERS TO GATHER.

Delegates from all over the world will attend the convention of the International Kindergarten Union in Los Angeles City, July 8-11. One afternoon the delegates will be entertained at Pasadena by the Crown City Chamber of Commerce.

WEINER BAKE.

Several candidates were initiated by Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. during June. At the election for officers Sidney Witkowski was selected for president, and great advancement of the Parlor's interests is looked for under his administration. Officers will be installed July 9, when another class of candidates will be initiated.

Arrangements are under way for a moonlight weiner bake on the beach near the Malibu Canyon during July. All Natives and their families will be welcome. A program of other social activities is in the making.

ANNIVERSARY OUTING.

The outing of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. at Sepulveda Park, White's Point, near San Pedro, June 14, was attended by more than 300 and greatly enjoyed. It was held in celebration of Flag Day, the diamond anniversary year of California, the silver anniversary year of the founding of the Order and the thirty-eighth institution of the Parlor. Among the speakers were Frank G. Tyrrell, Dwight Crittenden and Hugh R. Pomeroy. The committee in charge of the affair consisted of Walter Slosson (chairman), Charles Russell, Glen Packer, Dwight Crittenden, Irving Baxter.

During June several new names were added to Ramona's roster-roll, and officers were elected, Burrell D. Neighbours being chosen president The officers-elect will be installed July 10, and on the 24th several additional candidates will be initiated. July 31 will be a social evening, devoted to a high-jinks under the auspices of the good of the order committee. Ramona is organizing a band which, it is hoped, will be prepared to appear in San Francisco September 9 in the Admission Day parade.

SECOND ANNUAL BARBECUE.

Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. had open-house and a smoker June 18, when a large delegation from Los Angeles 45 paid a visit. Music was furnished by young men who will later affiliate with the Parlor, and then Corona will have an orchestra of its own. A mock trial was the evening's feature and created a continuous laugh. Wayne Jordan was the judge, John Concannon prosecuted, and Anthony Palethorpe and John W. Topham appeared for the defendant, G. W. Freeman, who was found guilty; his attorneys were forced to pay the fine. "Chef" Harry Jorder was in charge of the feed. Carl Frowein has been elected president for the ensuing term.

Corona will hold its second annual barbecue July 12 at the Riley ranch in Sand Canyon, above Saugus. All Natives and their families are invited. Children will be admitted free, the menfolks will be taxed $1 and the womenfolks 50c. To get to the scene of operations, drive through Newhall and Saugus, and take the dirt road to the right at Salaminat store; the road will be signed. Owing to repairs to be made to its meeting-place, Corona will have no regular meetings during July and August.

THE DEATH RECORD.

Elmer Ellsworth Mellette, father of Donald M. Mellette (Los Angeles N.S.), died June 1.

Mrs. Theresa Ravetti, mother of Louis Ravetti (Los Angeles N.S.), passed away June 4.

James Cornelius Pryor, affiliated with Ramona 109 N.S.G.W., died June 8. He was born in Los Angeles, September 16, 1886.

James "Tito" Johnson, affiliated with Ramona 109 N.S.G.W., died June 13, survived by a widow. He was born in Los Angeles, August 8, 1866.

Rocco Francis Pirri, affiliated with Ramona 109 N.S.G.W., died June 20. He was born in Los Angeles, April 21, 1900.

VACATION HISTORY STUDY.

At the June 2 meeting of the Historical Society of Southern California, Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt presiding, Secretary Rolland A. Vandegrift led in the offering of suggestions for members' activity in forwarding California history study during vacation, with special notice in reference to the diamond jubilee, celebrating California's admission into the union.

Dr. John C. Parish discoursed on "The Persistence of the Westward Movement in the United States," and Miss Grace E. Tower dealt with "The Sentiment in California for Admission Into the Union." This was the last meeting of the society until after vacation.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Stanage Bly (Ramona N.S.) recently joined the ranks of the benedicts.

Miss Mildred Tryron and E. R. Melogli (Los Angeles N.S.) were wedded May 23.

Miss Viola McKenzie (Los Angeles N.D.) and Herbert Holtz (Los Angeles N.S.) were married June 24.

Charles L. McEnerney (James Lick N.S.) of San Francisco and wife were among last month's visitors.

Judge Rex B. Goodcell (Arrowhead N.S.) was sworn in June 2 for a new term as collector of internal revenue.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

REJECTION OF CALIFORNIA INDIAN TREATIES

A STUDY IN LOCAL INFLUENCE ON NATIONAL POLICY

Prof. W. H. Ellison

NO ACTION RESULTED FROM THIS REPORT, and matters rested until June 22, 1854, when a memorial, which had been addressed to the secretary of the interior from John C. Fremont, was sent to the senate. The memorial attempted to show that Fremont, the memorialist, delivered to Geo. W. Barbour, under contract, quantities of beef, for which drafts had been issued against the government in excess of $183,000, and that the senate, in rejecting the treaties, had ignored this legitimate claim. The memorial alleged that the delivery of the beef had been proved; that at the time of the delivery there was necessity for the supplies; that a moral obligation rested upon the United States to do something for the Indians; that good policy demanded it; and that the prices charged for the beef were less than the actual money price in the country at the time. The memorialist stated that he thought he had made a "clear case for the payment of the claim, upon its own circumstances, independent of the rejected treaty stipulations. It was an expenditure on his part for the public good, and nearly the only compensation which the Indians had received, up to that time, for a country which has yielded the United States about three hundred millions in gold, and is going on yielding at the same rate, and on which a great state has grown up. . . . The deliveries were made partly to the Indians themselves for their immediate use, and partly to Commissioner Barbour, to be retained and delivered as needed during the winter. The memorialist has reason to believe that of the part thus retained, a portion became the spoil of unfaithful agents trusted by Mr. Barbour; but of this he knows nothing himself, having immediately left the country." The memorial was referred to the committee on Indian affairs and ordered to be printed.

On July 10, stimulated to action perhaps by the memorial of Fremont, the senate passed a resolution requesting the president to "cause" to be communicated to the senate copies of all correspondence and other official documents in the department of the interior respecting the claims of persons for services performed, and for supplies and subsistence furnished to the Indians in California, under contracts with Indian agents. On July 29, the president transmitted to the senate a communication from the secretary of the interior, together with all the papers called for which had not been previously furnished. The documents showed that various claims had been pressed upon the department, but that payment had been refused or delayed because Congress had made no provision for the claims which rested upon contracts made without authorization.

The only one of the claims to get a hearing at this time was that of John C. Fremont. The prominence of Fremont's name, and especially the fact that he had an influential father-in-law, Thomas H. Benton, doubtless helped his cause. Perhaps of even greater importance was the fact that his case was better substantiated and presented than the others.

It appeared, from the documents, that on May 12, 1851, Fremont submitted to Wozencraft and Barbour a proposal to furnish specified quantities of beef cattle and brood stock to the commissioners at certain prices. The proposal was accepted by Barbour. Fremont knew there was no appropriation at the time to pay for the supplies, but risking a later congressional appropriation, he accepted drafts upon the department from Barbour for $183,825. It appeared, from the papers, that on two occasions Thomas H. Benton had presented letters to the department upholding Fremont's claim and appealing for its adjustment. After going over the documents presented, and investigating Fremont's case carefully, Congress was convinced that payment of the drafts was a just obligation. A bill was therefore passed by both houses of Congress authorizing the secretary of the treasury to pay Fremont the sum of $183,825, with interest from June 1, 1851. The measure received the president's signature July 29, 1854.

The next claim to receive favorable consideration by Congress was the one of Wozencraft for actual disbursements to the amount of $7,000, made by him while serving as Indian commissioner in California. A measure to reimburse Wozencraft for this expenditure was considered and passed by Congress, with but little discussion, in July 1856. Investigation by committees of both houses showed that the claim embraced no disputed questions or facts. It included no contracts entered into by Wozencraft, or drafts drawn by him on which individuals based claims, but it was for his reimbursement for a sum of money actually expended by him in the course of his duties.

In the report of the commissioner of Indian affairs, dated November 30, 1857, another reference was made to the unpaid California obligations. It was stated in the report that a large number of these had been repeatedly called to the attention of the Indian office, but that they had remained unpaid for want of appropriations with which to meet them. Attention was called to the recommendation of a former commissioner of Indian affairs on April 13, 1852, who desired that an appropriation should be made to investigate the various alleged obligations, and to the acknowledgment, at a later date, of the validity of Fremont's claim. It was considered proper that an investigation should be made of the remaining claims with the idea of their possible settlement, and the commissioner so recommended. It would appear that he believed that some more of these deserved adjustment, but Congress took no action on the commissioner's recommendation.

In the session of Congress which began in December, 1857, the drafts of Dent, Vantine & Company, merchants with whom Wozencraft had made contracts, were presented for consideration. These called for the payment to the company of $49,763.14 for supplies furnished. The question of the liquidation of this alleged debt was considered by the house committee on Indian affairs. The committee recognized that Wozencraft had acted without authority in involving the government in this debt, but it was held that Wozencraft and the company had acted in good faith. As the members of the committee were satisfied that a large amount of beef and flour had been delivered, they were of the opinion that the company making the deliveries was entitled to a reasonable compensation for the goods furnished. A bill embodying the ideas of the committee was presented to the house, but this body did not see fit to take action on the measure. The writer has been unable to find evidence that the obligation was ever met.

Samuel J. Hensley, another claimant, found favor at the hands of Congress in 1860, but not to the extent of his desires, nor to the amount represented by Wozencraft as justly his due. His claim was considered fully by the committee on claims in the senate. In the elaborate report made by the committee investigating his case, it was stated that sufficient facts had been presented to establish the delivery of twelve hundred head of cattle, but not of nineteen hundred as had been alleged. But after considering the legal phases of the question, as well as the delivery of the cattle, together with the rejection of the treaties and the establishment of a new policy, the committee did not consider the United States liable for payment of a contract made without government authority.

At this point, the committee on Indian affairs took up the matter. This committee made report on the case in which they incorporated the report of the committee on claims. They admitted that the United States was not legally liable on Hensley's contract nor on others of its class. But they maintained that such claimants were volunteer creditors of the United States who became such under extraordinary circumstances. They had no security beyond confidence in the accredited officers of the government. As creditors under these conditions, their claims should be regarded not as legal but as moral obligations. Granted that the treaties were rejected under which the contracts were made, the facts remained, according to the committee, that peace with the Indians in California was restored by the treaties, and that the United States had sanctioned in later action the main features inaugurated by the repudiated commissioners. Besides, the committee reminded Congress again, the principle of obligation involved had been recognized when Fremont's claim was paid in full.

A bill providing for payment of Hensley's claim was reported favorably by the committee. Wozencraft had reported $142,500 due Mr. Hensley. When the matter was reported to the committee on claims, this amount had been reduced to $128,475. The bill as reported called for the payment of but $96,375. Strange to say, there was but little opposition to the bill in either house. It was passed by the senate on April 4, by the house on June 4, and received the president's signature on June 9.

The conclusion of the whole matter of the claims was not reached until 1871. In that year, two members of the board of Indian commissioners, Felix R. Brunot and John V. Farwell, were requested by the secretary of the interior to investigate, during their visit to the Pacific Coast, certain claims of old date, which had been presented to the Indian department for payment, amounting to $373,133.02.

When Messrs. Brunot and Farwell arrived in San Francisco, they caused, under date of July 20, 1871, the following notice to be published in the newspapers of the city: "All persons having claims against the government arising out of contracts with duly authorized agents of the Indian Department, in the State of California, are hereby notified to present all evidence of such indebtedness by mail, or otherwise, to the undersigned, at the office of the Superintendent of Indian Affairs, 224 Kearney street, San Francisco, on or before the 5th day of August next." The notice was signed by the commissioners and was published until August 5.

Only two letters were received as a result of the notice. These represented but two of the two hundred and sixty-seven claims included in the schedule, and these simply stated that the claims had been in Washington a long time. Subsequent inquiry, made in the regions where the claims were supposed to have originated, resulted in finding out about only one or two small alleged debts. From information that could be gathered, the special commissioners became convinced that nearly all the claims that had not been paid were wholly, or in part, fraudulent in character. The largest of the claims on the list, which were those dating back to the days of the treaties, were notorious in the sections where they originated as gross frauds.

Concerning the financial transactions connected with the rejected treaties, it has to be admitted that Wozencraft, Barbour and McKee acted without authority in obligating the government for large sums of money. It is quite certain that the bewildered men acted in good faith, and that their acts were conditioned by their light. There is no doubt but that some of those contracting with the government acted in good faith also, and that they delivered goods to the commissioners and to the Indians. It is equally certain that gross frauds were perpetrated upon the government by persons who expected to receive much for little, or for nothing at all. It would have been a fairly simple matter for the government to have found out most of the facts necessary as a basis for just action under the circumstances. It is the writer's opinion that the responsible government agencies showed both negligence and incompetence in failing to find out at the proper time the ascertainable facts as to the actual delivery of cattle and supplies, and that they committed a highly censurable moral wrong in failing to compensate the few who entered with good faith into business relations with accredited representatives of the United States.

BUNKER HILL DAY

BUNKER HILL DAY WAS OBSERVED AT the June 17 meeting of the Native Sons' Luncheon Club of San Francisco. Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch introduced as the speaker, George W. Caswell, secretary of the Bunker Hill Association. "This is the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the battle of Bunker Hill," said Caswell. "Each year we hold this celebration on the anniversary of the first gallant fight of our countrymen for independence. The victory at Bunker Hill was a moral victory. It revealed the mettle of the colonists in the long war with the British that followed.

"It is well to refresh our memory each year with the history of our country that was in the making that day. The Civil war lasted four years, the World war four years, but the Revolutionary war lasted seven years. Our colonists became soldiers over night. They went onto the battlefield armed only with their hunting pieces. They were opposed by an organized army under trained military leaders.

"It was not until two years after the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, the final victory of the American forces, that England recognized our independence. France had given aid and recognition previously. The debt was not paid for many years. The final payment was made when General Stanton in the World war laid a wreath on Lafayette's tomb in Paris and said these words: 'Lafayette, we are here.'"

At the June 3 meeting of the club, John Hannan (Rincon 72) gave a short discourse on the early-day theaters of California, with sketches of the producers, actors and actresses. Assisted by vocalists, entertainers and a ten-piece orchestra, George W. Kittler (Dolores 208), a leading San Francisco musician, furnished a most pleasing program of entertainment.

GRAND OFFICERS' RECEPTION.

One of the best affairs in local Native Son circles in many a day was the reception tendered by the Grizzly Bear Club June 13 to the grand officers elected at the San Bernardino Grand Parlor in May. The reception was held in the library of the club's quarters, which occupy the entire top floor of the Native Sons' Building, 414 Mason street. Many men prominent in the state were included in the large assemblage. The grand officers present included: Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Treasurer John E. McDougald, Grand Organist Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, John T. Newell, Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, John T. Skelton, John S. Ramsay and Alfred H. McKnew.

Dr. Gonzalez introduced as chairman of the evening Colonel Dinkelspiel, who has been president of the club and its predecessors for thirty-three years. An excellent program was presented, and among the speakers of the evening were Grand Third Vice-president Wilson, Judge Rex B. Goodcell (Arrowhead 110) of San Bernardino, Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington and Grand President Cutler.

BIG DAY PROMISED.

The joint committee of Native Sons and Native Daughters which is making arrangements for the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco in connection with California's diamond jubilee festivities is having largely attended and enthusiastic meetings.

Reports from Parlors of both Orders throughout the state indicate that the September 9 pageant will be the most spectacular ever presented in California, and that a record-breaking number of Parlors will participate.

A cancellation stamp, "California's Diamond Jubilee, San Francisco, Sept. 5 to Sept. 12," will be used on all mail originating in San Francisco, according to Postmaster James E. Power. Negotiations with the Postoffice Department in Washington are now under way. The stamp will be used during July, August and early September and will be imprinted on more than a million pieces of mail.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION.

The twenty-eight Parlors of Native Sons in San Francisco are arranging for a big celebration July 11 in recognition of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

The celebration will be in the form of a banquet, in the auditorium of Native Sons' Building, and an extensive program will be presented. Special recognition will be given the surviving original members of the Order.

Colonel Stewart has devoted many years to the study of aboriginal traits and legends. He finds that the Yokuts, like most other native tribes, appear to think that it is requisite for them to formulate a theory of creation. Recent investigations have led to the belief that the Yokuts comprised a branch of the ancient Putes of Nevada.

The diamond jubilee whist of Linda Rosa Parlor No. 170 N.D.G.W. was well attended, and many valuable prizes were awarded. ##### SCENE OF INTERESTING EXERCISES.

Saint Helena (Napa County)—June 21 an historic landmark near this place which had been restored through the efforts of the Order of Native Sons was the scene of interesting exercises. The building restored was one of the first flour mills operated in California and was erected by Dr. E. T. Bale in 1846. It is located near the highway leading from Saint Helena to Calistoga and about three miles from Saint Helena.

Many of the pioneer citizens of Napa County, their families and friends and others, journeyed to the old mill and its beautiful surroundings in the hills of Napa. A brass band played the national airs and the Landmarks Committee of the Grand Parlor N.S.G.W. conducted the exercises. Past Grand President Bismarck Bruck, former assemblyman, presided, and historical addresses were made by Assemblyman Frank L. Coombs, Judge Henry C. Gesford, ex-Congressman Joseph R. Knowland and Lewis F. Byington of the Landmarks Committee. All of the speakers are Past Grand Presidents of the Order, and Bruck, Coombs and Gesford were born

After the exercises, a most enjoyable reunion of Past Grand Presidents was held at the home of Bismarck Bruck in Saint Helena, tables being spread for luncheon under the broad oak trees near the house. The occasion was one of old-time California hospitality. Those present were Past Grands: Dr. Charles W. Decker, William H. Miller, Judge Frank H. Dunne, Judge Henry C. Gesford, Frank L. #### CALIFORNIA APPLE TREES 113 YEARS OLD STILL BEARING.

Apple trees planted in 1812 by the Russians at Fort Ross, Sonoma County, are bearing a good crop this year, according to a news dispatch emanating from Santa Rosa. In the memory of the oldest resident of the coast section, there has never been a year when the trees have not borne fruit, and have escaped blight of all kinds.

There is a legend about the 113-year-old apple trees that, when their roots were first pressed into California soil at Fort Ross, a priest blessed the ground and forbade any pest to invade the orchard and prevent an apple harvest.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

FOURTH OF JULY 1875 COMING ON Sunday, the nation's birthday was observed the following day. Throughout California the cities and towns celebrated Independence Day in the usual patriotic manner. At Sacramento the Society of California Pioneers had its usual colation, with addresses by Senator Newton Booth, James McClatchy, A. P. Catlin, Dr. R. W. Murphy and others, and at Los Angeles the entire population participated in the consecration of a new bell for the Catholic church.

San Francisco featured a parade, which was participated in by several native sons of the Golden West, at the invitation of General A. M. Winn. These natives were called together again July 11 and formed a society which grew into the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

No disastrous fires occurred, as the result of the Fourth's celebration, but there were several distressing accidents. At Rocklin, Placer County, three men were seriously burned by a premature explosion. At Sacramento T. C. May, using a pistol to start the boat races, accidentally shot and killed a lad named Fred M. Sevey. John Mayer, a 19-year-old boy, got intoxicated at Los Angeles and stabbed Editor Hawley of the "Star." In Round Valley, while the orchestra was playing a waltz at the ball, the musicians, one by one, dropped asleep, having been doped by some practical jokers, and the dance was forced to end.

Politics was now to the fore. Adding to the interest occasioned by the many contests was the innovation of women running for office. In San Francisco, Aug. Heslep, a newspaper reporter, sued John S. Enos, a politician, for $48 due for writing a Democratic speech.

The State of California's biennial report was issued this month. It showed the receipts totaled $7,427,606 and the expenditures $7,112,218. The state was being run within its income.

"ROME HOWLED."

Exports of wheat for the season were 263 shiploads, valued at $1,392,500. In addition 462,122 barrels of flour, valued at $2,140,011, was made. A well-known wheatraiser in San Joaquin County sold his crop, except one sack, for $1.70 per cwt. When the price went above $2 and there was a crowd of excited farmers on the grain rialto at Stockton, he went to the grain buyer who bought his crop and asked him to take the balance, one sack, at $2.50, so as to even things up. This the buyer, good naturedly, did. Then the seller sauntered over to the agitated group and announced that he had just sold the balance of his crop for $2.50 a cwt. The assertion was at once disputed by nearly everyone present. Then came the inevitable proposition to bet, and every dollar the grower had to put up was covered. Of course, he proved it, but when it was found his balance of crop consisted of but one sack, "Rome howled."

The Los Angeles school census showed 7,767 schoolchildren, but of this number 2,700 did not attend school.

Colton, San Bernardino County, was laid out this month and town lots sold. It was named after D. D. Colton, a director of the S. P. and a man prominent in public affairs.

The Amador branch railroad was incorporated, to build from Galt, Sacramento County, to Ione, Amador County, by the Southern Pacific. Work was to start immediately.

J. Boardman and A. McKenzie, mining a few miles east of Volcano, Amador County, found a decomposed quartz vein and took out $20,000 in a few days.

A grape vine was reported growing at Carpenteria, Santa Barbara County, that was forty-six inches in circumference a foot above the ground. It was next to the largest vine in the state.

It was estimated 250,000 sheep were being grazed on Mariposa County ranges and were nibbling away all the feed, leaving none for the cattlemen.

The San Fernando Oil Co., boring for oil near San Fernando, Los Angeles County, struck a 4,000-barrel-a-day flow of water and was more pleased with it than if oil had been found.

Placer County had twenty-eight sawmills ripping out boards and timbers. They expected to make 25,000,000 feet of lumber this year.

GIRL SHARPSHOOTER ADDS TO FAME.

A sheepman named Ashurst had a flock of sheep feeding in Santa Clara County. Following a bell wether, scared at something, the flock stampeded down a hill. At the bottom was a thick growth of poison oak shrubs. The leaders tangled in it and those following piled on top until the sheep stood nineteen feet high; 800 of them were suffocated in a few minutes.

Grasshoppers in Modoc County were voraciously eating every green thing except the pine trees. They were moving southward in immense swarms.

A ground squirrel was shot in Contra Costa County as it was making its homeward trip from a foraging excursion into a grain field. In its jaw pouches were found 730 grains of wheat. These weighed over an ounce. It could carry off several pounds in a day, if persistent, and a colony of the squirrels could store a ton in a season.

Miss Mollie Allen, the Lake County sharpshooter, was still adding to her fame. July 5 at a distance of seventy-five yards she put five bullets, one after the other, into the black spot of the ace of clubs. In two weeks this month she killed 530 ground squirrels and received for their tails a county bounty of $26.50.

Trout fishing on the Sacramento River in Shasta County was great. July 7 Geo. Goodman caught sixty-six and Geo. Chapman sixty-four in three hours. On the 8th Goodman caught ninety-nine and John Stine eighty-five in a few hours.

Dr. E. W. Hough, fishing from a wharf at Martinez, Contra Costa County, July 7, hooked a sturgeon that weighed 150 pounds and landed it after a hard struggle.

An editorial party of about fifty representatives of Eastern newspapers and periodicals came to the state July 16. They were entertained by the citizens of all the cities visited.

A. Block, a broker and merchant in San Francisco, created a sensation in business and financial circles by failing for $580,000 July 10. His failure was precipitated by the big break in the price of Ophir, of which stock he was a large holder.

Mrs. Nancy Kelsey, claimed to be the first White woman immigrant to come overland to California, was now living in Lompoc, Santa Barbara County. She, with a party of thirty-three men and her husband, left Independence, Missouri, in April 1841 and arrived at Marsh's Landing in October the same year. They went to Sutter's Fort and were there when gold was discovered. Kelsey amassed considerable wealth from gold mining and in 1859 went to Texas. Returning two years later a daughter was captured in a fight with Comanche Indians and scalped, but was rescued and recovered.

FIRES VISIT SEVERAL TOWNS.

Andrew J. Stevenson, who came to California from Scotland in 1849 and made money as a merchant in Yreka, Siskiyou County, but moved to San Francisco when that city began to grow, dropped dead in San Jose from heart disease July 8. He bought the corner of California and Montgomery streets, San Francisco, in 1857 and built the Stevenson block upon it; it was now worth a million. He bought 1,000 shares of Con. Virginia stock when it sold for less than $50 a share and sold it for over $1,000 a share, making another million. His income was over $1,000 a month. Owing to his eccentric manner in discussing men and measures he was never considered a political possibility.

Several California towns were visited by fires. July 6, twenty Tulare buildings were destroyed with a $60,000 loss. Half of Arcata, Humboldt County, went up in smoke July 5 and a $75,000 loss ensued. At Grass Valley, Nevada County, a $30,000 loss was occasioned July 27 by the burning of the Golden Eagle hotel and twelve

State Highway Funds—"After the smoke of politics has cleared away from the discussion of the gas tax," says State Treasurer Charles G. Johnson, "it is conservative to estimate that there will be $24,340,574 available for maintenance and reconstruction for the ensuing biennium, in addition to the $13,459,340 for new construction. The amounts available at present will provide for more work than has ever been performed by any highway commission, and if efficiently expended should take care of all legitimate demands for this biennium, without creating additional methods for taxing an already overburdened public."

Los Angeles County Gets Big Slice—California has distributed to the several counties, as their share of the motor vehicle registration fees for the half-year ended March 31, 1925, $3,058,482, which is one-half the fees collected by the state and an increase of $588,078 for the corresponding period ended March 31, 1924. The largest share of the "divvy" went to Los Angeles County, $1,220,966, which is nearly 40 percent of the total distributed. Alpine County received the smallest allotment, $83.62.

Auto Regulations—The last Legislature passed a bill, which has become a law, requiring an applicant for an operator's license to certify to his physical and mental qualifications and general fitness to operate a motor vehicle. It also raises the age limit of chauffeurs from 16 to 18 years, reduces the age limit for drivers of school busses from 21 to 18 years, and prohibits the issuance of chauffeur licenses to drunkards, narcotic drug addicts and persons who have ever been adjudged insane.

California Rodeo—Salinas, Monterey County, will stage its annual California rodeo, July 22-26. It will be a colorful affair, depicting the games, sports and festivities of the days of the Spanish dons.

other buildings. Seven buildings and a warehouse went up in smoke at Merced July 28, causing a $20,000 loss.

The stage from Fiddletown (now Oleta), Amador County, going to Latrobe, El Dorado County, was stopped July 5 by two highwaymen, who took the express box with $7,000 in amalgam.

Near Nacimiento, Monterey County, the down stage to San Luis Obispo was robbed July 15 by two men armed with shotguns. They took the express box but did not molest the eighteen passengers, nor did the latter molest the robbers.

Near San Marcos, San Diego County, three mounted highwaymen, after stopping the stage and taking the express box, robbed a sheepherder of his horse and $10.

In San Benito County July 26 a man named McClellan stopped his team in front of a roadside saloon on the wagon road. On his wagon was his 4-year-old son. An invitation to drink, from a bystander, caused him to leave the team and enter the saloon. While at the bar a man named Mankins remonstrated with McClellan for leaving his little boy alone on the wagon with the team. One word brought on another until both became angry. McClellan challenged the other to a shoot, and both drew revolvers. Mankins shot first, hitting McClellan in the breast, and as he fell his gun went off, but hit nothing. Mankins then shot McClellan twice, killing him, while the little boy on the wagon was pitifully crying "papa!"

A BIT O' FARMING

SECRETARY'S VISIT BENEFICIAL

THE VISIT OF SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE William M. Jardine to California in June cannot but be a step toward a better understanding, between state and nation, of things agricultural, and therefore a step toward the realization of the many problems California has in the farming industry. Conditions here differ very radically from those in the East and Middle West. The federal official who attempts to solve California agricultural problems by the rules used east of the Rocky Mountains, is quite likely to make some mistakes. Hence the visit of Secretary Jardine was welcomed by Californians, who have fresh in their minds the very beneficial results of the visit of his predecessor, the late Secretary Henry C. Wallace.

Secretary Jardine came into the state from the south, traversed its length, talked to those interested in agriculture, not only the leaders but the men in the ranks as well, and left with a pretty definite idea of what California has in the way of agriculture. Meetings were held for his benefit in Los Angeles, San Francisco, Fresno, Sacramento and other cities of the state. Here there were presented to him the difficulties that California farmers have found in advancing their industry, and solutions were suggested.

The secretary often has said he has no specific for the cure of agricultural ills, but he has an understanding and a grasp that undoubtedly will bring relief for some of the more pressing problems. Nowhere in the nation is there an agriculture as diversified as that of California, nowhere do climatic and soil conditions vary so greatly, nowhere are marketing problems so difficult. Realizing this, Secretary Jardine may be expected to give some real thought to the agricultural situation in California. Not that the California farmer is begging for help, for he is not. He is solving his difficulties as best he may, but he realizes he needs help, and is willing to accept it. But he is not standing idle in the face of difficulties, as witness the lead he has taken in co-operative marketing. Help comes to him who himself helps, and by this rule, the agriculturist of this state is entitled to any assistance the government may be able to render him.

GRAIN MARKET NEWS.

California generally is looked upon as a state devoted principally to horticulture, but those who have at their disposal the statistics of the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service, will see that grain still leads in the value of farm products. Hay also is placed above fruit in value. The horticulture development in California has been spectacular. It has been accompanied by huge profits in some instances, by losses in others. It is, in brief, just a sample of agriculture, for which there is no rule for certain success. But its development has overshadowed the more prosaic grain farming, and the fields of wheat and barley have been given little attention of late years. Hence it is found that while the co-operative marketing associations handling fruits have available all sorts of market data, such as world supply and demand, holdover, etc., up to this time the only information on the grain market situation has been in the hands of the dealers.

Realizing this, L. M. Jeffers, head of the grain standardization division of the California Department of Agriculture, took steps to secure for the grain farmer information that would enable him to know what his produce is worth. It has recently been announced, following the visit last month to California of G. A. Collier, marketing specialist of the United States Department of Agriculture, that a grain news letter for California will be furnished from this date. California supplies most of the nation's exports in brewing barley, but it is the opinion of those who understand the situation that the grain farmer receives somewhat less than his barley is worth, its quality considered, estimates running as high as $10 a ton at certain seasons. The news service, which will come over the government's leased wire to San Francisco, and mailed from there, will give information regarding world conditions on grain crops and hay, and should result in better prices through a more thorough knowledge of what the crop really is worth.

AGRICULTURAL LEGISLATION.

Fifty-three agricultural bills passed the recent Legislature and came before the governor for signature. Twenty-seven of these were signed, and twenty-six were vetoed. Some of the vetoes were inevitable, for the bills were not properly drawn, and their disapproval was not unexpected. However, it came as a hard blow to a part of the livestock interests of the state, at least, that the tuberculosis eradication measures were not signed. These were the first real steps in the elimination of bovine tuberculosis, and two years had been spent in considering similar legislation in other states and embodying the best found there in the California bills. The commission merchants bill, to regulate the business of commission brokers, also was vetoed. In some quarters, there was much disappointment concerning this. Another bill desired by agriculture was that placing livestock inspectors under the jurisdiction of the State Department of Agriculture, much as now are the horticultural commissioners, but this, too, was among those vetoed.

On the other hand, the egg standardization bills were signed; the quarantine provisions for poultry and livestock, making disease control legal, were approved; the canned fruit standardization bill became a law; the mealie bug provision is now on the statutes; the standardization law was strengthened, and the foot-and-mouth disease losses were paid.

CITRUS WHITE FLY.

In the recent Legislature, a bill was passed providing an appropriation of $100,000 for the eradication of the citrus white fly in California. This pest exists only in Yuba City, Marysville and Sacramento, and existing there does little or no damage. However, it is quite properly felt that this insect, should it be carried to the citrus districts of the southern part of the state, would become a serious menace, as it has in Florida. So it was that the southern growers introduced the bill calling for the eradication of the pest in the state and providing funds for the work.

Governor Richardson, however, has changed the situation by his action. He did not veto the measure, nor did he approve it. But this he did: the appropriation of $100,000 was reduced to $40,000, and that was made contingent upon the raising of an equal amount by the growers of the southern part of the state. The governor contends that $80,000 will handle the situation. This puts the matter up quite squarely to the southern citrus men. If they feel as strongly as indicated in their campaign for the passage of the bill, there is little question they will in some manner raise the required $40,000.

PRUNING FOR SHRUBS.

It is not too late to prune spring blooming shrubs, although this may not be safely postponed much longer. Deciduous shrubs that make for beautiful display in the first warm weather of the year must be given this attention, if they are to be in the best condition for next year. It is well to remember, also, that shrubs—most of them at least—must be kept back by pruning or they will eventually become so large as to lose their proportion in the setting for which they were intended. And, too, many shrubs that will yield to light pruning at an early age and that thus can be kept within the size limits desired, suffer heavily from the shock of a too-heavy pruning later. Another thing to be remembered is that a shrub can be shaped more easily and will hold its beauty of foliage better, if pruned each summer than if permitted to grow too large and then is cut back heavily. It will pay to prune spring-flowering deciduous shrubs each year.

ALMOND GROWERS MEET.

Almond growers of California met last month at the Sacramento plant of the exchange, not as members of the marketing organization, but as producers, in an effort to solve some of their production problems. The almond-growers have solved their marketing difficulties in pretty good shape, their co-operative association being one of the best in the state, and they are getting prices that are satisfactory for the almonds they raise.

However, crop conditions in the past few years have not been the best. Almonds have not always borne the crops expected. It was in an effort to find why, that this meeting was called. Three principal topics were discussed: the proposed almond production cost survey, by Prof. R. L. Adams of the University of California; almond orchard heating, by Prof. A. H. Hendrickson of the University of California; and soil practices, relating particularly to deep tillage, by Farm Adviser L. Y. Leonard of Sacramento County. The discussions were helpful and much good will result; but the most good that is bound to come from this meeting is the voluntary banding together of the producers to solve their problems in production, in much the same manner as they have overcome their marketing obstacles.

THE CAR SITUATION.

California deciduous fruits, including grapes, went forward to Eastern markets last year without loss from lack of cars in which to ship them. The light crop, and the unusual effort made by the railroad companies to furnish cars, combined to make the situation normal the first time in many years. However, the 1925 crop presents an aspect of more serious nature. The crop will, in all probability, be a record-breaker. True, the railroads have more refrigerator cars available, but whether there will be enough to prevent the losses that occurred in 1923 and previous years the growers do not know. The railroads say there will be plenty, although estimates agree the shipments this year will run between 90,000 and 95,000 cars. Of these, about 75,000 will be grapes.

There probably will be no congestion until the juice grape season is reached, and if cars are handled promptly it may be there will be no fruit left on the vines this year. Certain it is, the crops must be handled well this season if there is to be profit for the growers, in view of the size of the output the state is to make. However, Eastern crops are short along almost all lines, and with standards of quality and maturity held high, there is every reason to believe this will be a profitable year for horticultural California.

PEAR BLIGHT BAD.

Pear blight, even more than usual, is making inroads on the orchards in nearly every district in the state this year. Prompt cutting out of the affected parts and thorough disinfection of cutting tools, is the only sure method of fighting the disease. There have been many claims made for nostrums to be injected in the trees or painted on them, but until tests are made under conditions that prevail in the districts where

PAST GRAND PRESIDENT HOSTESS AT DELIGHTFUL GRAND PARLOR AFFAIR.

PLACERVILLE—PAST GRAND PRESIDENT Emma W. Humphrey of Reno, Nevada State, entertained at a most delightful dinner June 16 the representatives to the Grand Parlor in session here from the Subordinate Parlors instituted during her term as Grand President, 1909-10. All arrangements were made by the women of the Presbyterian Church, the dinner being served in the church parlor, which was decorated with hanging baskets of pink roses, Mariposa lilies, etc. The table, decorated in pink rambler roses and ferns, was a thing of beauty; in the center was a miniature lake, bordered with greenery and flowers. At each place was a pink crepe-paper tulip and a pink rosebud place-card. Each guest was presented a corsage bouquet of old-fashioned flowers from Placerville's gardens.

The nine Parlors instituted by Mrs. Humphrey now have a combined membership of 786 and were represented in the Grand Parlor by nineteen delegates and two grand officers. Grand President Catherine E. Gloster was a guest of honor, and extended greetings to the group. It was decided to make the gathering an annual affair, and Castro 178 (San Francisco) will be the hostess at Sacramento next year. Those seated at the festive board, and the Parlors they represented, included: Snow Peak 176—Katherine Kaler. Fruitvale 177—Agnes Grant, Nettie Christensen, Christine Harrison. Castro 178—Gabrielle Sandersfeldt, Sadie McGrath, Estelle Hutchinson, Margaret Griffith, Grand Trustee Mae L. Edwards. San Juan Bautista 179—Blanche Taix. Ano Nuevo 180—Grace Luis. El Carmelo 181—Josephine Johnson, Rena Mathias, Alice Mathias. Laura Loma 182—Isabel Cahill. Twin Peaks 184—Harriet Past Grand President Humphrey was the toastmistress, and in announcing a speaker from each Parlor read from the 1910 proceedings a record of her official visit to the Parlor. Those who responded were: Katherine Kaler for Snow Peak, Agnes Grant for Fruitvale, Gabrielle Sandersfeldt for Castro, Blanche Taix for San Juan Bautista, Grace Luis for Ano Nuevo, Josephine Johnson for El Carmelo, Isabel Cahill for Laura Loma, Harriet Cate for Twin Peaks, Grand Trustee Margaret Kelly for El Dorado. "Stunts" were contributed by Emma Wall and Eugenie Schwarz of Twin Peaks. As a token of the esteem in which she is held, Mrs. Humphrey was presented with a silver cake plate with the names of "her" Parlors engraved thereon.

written by Alta Hengy. It depicted the arrival up the Feather River of a shipload of pirates, who unearthed hidden treasure which was laid at the feet of Miss Gloster.

One candidate was initiated during the evening, and a sumptuous banquet was served. Visitors were present from Alturas and Chico. Members of the Parlor were inspired with the words of patriotism expressed by Grand President Gloster in the course of an address in which she highly commended Gold of Ophir's efforts to preserve pioneer relics and praised its officers for their splendid work. In charge of the evening's festivities were the following committees: Entertainment—Florence Boyle, Gladys Cress, Fern Damon, Thelma Huffman, Alta Hengy, Hazel Stover. Refreshments—Hattie McCoy, Sonora Steadman, Fredericka Braden, Maggie Bowers. Decorations—Thelma Huffman, Fern Damon.

Coming, Annual Bay Outing.

Oakland—Aloha 106 has elected Lorena Goldsworthy president for the new term; officers will be installed during July. For the benefit of its Admission Day fund, the Parlor had a whist party June 23, the committee in charge being Irene Printzlow (chairman), Myrtle Shannon, Alice Miller, Lorene Goldsworthy, Florence McLean, Jennie Gannon.

The annual boat ride of Aloha and Athens 195 N.S.G.W. is billed for July 19. The outing will be on the bay, with a stop at Paradise Cove for dancing. The joint committee is working hard to make this affair a big success.

Pilgrimage to Mission.

Santa Barbara—Reina del Mar No. 126 observed Flag Day, June 14, with a pilgrimage to Santa Ynez Mission. The purpose was to inspect the numerous repairs recently made there by the Parlor and to familiarize the people with the history of the three missions in Santa Barbara County.

Pioneers and War Mothers Guests.
Roseville—La Rosa 191 was hostess to the Pioneers and war mothers of Placer County May 20. The hall was beautifully decorated in flowers and greenery, and a pleasing program was presented. Among the speakers was Past Grand President Ema Gett of Sacramento. Delicious refreshments were served, and the guests were presented with little tokens.

Grammar-School Pupils Entertain.

Manteca—Grand President Catherine E. Gloster officially visited Phoebe A. Hearst 214 May 29, when visitors were present from Tracy, Lodi and Stockton. A dinner preceded the meeting. Two candidates were initiated, the officers officiating being highly complimented by Miss Gloster. At the conclusion of the ceremonies grammar-school pupils appeared in a program of dances.

Traveler Dined, Bride-to-Be Showered.

Hollister—On the eve of her departure for a tour of Europe, Recording Secretary and Past President Mollie Daveggio was the guest of honor at a dinner given by the Past Presidents' Club and the officers of Copa de Oro 105 June 8. During the serving of the various courses, games appropriate to the occasion were enjoyed. Mrs. Daveggio was the recipient of a traveler's case and each person present presented her with a sealed message to be read during her journey, upon the particular date designated on the envelope. Later, all adjourned to the home of Mrs. Justina Lewis, where a few hours were spent at bridge.

June 12 Ruth Gilbert was the motif of a happy kitchen shower, given in honor of her approaching marriage. Dainty refreshments were served and the fortunate winners of articles from the bride's cake were Mildred Waters, who secured the dime, "K" Black, who cut the thimble, and Mollie Daveggio, who captured the ring.

Diamond Jubilee Plans Outlined.

Daly City—El Carmelo 181 elected officers June 3, Anna Kunze Bauer being chosen president. Two candidates were initiated. Professor W. J. Savage was the toastmaster at a banquet which followed, attended by members of El Carmelo 256 N.S.G.W. Among the speakers was Professor George H. Barron, who spoke on the diamond jubilee celebration.

The Parlor's drill team had a dance June 9, Lorraine Wall being chairman of the committee in charge; Miss Laura Figone is major of the drill team. Mrs. Madeleine Fellows had charge of El Carmelo's June whist party. The Parlor's history club has discontinued meetings until September.

Mothers Entertained.

Grass Valley—Manzanita 29's Mothers' Day entertainment May 19 was a huge success and largely attended. A banquet was served at 6 o'clock under the supervision of Mrs. Maude Waldron, and at the banquet board toasts were responded to by Financial Secretary Ella Ridge, Past Grand President Allison F. Watt, President Esther Fuller, Past President Annie F. Conlin, D.D.G.P. Alynne McGagin. A delightful musical drama, supervised by Mrs. Louise Wales, followed the banquet.

Flag Day Celebrated.

Stockton—Grand President Catherine E. Glosster officially visited the largest Parlor, Joaquin 5, May 26. More than 200, including representatives of nearby Parlors, were in attendance at the roof garden dinner and reception which followed. There was a program of Oriental and Grecian dances and vocal solos. Streamers of orchid maline and baskets of orchid chrysanthemums featured the decorations. President Marian Stormes was hostess of the evening and Mrs. Mattie Porter was chairwoman of the entertainment committee.

June 10 the Parlor celebrated Flag Day. Readings were given by Miss Lea, Mrs. Weber, Miss Teft, Mrs. Snyder. On account of sickness, Grand Trustee Lorraine Kalck could not attend the Placerville Grand Parlor and was forced to withdraw as a grand marshal candidate.

New Grand President Visits.

Berkeley—Grand President Sue J. Irwin began her official visits to the Subordinate Parlors June 23, when she was the guest of Ursula 1 (Jackson), California 161 (Amador City), Forrest 86 (Plymouth) in joint session at Jackson. June 25 she visited Ruby 46 (Murphys), Princess 84 (Angels Camp), San Andreas 113 (San Andreas) in joint session at Murphys. June 26 Amapola 80 (Sutter Creek) was visited, and the 27th Chispa 40 (Ione).

PERSONAL MENTION.

Following the Placerville Grand Parlor session, Past Grand Presidents Cora B. Sifford of Ventura and Ema Gett of Sacramento accompanied Past Grand President Emma W. Humphrey to her Sierra Valley home, where they will be guests for the summer.

Gertrude Ross, a member of Linda Rosa 170 (San Francisco) and Fred Koenig, affiliated with Piedmont 120 (Oakland) were wedded in San Francisco June 6. The honeymoon was spent seeing the beauties of their sunny California.

SANTA CLARA COUNTY PIONEERS IN ANNUAL REUNION.

San Jose—The California Pioneers of Santa Clara County held their annual meeting June 6 in the pioneer cabin at Alum Rock Park. President W. E. Gage and Secretary Alex. P. Murgotten reviewed the work of the past year and related early-day incidents.

Edward J. Lynch of San Francisco, Junior Past Grand President N.S.G.W., was the chief speaker of the day, his subject being "The Pioneer Men and Women of California." He paid a tribute to the sterling qualities of the California Pioneers and deprecated attempts of certain authors and scenario writers to picture them as rough, uncouth and law-defying.

Lynch stated that one of the main purposes of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West is to cherish the memory of those courageous men and women of early days who had passed on, to keep alive the traditions of early California and to foster the study of the state's history. At the conclusion of his address Lynch was honored by being elected an honorary member of the California Pioneers of Santa Clara County.

BIT O' FARMING

the blight is running, it is well to hold to the tried method.

Indeed, there has been none of these cures that has come anywhere near controlling blight, and as in many other lines of agriculture, farmers have lost not only the money spent for them, but valuable trees that could have been saved by the approved methods. Consult some agricultural authority in whom you have confidence, and who is backed by some authority, before you adopt any of these patent medicines for your orchard.

VALENCIA ORANGE SHOW.

In the fifth annual Valencia Orange Show, held at Anaheim, Orange County, the exhibits showed the value of this exhibition, which now has become a permanent institution. The quality of the displays indicated there are being made serious efforts to improve the quality of citrus products, and with quality ever improved, there need be no disquiet as to the future of the markets. The forty boxes of valencias that won the grand sweepstakes, exhibited by the Mutual Orange Distributors of Porterville, have seldom, if ever, been exceeded in quality in California or elsewhere. The same may be said of most of the other exhibits. This year the show was on grounds that are to be its permanent home, and this has made for the improvement of the exposition throughout.

Millions Redwoods Planted—With 1,458,700 young redwoods, Douglas fir, spruce and cedar planted on cutover lands in the forest regions of Mendocino and Humboldt Counties, a new reforestation record was set for California during the past winter, according to officers of the California Forest Protective Association.

In Memoriam

HENRY A. CRANE, HENRY IVERSON.

To the Officers and Members of Mount Tamapais Parlor No. 64 N.S.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions of respect to the memory of our departed brothers, respectfully submit the following:

Whereas, The Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has deemed it fit to call to the Heavenly Parlor our High our dearly beloved brothers, Henry A. Crane and Henry Iverson, thereby causing our Parlor to suffer the loss of active and pioneer members and true and respected citizens; therefore, be it Resolved, By this Parlor in token of sympathy for the bereaved members of the deceaseds' families and our sense of the Order's loss, that a copy of this resolution be spread upon the minutes of this meeting, that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication and that a copy be forwarded to the bereaved families.

Respectfully submitted,

CHAS. LOCATI,
JOHN STRECKFUS,
GEORGE STRECKFUS,

San Rafael, May 26, 1925.

BOARD GRAND OFFICERS MEETS;

NEW GRAND DIRECTOR CHOSEN.

SAN FRANCISCO—WITH GRAND PRESIDENT Fletcher A. Cutler presiding, the Board of Grand Officers elected at the San Bernardino Grand Parlor in May held its first meeting June 13. In attendance, in addition to Judge Cutler, were Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, John T. Newell, Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, John T. Skelton, John S. Ramsay, Alfred H. McKnew. Considerable business of a routine nature was transacted.

John Andreson Jr. of Arrowhead 110 (San Bernardino) was unanimously elected Grand Director, and was seated at the council-board.

Arthur E. Curtis (Precita 187) and Joseph B. Keenan (Niantic 105) were elected to represent the Grand Parlor in the San Francisco Native Sons' Hall Association.

July 1, 1925, to March 31, 1926, was fixed as the period for the annual Grand Parlor trophy banner contests among the Subordinate Parlors.

Grand Secretary Regan was directed to procure a complete set of new regalias for the grand officers.

A silk State (Bear) Flag was ordered purchased, to be presented to the American Legion of California by Grand President Cutler.

It was declared the sense of the board that Subordinate Parlors of the several counties should arrange to fittingly observe the Order's fiftieth anniversary, July 11.

Grand President Cutler, Junior Past Grand President Lynch and Senator James D. Phelan (Pacific 10) were named a committee to ascertain the facts regarding the proposed restoration of the California missions.

Grand President Cutler announced that he is working on a class initiation to be held in the California Redwood Park at Santa Cruz, to ## Cabrillo Lives Again.

Ventura—Cabrillo 114 has been revived, through the efforts of Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, and has outlined a program of activities that will insure its permanency and progress. May 27 officers were chosen, Adolfo Camarillo being selected for president and J. H. Morrison for financial and recording secretary.

Representatives of Los Angeles 45, San Diego 108, Ramona 109, Arrowhead 110, Santa Barbara 116, Corona 196, Long Beach 239, Pasadena 259, Vaquero 262 and Sepulveda 263 were guests of the Parlor May 31 at Seaside Park, when a class of candidates were initiated by the following ritual team: Grand Trustee John T. Newell, president; Adolph G. Rivera, senior past president; Earl Lemoine, junior past president; Sidney Witkowski, first vice-president; John Topham, second vice-president; Joseph A. Adair Sr., third vice-president; Albert Crone, marshal; William G. Newell, inside sentinel; Andrew Stodel, outside sentinel; Julius W. Krause, organist. Enthusiastic addresses were made by James Hollingsworth, District Attorney Edward Henderson, Judge Robert M. Clarke, Sidney Witkowski. Accompanied by the following letter, Mrs. Cora B. Sifford, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., presented a bouquet of beautiful golden flowers: "To the officers and members of Cabrillo Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West: I extend to you my greetings and congratulations. No member of your Order holds for you a more sincere wish for your future prosperity than your sister member, who is proud so to subscribe herself, daughter of a native son, wife of a native son, mother of a native son, and Past Grand President of the Native Daughters of the Golden West."

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, Cabrillo served a splendid barbecue to the visiting Native Sons, the womenfolk accompanying them and the Pioneers. Fred Hartman was chairman of the Parlor's barbecue committee. On the entertainment committee were G. Daly, A. Camarillo, R. Sheridan and J. H. Morrison, H. F. Orr, C. P. Daly, J. A. Lagomarsino made up the tables and grounds committee. Among the members of the revived Parlor are representative citizens from all sections of Ventura County.

The opening day of the Ventura County Fair will be a Spanish day, in charge of Adolfo Camarillo, president Cabrillo, who will have the full support of the Parlor. A parade will be featured and there will be Spanish dances, music, etc. The colorful costumes of the old Castilian times will be revived.

To Observe Anniversary.

San Rafael—Mount Tamalpais 64 paid a return visit June 17 to Mission 38 (San Francisco) and the Parlor's ritual team initiated a class of candidates for 38. The ceremonies were followed by a banquet.

July 13 the Parlor will observe the fortieth anniversary of its institution with an old-timers' night. An effort will be made to have present the few surviving charter members, among them Frank M. Angelotti, former chief justice of the California Supreme Court. Many of its members having achieved great distinction in public and private life, Mount Tamalpais has become quite prominent in the state. South San Francisco 157 and Nicasio 183 have been invited, and the occasion promises to be another "red-letter" night for the Parlor. Officers will also be installed.

Arrangements are being perfected by the Parlor to be represented in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant with a float depicting the earliest times of Marin County. San Rafael was one of the last places at which a mission was established, but there is now no trace of the building. All that remains of an extensive orchard and vineyard that surrounded the adobe church and administration buildings are a few pear trees, planted by the padres in 1817 and still bearing delicious fruit.

Outing Nets $800.

Sacramento—June 11 all the Sacramento County Parlor of Native Sons and Native Daughters joined forces for an outing at Joyland, with the intent of raising funds to participate in the monster September 9 celebration at San Francisco. The affair was most successful, and $800 was netted to equip and uniform a drum corps.

The Parlor have secured headquarters at the Saint Francis for Admission Day, and will entertain extensively.

Sponsors Boy Scout Troop.

Ukiah—As a result of the successful efforts of a committee composed of L. E. Waugh, Chas. Crawford, A. E. Gustafson, Roy C. York, Ukiah 71 is now sponsoring Troop 24 of the Redwood Council, Boy Scouts of America.

The scouts and their parents were special guests of the Parlor June 5, when demonstrations of scouting were featured. The twenty members of the troop appeared in full uniform. Scouts Billy Held, Louis Johnson, Cleveland Hopkins, Ronald Fulkerson are the patrol leaders and Roy Gilmore is the scribe. As emblems of the four patrols the pine tree, the panther, the stag and the eagle have been selected.

"Viggittillions" Gather 'Em In.

Tuolumne—Two teams, one from Lodi 18 and the other from Yosemite 24 (Merced), exemplified the ritual here June 20 in the presence of a large gathering of Native Sons for the benefit of candidates presented by Modesto 11, Tuolumne 144 and Columbia 258. Among the visitors were Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, John T. Newell, Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez and John S. Ramsay.

A banquet followed the ceremonies, among the speakers being Grand President Cutler, Grand First Vice-president Welch and Grand Trustee Newell. A large class of recruits, including the grand officers, were made acquainted with the mysteries of the "Viggittillions," the fun-dispensing "side degree" of Tuolumne. During the evening Grand President Cutler was presented, by Tuolumne and Columbia, with a handsomely engraved fob, made of gold from his native county, Tuolumne.

Memorial Day's Observance.

Ferndale—The observance of Memorial Day, May 30, here was in charge of Ferndale 93 and participated in by the citizens generally. A parade was formed and proceeded to the State theater, where the following program was presented, C. H. Rasmussen, president of the Parlor, presiding: Selection, Loleta band; prayer, Rev. Jessie Heath; vocal solo, Miss Edna Lund, Leslie Clausen accompanying; recitation, Miss Marion Dietrichsen; vocal duet, H. W. Auten, Darrel Godfrey; vocal solo, Raymond Grinsell; oration, State Senator Hans C. Nelson.

At the program's conclusion the procession was reformed and proceeded to the Ferndale cemetery, where the graves of the soldier and sailor dead were decorated. At the "unknown's" grave, a salute was fired and taps were sounded, Wesley Ambrosini gave a recitation and the as-

Campfire Permits Required.—Campfire permits must again be secured this year before it is permissible to build any kind of an outdoor fire on National Forest lands in California, according to announcement by the United States Forest Service headquarters in San Francisco. This regulation covers not only ordinary outdoor camp and picnic fires, but fire in any kind of a stove using gasoline, coal oil, wood or other forms of fuel. Permits may be secured free of charge from any federal forest officer, state fire warden and other designated agencies such as automobile clubs and sporting goods stores.

High School Dedicated.

Santa Rosa—Santa Rosa's new $500,000 Union high-school, one of the finest school buildings in the state and a credit to any community, was formally dedicated to truth, liberty and toleration by the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West May 24. The dedicatory ceremonies were conducted by the following grand officers: Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson. Other grand officers in attendance included: Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Marshal Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez and Alfred H. McKnew, Grand Organist Henry G. W. Dinkelspiel. A splendid program of singing and addresses was presented in the school's auditorium.

Grand President Cutler delivered the address of dedication, which was a masterpiece of eloquence, and Junior Past Grand President Lynch spoke of the Order's aims and accomplishments. President M. T. Vaughan, on behalf of Santa Rosa 28, presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the school and they were accepted by Principal Gardner W. Spring.

Big Undertaking.

San Diego—A joint committee of thirty-five representatives of San Diego 108 and fifteen representatives of San Diego 208 N.D.G.W. organized June 3 to formulate plans for the erection of the Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo monument on Point Loma, spoken of as "the statue of Liberty of the West Coast." These officers were selected: Edgar Hastings, chairman; Miss Marion Stough, vice-chairman; Daniel Shaffer, secretary; Rufus Choate, treasurer.

An effort is to be made to obtain the co-operation of the various service clubs, civic organizations and state societies in raising funds for the monument, which, it is pointed out, is not an exclusive proposition representing only the Native Sons and Native Daughters, but of interest to every resident of California.

sented at the Fort Bragg grammar-school graduation exercises, which were in keeping with California's diamond jubilee year. The costumes and scenery were excellent, and were designed and executed by the pupils and teachers under the supervision of Professor P. W. Smith, a member of Auburn 59.

The program, depicting the early history of the state in tableaux, included: The coming of Portola, the old Spanish missions, Spanish dances, the discovery of gold, Sunday morning in a mining camp, the raising of the Bear Flag and the American Flag at Sonoma, the great seal of the State of California.

The Fourth at Crestline.

San Bernardino—In observance of the one hundred and forty-ninth anniversary of American independence, Arrowhead 110 will feature at its attractive clubhouse at Crestline, in the San Bernardino Mountains, July 4, an all-day dance and barbecue. All Natives and their families are extended an invitation. Arrowhead's established reputation assures a wonderful time.

Good Dividend.

Palo Alto—At a meeting of the directors of the hall association of Palo Alto 216 June 4 a six percent dividend was declared. The association is in splendid condition, and each year's operations have warranted an increased dividend. July 1 the par value of the stock will be increased from $50 to $52.50 a share; the book valuation is $87 per share.

Officers and directors of the association include: E. A. Hettinger, president; Sam Vandervoort, vice-president; I. P. Vandervoort, treasurer; C. E. Tully, secretary; George W. Tinney, W. G. Alexander, J. F. Byxbee, T. C. Miller and James Farmin.

Neighboring Parlor Visited.

Sacramento—June 19 the initiatory team and several members of Sutter Fort 241 journeyed to Sutter Creek, Amador County, and initiated several candidates for Amador 17. In attendance were Past Grand President Clarence E. Jarvis, Grand Trustee John T. Skelton and Grand Trustee John T. Newell. The visitors and candidates were entertained and banqueted to the complete satisfaction of all concerned. June 24 officers of Sutter Fort were elected, George Miller being selected for president. The monthly initiation was also conducted, followed by refreshments and an entertainment under the direction of Past President T. S. Lages.

A decided increase in attendance at the regular meetings of the Parlor has been noticed the past couple of months, and prospects for an active fall term are exceptionally good. Several of the old-timers are showing renewed interest and the new members are stepping right into line.

AMADOR NATIVE SON PASSES ON.

Upper Lake (Lake County)—William Jesse Frakes, affiliated with Amador Parlor No. 17 N.S.G.W. (Sutter Creek), died May 17. Among the surviving relatives are a sister, Miss Laura J. Frakes, former Grand Secretary N.D.G.W., and a brother, Fred Frakes (Amador 17 N.S.G.W.).

Deceased was born at Sutter Creek, Amador County, April 26, 1870, being the son of Thomas Frakes, a Pioneer of 1849, and Elizabeth Knox, a Pioneer of 1852, who were wedded at Volcano, Amador County, in 1856.

Independence Day—The American Legion, assisted by the Native Sons, will feature a Fourth of July celebration at Santa Barbara.

Dons' Festival—The Dons of Peralta will have their annual festival at Oakland, August 27-29.

HOLLYWOOD'S TREE PLANTING DEVELOPS INTEREST

Harry Barratt

FURTHER DEVELOPING INTEREST IN the community support for the Hollywood tree planting plan, as directed by by the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce, the fourth memorial tree was planted as a part of the inspirational program which is expected to develop into a sweeping determination to plant a tree on every available space in Hollywood.

The fourth memorial tree was planted by Miss Mary Pickford, screen celebrity who is known the universe over as the "World's Sweetheart," June 2, as a memorial to the Imperial Divan, Order of the Mystic Shrine. The planting was carried out on property owned by Sid Grauman, and on which a large theater is to be erected. The tree itself is the first of a series which, ultimately, will form a colonnade leading to the foyer of the new theater.

This planting was a feature part of Hollywood day during the Shrine convention, and it drew many thousands of persons, local as well as visiting Shriners, to the spot designated for the memorial ceremonial. Miss Pickford played her part admirably and was capably supported by Little Mickey McBan, juvenile screen star, Grauman and members of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce executive staff, together with members of the special tree planting committee.

Other memorial trees have been planted on the Hollywood and Fairfax high-school grounds, and Le Conte junior high-school lot, by Carrie Jacobs Bond, John Steven McGroarty and Colonel Joseph D. Leitch, respectively.

It is the purpose of the tree planting committee to extend its operative activities during the year to include every section of the community, and to bring into active participation every club and organization in Hollywood in the effort to add beauty to Hollywood through the establishing of more trees in all sections.

The autumn campaign having this end in contemplation is expected to start with the planting of a tree in memory of the late Rev. Frank Roudenbush, first rector of Saint Thomas Episcopal Church. The tree committee has been asked to develop an appropriate program for this event, and purposes to make the occasion one of moment to the community. As yet no specific place has been selected as a site for this memorial tree, but it is expected the planting will take place on ground now dedicated to church purposes at the northwest corner of Hollywood boulevard and Gardner street.

During the past few weeks members of the tree planting committee and the executive staff of the Chamber of Commerce have carried on an extensive drive to develop community interest in the planting plan. Arthur H. Darling, chairman of the committee, Harry Barratt, secretary of the committee, Carl Bush, executive secretary of the chamber, Mrs. R. R. Russell, member of the committee, and others interested in the plan have addressed many meetings for the purpose of obtaining pledges of support for the scheme.

While the Hollywood tree planting plan has for its basic principle the general planting of more trees in Hollywood it contemplates, also, the saving of those already established, and supports the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce's determined fight against destruction of these or the sacrificing of them for any purpose whatsoever.

As an evidence of the determined character of this contest to curb the disposition to sacrifice trees, chamber authorities point out that in the past year not more than twenty-five percent

PIONEER TIMES RECALLED

(BERTHA A. BRIGGS.)

P ECUILIARLY FITTING TO THE HISTORY and surroundings of Placerville, El Dorado County, were the arrangements for the annual dinner of the Past Grand Presidents of the Native Daughters of the Golden West, June 17, the unique details of which were conceived and carried out by P.G.P. Cora B. Sifford of Ventura. The dinner was served in the Methodist Church, founded in 1851, the fifth oldest living church in California. The banquet hall was effectively furnished with furniture of the pioneer period, including a spinning-wheel, and was lighted with miners' lanterns and candles in old-time sticks, while upon the floor were strewn many rag rugs. Bouquets of sweet william adorned the tables, and the favors were dolls in pioneer dress. Old-fashioned castors, fruit bowls and soup tureens, with pewter cutlery, made the table truly pioneer in its fittings.

Menu cards with water-color sketches of Marshall's cabin announced the following courses: Shirt-tail Bend rib-warmer, memories of Chesapeake Bay, Sacramento River salmon paved with cheese, high-grade olives, Texas Hill onions, Coon Hollow pickles, Coloma Valley muligan, Spanish Ravine nuggets, Slug Gulch peas, rifle biscuits, Cedar Ravine lettuce with Mormon Island dressing, Hangtown tailings, cemented gravel, assorted quartz rocks, Marshall's delight en tasse.

Past Grand Presidents, eighteen in number, in the costumes of the days of '49, entered the room to the strains of "When You and I Were Young, Maggie," with P.G.P. Alison F. Watt presiding at the old organ. During the serving of the various courses reminiscences of the early days of the Order and of previous sessions were entertainingly recounted by Carrie Roesch-Durham, Ariana W. Stirling, Ema Gett and others. P.G.P. Sifford read from the original manuscript the first toast given by Senior Past Grand President Tina L. Kane at a banquet given by the N.D.G.W. and the N.S.G.W. in 1886. Community singing of many old-time songs added to the happiness of the occasion, which was unanimously voted to be the most enjoyable ever given by the Past Grand Presidents.

At the close all joined in dancing the Virginia reel and bowed themselves out, singing "Good Night, Ladies," to the women of the church who had so wholeheartedly entered into the arrangements by securing the furnishings of the room and by appearing in pioneer costumes themselves. Those present were: Carrie Roesch-Durham, Mae B. Wilkin, Cora B. Sifford, Ema Gett, Ariana W. Stirling, Dr. Eva B. Rasmussen, Emma Gruber-Foley, Anna L. Monroe, Emma W. Humphrey, Mamie G. Peyton, Alison F. Watt, Grace S. Stoermer, Addie L. Mosher, Mary E. Bell, Bertha A. Briggs, Dr. Victory A. Derrick, Mattie M. Stein, Amy V. McAvoy.

HOLLYWOOD BOWL CONCERTS.

NEW LONG BEACH THEATER COSTS MORE THAN MILLION DOLLARS

J. Oliver Brison

(PUBLICITY SECRETARY, LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

THE IMPORTANCE OF LONG BEACH as an amusement and recreation center was again demonstrated last week with the opening to the public of the new Long Beach West Coast theater, representing a total cost of $1,150,000. Also, during the same week, the formal dedication and opening of a new $550,000 Y. W. C. A. and the beginning of construction on the Pacific Coast Club on Ocean avenue, representing, when completed, a total cost of $1,400,000. All of finest amusement edifices on the Pacific Coast. There may be larger theaters on the coast than the new Long Beach theater, but there is none of greater beauty in exterior or interior architectural design or perfection, being the latest in design and construction of a string of approximately 150 theaters to be built by this well-known theatrical corporation. The Long Beach theater represents the very latest in modern theater construction and design. It has back of it one of the strongest theatrical corporations in these projects may be considered as belonging directly to the recreational and pleasure side of the community life in Long Beach and do not include a number of major construction projects well under way in the city, representing additional millions in new construction.

The new West Coast theater, Long Beach's newest and most complete playhouse deluxe, is lavish in decorations, rich and refined in its furnishings, and ranks among the very first and the world, guaranteeing to the amusement public the very highest grade attractions in motion pictures and first-class vaudeville to be had anywhere in the country. Special importance has been given in the construction of the new theater to insure the safety and comfort of the thousands of patrons. The building is absolutely fireproof.

In its location on Ocean boulevard, just east of American avenue facing the great Pacific Ocean, the new Long Beach theater has many advantages. The new playhouse is located near enough to the heart of the downtown shopping center to attract the popular matinee crowd and far enough away from the congested part of the downtown section for ample auto parking facilities for capacity evening audiences. The outer lobby entrance is unusually large and fairly startling the visitor by its beauty. This first impression made at the outer entrance is quickly overshadowed by the sight which confronts the observer when the inner foyer is reached. The inner lobby is so planned and of such size as to take care of an unusually large number of people without interfering between the incoming and outgoing crowds by means of a number of well-located exits so arranged as to allow the theater to be emptied of a capacity audience in approximately two minutes. Twelve hundred of the twenty-two hundred seats are located on the main floor and there are no poor seats in the house, as a clear and unobstructed view of the entire stage can be had from every seat in the theater, both in the balcony and on the main floor.

There is something marvelously complete and satisfying in the entire structure, giving the impression of massiveness and splendor. Everything from the beautiful gold leaf ceiling and the last seat in the balcony to the thunderous tones of the $50,000 organ is one of grandeur and superb reality. In the matter of stage facilities and dressing-room accommodations, performers and entertainers will have no reason for complaint for lack of space and their personal comfort. All this has been abundantly provided for. With a height of sixty-five feet, a depth of twenty-eight feet, and a forty-two-foot width, the stage will accommodate productions of mammoth proportions.

The comfort and convenience of the patrons during the performance is well cared for through an arrangement of inter-communicating telephones and safety devices throughout the theater which are easy of access for both patrons and house attendants. The retiring rooms are commodious, well-appointed and exceedingly attractive. Under every seat in the theatre there is a large avenue of direct ventilation which is controlled and operated by noiseless machinery in the basement. Added to the gorgeous furnishings, decorations and attractive stage setting is the wonderful lighting scheme both for the stage effects and the entire house. There is no theater on the Pacific Coast provided with a more elaborate system for securing house and stage lighting effects, which is made possible through a most thorough and intricate wiring system and operation control.

Judged by the high standard of the opening performances, the amusement public of this city will not have to leave Long Beach again in order to get the highest-grade pictures and the top-notchers in vaudeville acts. Every week the new West Coast theater will feature Wednesday, Thursday and Friday with five acts from the Orpheum bill, including always the Orpheum theater's headliners. For this one privilege of billing these acts as Orpheum productions, the Long Beach theater will pay $50,000 a year. Besides the excellent vaudeville programs through the week the new house will carry standard attractions in the matter of feature films, including the exclusive release of all First National products.

According to Frank L. Browne, managing director of the Long Beach district for West Coast Theatres, Inc., and manager of the new Long Beach theater, more than 4,500 persons witnessed the first two performances the evening of June 6, which marked the formal opening of the new Long Beach West Coast theater. In addition to the two capacity houses for the formal opening, the "invisible audience" listening in must have numbered tens of thousands, for the entire program, including addresses by A. M. Bowles, general manager of the West Coast Theatres, Inc., and Ray R. Clark, mayor of Long Beach, was radio-casted over KFON through special arrangements with the Long Beach "Press-Telegram."

During the same week the new $550,000 Y.W.C.A. building also was formally opened to the public and received community-wide notice. The dedicatory observance was attended by thousands of Long Beach citizens and admirers of the association, being the result of many years' planning and sincere effort in the interest of young womanhood of the city. With the building representing an outlay of $425,000, the furnishings $52,000, and the land $72,000, making a total cost of approximately $550,000, all supplied by the generous citizens of Long Beach, this city can now boast a Y. W. C. A. building ample for the needs of the girlhood of the city for years to come. The new Long Beach Y.W.C.A. building is unique. Unlike many similar institutions over the country, there is not the slightest trace of institutionalism in the exterior or interior design in the plan of the entire structure. Beauty is expressed in every room, with a positive home atmosphere, and this has been accomplished in the heart of a busy city by those who have so successfully worked out the plan for the local association.

There are rooms to accommodate approximately 125 women and girls; every room in the new building is an outside room and is truly a complete home in itself, with every home privacy. The roof is equipped with tennis and volleyball courts illuminated by large arc lights, so businesswomen and girls may play evenings, and the charges for all the association privileges are so arranged that they come within the means of many girls who never dreamed such comforts possible on the average wage.

The auditorium, seating comfortably 250 people, is expected to meet the need of the association as well as many other organizations, while smaller rooms for directors meetings and committee meetings are also available. Both inside and out the new Y. W. C. A. building gives the impression of permanency and substantiality instead of extreme ornate decorations or classic lines. Its erection is deemed the gift of the people of Long Beach to the girls and women of the city, and the completeness of the building and its furnishings was made possible both by many gifts of individuals and the united co-operation of the Long Beach businessmen in providing the very best at the lowest cost.

The third outstanding building project receiving community-wide notice during the week was the formal beginning of construction on the new Long Beach Pacific Coast Club on Ocean avenue to cost when completed approximately $1,400,000. The building of this new twelve-story exclusive club will require about nine months to complete. The membership includes prominent men from all over the state and is limited to 1,500. The whole project is completely financed and it will be the finest club of its kind on the Pacific Coast. A more complete description of this unique club building project will be given in an article to be published in this magazine later.

Aside from these three major building projects which touch only the social and recreational sides of the community life of the city. Long Beach is at present experiencing a very substantial home-building program throughout the entire city. Eighty one-family dwellings and eighteen two- and three-family dwellings were started during the month of May, representing a total cost of $380,000. In April there were ninety single-family dwellings and twenty two- and three-family dwellings begun, representing a total cost of $410,000. In addition to this, there is also the $5,000,000 Long Beach Harbor development program, now well under way, which should be practically completed by the end of the present year.

PLACERVILLE AUDIENCE CHARMED.

Pioneer mothers were guests of Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. June 4 at the home of President Clara Fay. A festive setting was given by the flowers used throughout the rooms, and large center baskets of roses graced the beautifully decorated tables. A delicious four-course menu was served. During the afternoon Mrs. Helen Cervantes, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. O. A. Larson, sang a melody of her own composition, "Stand and Dream in California." Experiences were related by the following mothers: Mmes. George L. Curtis, M. Borden, R. Pear, Alpha Harper, Henrietta S. Coates.

Mrs. Clara Fay, Mrs. Kittie Dillon and Mrs. Helen Cervantes, members of the Parlor, were visitors last month to Placerville, El Dorado County, during the Native Daughter Grand Parlor. Mrs. Fay devoted much of her time to the collection of early-day relics for the museum in Houghton Memorial Park. Mrs. Cervantes, the afternoon of June 16, in a costume worn by Madge Bellamy in "The Iron Horse," charmed the Grand Parlor attendants with the rendition of several of her own vocal compositions; she was accompanied by Irma N. Laird of Alturas, Modoc County. Mrs. Kate McFadyen and Miss Marie McFadyen will leave this month for a vacation trip to the Hawaiian Islands.

ROUSING MEETING.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. had a rousing good meeting June 17, when two candidates were initiated. Assisting in the exemplification of the ritual were President John M. McCroskey and Past President Walter Baskerville of Ramona Parlor No. 109 (Los Angeles). Among the other visitors were: Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer, W. Reuter, R. L. Baldwin, Bert E. Mackley and W. H. Carpenter of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 (San Pedro), M. A. Sohn of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45, John Cadogan of Sacramento Parlor No. 3, Frank Elder, J. R. Ward, C. A. Russell, W. M. Slosson and L. H. Livermore of Ramona. All the visitors and several of the Parlor's members had something interesting to say. Officers for the ensuing term were elected, Elmer Lester Hann being selected for president.

Under the management of Edgar Chas. Crowell, a "dandy" program of musical numbers, acrobatic "stunts" and novelty acts was presented. Then followed a feast, and after that the "side degree" of Long Beach Parlor was put on and provoked a lot of fun. William B.

Watch Your Step!—The attention of all visitors to and users of national forest lands is especially directed to the fact that the throwing away of burning tobacco, matches or other inflammable material which may cause a fire is prohibited by federal regulation. Violators of this regulation are subject to fine or imprisonment, or both. A similar state law, passed by the last Legislature and signed by Governor Friend W. Richardson, becomes effective July 24 throughout California.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

SPORTS WEAR WARDROBE'S FOUNDATION

VACATION DAYS, TO THE FEMININE mind, mean vacation clothes. After seasons devoted to silks, it is pleasant to contemplate, for midsummer occasions, the acquisition of cottons, which are now lovelier than ever. In patterns and weaves, cottons emulate silks. They are corded, printed, embroidered and bordered. All kinds of dots from the polkas to the corn spots are seen in new cottons. Stripes follow their same straight lines and checks and plaids play just as amicably on cottons as they did on silks.

For contrasts, we have plain fabrics like voile, linen and broadcloth, in delicious colorings that remind one of taffy shades, but are more properly called pastels. When it comes to soft, floral printed voiles, they are often treated just as printed chiffons are, and resemble them very much, indeed. These voiles are made up into frocks with wings, panels, aprons and sashes, all of self material, in the smart chiffon manner. Voiles are being turned out in most attractive styles with less of the hand-drawn work and more of self pleatings and lace edgings.

There is quite an affinity between voiles and linens—the sheer voile for the bodice and the linen for the skirt, with bands or suspenders of the linen. This division of interest makes for a cool blouse and a practical weight skirt.

Quite a new note is the use of two tones of voile for a single frock. A rose voile scalloped on certain edges, like yoke and hem, will have the scallops bound with a deeper tone of rose voile. The fine french voiles are easy to pleat into aprons, panels, capelets and insets of various sorts.

Lace adds greatly to the dainty expression of thin cottons and is employed attractively in bandings, yokes and flounces, as well as in the narrow edgings and insertions. Dyed laces on pastel voiles are lovely, especially shell and apricot.

All the pastel shades are excellent in broadcloth and linens, and both the one- and two-piece dresses are smartly turned out in them. For the former, the leather belt adds a correct final touch, wide or narrow as one chooses. Sashes flutter, and ties become simply rampant and cut capers in the back most of the time with the knowledge and consent of their wearers.

Not only are daytime and evening frocks distinguished with all manner of back ties, but coats think nothing of being bowed and knotted. Two small loops at the neck and two long ends to the hem are becoming a rather accepted decoration. In cloth coats or dresses, the bow is usually of cloth and very narrow. So, by all means, add streamers, bows or ties to all frocks and coats.

Balbriggan knitted fabric is sponsored in ultra smart dresses, particularly for misses' sports wear, with children not forgotten as far as its practical service is concerned.

The mottled jerseys with pastel and high shades are new for sports dresses and suits. Crepe-de-chine is used with wool jerseys in smart ways, especially for collars and revers, which bring the silk next to the skin.

A slipover sweater is designed of white or natural color wool jersey with "V" opening and collar lined with matching crepe-de-chine. Sweaters are of especial interest, as they develop some novel idea, or else meet just the highly practical needs of sports and outing. The turtle neck sweater is revived with surprising style importance.

Among high-grade novelties in sweaters are some of two colors with jacquard patterns in keeping with the general liking for fancies. Bordered sweaters and two-piece combinations are very smart in the knitted weaves showing the roman stripes seen also in other woolen weaves, kashas or silk fabrics.

The craze for novelty is catered to in the use of hand-knitted belt, collars and cuffs on sports blouses made of washable silk or, perhaps, a silk jersey.

Sports hats of various styles come under the classification of modish, knitted outerwear this summer, being especially good for certain sports and outing uses. Some are knitted in heavy woolens and self trimmed with cords, flowers or bands, while others have color in embroidered designs on the knitted or crocheted foundation.

Hats and scarfs which match are still other items of knitted possibility, as well as sports articles of much style. When developed in silks, kasha, prints or plaided materials, the subtle charm of a fluttering sheer scarf, whether of georgette or so delicate a knitted weave as a shetland wool scarf affords, is sufficient excuse for adding the modish accessory. With gay colorings it becomes a significant style adjunct.

In the same way, a shetland sweater is in high favor even on a July day, and a combination of sweater and matching scarf is a style conceit in this summer's program of sports essentials. The vogue of the scarf seems endless, happily, for it is a graceful style and can be so varied that there is almost no type of dress or suit, no neck so short or so long, that some scarf cannot be found to be becoming and to add to the effect.

This summer the fair swimmer may revel in this smart accessory that combines usefulness and charm, when taking her morning dip in the foaming surf attired in a captivating bathing suit of gay color combination, such as red and jade, black and peacock, kelly green and red, black, blue or plain red.

A bright beach robe is featured in a royal blue rubberized fabric edged with a bright printed design. The cap has a band of the print, which is also used to fashion a little bag that serves as a container, or as a beach cushion when inflated with air.

Fashionable hosiery is now designed to harmonize with one's ensemble. In the sports line are two attractive models, one of fine quality white silk with a gay red design of one's favorite sports pastime embroidered on the front, and the other of silk and lisle in a french blue and beige plaid design.

When the whole world seems holiday bent and the lure of seaside and mountain resorts proves irresistible, the foundation of one's wardrobe is the sports wear. Every happy occasion of these vacation days calls for appropriate footwear that will reflect the good taste of the wearer and, at the same time, harmonize with her modish frock and charming accessories.

Although the rich tones of brown and beige are still much worn, gray is fascinating, as moonstone, nickel and mastic are winning favor and show promise of becoming important fall colors.

Many street models show straight "spike" heels. Both the high and the baby louis heel are sponsored. The moderate cuban heel still claims popularity. Vamps have assumed a more modified length and display becoming rounded toes.

If one goes in for golfing in the wide open space one should have a pair of sports brogues. These are very smart when fashioned of dull gray alligator skin, but buckskin remains a very practical outing material. Another delightful novelty is a flexible crocheted sports pump that lends ease and grace to every agile step.

For more formal occasions at the club or the casino, footwear takes on a lighter air, especially when accompanying frocks of soft lace or sheer chiffon. Glace kid is noticed in the soft gray tones, but the satin slipper of blonde shade, or dyed to match the dress, is quite dainty and chic.

FLAG DAY IN OLD SONOMA

FLAG DAY, JUNE 14, THE ONE HUNDRED and forty-eighth birthday of the Flag of the United States, the Stars and Stripes, and the seventy-ninth anniversary of the raising of the California Republic (Bear) Flag on California soil at Sonoma, was commemorated by a pilgrimage, participated in by large numbers of Native Sons and Native Daughters, to many Sonoma County historic sites, where markers were placed. The pilgrimage was under the joint auspices of the Native Sons Grand Parlor Historic Landmarks Committee, Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 N.S.G.W. and Sonoma Parlor No. 111 N.S.G.W.

Among the many participating were the following grand officers of the Order of Native Sons: Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Trustees Charles L. Dodge, Richard M. Hamb, John T. Newell and Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez, Grand Inside Sentinel J. Hartley Russell, Historiographer Roy Cloud, Past Grand Presidents Lewis F. Byington, Herman C. Lichtenberger, William I. Traeger and William J. Hayes. Santa Rosa Parlor's committee consisted of Captain T. Virgil Butts, Thomas J. Hutchinson, Judge Marvin Vaughan, Frank Berger and Frank Luttrell, while that of Sonoma Parlor was composed of Adam Adler, Anselo De Martini and Jesse F. Prestwood.

At Santa Rosa at noon the visitors were entertained at luncheon by Santa Rosa Parlor No. 217 N.D.G.W., and at 5 o'clock the official party were entertained at supper in the grove on the old Hooker farm by the present owner, John P. Serres. Following the supper there were brief addresses by Senator Herbert Slater, Thomas P. Boyd, Judge Charles A. Thompson, John T. Regan, Frank P. Doyle, Lewis F. Byington, J. P. Serres and A. W. Adler.

Temporary markers giving the history of the sites visited, to be later replaced by the Native Sons' Historic Landmarks Committee with bronze tablets, were placed first at the Chanate Valley graves of Troopers Cowie and Fowler, killed by Mexican bandits in 1846, and the log cabin built by William B. Elliott near Mark West Springs in 1845. Then the party proceeded to the Valley of the Moon, where markers were placed at the old home of General "Fighting Joe" Hooker, commandant at Sonoma Barracks in 1846; the home of General Mariano G. Vallejo, Mexican commandant of Northern California in 1845; the Sonoma Plaza, where the Bear Flag was raised June 14, 1846; the Sonoma Mission, founded July 4, 1823; the Sonoma Barracks, occupied by United States troops in 1846; the "Blue Wing," early-day rendezvous of bandits in the '30s and '40s.

Impressive ceremonies then followed at the Bear Flag monument in the Sonoma Plaza. The new fountain recently erected was dedicated, and a new State (Bear) Flag, presented to Sonoma City by Sonoma Parlor No. 111 N.S.G.W., was unfurled on the plaza where the first Bear Flag was hoisted June 14, 1846. Here Lewis F. Byington, Past Grand President N.S.G.W., delivered an address which was a comprehensive portrayal of men, deeds and events in California's making. He graphically traced the history of the Golden State through the Indian occupancy, the mission period, the succession of nations that sought to rule the commonwealth, the days of gold, up to the present proud position of California. Byington was introduced by George Barron, curator of the Golden Gate Park museum in San Francisco.

THE PIONEER SPIRIT STILL PREVAILS IN TRINITY COUNTY.

That the pioneer spirit has not died in Trinity County was made plain at Big Bar recently when William Pattison, ill with appendicitis, was in need of volunteer assistance in getting from his home to the highway so that he could be taken to Weaverville for medical treatment, says the "Trinity Journal."

Pattison lives eight miles from Big Bar. There is no road to his place. He was sick, and it was found that he must be taken to a doctor. A call was sent out for volunteers to carry the sick man to the road, where he could be placed in an automobile.

Twenty-seven men responded to the call and traveled sixteen miles on foot, taking turns in carrying Pattison on a litter a distance of eight miles. This was accomplished in four and one-half hours. The pioneer spirit of assisting those in need, without hope of reward, has not died out in Trinity.

BIG INCREASE IN HARBOR COMMERCE

DURING MAY A TOTAL OF 1,754,681 tons of freight of all kinds was handled over the municipal docks at Los Angeles Harbor, according to a report issued by the Board of Harbor Commissioners.

The total value of this commerce was $61,031,752, an increase of $7,187,000 over the value of the tonnage handled in May of last year. A total of 523 vessels were handled during the month, with a total net tonnage of 1,375,000 tons.

BIG CLASS TO INITIATE

Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. elected officers for the ensuing term June 18, James H. Dodson Jr. being retained as president. Five candidates were initiated. Among the visitors was Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer. A campaign to secure the meeting of the 1927 Grand Parlor for San Pedro was outlined. July 2 a large class of candidates will be initiated, fifty applications being on file; the Parlor's officers will exemplify the ritual.

At a recent meeting of the local Rotary Club, L. S. Anderson, a member of the Parlor who was born in San Pedro, gave the personal history and craft talk. "A trip we used to make occasionally for a day's outing was to Point Firmin," said Anderson. "There was no Pacific avenue then, and it was a good day's ride in a one-horse shay. I used to dig shrimps where the Fifth-street landing is now located, and at that time M. Duffy operated the 'ferry,' which consisted of a rowboat and two perfectly good oars. The fare was the same as Frank Garbutt charges today, five cents."

NEW NATIVES ARRIVE.

At the June 12 meeting of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W., officers were elected for the July-January term, Margaret Dever becoming president. June 26 the Parlor gave an informal dance, the committee in charge being Josephine Savage (chairman), Mary Bailey, Mary Godfrey. Music was furnished by the Fort McArthur orchestra.

Natives arrived recently at the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Stone and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Dodson Jr. Both mothers are members of Rudecinda, and both fathers are affiliated with Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. Mrs. John Logan, mother of Miss Helen Logan, a member of the Parlor, was buried at Inglewood June 9. The Logan family has been in San Pedro a quarter-century.

MILLIONS TO RUN COUNTY.

The Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors fixed June 22 the budget for the fiscal year commencing July 1, 1925, and ending June 30, 1926.

It authorizes the expenditure of $22,491,522, which is approximately $5,000,000 greater than the budget for the previous fiscal year. The increase, it was explained, was due largely to increases in county staffs and salary increases for department heads.

N. D. GRAND PARLOR

Deputy Grand President Jessie B. Lyon was in charge of the exemplification, and the officers included: Jane McCusker, senior past president; Nellye Morton, junior past president; Coral Crocker, past president; June Douglas, president; Margaret Wilson, first vice-president; Maude Panning, second vice-president; Mary Palmer, third vice-president; Mary Laliff, marshal; Josie Beach, recording secretary; Ethel Van Vleck, financial secretary; Louise Shepherd, treasurer; Marjorie Wiggelsworth, inside sentinel; Eugenia Stricker, outside sentinel; Mary Quinn, Mary Pascoe, Mary McBeth, trustees. Nora Gray was the candidate, and others who assisted in the exemplification were Dora Woods, Amelia Blakeley, Nettie Leonardi.

At the conclusion of the initiatory ceremonies Grand President Catherine E. Gloster delivered an address on California history, and Secretary Mary E. Brusie gave an illustrated talk on the work of the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Central Committee on Homeless Children. The past Grand Presidents, attired in their pioneer-lays costumes, attended the ritual exemplification in a body.

THANKS.

As a final act, the Grand Parlor unanimously adopted the following, presented by Past Grand President Alison F. Watt, Past Grand President Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen and Henrietta O'Neill Ursula 1):

"We, the Grand Parlor assembled for our thirty-ninth session in the pioneer historic City of Placerville, the birthplace of our Golden State and her days of '49, herewith express our appreciation for this wonderful privilege, and our sincere thanks for every courtesy and the constant pleasure enjoyed.

"To the mayor, Albert Simon, and citizens for the hospitable welcome given and their thought and assistance for our comfort and entertainment during our stay in their city and for their display of valued relics and curios. To the Native Daughter Parlors of El Dorado County, Marguerite 12 and El Dorado 186, our hostess Parlors, for the privilege of enjoying this session in a spot so hallowed by the sacred memories of the Pioneers. To the Native Sons Parlors of El Dorado County, Placerville 9 and Georgetown 91, for their unflinching courtesy, transportation and supervision for our safety during the pilgrimage to the museum at Kelsey and Marshall's monument at Coloma.

"To the Grand President of the Native Sons, Fletcher A. Cutler, for his stirring patriotic address on the history of California and the Pioneers, awakening new loyal thoughts in the heart of every privileged listener. To the press and the merchants of this city for the greetings and publicity so cheerfully given our Order in the columns of the local papers. To the ladies of the different churches and sister fraternities for the excellent lunches and dinners provided and their unique decorations of pioneer treasures loaned for our pleasure. To the Placerville Fruit Growers' Association for the use of their spacious building for the dance. To the county officials for the use of the election booths and the placing thereof.

"To the entertainment committee, of which Grand Trustee Margaret A. Kelly was a most capable chairman, and to the friends who so graciously assisted in our entertainment with music, talks and songs, we give a hearty 'thank you'. Especially did we enjoy the dear Pioneer Mother, Anna C. Reade, and her wonderful talks to this Grand Parlor.

"To the transportation committee, Past Grand President Emma Gruber-Foley chairman, with whom the Southern Pacific cheerfully made arrangements for running special trains so that all arrived with safety, comfort and dispatch. To the accommodations committee, Past Grand President Ema Gett chairman, for the highly successful efforts in contributing to the comfortable housing of all delegates.

"To our dearly loved Grand President, Catherine E. Gloster, whose gracious personality and capable rulings added much to our pleasant session. Finally, to any and all others who, in any way, added to the entertainment and pleasure of the 1925 Grand Parlor session, our sincere thanks are given."

DIVERSION.

Sunday evening the streets of Placerville were thronged with visiting Native Daughters, many in costumes of the hoop-skirt and poke-bonnet period. They assembled in the plaza and were welcomed by Mayor Albert Simon. Grand President Catherine E. Gloster responded for the visitors, and there were old-time songs and short addresses.

Monday evening was the grand ball, and the grand march was, indeed, a most picturesque one. The costumes recalled the days when the participants' mothers graced the ballrooms. Past Grand President Carrie Roesch-Durham, who has attended every Grand Parlor, appeared to have stepped from out a picture of the past. Dresses and jewels, old in years, were on display in profusion. The grand march, which may well be termed a revue of the styles of the days of old, was led by Grand President Catherine E. Gloster, escorted by D. J. Bathurst of Placerville 9 N.S.G.W.

Tuesday afternoon the visitors were taken on an auto pilgrimage to the Marshall museum at Kelsey, the Marshall monument at Coloma and other historic El Dorado County places. Grand Trustee Margaret Kelly of Georgetown was in charge, and at Kelsey she acquainted the "tourists" with intimate facts concerning James W. Marshall, the discoverer of gold in El Dorado County in 1848. At Coloma, Mrs. Annie Reed of Placerville, one of El Dorado's few remaining Pioneers, interestingly related her own early-day experiences; she, too, lauded Marshall's memory and pleaded for recognition of his gold discovery anniversary.

Tuesday evening Judge Fletcher A. Cutler, the brilliant Grand President of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, addressed the visitors and the people of Placerville generally from an open-air platform. He was introduced by Ted C. Atwood of Placerville 9 N.S.G.W., and was warmly applauded. Judge Cutler painted a glowing word-picture of the glories of all California, and impressed on his auditors that it was to preserve the heritage left by the Pioneers that the Orders of Native Daughters and Native Sons were founded. Grand President Cutler was accompanied to Placerville by Grand Secretary John T. Regan of San Francisco and Grand Trustee John T. Newell of Los Angeles.

Frequent recesses were taken during the Grand Parlor proceedings for the presentation of programs of addresses on current and history topics, vocal and instrumental music, etc., and the serving of refreshments. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Mollie Wilcox-Hurd (Los Angeles 124), a native of Placerville, was hostess and was assisted in serving by the South of Tehachapi delegates. Mrs. Helen Cervantes (Long Beach 154) again delighted with several vocal solos. As a souvenir of the occasion, Mrs. Hurd distributed a folder containing the commandments of the El Dorado County miners of 1849 and a menu of 1850 provided by a Hangtown (now Placerville) hotel.

On all sides the visitors were shown every courtesy by the people of Placerville. In charge of all the arrangements in Placerville for the entertainment and accommodation of the Grand

Miss Mary McQuillon of Tonapah, Nevada State, and Charles A. Riley (Ramona N.S.) were married at San Bernardino, June 9.

Robert Carrey (Los Angeles N.S.) joined the benedicts' ranks June 7 and departed with his bride for a three months' tour of Europe.

At the June 2 election, Charles E. Downs (Ramona N.S.) of the tenth district and Joseph F. Fitzpatrick (Los Angeles N.S.) of the thirteenth district were elected to the City Council.

Among last month's visitors to San Francisco were the following: Miss Grace S. Stoermer (Los Angeles N.D.), Sheriff William I. Traeger, John P. Ward and Herman C. Lichtenberger (Ramona N.S.), Internal Revenue Collector Rex B. Goodcell (Arrowhead 110), John T. Newell, John L. McGonigle and Albert Barham (Los Angeles N.S.).

Mrs. Mollie Wilcox-Hurd, Mrs. Lucy Malin and Miss Dolores Malin (all Los Angeles N.D.) were visitors to Placerville, El Dorado County, last month during the Native Daughter Grand Parlor. Mrs. Hurd is a native of Placerville, and at Sugar Pine Crest, on the way to Lake Tahoe, maintains the Wilcox-Hurd cabin, in memory of her Pioneer parents. There, June 17, she entertained at tea all the Native Daughter visitors to Placerville from south of Tehachapi. The time was delightfully spent in looking over the many early-day relics which Mrs. Hurd has collected in the cabin and in the singing of old-time songs.

TRIBUTE TO THE FARMER.

In an address delivered before the Southwest Economic Conference in Los Angeles June 16 Frank C. Mortimer, vice-president of the Citizens National Bank, paid the following tribute to the farmer:

"There is no class in the citizenship of any nation which is entitled to greater consideration than the farmer. He constitutes the very fiber of the community in which he dwells. From the earliest tiller of our soil to our present-day farmer, he has exercised habits of thrift and frugality. And great as is the value of thrift from the point of view of economics, yet its value is not limited wholly to that field.

"The training afforded by its practice calls for the exercise of qualities that are predominantly moral in character. It means self-control. It means self-mastery. Long ago the farmer learned to forego immediate pleasure for the sake of some more distant good. Through hardship and toil, on the frontier and the prairie, in the valleys and on the hillsides, he has labored to supply the immediate wants of his household and food for the peoples of the world. That which he has gathered and saved has become the foundation of our wealth as a nation. His steadiness, industry and sobriety are political virtues which make for the stability and permanence of our government."

POPULATION GROWTH NOTED IN SCHOOLS.

In 1875, Los Angeles had 7,767 public-school children; in 1910 the average daily attendance was 37,064; in 1915, 58,944; in 1920, 77,674; in 1924, 146,680. The average daily attendance in May of this year was 158,460.

WANTS STREETS IMPROVED.

City Engineer Van Norman has recommended to the Los Angeles City Council that immediate legislation be adopted to get under way the proposed opening, widening, extension and paving of twenty-six streets.

The total length of the streets involved in the improvements is more than forty-five miles, and the estimated cost of the contemplated improvements is $30,594,211.

Testing Your Gas Meter

By S. E. BANGERTER, Foreman

A FORCE of carefully trained experts is constantly busy testing the gas meters on our system to determine how accurately they register.

The testing apparatus, called a "prover," consists principally of a bell-shaped air vessel or holder, similar to a toy gas holder, which has a carefully measured capacity.

The gas meter to be tested must first have been in the testing room at least 12 hours immediately preceding the test, to acquire the room temperature. It is then connected to the prover and enough air is permitted to pass out of the prover, through the meter, to cause the pointer on the testing dial of the meter to make a complete revolution. A scale on the prover shows how much air has passed through the meter and also indicates whether the meter being tested is accurate or in need of adjustment. Our provers have been calibrated by the California State Railroad Commission.

Every gas meter disconnected from our mains for any cause whatever is tested before again being put into service. We test all our gas meters at least once in every six-year period.

NATIVE SONS OBSERVE GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY ORDER'S FOUNDING

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE founding of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West was observed by the twenty-eight Parlor located in San Francisco with a banquet the night of July 11. The affair was held in the auditorium of the Native Sons' Building on Mason street, which was specially decorated for the occasion. Reservations were made for seven hundred and many notables were present, including Admiral Carl T. Vogelsang of the United States Navy, whose squadron is in Pacific waters with twelve hundred cadets of Annapolis. The admiral is a Native Son, having been born in Calaveras County. During the evening he was presented with a silken State (Bear) Flag mounted upon an appropriate pedestal, the presentation speech being made by Senator James D. Phelan of Pacific Parlor No. 10.

The surviving fourteen charter members of California Parlor No. 1—John E. McDougald, Ellis Bloch, William M. Joseph, John R. Matches, John H. Grady, James B. Stovall, Rudolph Steinman, Aaron Heringhi, A. C. Lutgens, Ed. L. Meyer, Alfred Gilbert, William H. Staniels, Oscar Clegg, Charles W. Welch—were special and honored guests and were introduced in an eloquent address by Jesse H. Miller of that Parlor. Reference was made to the continuous membership of these men in the Order for fifty years. The fact that they are here tonight to attest by their presence their fidelity and loyalty to the order is an object lesson for every Native Son. Each, in turn, was introduced to the assemblage and was greeted by deafening applause. Twelve Past Grand Presidents and many of the grand officers were present. Chief of Police Daniel Brien of San Francisco, an enthusiastic member of the Order, was chairman of the entertainment committee and secured talent from every theater in San Francisco, insuring plenty of entertainment during the night.

Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler presided as toastmaster and made the opening speech, which was the keynote of the evening, as follows:

NATIVE SONS INSEPARABLY WEDDED TO STATE'S DESTINY.

"The coming of this day marks the fiftieth anniversary of the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West. Fifty years of constant devotion to Friendship, Loyalty and Charity; fifty years of unselfish service to California; fifty years of consecration to the highest ideals of American citizenship. We come here tonight, not in a spirit of humility, nor to indulge in self-glorification; rather do we exult that we have been privileged, during all these years, to keep the faith, to exemplify far beyond the conception of the founders of the Order the object that they had in view: 'to perpetuate in the minds of all Native Californians the memories of one of the most wonderful epochs in the world's history—the "days of '49"—to unite them in one harmonious body throughout the state by the ties of a friendship mutually beneficial to all."

"The pride of nativity, the devotion to home, the love of fatherland, find lodgment in the hearts of all mankind, and it is not remarkable that the sons of California, inseparably wedded to its destiny, should join in the activities which have ever marked the career of our Order. They are evidenced by our historical landmarks work; our homeless children organization; our fellow-ship endowments at the University of California; the dedication of universities, high-schools and grammar-schools with the attendant public ceremonies, and the presentation of the Flag of our country and the Flag of our State to the student bodies of those schools; the public observance of Admission Day in various cities of the state, when in pageantry there are depicted the eventful epochs of the state's history; the co-operation of our membership with civic improvements and public enterprises; the support of state and federal legislation for the interests of the state at large, and, lastly, the proper discharge of that sacred trust reposed in us, that this land so favorably located, so generously bestowed, so happily populated, so divinely blessed shall be maintained and perpetuated, even as it was dedicated by the blood and the bone and the grit of pathfinder, pioneer, settler and miner, as the abiding-place of the White race.

"Twenty-six thousand members of the Order greet California in this, her diamond jubilee year—the seventy-fifth anniversary of her admission into the union. They represent every section of the state from the towering redwoods of Humboldt and Mendocino, the white-robed peaks of Siyeh and Shasta, the golden-tinted veins of the Sierras, through blossoming valleys and over fertile fields to the south, where land, water and sky blend in one sweet harmony. To them, California is now and ever shall be the youthful Queen of the Pacific—youthful in spirit, youthful in beauty, youthful in ambition. Brothers, I pledge you to the toast, California, our Native State!"

Phillip M. Carey of Berkeley Parlor No. 210 responded to the toast "California" in his characteristic eloquent way, saying, in part:

"FUTURE ASSURED BY MUSICAL VOICES OF HAPPY CHILDHOOD."

"Every state in this union has a history. That history tells of a people who endured sacrifices and hardships in order that ultimately there should be a union of states. They struggled resolutely and sturdily. California graciously acknowledges the exalted sway of each one of her sister states. She comes forward with a history full of such stirring events, such romance, such traditions that she recalls them all with pride born of a self-consciousness that in every crisis of American affairs she has stood here on the outer rim of the North American continent ready, willing and prepared to more than perform her part in supporting the union and enhancing the glory of its ever-forward progress.

"In every stage of its history there have appeared types of people with their customs and their beliefs: The Spanish navigators, braving the perils of the sea in their frail craft, landing here and there along the coast, charting routes and finding ports for others to follow; the missions, with their sweet-chimed bells, carrying music to the needy, the distressed and the lowly; the pious padres, pursuing their daily labors with no thought of reward other than the consolation that they were at peace with their God; the pathfinders, traversing the plains and scaling the mountains, the advance couriers blazing the trails; the pioneers, with their sublime faith and their superb heroism; the miners, with their hopes and ambitions and fraternity; the men who framed the constitution beneath the flag that Sloat raised at Monterey; and the citizens who came and cultivated fields and valleys, yielding the product of their fertile soil—plucking golden sunshine from the sky to bathe the land with all its glistening influences.

"It is this vision that passes in review before us as we think of California, one beautiful state, splendid in its pristine greatness, glorified in its fruits and flowers and creeping vines and golden harvests, growing more wonderful yet in the men and the women who constitute its citizenry. And, more satisfying than all, is the promise of the future, assured by the musical voices of happy childhood born upon California soil, loving every memory that comes from its past, breathing loyalty in every lisping word, and pleased to grow to glorious manhood and womanhood within its sheltering care."

Past Grand President Daniel A. Ryan responded on behalf of the Past Grand Presidents, paying special tribute to those who have passed away. He noted the fact that of the forty-seven Past Grand Presidents there are thirty survivors, all maintaining a lively interest in the affairs of the Order and the majority of them regularly attending the annual sessions of the Grand Parlor.

"The spirit of fraternity," said Ryan, "is perpetuated in their ranks by frequent gatherings where the affairs of the Order are discussed, and where reminiscences of the past are related, keeping ever fresh in their memories the men who have been prominent in the Order and the work that has been accomplished. The Order has been fortunate in selecting as material for Grand Presidents men who unselfishly gave a great measure of their time and devotion to the advancement of the Order. Each one, in turn, kept ever before him the high ideals that were established by the founders of the Order and at no time has he deviated from the course pursued by his predecessors. The Past Grands are very happy to be here tonight, happy in their increasing years filled with kind thoughts of gatherings of the past, and happier yet to know that they are permitted on this, the fiftieth anniversary of the Order, to view this inspiring sight where so many young and keen Native Sons are learning the lessons of Fraternity and Loyalty."

KEPT FAITH IN PERPETUATING MEMORIES OF THE PAST.

The various toasts responded to recognized four distinct lines of endeavor that the Order has been prosecuting in recent years. Past Grand President Joseph R. Knowland answered for the Historical Landmarks Committee, saying, in part:

"The work that has been done by the Order in locating hallowed ground and famous buildings and preserving the identity of the same by tablet and monument must strongly appeal to the patriotism of every member of the Order as well as to the citizenship of the state. It was written in our organic law by the founders of the Order, that we were to perpetuate the memories of the past, and we have kept the faith. We have visited every section of this state where there could be found some memorable event which became a part of the history of California, particularly along the Mother Lode, so filled with history, so replete with the exploits of pathfinder, miner and pioneer, so rich in the history of names of famous men, where a great population gathered unparalleled in the history of our country. Each place was noted and marked, to be the subject of future work.

"The Order has appropriated its own money; has enlisted the assistance of private contributors; has asked and received state and federal aid, and has in season and out of season worked constantly in order that there might be preserved for the state great historical spots of interest that must be more sacredly regarded as the years go by. I will not endeavor at this time to relate in detail the incidents connected with each marking, suffice to say that the record of the Order shows the following activities in the way of preserving historical landmarks:

"Monuments Erected: Marshall Monument at Coloma; Donner Party Monument at Donner Lake; Monument to Bear Flag Party at Sonoma; Monument to Commodore Sloat at Monterey. "Restorations and Preservations: Sutter's Fort at Sacramento; Customs House at Monterey where Sloat raised the American Flag; Colton Hall at Monterey where First Constitutional Convention was held; Russian Building at Fort

Ross; First Theater erected in California at Monterey; Greek Chapel at Fort Ross.

"Tablets Placed: Marking site of Fort Gunnybags, Headquarters of Vigilance Committee, San Francisco; Sutter's Fort, Sacramento; Monterey Customs House; Spanish Barracks at Presidio, San Francisco; Place where Commander John Montgomery landed in San Francisco, 1846; Site of Broderick-Terry Duel; Site of old Immigrant Ship 'Nantico,' San Francisco; Tablets marking the shore line of San Francisco Bay, Kit Carson Pass, One Hundred Historical Spots along the Mother Lode, Site of First Capitol Building in California at San Jose, San Carlos Pass in memory of Anza, Historic Spots in Sonoma County.

"Missions Preserved or Restored: San Antonio De Padua, San Francisco de Solano, Santa Inez, San Juan Capistrano, San Jose, San Miguel, San Fernando.

"Landmarks Preserved: Sonoma Mission, Landing of Junipero Serra, Fort Ross."

Past Grand President William J. Hayes recounted the work the Order has been doing at the University of California in the way of fellowship endowments, and said, in part:

SIGN OF AWAKENING INTEREST IN CALIFORNIA'S ROMANTIC STORY.

"The history work of our Order is of the very essence of our being and of our reason for existence. We are organized to perpetuate the traditions of the spirit of our early pioneer mothers and fathers, and to instill into the hearts of our children and other generations of Californians yet to come the ideals of those brave men and women who laid the foundation of this great state. We hope to keep alive the spirit which has played so large a part in making California the great commonwealth which she is today. We know that an intimate acquaintance with the history of the past is essential to a full and complete appreciation of one's citizenship in the state and in the nation.

"Patriotism is based on tradition. A people without a historical background can only have a lukewarm and a shallow sentiment towards their country and their government. From the material standpoint, also, we benefit greatly by our knowledge of history, because from the lessons of the past we learn how to guide our course in the future. So, the Native Sons of the Golden West have contributed generously of their funds to the history fellowships of the University of California, and through other channels and in other ways have given their co-operation and moral support to the splendid cause of making known the history and the glory of our native state. There is today much evidence and many signs of an awakening of popular interest in the wonderfully colorful, romantic and important story of California. Through our Native Son fellowships at the university, a large number of books on the subject have been written, original materials have been outlined and indexed for future use, and there has developed all over the country and in foreign lands, in the universities and among scholars, a great interest in the subject of California and Pacific Coast history.

"We are celebrating this year, coincidentally, the golden jubilee of our Order and the diamond jubilee of our state. In the lives of men, seventy-five years or fifty years seem like a long span of time, but in the life of our fraternity and in the life of our state they will represent only a beginning, if we hold true to the ideals of our forefathers and remain faithful to the traditions and the principles upon which our state and our nation are founded.

"An annual endowment fund of $3,000 has been appropriated by the Order since 1911, making a total of $46,500, for the purpose of enabling the University of California to select two students advanced in historical research to visit European and other countries in search of material bearing on early California history. Twenty young men have been selected and each, in turn, has enjoyed the benefits of such a trip and has returned with a wealth of material which has made an international reputation for the University of California in this line of work and from which the university has issued over thirty volumes containing historical data bearing on the early exploration and settlement of the Pacific Coast and the Southwest. The history department has also published a volume known as 'The Spanish Period in California.'

"Fifteen hundred students are enrolled today in the course of California history at the university, many of whom will become members of high-school faculties and be prepared to teach California history. The result of the endowment is an inspiration to work for a fellowship. The men selected as fellows have graduated from the university and are now attached to the faculties of various colleges in the United States, where they are teaching Pacific Coast and Southwest history, as a result of the opportunity that was afforded them by the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West to engage in the research work abroad. It has brought them distinction and honor, and they have never failed to publicly give the Order the credit for this wonderful work. It is distinctive, in that no other organization west of the Mississippi River is engaged in historic work of such magnitude and scope."

Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch emphasized the homeless children organization and detailed the work that has been done through that medium by the Order. In part, he said:

"EDUCATION IS MAINSPRING OF OUR CIVILIZATION TODAY."

"The saving of helpless children for a good citizenship is an humanized effort that appeals to everybody. Since the organization of the Homeless Children Central Committee in 1910, thirteen hundred and forty-four girls and twelve hundred and seventy-eight boys, making a total of two thousand six hundred and twenty-two boys and girls, have been placed in the homes of some of the finest families in the state, insuring their development into womanhood and manhood amid elevating surroundings and the loving care of adopted parents. Some idea of the magnitude of the work may be gleaned by the statement that the receipts to date have amounted to $214,685.76 and the expenditures to $180,081.99. The source of receipts has been from the various Native Son and Native Daughter Parlors and joint committees of Native Sons and Native Daughters in various sections of the state, the San Francisco Native Daughters' and Native Sons' joint committee contributing $47,140.87."

Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch dwelt on the work that the Order is doing in the way of school dedications and flag presentations, and said, in part:

"No other line of work has brought our Order in closer contact with our people than the public-school dedications and flag presentations that have taken place in various sections of California. There has been an era of newly-constructed school buildings in the state and they naturally are the pride of the taxpayers and citizens of the respective communities in which they are situated. The grand officers have responded to every call, and have performed the dedicatory ceremonies in ritualistic form. The beautiful auditoriums which are found in every school building have been filled with ardent and interested parents and friends, and literary program have been presented. Invariably our grand officers have been called on to dwell upon the objects of our Order and it has afforded an opportunity to properly place before the people of the state the various lines of work that our Order is engaged in. Our dedication ceremony is unique. No other Order has anything that can be compared to it. It is simple in its setting yet impressive and instructive, and appeals to every loyal citizen. The plaque, placed in position, will inform not only the students of today, but those of tomorrow that the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West was represented at the completion and opening of the building crossing its threshold, they behold the great principles for which the Order stands, 'Liberty Tolerance and Justice'. The mixing of sand and cement from the hills of California with the water from the missions, and the reference to each officer to the significance of man's effort to harness the forces of nature in this wonderfully blessed state for the advancement of humanity symbolize the truth that the reason and the energy of man are necessary to bind together the elements of society that a perfect state might exist.

"Education is the mainspring of our civilization today. The trained mind and the enlightened conscience are the saving graces of the nation. Our public-school system, where wealth and poverty meet on a common footing and which recognizes neither sex nor creed, race nor color, must be preserved as one of the great forceful institutions of the country. Our Order is pledged to do its share towards continuing within the state a progressive citizenship, one that will be ever ready to defend and preserve our flag and all of the institutions that have made our nation what it is today. In our flag presentations to the student bodies on various occasions, we have furnished speakers from our membership who have told the story of the coming of the American Flag to these shores and have described in detail the discovery, growth and development before and after that memorable episode at Monterey, and have pointed to the Bear Flag, our state flag, made so at the

INCIDENTS IN LIFE OF PIONEER

(GEORGE S. DANIELS.)

A YOUNG, SMOOTH-SHAVEN LAD IN his early twenties, his eyes shining and his delicate mouth set and purposeful, strode down the gangplank of a four-master which had just reached San Francisco in the spring of 1850 after an uneventful trip from his home in Southern France. His name was Raymond Peter Plasse, and he was one of the thousands of other immigrants to pull up stakes and head for the recently discovered goldfields of California,—a promising miner, but soon to become a successful merchant.

As young Plasse struck out he followed the already well-beaten trail through the hot valleys, which soon were to become one of the world's leading sources of food products, and heading due east, struck into the foothills made famous by Marshall in his discovery of the golden metal. As he trudged along, his thoughts were filled with the romance of adventure and the opportunities which lay midst the great white peaks in the distance. What would they offer him? He dreamed of his beautiful France and the stake he hoped to make,—the homecoming, the friends he would meet and the joys that would be his. Little he knew that he had entirely divorced his early life.

It was early in March, after having worked in several gold centers, that he arrived in Jackson, Amador County, where three of the world's greatest gold mines were later developed: the Arconaut, the world's deepest, the Kennedy, the world's richest, and the Eureka, all producing mines today. With his mind bent on getting rich quick, he continued his fight to extract the glittering metal from the river and creek bottoms. His daily companions were the shovel and the pan.

For months he stayed at mining, working in and around Volcano, Sutter Creek and the other Mother Lode towns, but as the immigrants began pouring across the now-famous Kit Carson trail from Carson City, the opportunities in the marts of trade caught the young Frenchman's eyes, and he established the first trading-post in the section. This was in the fall of 1850.

Note—At the gathering of the Native Son Past Grand Presidents at Silver Lake, referred to in the Native Sons of the Golden West department of this issue of The Grizzly Bear, Maurice Plasse, one of those gathered about the festive-board, related some of the interesting incidents in the life of his Pioneer father. Through the courtesy of George Daniels, the story is here recorded.—Editor.

Steadily his business grew until, chancing to run across an old schoolmate from France, a lad by the name of Charles Grasson who, like himself, had left home to seek wealth and fortune, a partnership was entered into and a location established at Silver Lake. Here today, operated by the Plasse brothers, Maurice and Peter, the same hearty welcome and good cheer that was spread by the older Plasse is the regular order of events. The trading-post has passed from existence, but the Silver Lake resort is doing a thriving business in exactly the same spot where the intrepid settlers of early California obtained their first rest after an arduous trip across the deserts of Nevada.

Some interesting incidents of the early life of the elder Plasse have been gleaned from his memoirs. Judging from his writings, only the rugged survived. At one time it appears that three desperadoes, an American, a Mexican and a Negro, followed him home from Nevada, where he had made a particularly good sale of cattle, and by gaining admittance through begging a dinner, tied and tortured the elder Plasse for three long days and nights. They threw a rope around his neck, and several times lifted him to the rafters, but he refused to tell where he had buried the $1,750 in gold with which he had returned. Not satisfied, they then took him out in the woods and bound him securely to a tree, chest of our Order, whose folds reflect the initiative, resourcefulness, heroism and patriotism of that little band of men in the Sonoma valley who flung it to the breeze in order that here might be served on the world notice that California, although looked upon with covetous eyes by other nations, was regarded as an integral part of the United States. In our dedications our voices have reached thousands and thousands of our citizens. In our flag presentations over twenty-five thousand of the students of our high- and grammar-schools have been addressed.

VERY PRIMER STATE'S HISTORY MAY BE WRITTEN IN SOUTHLAND.

"Therefore, I unhesitatingly declare that the membership of this Order may well congratulate themselves upon the fact that each one inscribed in our roll has, by his continued allegiance to the Order, contributed a part to this great uplifting work that redounds to the glory of the state and the greater glory of the republic. The following high-schools have been dedicated: Alhambra, Petaluma, Lakeport, Bieber, Oakland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Redwood City, Mountain View, Centerville, Santa Rosa, Wheatland, grammar-schools: Ukiah, Livermore, Tracy, Rubuckle, Ventura, Berkeley, Fort Bragg, Oak Grove. Miscellaneous: City Hall, Pittsburg; Jackson Memorial, Glen Ellen; Amanda Chapel, Los Angeles; Fremont-Pico Memorial, Los Angeles; Monument to Jedediah Smith, Los Angeles; Santa Cruz-Swanton Airport, Santa Cruz. One hundred and five sets of American and Bear flags were presented to high-schools, one hundred and sixteen sets of American and Bear flags to grammar-schools, eleven sets of American and Bear flags to boy scouts and boys' clubs. To the University of California, both the Berkeley institution and the Southern Branch, to the University of Southern California, and to the California State Association in Washington, D. C., special presentations of flags were made."

OLD DIABLO HAS STROLLING HABIT

MOUNT DIABLO, in Contra Costa County, may not be a strolling troubador singing its way as it goes, but it at least possesses pedestrian characteristics, according to Dr. Bruce L. Clark of the Department of Paleontology of the University of California.

During the past one hundred thousand years, says Dr. Clark, this guardian peak of Central California has taken a twenty-mile stroll from its home-base and, according to all calculations, seems to be headed in the direction of the east-bay cities, in which general locality Dr. Clark believes it will arrive in about 150,000 years.

In thus strolling about, Dr. Clark states, Mount Diablo has created an apparent feeling of dissatisfaction and unrest among the little foothills and valleys around its base. They, too, it seems, have become infested with the wanderlust, according to the paleontologists who keep track of their footprints, even taking to evolving into something different from what they are.

Ignacio and Briones Valleys seem to be the most restless in this respect, having acquired the habit of going up and over the edge of themselves, shoving off the foothills next to them and triumphantly standing atop some vanquished hill, which in turn sinks down, contenting itself for a time with being a little valley.

"Originally the home-base of Mount Diablo was somewhere over in Solano County," explains Dr. Clark, "about twenty miles north and east of its present site, but that was eons before there was such a thing as the Sacramento or the San Joaquin Rivers, so the old mountain didn't have any ferry rates to worry about when it set out on its millennium walk."

Since Dr. Clark broadcasted his most recent discoveries regarding the habits of old Diablo the suggestion has been made that the mountain may have decided to look into the bridge-the-bay movement, hoping that by the time it arrives in the San Francisco Bay region the various factions will have settled upon definite plan for a bay span, thus providing the mountain with something worthy to which it may tie its own present scenic boulevard.

Motor Cops Get 'Em—According to Will H. Marsh, chief of the state division of motor vehicles, during the first five months of 1925 the state's motorcycle officers arrested 18,369 violators of the motor laws. Fines amounting to $133,396.55 were assessed. In doing this work the officers rode their motorcycles 1,037,122 miles.

BIG GATHERING IN REDWOODS

SUNDAY, AUGUST 30 AT 2 P. M., IN THE State Redwood Park in the Santa Cruz Mountains, the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West will hold a big outdoor initiation, the grand officers, headed by Judge Fletcher A. Cutler, the Grand President, exemplifying the ritual.

This park contains some of the finest redwoods in California. It is visited yearly by thousands of people, a great many of whom live there for weeks and months. The park contains ten thousand acres. There is a civic center where a play is put on annually and where exercises of various kinds are held. There is a hotel and also cottages to accommodate those who desire to remain temporarily in the park. The park commission is headed by Professor C. B. Wing of Stanford University. He is co-operating with the grand officers in making the ceremonies attendant on the initiation a success.

The commission has instructed the warden of the park to assist in the selection of a place, and in making it secluded and exclusive. Accordingly, a committee visited the park recently and selected a natural amphitheatre surrounded by the largest redwoods in the park. The station of the president will be at the base of what is known as the "father" tree, twenty-two feet in circumference.

There has never been an American Flag officially recognized by the commission in the park and, in answer to the offer of the Order, the commission has ordered two flagpoles, sixty feet in height, to be erected at the civic center where, immediately after the ceremonies of initiation American and State Bears. Plans will be presented to the park. The raising ceremonies will be held for the occasion. A luncheon will also be had under the redwoods and special music will be secured for the occasion.

Candidates for the initiation will be furnished by all Native Son Parlor in the northern part of California. The drive has been commenced, under the direction of Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, and it is confidently expected that a thousand members of the Order will gather at the park to participate in the ceremonies of the day.

FLOWERS

(MISS ESTHER CRONE.)

Our Heavenly Father loves us so,—
Such blessings come each day!
What better proof could He bestow,
What more could language say?
We have the treasures of His hand,
The fruit of all His powers.
Who could His love but understand,
When He tells it us with flowers?

PEDESTRIANS AND AUTOISTS HAVE COMMON HIGHWAY RIGHTS.

The popular theory that streets and highways belong exclusively to vehicular traffic and the sidewalks to pedestrians, has been upset by a recent decision of the California Supreme Court, which holds that pedestrians still have rights which motorists are bound to respect.

The decision is the outgrowth of a case in which a pedestrian, who was run down by a motorist, sued and lost his case because the superior court judge instructed the jury that the motorist had a right to assume that the roadway was clear. In reversing the trial court, the supreme court said that the instruction was an error and that "The right of drivers of automobiles to use the public highways is not superior to that of the humblest pedestrian, and in the exercise of a common right to use the public highways all persons using same must exert constant care and caution."

AIR CLEANERS ADVISED.

Air cleaners for gasoline engines used on the farm, particularly those used in dusty places, such as tractors, have been found to be an almost indispensable part of their equipment. Tests made at the College of Agriculture at Davis, by the agricultural engineering division, show the amount of dust passed into the cylinders of the tractor engine through the carburetor are such as to shorten its usefulness materially. The same holds good, to a less degree, for trucks, especially where they are operated over dusty roads. The carburetor air intake should be placed high up and back, and an efficient air cleaner of some sort should be added to insure there is no grinding substance introduced into the moving parts of the tractor.

Tourist Travel—California remains the mecca of tourist dreams in all parts of the world. A survey of hotel booking agencies and railroads made under the direction of Norman H. Sloane, general manager of the California Development Association, shows that 1925 will be the heaviest tourist year in the history of the state. "Easterners are coming by the thousands to California to help us celebrate our state's seventy-fifth anniversary of admission into the union," says Sloane.

HELP!

MISFORTUNE, IN THE FORM OF AN earthquake, descended upon beautiful Santa Barbara, California's "Queen City," June 29, and a vast amount of damage, particularly to business and public properties, resulted. Santa Barbarans, imbued with the spirit of the California Pioneer, are not dismayed, and eventually every vestige of the devastation will be obliterated by more-stately structures.

For emergency aid, Santa Barbara requires right now a minimum of $1,100,000, and the California Development Association, after careful investigation, has, at the request of the Santa Barbara Relief Committee, resolved to act as the directing agency for the purpose of raising the required sum.

The appeal is confined to California, Santa Barbara having refused national help. The money is to be used for reconstructing hospital buildings, for resuscitating charitable agencies, for community health and sanitary work, for Red Cross relief, and for temporary buildings to house pupils so that they may continue their regular school work at the fall opening.

Every Californian is urged to respond, according to his or her ability, to this call for immediate financial help from a stricken city of the Golden State. Every Parlor of Native Sons and Native Daughters should contribute to this emergency relief fund. Let your response be prompt and generous!

Propaganda, preparatory to making an effort in the coming Congress to repeal or modify the provision of the Federal Immigration Law which excludes aliens ineligible to citizenship, continues to appear in the American press. Powerful forces in this country are aiding the Japs, particularly the churches and "big business."

Headed "End of U. S. Ban on Japanese Predicted by Shidehara," some of this pro-Jap propaganda appeared in the San Francisco "Bulletin" of July 6. Supposedly, it was an interview by a correspondent with Baron Shidehara of Japan, in Tokio. Very likely, it was prepared right here in these United States, by one or the other of Sidney Gulick's organizations.

Shidehara, speaking for Japan, was quoted as saying, among other things: "We have no ambition to swamp any country with our people. We do not want to send to America a single Japanese to whom she objects." If there be any truth in that statement, Japan will recall practically every one of its subjects in this country, for there are mighty few of them to which White Americans do not object. California, particularly, is overrun with unwanted Japs, and they were sent here by Japan, disguised as "students," "picture brides," etc., for the express purpose of swamping this state through the breeding process.

The late Thomas R. Marshall, former vice-president of the United States, was never considered a great orator, but in the course of his many public addresses he frequently made statements full of meat for the thinker. Here is one:

"I believe that America belongs to American citizens, native and naturalized, who are willing to seek redress for their grievances in orderly and constitutional ways, and I believe that all others should be taught, peacefully if we can and forcibly if we must, that our country is not an international boarding house nor an anarchistic cafe."

Native Sons and others interested in California history were disappointed when they ascertained that, among the bills passed by the recent Legislature and pocket-vetoes by the governor, was the one providing for the support of the California State Historical Association.

Why Governor Richardson failed to give the bill his approval has never been explained. Is it possible that he, like the president of the University of California, believes the state's history is "provincial"? California has a history that should be compiled by competent authorities, and the state should foot the bill.

San Francisco's 1925-26 assessed property valuation, according to County Assessor John Ginty, totals $723,908,961. This is an increase of $39,809,041 over the 1924-25 assessed valuation, which totaled $684,099,920.

Californians, Santa Barbara Needs Help!

An emergency fund of $1,100,000 is needed immediately by the stricken city of Santa Barbara to care for the unfortunate inmates of charitable institutions made homeless; to reconstruct hospital buildings; to give temporary housing to school children in the autumn; and for Red Cross work of mercy.

You are asked to give. A California community "is seeking bravely to meet the demands of a great emergency suddenly thrust upon it by an overwhelming disaster." Give in large or small amount according to your means, but give freely.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

THE BIG EVENT OF AUGUST 1875 IN California was the closing of the doors of the Bank of California, San Francisco, the 26th. In a short time the streets were filled with men and women intent on getting their money out of the banks. Runs began on all the financial institutions, but the only one to succumb was the National Gold Bank and Trust Company; the savings banks played safe by enforcing the thirty-day-notice rule. The Mining Stock Exchange closed its doors. Rumors of toppling business and brokerage firms were rife, and newspapers added to the confusion by publishing everything that was said. Banks in Los Angeles and other places, correspondents of the San Francisco institution, closed for a breathing spell. The failure was as great a financial disaster as the failure of Adams & Company in 1857.

The Bank of California paid out the day before closing, to depositors who had "got wise," $1,700,000 and exhausted its cash. While no official statement was ever made, it was currently reported the failure was for $17,000,000, and the assets were $7,000,000. Blame for the failure was laid to President W. C. Ralston, charged with being a "plunger," and with having made injudicious loans at inflated values. The directors demanded and received his resignation.

Ralston immediately went to a resort at North Beach for a swim, and was drowned. That he was one of the state's most prominent and popular men was shown at his funeral. In the cortege that conveyed his remains to their last resting-place were 2,263 people on foot and 202 carriages. Ralston, 49 years of age, came to the state from Ohio. He had been a banker since 1855 and everything he touched appeared to turn into gold. At the month's end the directors of the closed bank were endeavoring to bring order out of confusion.

The vicissitudes of the mining investors and stock speculators this year were many. Beginning with the big spring break from an oversold market, the sudden and unaccountable break in May, and now with the Bank of California failure knocking prices of stocks into a cocked hat, brokers and their patrons did not know where they stood. The astonishing break in May was explained this month and showed what a speculator has to contend with. This, too, probably had an influence in causing the bank failure, for the decline in values, coming in a single session of the stock exchange, caught both bankers and borrowers unprepared and obligations could not be met.

STRENUOUS POLITICAL CAMPAIGN.

An obscure clerk in one of the largest brokerage offices on California street was arrested for embezzlement. He had become infatuated with San Francisco night-life and a demimonde and, being without money to squander, appropriated 2,700 shares of Ophir. This stock he threw on the market at a morning session in May and broke the price from $101 a share down to $37. The proceeds kept him going until this month when, considering the ease in which he had made his former raid, he attempted to repeat his method of getting funds by appropriating 1,000 shares of California stock. It was selling at $63 a share and the market absorbed it without a marked decline. That so many shares of a dividend-paying stock should be thrown on the market at one session caused an inquiry to be made as to where it had come from, with the result that the clerk's peculations were uncovered. All that could be found of the thousands he had stolen was $6,800, the value of his personal effects. He had caused a loss of several millions of dollars in the values of stocks for, while the market slowly recovered from the big decline, it did not go anywhere near to the figures it dropped from and a good many margin dealers were sent hustling for jobs in consequence.

With bonfires blazing, brass bands blaring, partisans parading, spellbinders speechifying and candidates carousing, the state during August went through one of the most strenuous political campaigns in its history. The Independents, the Republicans and the Democrats had numerous stump-speakers working. Many incidents occurred to keep the people interested. The election, September 1, terminated the most bitter and vindictive controversy California journalism ever experienced. Charges and counter-charges of corruption and crime were made. They were sickening to read, and may be better imagined than described.

Major David Jacks of Monterey donated a site for a monster camp-meeting a few miles from that city. Out of it developed Pacific Grove, Monterey County. Such a large number came it was decided to make the camp-meeting an annual affair, and the first sale of town lots, August 27, amounted to $7,000.

Los Angeles reported an assessment value of its property for taxing purposes of $15,088,367.

A mortgage was filed in Fresno County by the Southern Pacific on all its property for $48,000,000.

The cornerstone of the new Kern County court-house was laid August 2 at Bakersfield.

General Phil Sheridan arrived in the state August 24 and during his stay was popularly received everywhere.

STATE'S UNIVERSITY HAS FEW STUDENTS.

James Thompson, a rancher near Pleasanton, Alameda County, sold eighty mules for $12,000 to be used in the New Coso mine, in Inyo County.

The Empire mine, at Grass Valley, Nevada County, produced $23,000 in a twenty-one-days' run.

The Dutch Hill Company in Plumas County was producing fifty ounces of gold a day and cleaning up nearly $30,000 a month.

The New York Hill mine at Grass Valley, Nevada County, cleaned up $26,000 from 360 tons of ore in twenty-one days.

The Marsh rancho in Contra Costa County, sold at a foreclosure sale in January, was bought back this month by its owner, James Sanford, for $223,000.

Los Angeles County beekeepers were numerous enough to hold a convention and discuss their troubles August 21.

East Park, a Sacramento pleasure resort, was sold at auction for $450.

The Vaca Valley railroad was completed to Winters, Yolo County, August 26, and the first train run to that town.

The University of California, at Berkeley, opened August 12 with 150 students; a few were females.

The Santa Monica, Los Angeles County, wharf, extending 1,745 feet into the bay, was completed August 25.

Captain Charles B. Chadwick, a Pioneer who owned the old ship "Niantic" whose hull stood for many years at the corner of Sansome and Clay streets, San Francisco, died there August 18 at the age of 68.

Fire at Iowa Hill, Placer County, August 7, burned several buildings, with a $30,000 loss.

At Sacramento August 11 fire destroyed a planing mill and box factories, causing an $85,000 loss. August 18 the Central Pacific's repair shops were damaged to the amount of $40,000.

The bark "Milon," loaded with lumber, burned to the water's edge at San Francisco August 16, causing a $15,000 loss.

A $20,000 fire loss was caused at Point Arena, Mendocino County, August 7 by the destruction of a brewery.

Sixty buildings in the Chinatown of Oroville, Butte County, went up in flames August 1, resulting in a $30,000 loss.

Wool, sheep and horses were consumed in a $15,000 fire in a barn at the Tule House, Yolo County, August 22.

August 9 a man with an infant in his arms entered a North Beach street-car, San Francisco, and asked a woman passenger to hold the infant a few minutes. He disappeared and at last accounts had not been heard from.

BRAVERY REWARDED.

A boat going out to meet a steamer at Anaheim Landing, Orange County, was upset August 4 and Jack Westenberg, Tom Lloyd and James Galbreath, boatmen, were drowned.

August 17 the stage from Plumas County, when near Oroville, Butte County, was stopped

BUSCH GARDENS, PASADENA A VERITABLE PARADISE

M. Elisabeth Smith

(PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

BUSCH GARDENS, ONE OF THE MOST beautiful gardens of its kind in the world, is located in Pasadena, California. Of all the marvels of this Golden State, this estate has attracted probably more celebrities than any individual place in Southern California. Early in 1903, Adolphus Busch started the construction of these gardens, which surround his home, and no expense has been spared to make this the wonder spot of the world.

All portions of the grounds are highly cultivated, and every form of landscaping art has been employed. The gardens comprise an area of thirty acres, and are divided into two parks creek bed, and on the west side of the depression steep, high cliffs, bright with the color of wild flowers, rise abruptly. Rustic bridges cross the creek bed in several places, and rustic benches have been placed here and there where the most beautiful vistas are to be had.

Scattered through the park are little figures of brownies and gnomes, as well as figures representing characters from familiar fairy tales. Examples of this sort include "Little Red Riding Hood," the "Gingerbread House" and the "Three Bears." These scenes are beautifully placed under the spreading branches of friendly trees, and they are a constant delight to the many children who visit the estate.

known as the upper and lower gardens, each of which contains fifteen acres. The most extensive phase of horticulture and floriculture is displayed, and rare plants from all parts of the world are to be found.

Fourteen miles of walks wind through the grounds, offering new and beautiful pictures at every turn. Nature could scarcely have provided a more perfect setting for formal gardens of this character. Running through the western part of the premises is the Arroyo Seco, or dry creek. Landscape gardeners have taken advantage of this, and rolling terraces adorn the banks.

The entire area of the gardens slopes gently westward from the Busch residence, which fronts on Orange Grove avenue, down to the

In the center of one of the spacious lawns is a fountain, whose geyser-like spray waves in the breeze, resembling a magnificent plume. The pool is surrounded by pampas grass and willow trees, the limbs of which trail on the water, as though refreshing themselves. In addition to the lovely swans which disport in this little oasis, there are figures of cranes and storks placed in a most realistic manner.

Various aviaries, containing many unusual birds of marvelous plumage, are to be found on the estate, as well as a rustic mill, in the eaves of which live pigeons and the lovely songbirds which abound in the southland.

Prior to 1920, the gardens were open to the public daily, but prompted by the desire to further assist the disabled of the world war,

Mrs. Busch turned over the active management of the gardens to the Department of California of the American Legion, and an admission charge of twenty-five cents for adults is made for entrance to the grounds.

All of the money accruing from this source is used for the relief of disabled veterans. Mrs. Busch pays the entire upkeep of the gardens, leaving all of the money, which is collected at the gates, free for the use of the American Legion. The only expense which is incidental to the Legion is in employing ticket-sellers, gate-men and two patrolmen, one in each garden to serve as guides and protect the property.

Mrs. Busch insisted that funds derived from this arrangement be administered in a practical way and in such a manner that the most relief could be provided for disabled veterans. The money is dispensed in the form of a loan to the beneficiary, secured by a promissory note payable to the Busch Gardens Veterans' Relief Fund on demand. No cash is given to the applicant, but the trustees of the fund assume some of the obligations, such as hospital and doctor bills, rent, grocery bills, etc.

A somewhat different aspect is placed on this fund than in cases of disabled veterans who apply to the United States Veterans' Bureau for aid. Any disabled veteran is entitled to apply to the Veterans' Bureau, which is a department of the Federal Government, provided his disability occurred in line of duty and while he was in service, or his disability must be directly traceable to injury received in line of duty, whereas any disabled veteran in the Department of California may apply for relief to the Busch Gardens Fund regardless of where or when he was disabled.

During the year 1924, more than $20,000 was placed in the hands of disabled veterans both in and out of hospitals in California, and had it not been for the Busch Gardens Fund, this would not have been possible. The management of the gardens by the Department of California of the American Legion was originally on a trial basis, but Mrs. Busch has been so highly pleased with the work which has been accomplished that she has decided to allow the arrangement to continue as long as disabled veterans need relief. Approximately $100,000 has been raised through this fund.

Every year, on Easter Sunday, Mrs. Busch entertains hundreds of orphans and children of the poorer classes at an Easter egg hunt. This charming and philanthropic woman, at the age of eighty, personally directs this affair, painting many of the Easter eggs with her own hands.

In addition to the eggs, each child is provided with gay-colored balloons, ice-cream cones, and glasses and glasses of lemonade. Placed near the refreshment tables are great baskets and jars of oranges which the children are free to take at will. Anyone witnessing the groups of happy boys and girls scampering over the spacious lawns, can realize in a small degree the great joy this one incident alone undoubtedly brings to Mrs. Busch.

A beautiful garden with a wonderful spirit behind it! Pasadena is indeed proud of this veritable Paradise.

HISTORIC ADOBE FLORES HOUSE

SCENE OF DOUBLE WEDDING.

Allen B. Bixby, treasurer and honored member of Pasadena Parlor No. 259 N.S.G.W., also a supposedly confirmed member of the bachelors' club, sprung a surprise on his friends June 20 by joining the benedicts. To keep him company, his charming mother was wedded at the same time and place. Bixby's grandfather, John Allen, was a pioneer Riverside banker and his family still cherish many of the old things which made the life of the pioneer so rich in romance and adventure.

The weddings were performed at the historic Adobe Flores house, one of the first residences

EVERY WOMAN HAS BEAUTY

THE FIRST ESSENTIAL IN GOOD dressing is knowledge. Knowledge, first and foremost, of the requirements of your type, the best silhouette, the most becoming colors and the most suitable fabrics.

Glance at any well-dressed woman you know, and you will find that she does not need to be a slave to fashion to give "that well-dressed look." She has used good judgment in her selections.

Every woman has beauty of one sort or another, and if she will seek it out and dress up to it, she will find herself emphasizing her best points. Study your dress needs, and plan your wardrobe so that you can have the type of garments that will be most suitable for the various phases of your daily activity. There are many contributing factors that now make it possible to present, without great cost, "that well-dressed look."

The styles that are available have a definite fashion background that more than ever before gives the woman a wonderful opportunity to express herself in her clothes. The fabrics of the day are astonishingly beautiful and the colors have never before been so intriguing.

Pages could be written about accessories, such as hats that are becoming; shoes that are suitable for general and dress wear, with all the qualities of comfort and style; purses, either to match or contrast; jewelry in colors that lend that air of distinction that women adore; flowers, of every description, worn on the shoulder or the lapel; gloves that introduce new smart notes, and hose in darker shades than last year.

Umbrellas have short, stubby handles and many of the smartest are of colored silk which does service in rain or shine.

Velour, the forecast, has run for months and now is with us for the early autumn.

Crisp, dainty little collar-and-cuff sets, in all colors, shapes and styles, add just the feminine touch which every well-dressed woman desires. Plaited crepe-de-chine is very smart.

Many novelties present themselves in buttons—buttons made of white ivory, with black ornamentations; buttons with four ribs, which enables one to see the fabric through the buttons, and hand-carved and hand-painted buttons, which simulate needle-point tapestry.

Tassels are shown in sombre and in plain colors. You will find them trimming sleeves, neck lines and also used as the finishing note on many smart bags and vanity cases. One of the smartest is chinese in character and has four bars perforated at the ends, enabling one to connect them with beads, which also head the tassel. Another tassel is made with a filigree ball set with colored stones.

Coats for afternoon tea, bridge or reception are of kasha, kashmir, satin, bengaline, charmeen, crepe roma or georgette.

Suits of smartly tailored models are in kasha, tweeds, very light colored homespuns, bengalines and serge. Ensemble costumes of printed silks are made with chiffon coats of transparent fabric.

Gloves come in soft kid, gray, beige or tan, and suede, white or yellow.

Shoes come in doeskin, chamoise, suede and kid, in colors harmonizing with the costume.

Hose comes in darker skin shades, and "hankies" are of printed chiffon with lace edges.

Sports wear coats are made of homespuns, tweeds, english mixtures and heavy knitted fabrics. Suits are of balbriggan and jersey, and dresses of flannel and crepe-de-chine.

Vacation clothes for little people come in tub silk, linen, pongee, chambray, percale, gingham, dimity, voile, cotton crepe, pique and cotton print. For dress-up occasions organdy, sheer batiste, crepe-de-chine, taffeta and chiffon are good. Flannel is used for coats, suits and ensembles. Printed materials are popular and the styles closely follow grown-up modes.

For children's long, hot afternoons, when a certain amount of dressing up is required, one cannot say too much about dimity. It is decorative enough to please, it doesn't soil too quickly, and its nice sheerness makes it cool. Drop-stitch voiles are lovely, also.

Printed cretonnes, gay as small garden plots, make clothes that children love to wear and mothers love to make them, because they are so pretty and there is so little making to them.

English prints and Standly's domestic prints are getting better every year, thanks to American enterprise, and they are certainly attractive in price. Many mothers prefer them to the imported fabrics.

Hand faggotting makes a pleasing trimming on a one-piece frock of handkerchief linen, with outlined set-in shoulder band and skirt hem. The side fulness is held by a belt of the same material.

Lace is a smart medium for dinner frock made over a camisole topped georgette-crepe slip, with the skirt gathered at the center front and sides, where it joins the long-waisted blouse.

Necklines are more feminine. The pointed line for the sports wear still stays the favorite but rounded and bateau are popular for other occasions.

The silhouette is changing. It is sometimes uncompromisingly straight and boyish, or it sometimes curved, as is evidenced in the circular flare, the flutter of the jabot, the softness of soft fabrics and even the newer moulding of the practical corselet bodice.

Newest among the new colors is blue—bright the history of Los Angeles was in the making! Then, as now, the Birkel Music Company was distributing musical instruments from the world's best makers, and pointing out those in recent characteristics that are found only in "quality" instruments.

And through the intervening years the Birkel Music Company assisted by such famous instruments as the Steinway, The Instrument of the Immortals.

THE DUO ART REPRODUCING PIANO, incorporated in the Steinway, Walter, Steck and Straud pianos, the Kurtzmann, Krickauer, Bush & Gerts, Laffargue, Brinkerhoff and Baus pianos, Lyon & Healy harps, Washburn string instruments, Paramount and Orpheum banjos and Conn band instruments has maintained those ideals that neither time, nor changing fortunes can alter.

Today . . . the purchase of a piano is only the matter of a convenient arrangement of your budget . . . over two years to pay . . . if you wish!

blue like a cornflower. Even dark blue comes back to popularity under the wing of the new bright blues.

Shirrings and tiers are the means of breaking straight lines. Jabots and godets are smart notes of the mode, and much of the new chic may be tied up in a bow.

One-piece chiffon frocks are slashed and caught with ties at the neck, the sleeves or the hip fullness and are held in place with dainty streamers.

Every frock must have its own flutter. Soft drapery cascades its way to smartness and elaborated fronts join plain straight backs.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

by one man, masked and in his stocking feet. Armed with a double-barreled shotgun, he ordered everybody to throw up their hands. Colonel Von Schmidt, the well-known civil engineer, was a passenger, riding inside the stage. He cocked his revolver and got out of the stage on the side opposite the highwayman. Von Schmidt yelled, "Drop that gun!" and at the same time the driver lashed his horses into a run and left, letting Von Schmidt face the robber. The latter was so disconcerted with the unexpected turn of affairs that he dropped his gun and, darting away into the brush, made good time in getting away. There was over $10,000 in gold-dust in the express box, so Wells-Fargo, in appreciation of his grasp of the situation and action, presented Von Schmidt with a $750 gold watch attached to a $350 chain.

A band of fourteen Mexicans, said to be under command of the bandit Chavez, raided Sycamore, Fresno County, August 16. They robbed W. H. Pardee's hotel of money and valuables, gathered a band of horses from nearby ranches and then rode off.

The La Porte, Plumas County, stage was robbed by three Mexicans near Forbestown, Butte County, August 3. They got $3,200 out of the express box. Subsequently, Sheriffs Thorne of Calaveras, Daniels of Butte, McCormick of Placer and Detective Hume captured Red Antone and three of his gang, and they were held for trial for committing this robbery.

Joe Zumwalt, a 12-year-old Mokelumne Hill, Calaveras County, lad, met a rattlesnake in his back yard August 5 and killed it. It was four feet long and had twelve rattles.

H. Wilburn of Sespe, Ventura County, in charge of a flock of sheep August 11, saw his dog chased into camp by a grizzly. In the melee that followed he was thrown about fifteen feet, landing on a pile of rocks. Here he feigned death while the bear mauled him for a half-hour and then left.

"Climb the mountains and get their good tidings. Nature's peace will flow into you as sunshine flows into trees. The winds will blow their own freshness into you, and the storms their energy, while cares will drop off like autumn leaves."—John Muir.

THE AUTOMOBILE HAS CHANGED THE social conditions throughout the world, but it is in the smaller towns and the country places where its coming has made the most marked changes. Fifteen years ago San Juan Capistrano, in Orange County, stood lonely and unnoticed. Few travelers alighted from the railway to see the old mission, for the accommodations for visitors were of the simplest and the interval between trains was long.

Today a great highway runs through the old town and thousands of automobiles and tens of thousands of tourists pass the mission every week. Hundreds stop off to go through the golden gardens and to wonder at the valor and industry of the pioneers who built the magnificent buildings. The old Spanish atmosphere has been driven back, but not destroyed, and there are still many residents who remember the good old quiet days when the memories of romance and of Spain were very much alive.

The "Pageant of San Juan Capistrano," calling back those happy times, has stirred the imagination of the Capistrano people and they have brought forth their wonderful old shawls and costumes to wear in the quadrillo, that old-time dance which they bring to life in the performance.

Bedecked in the gay colors of the old days, they dance the stately waltz before the slow-moving ox-cart, decorated with flowers, as they go to greet the governor of California, who has come to their pueblo to assist in the dedication of the new church in 1806. After the triumphal entry of his excellency, they make a colorful group on the "balcon" of the patio as they watch the exciting games played by the daring Spanish horsemen.

Later, while the old mission is passing from the church to secular hands, these old residents dance the quadrillo just as it was danced by their grandfathers and grandmothers, on the very ground that was used then for festivities. The open-air spectacle has great advantages, as it gives a sense of reality and conviction that no theatre can give. It is entirely different from the artificial theatre, with its carefully planned illusions.

The pageant presents in the real place the identical dances, beautifully executed by the descendants of the romantic Spanish people who performed them of old. Many of the dancers are able to remember the things which they now represent, and a comparison of the names of those who really held high festival in the mission grounds of old with those who now recall the gay fiesta would show a most striking similarity.

There is no other place so accessible as Capistrano in which the romance and memory of those Spanish days are kept in so high a regard. It is a unique opportunity of seeing the splendid, gay old times re-lived again. The Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West plan a motor caravan to the "Mission Pageant of San Juan Capistrano" early in August.

GOLDEN STATE IS PICTURED AS AMAZONIAN BEAUTY.

San Francisco—Dan Sweeney, an artist of this city, has been declared the winner in the contest for the official poster design for California's diamond jubilee, September 5-12.

The artist pictures the Golden State as an Amazonian beauty who has succeeded in completely taming the famous grizzly and is driving him about with poppy chains. In the background is the blue of Monterey Bay and the old Custom House at Monterey where, July 7, 1846, Commodore John Drake Sloat raised the Stars and Stripes and, in the name of the United States, took possession of California.

Monument for Old-timer—The unmarked grave in the Sonora, Tuolumne County, Masonic cemetery of "Dick Baker," in real life J. R. Stoker, immortalized in Mark Twain's "Roughing It," is to be designated by a monument.

TO PRESENT THE MEMBERSHIP OF the Pacific Coast Club and the City of Long Beach with an architectural creation commanding universal admiration, and at the same time to develop complete plans for a club building to have all the elements necessary for a modern athletic-social-home club with an arrangement so that of June 9. The plans for the building are an architectural achievement, not only in beauty, comfort and luxury, but of practical arrangement and useable appointments which allow for the greatest efficiency in operation.

A building which towers fourteen stories from the beach level, with all four sides clear to view, will now soon be completed at Ocean ave-the many departments can be operated at a minimum expense, has been the task and obligation assumed by the building committee of this organization.

Through constant application over a period of many months the objective has been accomplished. In view of thousands of people, among them the city's most prominent citizens, and the membership, the ground breaking for the $1,500,000 club home took place on the afternoon and First place. The old Norman style of architecture, both interior and exterior, has been carried out, and the marine location is a perfect setting for a building which has been evolved from research study of old historic Norman castles and chateaux which in the centuries past were located on waterways for protection.

A building that is to house a club must have the spirit of comradeship, quietness, peacefulness, yet be homelike, cheerful and cordial to all those who enter the charmed circle of club life. Stately dignity, gracious hospitality, warmth of affection, cordiality, enduring strength—all of these are expressed by the architecture of the club building as is planned.

Approach to the club will be through an impressive archway, with iron wrought doors, secluding the club from suggestion of undesirable worldly contact, and within, the atmosphere of protection and stability will prevail. The building includes a small city in itself: Dining rooms, reading rooms, lounges, libraries, silence rooms, radio rooms, lockers, plunge, baths, bachelor apartments, guests' suites, women's rooms, card rooms, lobbies, gymnasium, hand ball courts, courtyard, billiard room, sun porches, terraces, kitchens, and mechanical departments.

While the Pacific Coast Club is in every sense a man's club, extensive provisions have been made for the women. In arranging the entrances, lobby, dining rooms, provision was made whereby unescorted women visitors may repair to their own private lounge and dining rooms immediately after entrance without having to come in contact with the men's side of the club. Their individual elevator service takes them to the second floor to their game rooms, writing rooms and tea rooms, overlooking the courtyard, or, to the levels below where their locker rooms, beauty parlors and entrances to the pool and beach are located.

It would take volumes to describe all the various departments of this modern and unique club building, but the careful thought and attention that is being given every detail of the interior and exterior, the decorations and the furnishings, can only go to the final completed result of an institution of refinement, culture and real architectural beauty.

The membership of the Pacific Coast Club now numbers 1,250. The bylaws provide for the allotment of 1,500 memberships, 250 of which are to be reserved for assignment during the building period. The progress of the club's organization, the allotment of memberships and the completion of the building plans, all accomplished within a period of twelve months, sets a new mark in club organization in the annals of clubdom.

Under the direction of Miss Lilla M. Harshman, the club publishes "Hi-tide," an attractive thirty-six-page monthly magazine, which has made itself self-supporting, and which keeps its membership informed of all that is being accomplished month by month.

The success of the club is due to the untiring efforts of its board of governors: David M. Smith, president; H. F. Tresslar, vice-president; Carl E. Slatt, secretary; Julius Blu, treasurer; Roland G. Swaffield, counselor; Otis Hoyt, Judge Ralph H. Clock, Max R. Wallace, Nelson McCook, Thomas R. Merrell, Vern Dumas, W. Milton McGrew, L. Roy Myers, Edgar F. Davis, Louis C. Simmel, A. L. Parmley and its manager, Stanley S. Stonaker.

were excluded from the athletic clubs until just the last few years, it was necessary for them to erect club buildings of their own. Such a condition will never arrive in Long Beach, for just as much thought has been given to the accommodations for the women as for the men in the Pacific Coast Club.

Every provision is being made for the wives and the daughters and the social members of the Pacific Coast Club to use their section of the building as their social center, where they have facilities for easy entertaining on every occasion. The success of "her" party is assured when "she" first makes arrangements with the maitre d'hotel and social hostess. The social hostess is trained to be of assistance to the women members and their guests. She is trained in many other arts as well—arranging the flowers, making out menus for the different events (an art itself), knowing how to carry out color combinations in decorations for the tables as well as the food, giving the suggestion here, the finishing touch there, which can only come from the hands of a woman who has made the business of being a hostess a profession. The relationship between member and hostess is a very close one. It is just the spirit of co-operation that makes club life in the women's quarters so entrancing. It is a position for the selling of "harmony." Everything must run smoothly, quietly, and it must be right. She is there to handle all of the delicate and detailed things that a man could not do.

Most deservedly worthy of mention at this time are the exceptional conveniences that have been embodied in the general plans of the club building for the women. A private entrance from Ocean avenue leads one to the women's waiting room on the main floor. From here, by means of private elevator or staircase, one ascends to the second floor to find a spacious retiring room and large lounge which commands full view of the grand hall. From this point the women may watch the exit and entrance undisturbed, and such a facility introduces an entirely new feature which may easily be appreciated. Leading off this lounge, one finds the women's game room, with seating accommodation for a hundred people to play cards. At the further end of the main lounge is the dining room, overlooking the patio and also of sufficient size to accommodate one hundred at a time. For the convenience of private parties, provision has been made for auxiliary dining rooms which overlook the ocean and will comfortably seat a further seventy-five persons. Children may conveniently be taken to the women's terrace, protected from the wind and facing south. On warm summer afternoons this affords a charming recluse for afternoon tea garden parties, and constitutes a luxury that would be difficult to enjoy elsewhere.

THE ART JURY.

A novel feature in club organization is the establishing of an art jury to function for the Pacific Coast Club. One of the all-important details connected with the building and furnishing of a club home is the work of preserving and carrying through the years to come the magnificent undertaking of the building committee. To accomplish this, an art jury has been formed, and it will be their purpose to shoulder the responsibility and duty of custodian over these momentous matters.

The duty of the art jury is to act as custodian of all works of art owned by the club and have the sole charge of the care and preservation thereof. No part of the real property shall be laid out or improved by street work, buildings, structures, landscaping or planting, or its physical contours cut into, altered or changed, or any premises maintained, except with the approval of the art jury as to a uniform and reasonable high standard of artistic result and attractiveness, in exterior and physical appearance of said property and improvements; provided, that as to any original layout of said property and improvements by the building committee of the club, the art jury shall not have any jurisdiction or power of approval other than to make suggestions.

No work of art shall become the property of the club, whether acquired by purchase, gift or otherwise, unless such work of art or design of the same, together with a statement showing the proposed location of such work of art, shall first have been submitted to and approved in writing by the art jury; nor shall any work of art until so approved be contracted for, erected, placed in or upon, or allowed to extend over or upon the property and improvements over which the art jury has jurisdiction. The term "work of art" as used in this section shall apply to and include all paintings, mural decorations, stained glass, statues, bas-reliefs, tablets, sculptures, monuments, fountains, arches, entrance gateways, walls or other structures of a permanent character intended for ornamentation or commemoration. No work of art over which the art jury has jurisdiction shall be removed, relocated or in any way altered without the approval in writing of the art jury.

THE LIBRARY LOUNGE.

The favorite haven of retreat and seclusion from the world offered in the club, will doubtlessly be the library lounge. Occupying the entire first level of the club's main tower and thus affording exposures on all four sides, the library lounge will have a depth of eighty-two feet and a width of forty-three feet. Built-in book cases will allow for ample room to accommodate myriad chairs and reading tables without any crowding or congestion. It is so planned that a hundred men may be comfortably accommodated at one time, each ensconced to his personal liking, and yet be, as it were, in a world apart.

Planned with the aim of giving club members every conceivable opportunity for seclusion and quiet when members wish to be apart and meditate or read, the library lounge also holds forth another distinctive feature in its outside balconies. These will occupy the four exteriors of the hall, and will be of sufficient area to accommodate many chairs, and because of the planned shading will permit of desired solitude and reading similar to interior conditions. Needless to add that the views of the mountains, shore lines and ocean to be had from the balconies will be unsurpassed.

bership, saying if that was the policy nothing was impossible of accomplishment. Other speakers were D.D.G.P. Ross, Dr. S. T. Luce, Charles Crowell, Edgar McFadyen and John Cadogan (Sacramento 3). The latter, in appreciation for favors extended by the Parlor, passed out some surprise presents.

Ice cream and cake were served by a committee composed of Max Schlemmer, Robert Loree and Charles Crowell. Jointly with Long Beach Parlor No. 214 N.D.G.W., the Parlor gave a sport dance July 29. A committee from the Parlor paid a visit to Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. at San Pedro, July 16. Long Beach will be represented, along with the other southern Parlors, in the Admission Day pageant at San Francisco, September 9.

In Memoriam

J. C. RILEY.

God Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to remove from our Parlor, severing a link that bound us together and calling to His eternal home, our dearly beloved brother J. C. Riley, after a lingering illness. During his illness he received all the care a devoted family and brotherhood could bestow.

Whereas, During his life among us he lived a true, upright, honest life, we know that he will be received in the Grand Parlor on High with honor, love and respect. We deeply deplore our loss, for to know him was to love him. "But," as we know him, will be greatly missed, he having been a member of our Parlor for nearly thirty years. He was a true, loyal Native Son. It is no more than fitting that here we record our tribute of brotherly affection for Brother Riley, and may time console and lessen the grief of those loved ones he has left to mourn his passing.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of Amador Parlor No. 17 N.S.G.W., that a copy be sent to the family of deceased, also a copy to The Grizzly Bear for publication, and that the Parlor's charter be draped in mourning for thirty days.

Committee.

Sutter Creek, June 22, 1925.

WILLIAM J. TURNER.

In the passing of Brother William J. Turner on May 26, 1925, James Lick Parlor No. 242 Native Sons of the Golden West has suffered a distinct loss—the loss of a charter member and a sincere friend. The Order of the Native Sons has lost a true and loyal member, and California and the nation have lost an honest and upright citizen.

Yet, though his life in the flesh is ended and we shall see no more his cheery smile nor hear his words of encouragement, we are consoled with the thought of his everlasting life of peace in the Parlor on High, where all is serene and there is no pain.

Of times in the future will his name be mentioned by those of us who knew him and loved him for his paternal devotion, sincerity of purpose, kindly disposition, his love of uprightness and honesty, and his attachment for California, the state that gave him birth. To his sorrowing wife and children we extend our heartfelt sympathy, and for ourselves we reserve a memory ever green.

JAMES LICK PARLOR NO. 242 N.S.G.W.

By Wm. H. Egger, Rec. Sec.

San Francisco, June 22, 1925.

MARY SCHMALLING SOBRELLES.

Whereas, The Angel of Death, with overshadowing wings of sorrow, has descended into our midst and conveyed to the great beyond, whose unfathomable depths have never been penetrated, our beloved sister and friend, Mary Schmalling Sobrelles, and while we bow to the divine will of Him who marks the sparrow's fall and does all things for the best, we deeply deplore the loss of a friend and member whose charming ways and devoted motherhood endeared her to all; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to her sorrowing daughter, son and husband our sincere sympathy; that our charter be draped in mourning for thirty days, and that a page of the records of El Monte Parlor No. 205 N.D.G.W. be dedicated to her memory, upon which these resolutions be spread, and that a copy be sent to the bereaved daughter, son and husband, The Grizzly Bear Magazine, and to the "Mountain View Register-Reader" for publication.

GRAND PRESIDENT ESTABLISHES OFFICIAL VISITING RECORD.

BERKELEY—INCLUDING JULY 21, Grand President Sue J. Irwin had officially visited thirty-one Subordinate Parlors since her election at the Placerville Grand Parlor in June. The Parlors so far visited are located in the mountain districts.

During August, on account of the Parlors being engaged in preparations for the San Francisco Admission Day festivities, Grand President Irwin will make but few official visits. The itinerary includes:

August 18, Aloha 106, Oakland.
August 26, Dolores 169, San Francisco.
August 28, El Monte 205, Mountain View.

Grand Vice Given Reception.

Tracy—As an acknowledgment of the honor brought to the Parlor of which she is an enthusiastic member, El Pescadero 82 tendered a reception to Mrs. Pearl Lamb, elected Grand Vice-president at the Placerville Grand Parlor. The Lions Club, where the reception was held, was beautifully decorated for the occasion and was thronged with enthusiastic Natives and admiring friends who, after extending their felicitations to the honor-guest, spent the evening pleasantly at dancing and cards. During the serving of dainty refreshments Past President Claize Ludwig, in a charming speech, presented the Parlor's gift to Mrs. Lamb, a beautiful piece of silver, and numerous floral tributes from friends and relatives. Past Grand President Carrie Roesch-Durham and officers of visiting Parlors made interesting remarks. Grand Vice-president Lamb responded feelingly to the tributes paid her and expressed her firmest intention of faithfully fulfilling all duties.

Officers of El Pescadero, with Flora Griffin as president, were installed July 17 by D.D.G.P.

Joint Installation.

Oakland—Officers of Piedmont 87 and Piedmont 120 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed July 9 at a public ceremony. The hall was tastefully decorated with palms and ferns, and there was a large crowd assembled. Gertrude Morrison, recently appointed supervising district deputy for Alameda County, and D.D.G.P. Ansel officiated, Betty Meinert and Lincoln S. Church becoming the respective presidents. Among those in attendance were Past Grand Presidents Addie L. Mosher and Dr. Victory A. Derrick, Grand Secretary Alice H. Dougherty, Grand Trustee Sallie Thaler. On behalf of 87, Past Grand President Mosher presented the past president's emblematic pin to Nina Campana. Gretta Murden, chairman of the evening, highly complimented Edna Healy on the good work accomplished during her term as president and congratulated the newly-installed officers of both Parlors.

The committee from 87 working for the September 9 celebration gave a most successful whist party July 30. Gretta Murden was in charge and was assisted by Betty Meinert, Augusta Huxsol, Marion Ring, Harriett Emerson, Helen Ring, Josephine Clark, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher and the committee of 120.

Grateful.

San Diego—San Diego 208 takes this means of thanking all the friends of its member, Dr. Louise C. Heilbron, who assisted in electing her to the position of Grand Marshal at the Placerville Grand Parlor. "We feel that a great honor has been bestowed upon our small Parlor here in the southernmost corner of the state," says Secretary Elsie Case, "and we are deeply grateful."

Delegates Report.

Hollister—Past Grand President Bertha A. Briggs, Marshal Helen Leonard and Past Presidents Mathilda Wright and Josephine Snell, who were in attendance from Copa de Oro 105 at the Grand Parlor at Placerville, presented interesting reports to the Parlor of the many social functions enjoyed and of the legislation enacted, with summaries of the various activities of the Order. To add to the pleasure of the evening, they appeared in the pioneer costumes worn at Placerville. At the close of the meeting refreshments were served.

As San Juan Bautista 179 was not represented at the Grand Parlor session, the delegates visited their neighboring sisters and gave them the benefit of their reports. Past President Blanche Taix of San Juan Bautista, who recently returned from an eight months' tour of Europe, gave a wonderful travelogue which held the attention of the members until a late hour, after which dainty refreshments were enjoyed.

First Anniversary to Be Observed.

Palo Alto—Palo Alto 229 is planning many affairs for the near future, among them a whist party and a celebration of the Parlor's first institution anniversary. The latter event is billed for August 6, when officers will be installed by D.D.G.P. Eldora McCarty. Many grand officers and delegations from neighboring Parlors are expected to be present, and an invitation has been extended to Palo Alto 216 N.S.G.W., which has given every assistance to the Parlor since its institution.

Sociables to Be Resumed.

Daly City—El Carmelo 181 tendered a reception to Recording Secretary Josephine T. Johnson, in honor of her election as a Grand Trustee at the Placerville Grand Parlor. Mrs. Johnson was the recipient of many gifts. Music, speeches and a banquet were features of the happy event. Officers of the Parlor were installed July 29 by D.D.G.P. Rena Mathias, Anna K. Bauer becoming president. The good of the order committee, Mrs. Grace Saylor Augustien chairman, presented a program and served refreshments.

El Carmelo's whists and sociables, given the third Wednesday of each month, will be resumed during August after a month's vacation. President Bauer will be in charge. These social times are greatly enjoyed by the people of the community. For the benefit of the Parlor's drill-team, a hope-chest, filled with beautiful hand-made articles, will be disposed of at a dance August 19.

Josephine Parmisano, a member of El Carmelo, and James Reardon, affiliated with Twin Peaks 214 N.S.G.W. (San Francisco) were recently married. For their new home in Daly City, the Parlor presented them with a reading lamp.

Berkeley paid her official visit to Plumas Pioneer 219 July 13. The decorating committee spared no pains in making the hall a perfect bower, with Washington lilies, Shasta daisies and marigolds. President Sarah Boland Wilson presided, and some forty-odd members were in attendance, many coming several miles to have the pleasure of meeting the Grand President.

Needless to say, all felt more than repaid for their efforts, for Miss Irwin gave a most instructive talk, answered many questions that will make the work in the future easier for the officers and members, and told in a very impressive manner of the work the Order is doing. Miss Woodall, in a few remarks, expressed pleasure at being able to tour this wonderful state with the Grand President; especially was she pleased with the trip through the inspiring mountains. Other visitors were Mrs. Marie Whiting of Oroville and Mrs. Jessie Knuss of San Francisco. Dainty and tempting refreshments were served at the meeting's close. Grand President Irwin was presented by Plumas Pioneer with a silver spoon. In the bowl are engraved the name and number of the Parlor, and on the face of the handle appears her initial, "I".

Officers Jointly Installed.

Pittsburg—Officers of Stirling 146 and Diamond 246 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed July 15, D.D.G.P. Mildred Jones of Martinez officiating for the former and D.D.G.P. Judson Bigelow of Antioch for the latter, and Theresa Gatto and Charles W. Savage becoming the respective presidents. Among the many visitors were Past Grand President Amy V. McAvoy, Grand Organist Estelle Evans, District Deputies Lauretta Kelly and Mary Reber, and delegations from Las Juntas 221 (Martinez) and Antioch 223.

The lodgeroom was made festive for the occasion, and a large number of both Parlors witnessed the ceremonies. Presentations were made to Past President Marie Antrobus, of an emblematic pin, to Grand Organist Evans and to D.D.G.P. Jones. After the installation a delightful banquet was served by Stirling Parlor. Dancing concluded the evening's festivities.

Banquet Follows Installation.

Vallejo—Officers of Vallejo 195 were installed July 15 by D.D.G.P. Ella Ingram of Napa, who was accompanied by a large delegation from Escholt 16. Mrs. Julia Hill became the new president.

The installation ceremonies were followed by a banquet. On the Parlor's behalf Past President Mary Combs presented an emblematic pin to Mrs. Juliet Bliss, retiring past president.

August Dance.

San Jose—The fifth diamond card party of Vendome 100 was given July 2; Mrs. Sadie Howell was the general chairman. July 9 a class of candidates were initiated, and at the close of the ceremonies the social committee—Mrs. Stella Boggs, Mrs. Emily Warren, Miss Marie Buck, Mrs. May Frost—served refreshments from beautifully decorated tables.

Officers of the Parlor were installed by D.D.G.P. Mabel Sontheimer July 23, Edwinna Buffington becoming president. Mrs. Frances Riley had charge of the social session which followed the ceremonies. The latter part of August the younger members of the Parlor will give a dance for the benefit of the Admission Day fund. Mrs. Fay Withycombe is chairman of the general committee of arrangements. Natives recently arrived at the homes of Mrs. Ida Brooks and Mrs. Naomi Pinard, members of the Parlor.

"Kids' " Party.

San Andreas—At the July 3 meeting of San Andreas 113 July 3, Mrs. Rivera and Winkler, in charge of the entertainment, provided a "kids' " party, and the members came costumed as children. Rope skipping, leap frog and other childish pastimes were indulged in for suitable prizes. Edibles suited to the spirit of the occasion were served.

IMPORTANT ANNIVERSARY IN CALIFORNIA HISTORY OBSERVED.

San Diego City—July 1, the one hundred and fifty-sixth anniversary of the landing on California soil of Father Junipero Serra, founder of the chain of California missions, was observed by the placing of a wreath on the cross at Old Town, the scene of Father Serra's early activities.

The wreath, made of San Diego's choicest blooms, was placed by Juanita Vigare, a direct descendant of one of the Catalan soldiers who came to California with Father Serra in 1769. As the wreath was being placed a naval airplane dropped flowers upon the scene.

NORTHERN COUNTIES ORGANIZE PAST PRESIDENTS' ASSEMBLY.

MARYSVILLE—FRED H. GREELY ASsembly No. 6 of the Past Presidents' Association was launched July 11 by Governor-general Virgil L. Orengo and Director-general James P. Cronin.

It was named in honor of Past Grand President Fred H. Greely, and in the membership are embraced past presidents of Yuba, Sutter, Butte, Colusa, Placer and Nevada Counties.
Officers of the assembly include: Superior Judge E. P. McDaniel (Marysville 6), junior past governor; L. T. Sinnott (Marysville 6), governor; John P. Colford (Sutter 261), first vice-governor; Seth Millington (Colusa 69), second vice-governor; Harry A. Schroeder (Silver Star
63), third vice-governor; O. H. Fuller (Quartz 58), marshal; Barney J. Barry (Silver Star 63), recording secretary; Fred H. Greely (Marysville 6), financial secretary; J. Clarence Gray (Marysville 6), James E. Oliver (Quartz 58),
W. H. Tregalis (Argonaut 8), trustees; W. H.
Hibbard (Argonaut 8), inside sentinel; Charles
E. Maloney (Silver Star 63), outside sentinel;
Thomas J. O'Connor (Marysville 6), treasurer.

At the banquet which followed the assembly's institution addresses were delivered by Grand Trustee Richard M. Hamb, Ray Felton, William
Manning, Judge McDaniel, Barney Barry and O.
H. Fuller. Twenty-five names were on the charter-roll. The next meeting of the assembly is billed for Marysville, August 29, when many additional past presidents are expected to affiliate.

Past Grands Have Outing.

Jackson—Past Grand President Clarence E.
Jarvis and Grand First Vice-president Hilliard
E. Welch were hosts July 3, 4 and 5 to a gathering of Past Grand Presidents at Plasse's resort, in the heart of the historic Kit Carson country, near Silver Lake. Fishing was the chief pastime, and "Dean" Grady and Dr. Decker staged an old-time snow fight. A trout dinner and a raviola banquet were among the innerman attractions.

PAST GRAND PRESIDENTS' PARTY AT SILVER LAKE, JULY 4.

The evening of Independence Day, the party attended the patriotic exercises at Stockton's
Municipal Camp at Silver Lake. G. E. Reynolds (Stockton 7), managing editor "Stockton Record," was master of ceremonies. Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington delivered an address based on the spirit of the American people, and Past Grand President Jarvis described the principal mountain trails of the Silver Lake region.

The Past Grand Presidents who enjoyed the outing included: John H. Grady, Dr. Charles W. Decker, Fred H. Greely, George D. Clark,
Lewis F. Byington, Herman C. Lichtenberger,
Thomas Monahan, Clarence E. Jarvis, Louis H.
Mooseer, William I. Traeger, William J. Hayes.

Ritual Team in Demand.

Sacramento—Officers of Sutter Fort 241 were installed July 8 by D.D.G.P. Walter Martin of Elk Grove, George Miller becoming president.
Following the ceremonies President Miller named the following chairmen of the standing committees for the term: S. E. Ammonds, good of the order; Joseph Knowles, homeless children;
E. B. Johnston, state of the order; A. W. Katzen-stein, Admission Day; C. L. Katzenstein, relief; D. L. Durst, lapsation; Otto F. Schuchard, publicity. Light refreshments and short talks were enjoyed.

July 29 the newly-installed officers, under the direction of Drillmaster A. W. Katzenstein, conducted the initiatory ceremonies for the benefit of a class of candidates. The Parlor's ritual team is much in demand by neighboring Parlors and following the vacation season plans to pay several visits.

"Some" Birthday Cake.

Stockton—Stockton 7 had as its guests July 13, when the Order's fiftieth anniversary was observed, a large delegation from Lodi 18. Officers were installed by D.D.G.P. Wesley A.
Strong, Louis Dentoni becoming president.

Harry Mazzer was toastmaster at the banquet and spoke on "Native Sonship." John N.
Perry's theme was the "Early History of No. 7," forty-four years old. Harry Hermann discoursed on the "Diamond Jubilee," and Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch delivered a stirring talk on the "Order of Native Sons." A cake four feet square and one foot high formed an important part of the refreshments. It was decorated on top with a California bear and which I recently delivered under the auspices of the CALIFORNIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY, will prove an effective way for Native Son Parlors to raise funds for Diamond Jubilee and other purposes.

"James Madison, an authority on early San Francisco theatres and players, and engaged in writing a history of the local stage, made a most interesting talk before the California Historical Society at the Hotel St. Francis, illustrating his lecture with slides showing some of the famous early actors, the first theatres built here, old programs showing casts of plays.

"Madison's knowledge of these matters is extensive, his talk delighting old-timers and enlightening the newer generation. He filled his lecture with humorous stories that added to its interest." George C. Warren in San Francisco CHRONICLE June 26th, 1925.

across it were the figures "1875-1925," signifying the life of the Order. Immersan in red, green and yellow, the official colors of the diamond jubilee, was served.

Humboldt Will Be There.
Eureka. The Humboldt County Parlors have organized a joint committee, with R. A. Titlow as president and A. W. Gareton as secretary, to arrange for participation in the diamond jubilee celebration in San Francisco in September. It has been decided to be represented in the Admission Day pageant, September 9, with a float representing some popular Humboldt County industry.

The joint committee is composed as follows: Humboldt 14 (Eureka)—Frank Morgenson, A. E. Dalton, D. Danielson. Arcata 20—R. A. Titlow, A. L. Spinas, W. S. Monroe, E. L. Spellenberg. Ferndale 93—John Trigg, G. L. Collins, F. C. Peterson, W. E. Tonini.

Fortieth Birthday Celebrated.
San Rafael.—The fortieth anniversary of the institution of Mount Tamalpais 64 was celebrated July 13. Past Grand President Dr. Charles W. Decker, largely responsible for the Parlor's organization, was the honor-guest, and was accompanied by Grand Secretary John T. Regan and Dan Q. Troy, former historiographer. Officers were installed by D.D.G.P. I. W. Taxiera, Lester R. Knutte becoming president.

Following the installation ceremonies Dr. Decker delivered a splendid address full of interesting reminiscences; he reviewed the trials and tribulations of the Order's first years of existence and said the way of the present grand officers is comparatively smooth, due to the self-sacrificing spirit of their early-day predecessors; he expressed gratitude and appreciation to the Parlor for having remembered him on this occasion. With his seventy years resting lightly upon his shoulders, "Charlie" looks as young and sprightly as in the happy days long gone by. Grand Secretary Regan reviewed the Order's present condition.

At the meeting's close a splendid banquet was served by a committee of which Past President Robt. J. Curry was chairman. Speeches were made by Charles Redding, Dan Q. Troy, Newman Cohn and others. Several vocal numbers were featured.

Outdoor Initiation.
Weaverville.—Members of McCloud 149 (Redding), their families and friends, were guests of Mount Bally 87 the night of June 13 at a grand ball. The following day members of the two Parlors went into the woods on East Weaver Creek and there, in seclusion, held an outdoor initiation.

Judge James W. Bartlett of the Trinity County Superior Court delivered a Flag Day address, and was followed by President James Flagg of Mount Bally and George P. Rodgers of McCloud, the latter extending the visitors' thanks. The affair was unique in the history of the Order in the northwest portion of the state and attracted much attention. While the initiation was in progress the Parlors' guests were enjoying a picnic, and all gathered under the trees at noon for dinner.

"Spanish Day" at Ventura Fair.
Ventura.—A ritual team from Santa Barbara 116 initiated ten candidates for Cabrillo 114 June 26, bringing the Parlor's membership to seventy-four. The team was made up as follows: William H. Maris, Sr.P.P.; J. P. McCaughey, Jr.P.P.; Paul G. Sweetser, P.; A. T. Eaves, 1.V.P.; H. P. Weldon, 2.V.P.; C. F. Rizor, 3.V.P.; D. P. Taylor, M.; S. J. Silva, I.S.; Henry Myers, O.S.; C. P. Cota, J. D. Silva, musicians. Officers were installed, Adolfo Camarillo becoming president. The gathering was an enthusiastic one, and standing room only was available. Among the speakers of the evening was Deputy Grand Prsident Albert V. Mayrhofer.

The earthquake having done some damage to the tower that adorns historic San Buena Ventura Mission, Cabrillo at its July 10 meeting decided to undertake the raising of $1,500 to make needed repairs. A dance was decided on, and it was held July 22 at the bathhouse, donated by Manager Vander Meide. The following committee had charge: J. H. Morrison, Charles

NATIVE SON NEWS

Daly, Pablo de la Guerra, Edgar Orton, Laurence Rundle, Herbert Harwood, Charles Donlon. A big time was had July 24, when another large class of candidates were initiated. Many visitors were in attendance, and refreshments were served.

Great preparations are being made for the Ventura County Fair, to be held in Ventura City, September 16 to 20, and Cabrillo is among its chief sponsors. In fact, the Parlor will have full charge of the entertainment for the opening day, which has been designated "Spanish Day," and President Camarillo is chairman of a committee which promises that the fiesta will surpass anything of the kind ever attempted in this section heretofore. Costumes, sports, music and dances of the "days of the dons" will be featured by direct descendants of California's earliest Pioneers.

Donor of Famed Pin is Guest.

Sacramento—Past Grand President Dr. Charles W. Decker of Palo Alto, a native of this city, was the honor-guest July 6 of Sunset 26 at a reception which was largely attended, sixteen past presidents being among the number.

In 1885 Dr. Decker, as Grand Lecturer of the Order, presented a pin to the then president of Sunset for 100 percent efficiency in the ritual work, and that same pin has since been handed down to some eighty succeeding presidents, and the custom will continue. President M. Greer remarked that his father, Walter W. Greer, had worn the pin thirty-seven years ago.

At the banquet-board addresses were made by Dr. Decker, who related incidents of Sacramento history from 1850 to 1857 as told him by his parents, Past Grand President Clarence E. Jarvis, Chairman State Board Control George Radcliffe (Watsonville 65), Ed E. Reese, John J. Monteverde and Grand Trustee John T. Skelton. Musical numbers were supplied by Clay Chipman. Sunset's officers were installed July 13 by D.D.G.P. Dennis Leary of Courtland, Chester Brye becoming president.

Order's Silver Anniversary Observed.

Placerville—Ted C. Atwood presided at the celebration by Placerville 9 of the Order's fiftieth anniversary July 4. In addition to a musical program, there were addresses by District Attorney Abe Darlington, Fred Irwin and Judge Clarke Howard. The latter, now a member of Ramona 109 (Los Angeles), was a charter member of No. 9, one of the oldest Parlors of the Orders.

To Dedicate High School.

1688 W. 16th Street. BEacon: 3767
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA

Fletcher A. Cutler, Justice Thomas J. Lennon of the California Supreme Court, a member of Mount Tamalpais 64, will deliver the oration.

A parade at 3 o'clock in the afternoon is planned from the old high-school to the new structure. Invitations have been extended all fraternal and civic bodies to participate, and all places of business will be requested to close during the ceremonies. Mount Tamalpais Parlor is looking after the details.

Twenty-eight Years of Faithful Service.

Sonoma—Nine new names were recently added to the roster-roll of Sonoma 111, bringing the total membership to 126. The officers of Napa 62 exemplified the ritual and were accompanied by a large delegation from that Parlor. Glen Ellen 102 and other Parlors were well represented among the visitors. A banquet and general good time followed the ceremonies.

July 20, Sonoma celebrated its thirty-eighth institution anniversary, and L. H. Green his twenty-eighth year as secretary. The Parlor is in splendid condition and prospering. Assisted by Sonoma 209 N.D.G.W., a feature will be presented in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant.

Congressional Party Entertained.

San Diego—The Cabrillo monument committee of San Diego 108 entertained Congressman Swing and the House Naval Affairs Committee July 23 by taking them to the site on Point Loma where it is proposed to erect a monument to Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, who discovered San Diego Bay September 28, 1542. The congressional party consisted of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur and twelve congressmen. The committee has held several meetings at which many of the details pertaining to the site have been worked out, preparatory to presenting the facts before the War Department at Washington. This has been found necessary, as the site is part of a government military reservation.

July 13 the Parlor had one of the largest meetings in a long time. Ed Head gave a wonderful talk on the history of California and City Councilman Virgil Bruschi Jr. told of his early boyhood experiences in the northern mines. With Joseph Tighe as president, officers were installed July 27. A special entertainment feature was followed by another of Chairman Henry Burkhardt's wonder feeds.

SONOMA COUNTY NATIVE SONS MARK HISTORIC GREEK CHAPEL.

Santa Rosa (Sonoma County)—For the first time in a century, services were conducted in the historic Greek chapel at Fort Ross, near this city, July 5. The services were held in connection with the placing of a marker, relating the history of the Russian adventurers who established the fort and built the chapel, by Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 and Sebastopol Parlor No. 143 N.S.G.W. This historic landmark is now the property of the State of California.

The chapel, one of the most interesting historic places in California, was established in 1811, when a band of Russian fur traders, led by Alexander Kuskof, sailed into Bodega Bay in search of fresh water. Later a fort was built and garrisoned and a settlement was established.

The Russians traded with the Indians, engaged in fishing, explored the interior, and in a crude plant built several small schooners, which were disposed of at Yerba Buena (now San Francisco). In 1841 General John A. Sutter induced the Russians to dispose of their holdings for $30,000, with the understanding that they would evacuate the territory, which they did. Thus ended the only attempt on the part of the Russians to claim California territory.

SEVERE BLOW TO FRUIT MEN

CALIFORNIA DECIDUOUS FRUIT INTERESTS suffered a severe blow last month when the Interstate Commerce Commission refused to grant the petition of growers of this state, asking that the freight rates on deciduous fruits shipped East be reduced from $1.73 to $1.44. The commission took the viewpoint that there is no need of reducing rates, that these rates had no bearing on the prosperity of the California growers, and that overproduction is the cause of the losses accruing to orchardists here.

With ever-increasing population in the East and Middle West, the position taken by the commission is hardly tenable. The trouble is not over-production, but under-consumption, and until the rates are made such that the smaller Eastern markets can be reached at a cost that will permit of consumers there buying, this consumption cannot be greatly stimulated. The rate asked is not the pre-war railroad tariff for carrying fruits, but is merely a reduction from the peak price charged, a reduction that is warranted by the lessened costs prevailing in nearly every industry to a greater extent than in agriculture.

The commission held that the rates are but fair, as existing, to the railroads, allowing but a reasonable profit. If the commission is to take the profits under consideration, the California fruit farmer has a much stronger case than the railroads. It is a regrettable decision, and one that cannot be justified in view of the facts as they exist at this, the producing end of the line.

GREEN FRUIT PREJUDICES.

The usual slump in California fruit prices occurred on the Eastern markets this year, following the first shipments, which went at the usual high prices. This is a condition that appears hard to remedy, yet the remedy lies in the hands of the growers. Knowing the first shipments will bring high prices, there is a rush to make them, maturity and quality being entirely forgotten.

The big prices are realized, but the consumer finds he has purchased fruit unfit to eat. There is a reaction, and prices suffer. Carloads of fruit go begging, and it is not until the fruit has proven itself fit for consumption that the market recovers. In cantaloupes and grapes there is a maturity test, as also in oranges. Such tests are being worked out for pears and other fruits, yet until the refrigeration problem has been solved, the reaction of late irrigations to quality, and several other similar factors are correlated, it is quite likely there will be no effectual remedy. But this much is true, most of the fruit shipped East goes too green and prejudices the market against the California product.

CALIFORNIA HAS PROBLEMS.

The agricultural problems of California are many and varied. This state has all the commercial crops grown in every state in the union, save that of sugarcane of Louisiana. In addition, it has many specialty crops of its own. Each of these industries has its own problems. Some of them have been solved in the older states, by colleges and experiment stations, but the conditions here are so much different that the solutions will not fit. Hence there are new problems. Other crops grown here are not attempted elsewhere, hence the problems are peculiar and must be worked out by the California College of Agriculture and the California Experiment Station. This gives one state the problems of all the others, with conditions varying enough to make them all practically local problems.

For example, California has the area of the New England states, New York, New Jersey, Delaware and part of Pennsylvania. California has all the agricultural problems of these states, in which the agriculture is practically of the same type. California has one college of agriculture, one experiment station. Each of these states is so equipped, and New York, at least, as well equipped as California. In addition, California has the problems of Kansas, Washington, Florida, Texas, Montana and every other state. And it has but one college of agriculture to solve these problems. The range of climate and soil is almost that of the nation. Hence, agriculturists will do well to remember these facts when they have an inclination to complain that the college is slow in handling their particular problems.

BALANCE IN AGRICULTURE.

The Easterner, visiting California, is impressed by that which the farmer here accepts as a matter of course, the diversity of agriculture. California is one of the leading states of the union in the farming industry, because of this diversity. Eastern and Middle Western states continually are in trouble because their agricultural eggs too often are in one basket. The wheat crop fails, and the bills they had thought to pay after harvest are not paid. The result is failure for the farmer, failure for the merchant who has aided him, failure for the bank who is behind both. But diversity knows little of such adversity.

A balanced agriculture can do as much for a farm as it does for a state. The farmer who gets but one pay check a year is hard hit if that check fails to cover expenses. The farmer who specializes, yet diversifies, has a steady income, from poultry, from dairy, from livestock, from fruit, from grain, or from whatever it may be. He raises crops that come close to supplying the food needs of his family, and it is hard to force him into bankruptcy. In times of distress, the records of the United States Govern-

PEST CONTROL PROBLEMS.

Every year, with the variance of climatic conditions, comes differences of pest control problems. Where last year most of California was concerned in the subduing of those insects which work best in dry weather, this year the situation is reversed and a greater part of the state is concerned with fungus growths which wet weather have induced. The red spider and grasshopper of last year are succeeded this season by mildew, brown rot, shot-hole fungus. The red spider situation this year is not nearly so bad as in 1924, but orchardists should not take for granted there will be no such problem. Oils are being used increasingly for the control of this pest, but they must be used with care. Those who do not care to use them, should apply lime-sulphur. Dry sulphur is practically abandoned as a control measure.

Mildew, which probably will be quite extensive on grapes, has but one control, dry sulphur. It is too late, at this time, to begin sulphuring; the work should have started when the vines started from the old stumps or canes. But it should not be neglected, even at this time. There probably never will come a year in California when pests will not be present. Horticulture is at its best here, hence enemies of horticulture flourish in this state. However, there is no pest in California that has not a control within the limits of economic production; and there are horticultural commissioners and farm advisors in nearly every county to give advice, lacking which the College of Agriculture may be consulted direct.

MORE REFRIGERATOR CARS.

Indications are there will be a sufficient supply of refrigerator cars this year to handle even the immense fresh fruit and vegetable crop that is to be moved. The Pacific Fruit Express and the Santa Fe refrigerator lines have added much new equipment; and now the American Refrigerator Transit Company, a subsidiary of the Missouri Pacific, announces it has arranged to send 4,000 refrigerator cars into the state this summer.

Last year, at a time of a short crop, there was a supply of cars at all times in excess of the demand, in sharp contrast of the previous years when, during the grape shipping season, fruit rotted on the vines. This year, with an indication of a crop that may be expected to be at least normal, with the acreage increased and cultural conditions better so that greater production seems assured, it will be a time of real test for the railroads in handling the California output of perishable foodstuffs.

SULPHUR FOR ROSES.

About this time of the year mildew appears on roses and wreaks havoc with the bushes during the season they should be putting out the finest bloom. There is no known cure for this mildew, but there are preventatives. The first of these is to avoid watering roses late in the day. It is safest to irrigate rosebushes in the morning, and one authority says never to wet them after midday. However, mildew may come, and probably will come, despite this care. Some of the climbers are particularly subject to it, and present a sorry appearance of moldy foliage where they should make a green arbor.

Finely-ground sulphur dusted over and around the leaves will aid in preventing mildew. Don't put on so much that it will gather in bunches, but see that there is sufficient to make them dusty. A blower will aid in getting beneath the leaves. Grape-growers will recognize the treatment and appreciate it; they have the same trouble in their vineyards. Mildew, a grayish white, powdery appearing substance, sends little feeders into the leaves, robbing them of their vitality, causing them to turn brown and drop. Spores are carried by the wind to other plants, and unless checked may ruin the appearance of ornamental and other plants. Keep the bushes as dry as possible, without letting them suffer for water, and dust with sulphur. You will control the mildew with little trouble.

JUBILEE WEEK IN SAN FRANCISCO

THIS YEAR, 1925, MARKS THE SEVENTY-fifth anniversary of the admission of California into the Sisterhood of States—September 9, 1850,—and the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West—July 11, 1875. To appropriately celebrate these important events, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, reinforced by the citizenry of San Francisco in general, are arranging a celebration that will far eclipse anything of the kind ever held in the West. It will commence September 5 and continue through September 12. Two hundred thousand dollars is to be expended, showing the magnitude of the celebration planned. San Francisco's streets will be decorated as never before, and a unique lighting scheme will keep the principal thoroughfares and the Civic Center in a blaze of glory during the entire period.

The jubilee will officially begin with a grand ball at the Civic Auditorium, September 5. On the 6th, there will be a fashion show at the auditorium and boat races on the Marina. The 7th, Labor Day, will feature a monster parade of labor unions, with exercises in the afternoon and a grand ball in the evening. The 8th will witness a military parade, with both the army and the navy participating.

Wednesday, September 9, Admission Day, the Native Sons and Native Daughters will appear in the most gorgeous and colorful pageant ever attempted in California. Every phase of California's romantic history will be portrayed. Parlor of both Orders, from all parts of the state, will be represented by appropriate floats, their members appearing in costumes true to the various periods represented.

Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Marshal N.S.G.W., will be in charge of the Admission Day parade, and he reports that never before has so much enthusiasm been displayed on the part of the Natives. As his chief of staff he has appointed James A. Wilson, and as chief aide, Charles A. Koenig. The Admission Day parade will be the big event of jubilee week. It will be followed by literary exercises in the afternoon and a grand ball in the evening, both under the auspices of the Native Sons and Native Daughters.

September 10 and 11 will be given over to special events. The evening of the 12th there will be a parade of fraternal and civic organizations. On this, the last night of the jubilee, the carnival spirit will reign supreme throughout San Francisco.

Arranging for their part in the monster celebration, the Native Sons and Native Daughters of San Francisco have a joint committee perfecting plans. Officers of this general committee are: James L. Foley, chairman; James A. Wilson, James G. Conlan, Mrs. Mary E. Bell, Miss Sue J. Irwin, vice-chairman; Eugene O'Donnell, secretary; Walter P. Garfield, treasurer. Sub-committees; in charge of the various details, are:

Floats—James L. McSheehy, Miss May Roderick, Mae Bastable, John J. Barret, Jesse H. Miller.

Finance—M. J. McGovern, E. H. O'Donnell, F. M. Buckley, Arthur Curtis, C. A. Koenig, J. B. McSheehy, John T. Regan, James A. Wilson, Bertha Mauser, Millie Rock, Ella Teeling, Ella Owens, Cora Stobing.

Parade—Charles A. Koenig, J. A. Wilson, Edwin Darcy, Herbert De la Rosa, Edward Douglass, Helen Mann, Gladys Cordy, Margaret Ramm, Georgie O'Brien, Margaret Banett.

CALIFORNIA'S SEVENTY-FIRST STATE FAIR

HOW MANY PERSONS ARE THERE IN California who attended the first five California State Fairs? The Sacramento Chamber of Commerce desires to know, for it plans to hold a public reception for those pioneer visitors at the seventy-first fair, to be known as the Diamond Jubilee State Fair, to be held September 5-13 in Sacramento.

The first California State Fair was held in San Francisco, October 4, 1854, while the following year it was conducted in the old court house in Sacramento. In 1856 the State Fair was held at San Jose, in 1857 at Stockton, and in 1858 at Marysville. Since 1859, the fair has been held continuously in Sacramento, although the winning of the 1860 fair was a hard battle. In 1861 the board of directors of the State Agricultural Society, which conducts the annual exposition of the resources of California, amended its constitution to provide for holding the fair annually in Sacramento.

Floral displays are to be featured at this year's California State Fair. Although California is world-known as the "land of fruits and flowers," floral displays have been lacking at the State Fairs of the past.

The women's bureau of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce is to co-operate with the directors in arranging the most gorgeous floral display ever witnessed in California. All county exhibitors are asked to participate in the flower show. Prizes totaling $250 will be awarded. A different flower, in bloom at that time, will be chosen for display each day to compete for the special cut-flower display awards, which are $50 first prize, $25 second and $15 third.

Grand Outside Sentinel, an honor for which the Parlor is grateful.

June 24, Grand Outside Sentinel Carlson was given a surprise. After being escorted to a seat of honor she was presented, by the Parlor, with a box of gorgeous American beauty roses. D.G.P. Agnes McVerry extended congratulations, and then a committee of three from Dore's Parlor No. 203 N.S.G.W. arrived and presented a most exquisite basket of blooms carrying the best wishes of every member of that Parlor. A most enjoyable repast followed. The following day a reception in honor of Grand Outside Sentinel Carlson was held at the Native Daughters' Home.

"JEEMS PIPES OF PIPESVILLE."

James Madison, playwright and veteran theatrical manager, gave a racy account of pioneer actors and actresses at the meeting of the California Historical Society June 25, his topic being "Early San Francisco Theatres and Theatrical folks." During his rapid-fire talk, a procession of theatrical characters thronged the stage, episodes made true to life by portraits and reproductions of theatrical programs. Unusual interest in the subject was shown by a large attendance of members and guests. Stephen C. Massett, who called himself "Jeems Pipes of Pipesville," is said to have been the first professional theatrical performer in San Francisco. Massett played a lone hand at a hall opposite Portsmouth Square, June 22, 1849. Some say it was the front office of the police department, but this point is still undecided. The first row of seats were reserved for the women, and four were present. Admission was $5, a price that appeared to be justified by the expense account, one charge being an ounce of gold-dust, valued at $16, for moving a piano from the opposite side of the street to the room where the entertainment was held. The speaker gave a list of distinguished actors and actresses, and said he wished to acknowledge his obligation to Boutwell Dunlap for much historical data included in his address.

MONUMENT FOR HARBOR'S LANDMARK PROPOSED

THE MARKING OF DEAD MAN'S ISLAND with a suitable monument of historical importance is being considered by members of Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. and other residents of the harbor district. Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, the first White man to set foot upon the landmark, has been suggested as the theme, but as plans for a memorial to that famed navigator are well under way at San Diego, some other subject is being urged by many.

All agree, however, that the landmark should not be longer neglected, but made the foundation for a monument, of some sort, of massive proportions. In the traditions of the southern part of California, Dead Man's Island occupies a commanding place. It once marked the location of beacon fires, kept lighted as guides to mariners. It is mentioned in Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast." It is connected with the age-old story of the burial of an Indian chief, and the more-modern one of that of the victims of the battle of San Pedro Rancho in the Mexican War. An effort will be made to interest the Los Angeles City Council in the monument project.

PORT'S BUSINESS INCREASES.

Following the United States battle fleet's return from Australia to San Pedro, about September 26, six members of the rivers and harbors committee of the Federal House of Representatives will visit San Pedro and the harbor district and make an extensive survey of the port and its development. Extension of the breakwater to Long Beach, deepening of the main channel, and contemplated improvements for the naval operating base will receive the main attention of the visitors, who will report their findings to the Congress which assembles in December.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, business of the local port showed an increase of $32,253,539, compared with the previous fiscal year, according to the annual report of Collector of Customs Louis H. Schwaeb. Exports valued at $74,220,213 showed a gain of $29,477,318, while imports increased $2,947,318. Total exports and imports for the fiscal year just closed were $106,595,622, and the previous fiscal year $74,342,082.

TO AID MISSION'S RESTORATION.

Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. had a rousing meeting July 2, when additional names were added to the ever-increasing membership-roll. Although instituted less than five months, the semi-annual report for the term ending June 30 showed a membership of 206 and assets of over $1,274—some record! The Parlor's participation in the state's diamond jubilee celebration at San Francisco in September was discussed, $25 was donated to the American Legion endowment fund, and it was decided to enter a team in the Native Sons' baseball league.

Grand Trustee John T. Newell outlined the activities of the Order, and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Mayrhofer told of the work of the Parlor in the south. Sepulveda is losing no time in establishing its claim to the 1927 Grand Parlor for San Pedro, and has a committee composed of Trustee James W. Mora, First Vice president William Reuter and Secretary Ben Sepulveda already at work to "put it over."

At the meeting of July 16, representatives from Rudeinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. appeared and urged Sepulveda to take action, with that Parlor, in raising funds for the restoration of Santa Barbara Mission. The suggestion was readily agreed to, and a joint committee will arrange for a benefit ball, through which it is hoped to raise at least $2,000. Deputy Grand President Mayrhofer, who has been a frequent visitor to Santa Barbara since the earthquake, said that while the damage to that city was heavy, the spirit of the people had not been crushed and business is being carried on as usual. Visitors were also present from Sacramento, Modesto, Long Beach and Los Angeles.

built on the Rancho San Pasqual by one of the earliest Spanish families settling in the valley. The location of the house is at the foot of the hill where now stands the Raymond hotel. The minister who performed the ceremonies was Rev. D. F. Hunt of Riverside, who officiated at the wedding of Mrs. Bixby to her first husband, long since dead. The double wedding was a beautiful affair, and lacked nothing of the true Spanish atmosphere. Bixby is also a past commander of Pasadena Post of the American Legion and a member of the executive committee of the state department of the legion. In business life he is the popular cashier of a local bank.

Wendell Wilson, co-manager of the Liberty Players and also a member of Pasadena Parlor, has generously invited all the Los Angeles County Natives to be his guests at a theater party at his own big tent show on East Colorado street. The date will probably be the first week in August, and it is hoped that Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler will be among those present. Wilson's company has just completed arrangements for the building of a palatial new theater on East Colorado street, the site being within a stone's throw of his birthplace. J. L. Briener has been chosen as the Parlor's new presiding officer.

DESIGN FOR DIAMOND JUBILEE*SOUVENIR COIN APPROVED.

The design for the 300,000 California diamond jubilee souvenir half-dollars, to be minted in San Francisco by the Federal Government and distributed through the San Francisco and Los Angeles clearing-houses, has been approved. It was executed by Jo Mora, California sculptor of Carmel, Monterey County.

The souvenir coin will be typically Californian. The kneeling figure of a miner washing gold and a bear striding will form the obverse and reverse sides of the coin. In addition to the inscription on all minted half-dollar pieces, "California's Diamond Jubilee 1925" will fill the space under the kneeling miner.

California Milk Scores—In competition with entries from twelve states, California certified milk won first, fourth and fifth places in the contest held by the American Association of Medical Milk Commissions at Atlantic City, New Jersey, during the convention of the American Medical Association, according to Sam H. Greene, secretary California Dairy Council.

LOS ANGELES BULLETIN

LOS ANGELES TO HAVE NEW MAP

LOS ANGELES IS GETTING A NEW GOVERNMENT map of the city and vicinity. With its increasing population and mounting land values, Los Angeles County concluded that an up-to-date map was necessary to enable it to meet its municipal, transportation, water and other public-utility problems. A little inquiry and investigation led the county officials to do as many state and municipal organizations have done, namely, take advantage of the Federal Department of the Interior's efficient corps of topographic map-makers in the Geological Survey and get that organization to make the map. A map was planned on a scale enough larger than the standard Geological Survey map to be commensurate with the intensive demands of the county, the area to be surveyed in "quadrangle" units. The expenses of production and reproduction are being borne jointly by the federal survey and Los Angeles County. The surveys were begun in the southern part of the county, and the work is progressing steadily. Six of the quadrangle maps have been published and a number of others are under way.

The first map resulting from this work, covering the Torrance quadrangle, was published in December 1924, and since then maps of the Venice, Inglewood, Watts, Compton and Sawtelle quadrangles have been issued. The maps are generally printed in four colors. Roads, buildings, boundaries and lettering are shown in black, contours in brown, water features in blue, and the classification of the roads with respect to their importance in the system of highways in red. On maps where there is woodland, green is added. These large-scale topographic maps are invaluable to the oil geologist, as well as to those engaged in other types of development within the areas that they cover. They are sold by local agents who handle the Geological Survey maps or by the Geological Survey at Washington at a nominal price covering the cost of paper and printing.

All human endeavor has a beginning, and Los Angeles had its. The pious Spanish Pioneers first introduced civilization in Alta California. When mass was first celebrated on the present site of Los Angeles in 1781, they named the settlement "Nuestra Señora la Reina de los Angeles" (Our Lady Queen of the Angels). Until 1817 Los Angeles alternated with Monterey as the seat of government of Alta California. When Mexico threw off the Spanish yoke, the Mexicans ill treated the peace-loving old padres and drove most of the Indians, who had been taught the cultivation of the grape and other fruits, into the mountains. In 1847 Los Angeles became an American settlement, and with the influx of Americans the old missions had new troubles.

In 1850 the population of Los Angeles was 1,600; in 1880 it had increased to 11,000, and now it is over 700,000. No other city in the United States covers as large an area as Los Angeles, which spreads over more than 350 square miles and is served by suburban electric lines aggregating over 1,000 miles. Its equable climate has brought to it persons seeking health and an escape from the rigors of other localities. It was first a fruit-raising community. Then the discovery of oil made Los Angeles a great industrial center, and finally the movie industry brought perhaps an even greater influx. San Pedro, twenty miles to the south, is its port of entry.

VALUATION INCREASES BY MILLIONS.

County Assessor Ed W. Hopkins reported to the Board of Supervisors July 21 the total assessed valuation of all classes of property in Los Angeles County for 1925 as $2,910,076,088. Compared with the assessed valuation of 1924, $2,716,223,805, this is an increase of $193,852,283.

Of the increase, $127,049,835 is credited to property improvements, approximately 100,000 new buildings being erected in Los Angeles County during the tax-year ending March 1, 1925. Real estate is credited with a $66,554,925 increase in valuation for the same period.

Los Angeles is the only billion-dollar county in California, and its increase in assessed valuation is far greater than that recorded by any other county.

SUN DIAL DEDICATED.

At Carthay Center, July 18, a sun-dial, erected as a memorial to Irwin J. Muma, deceased civic leader, by J. Harvey McCarthy, a close friend, was formally dedicated.

The ceremonies were conducted by Ramona

Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., with which McCarthy is affiliated, and the principal address was delivered by Judge Louis P. Russell. The pedestal of the sundial is constructed of brick from San Juan Capistrano Mission's ruins, donated by Rev. St. John O'Sullivan. In the course of his remarks, Judge Russell said:

"Sunshine and shadows symbolize and summarize the vicissitudes of mortal life. One of the finest and noblest attainments of any man is that of leaving in the hearts of his fellow men a sentiment of joy at having known him and a sense of sorrow at his loss."

BIG TREAT FOR GENERAL PUBLIC

Officers of Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. and Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. were jointly installed July 9 by D.D.G.P. William Coffey, Sidney Witkowski and Carl Frowein becoming the respective presidents. Following the ceremonies Earl Lemoine, retiring past president Los Angeles, was presented with an emblematic watchfob by President Witkowski. Addresses were made by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, Dwight Crittenden, Arthur Davis and D.D.G.P. Coffey, and refreshments were served by "Chef" Al. Cron and his assistants.

The Parlor's weiner bake on the beach near the Malibu Canyon the evening of July 25 attracted a large crowd, who thoroughly enjoyed themselves. Among the features was an indoor baseball game between the married and the single men. The outing was in charge of a committee composed of Tom Golding, Howard Bentley, Al. Cron, Ray Lemoine, Edwin Spear.

Los Angeles will have a rare treat for all Natives and their friends August 6, and it is hoped Native Sons' Hall, 134 West Seventeenth street, will be crowded to capacity. Dr. Alfred Jenks, Professor of Anthropology at the University of Minnesota, will deliver an address on "Known Facts Regarding Prehistoric Man and His Culture," a subject of absorbing interest today. Dr. Jenks, a most interesting speaker, has recently returned from a five months' tour of investigation in Europe and has been lecturing during the summer session at the Southern Branch of the University of California. Following the address dancing will be in order and refreshments will be served. The general public will be welcomed on this occasion. August 13 the Parlor will initiate a class of candidates.

NATIVES ARE HONORED.

The Los Angeles City government began operations under the new charter July 1. At the first meeting of the enlarged City Council, Boyle Workman (Ramona N.S.) was elected president.

Among the Native Sons who have received appointments to commissions at the hands of Mayor George Cryer are: Judge Robert M. Clarke (Cabrillo), to the Harbor Board; Rex W. Laws (Ramona), to the Board of Fire Commissioners; Dr. Edward H. Anthony (Ramona), to the Board of Health Commissioners.

BAZAR NETS GOODLY SUM.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. will in future meet in I.O.O.F. Temple, Washington and Oak streets. Officers will be installed August 5, D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas officiating. At Fremont-Pico Memorial Park, August 1, the Parlor will have an evening basket picnic, to which all Natives and their friends are invited. Miss Grace Norton is chairman of the arrangements committee.

Letters of appreciation have been sent by Los Angeles to Long Beach Parlor No. 154, for sending Mrs. Helen Cervantes to Placerville to delight the Grand Parlor with her songs; to Mrs. Mollie W. Hurd, for entertainment of the southern delegates while at Placerville; to Marguerite Parlor No. 12 of Placerville, for the splendid entertainment provided the Grand Parlor. To the Santa Ynez Mission restoration fund, $10 has been donated. Chairman Grace Haven of the bazar committee has made a partial report, showing net proceeds of $201. The Parlor attended the installation of Long Beach's officers July 24. H. Adele White has been appointed chairman of Los Angeles' committee to co-operate with Long Beach and Rudcindia (San Pedro) Parlor in arranging for participation in the Admission Day pageant at San Francisco.

LIFE MEMBERSHIPS PROVIDED FOR.

Officers of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. were installed July 17 by D.D.G.P. Ronald M. Ross, Burrel D. Neighbours becoming president. At the July 10 meeting the Parlor unanimously adopted a resolution, proposed by Past President Calvert Wilson, to the effect that any member over 50 years of age who has been affiliated with Ramona for twenty-five years may, on payment of $100, secure a life membership. The resolution further provides that all revenue from this source shall be applied to the Parlor's building fund. It is confidently expected that through this means the debt on the building-site will be wiped out, and then Ramona will proceed to erect the long-looked-for home of its own.

Owing to the vacation season, there has been little activity the past month, and not much will be doing until after Admission Day, September 9. Ramona's August program includes two initiations, the 7th and the 21st. On the 28th the good of the order committee, Leon J. Leonard, chairman, will present an entertainment. July 24 the Parlor's officers went to Ventura and initiated a class of candidates for Cabrillo Parlor No. 114 of that city.

"BAD BUSINESS YEAR."

More net income was reported for taxation by residents of Southern California during the fiscal year ending June 30, than for any similar period in the history of the Internal Revenue Bureau.

The amazing showing of the Southern California district is graphically pictured when it is stated that owing to the tax rate reductions provided by the 1924 revenue act the Southern California district in the 1925 fiscal year faced a loss in income tax revenue of more than $12,000,000. Instead, income tax receipts were so high that they not only offset the $12,000,000 loss but registered a gain of $1,892,033. For the United States as a whole the 1925 fiscal year income receipts decreased $80,077,675 compared with the 1924 fiscal year.

"This is indeed an amazing showing," says Internal Revenue Collector Rex B. Goodcell. "Wise men have been declaring that the past year was a 'bad business year.' When citizens report more net income and pay tax on it than for any other year in the history of Southern California, I would suggest that we have a few more 'bad years.'"

"The truth of the matter is, that last year was a record-breaker in Southern California in point of income earned and reported for taxation. Undoubtedly Southern California will lead the world in increase of income tax collections for 1925 compared with 1924."

WILL BE THERE.

All the Native Son Parlors of the southern portion of the state will be represented in the Admission Day pageant parade at San Francisco, September 9. For some time a joint committee, with Sidney Witkowski as chairman and John W. Topham as secretary, has been meeting weekly to perfect plans.

A distinctive uniform has been adopted, and a stage-coach accompanied by outriders will be a feature. In the contingent the Parlors of Santa Barbara, Ventura, Los Angeles, Long Beach, San Pedro, Pasadena, San Bernardino and San Diego will have representation, each Parlor being designated by an attractive banner. If the necessary arrangements can be made, a great surprise-stunt will also be featured in the parade.

OUTING DRAWS MANY.

About two hundred shared the hospitality of Riley's ranch in Sand Canyon July 12, when Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. held its annual outing. While the day was "unusually" warm, an enjoyable time was had. The swimming-pool

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

FORCED BY AN EVER-INCREASING DEMAND for a broadened scope of service which requires more commodious quarters, the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce must build and own its own administration quarters, and must occupy its new administration building this year. To meet these growing requirements, the Chamber of Commerce has obtained a ninety-nine-year ground lease to property 55x160 feet at 6522 Sunset boulevard, some two blocks south of the location occupied as chamber headquarters for the past two years on Hollywood boulevard. On this lot a building two stories in height will be erected before the close of the present year, chamber executives announce.

Plans submitted by specially detailed architects contemplate the inclusion of a public auditorium in the proposed structure, this room to be made available for all community gatherings which it will accommodate. The seating capacity is to be about 300. The auditorium will be the rear extension of the first floor, the fore part being devoted to executive and administration purposes. A kitchen and serving-room will be provided, but it is not proposed to make special arrangements for a dining-room.

Since the Chamber of Commerce is a community institution, it was considered appropriate that the community should be the prime factor in subscribing the fund necessary for erection of a suitable executive building, and with this in mind the offices of all the local service clubs were enlisted in the conduct of a community-wide drive for the disposal of life memberships, of which 200 were disposed of at a net price of $250 each. With the sum thus obtained the chamber will proceed with the construction of its new home building on plans that have been decided upon by the board of directors.

It is less than three years since the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce was organized as a community interest functioning institution. In the fall of 1922 the chamber was instituted, taking over the affairs and business of the old Hollywood Board of Trade, activities of which had been restricted because of the narrowness of the area it proposed to serve. The Chamber of Commerce broadened the civic betterment program to include and embrace all of the territory which has always been regarded as Hollywood, with Beverly boulevard on the south, Hoover street on the east, the foothills on the north and the east limits of Sherman on the west. In all, the area is some twenty-eight square miles in extent.

Although the chamber board does not intend to erect an imposing structure, it is the plan to build an edifice that will be an architectural feature among Hollywood edifices. It will stand among stately pepper trees which border the south side of Sunset boulevard between Wilcox avenue and Seward street, and its facade will be an artistic composite of the very highest type of community structure, the design wandering from the prescribed or conventional business type in favor of uniqueness and novelty in character.

Economy in construction cost has been made possible in this instance because of the willingness of the distributors of materials, plans and labor to provide their assistance at wholesale cost. Material will be laid down without requiring a profit, and all other elements that enter

INCIDENTS

where they left him without food or water for thirty-six hours.

Finally the Negro, evidently turning "yellow," returned and after making a bargain that he would not attempt to capture them for twenty-four hours, loosened the nearly-exhausted Plasse.
The three men were afterwards captured. One was shot in the meles. The other two received sentences of ten and twenty-five years, respectively. The Negro, for his returning, was given the lighter of the two sentences.

Other incidents in the early life of the Pioneer are interesting anecdotes of our early history.
Many relics of the early struggles to defeat nature and reach the Paradise of the Pacific Coast still remain along the trail traveled by Kit Carson and his hardy band of followers. Today these wonderful scenes may be visited nearly six months in the year over splendid automobile roads and, thanks to the Native Sons of the Golden West, which organization has been ever active in perpetuating the early landmarks, much of the tradition and romance remain for posterity.

GRIZZLYETTES

Everybody should be eligible to membership in the organization, for all are seekers after the elusive gold. The purpose of the organization, it is said, is "to assist in the revival of mining and to perpetuate traditions and customs of the days of '49."

Los Angeles City's bank clearings were greater July 2 than any previous single day in the history of the local clearing-house, $37,019,784.
February 14, 1924, had previously held the record, the clearings that day being $34,019,784.

In this record is proof positive that, contrary to the statements repeatedly appearing in several papers of the state, Los Angeles is NOT "busted," and that "the bottom has" NOT "dropped out of the southern city."

Quite a little stir was caused at Toledo, Oregon, last month when American citizens forcibly expelled several Jap millworkers. The White men were getting $3.60 to $4 a day, while the Japs were imported to work for $2.40.

That's the way the Japs operate. They will pay an exorbitant price for a piece of land or work for the lowest of wages, until they get the desired foothold, and then they are enabled to buy the surrounding land at their own figures or to demand, and get, higher wages than paid
White labor.

The Toledo citizens in their expulsion movement made one mistake: along with the yellow-Japs, they should have expelled the white-Japs who brought them in. The chief obstacle in the way of keeping the Pacific Coast White is the white-Jap, the citizen who has any dealings of any nature with a yellow-Jap.

speech on the enthusiasm and loyalty of the membership of the Order in that section of the state, saying:

"Three thousand two hundred and eighty-nine members of the Order representing ten Parlors in the southern part of this state send greetings to their brothers of San Francisco Parlors tonight and to the membership of the Order at large on this, the fiftieth anniversary of its existence. In responding to the toast which has been tendered to me by the worthy Grand President, I do so with mingled feelings of affection and loyalty. I have a deep and an abiding affection for the thousands of good and true Native Sons whose Parlors are located in the south. Personal contact and intimate acquaintance with them has acquainted me with the lively interest that they have in the Order and the desire that they have for its material progress. There are so many brothers who have been prominent in the various activities of their respective Parlors, all tending for the general good of the Order, that it would be impossible for me to even attempt to name them. Indeed, I know that they do not desire it. They are simply content to remain faithful and sincere workers, ever having before them the high ideals that the Order is striving for in every community.

"We of the south offer as a contribution to the history of the state the first events that led to the occupation of California. The very primer of California history may be written in that land upon whose soil Cabrillo stepped; where the first mission was founded; where the first pathfinder made his way through the Sierras; where Portola and Anza rested before starting on their memorable trip that resulted in the discovery of San Francisco Bay and the settlement upon its shore which was the beginning of the City of San Francisco; there was ratified the final treaty that gave California to the union; there was fought the last battle that vanquished the last protesting Mexican; there may be seen today great harbors upon its indented coast receiving the commerce of the world and accommodating the navy of our country; there may be seen great cities teeming with a great population whose earnest endeavors towards increasing the material wealth and fame of the state are reflected in resources in every stage of development, commerce stimulated, trade increased, cultivated fields, golden orchards, bounteous harvests, all creating happiness, plenty and good cheer, and contributing in a great measure to the glory and the splendor of California as the natural abode of mankind. fornia No. 1 of San Francisco, with a heartfelt wish that when another fifty years shall have come and gone there shall be found on the rolls of its membership men who, through all the years, remained steadfast and true to the vows of the Order."

The highest degree of enthusiasm prevailed throughout the entire evening, and when the last strains of "I Love You, California," and "California, Here I Come," were played and sung by orchestra and a swelling chorus the entire party rose to their feet and sung the closing ode of the Order. It seemed to be a fitting benediction to one of the most wonderful and notable gatherings of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.

CALIFORNIA'S SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OF STATEHOOD

Owen C. Coy, Ph. D.

WHEN, ON JANUARY 21, 1848, James Wilson Marshall, an American carpenter, discovered gold on the American River in El Dorado County, the Muse of History began a new chapter in the story of California. On that very day the representatives of the United States and those of Mexico were in deliberation at the little town of Guadalupe Hidalgo, near Mexico City. On February 3 they signed the treaty bringing to a close the war with Mexico. By it Alta California passed from the control of the Spanish to the Anglo-Saxon race.

At this time the settled area of California was located along the coast from the Russian River Valley southward. The chief towns were Monterey, San Jose, Los Angeles, Santa Barbara, San Diego and San Francisco (until recently known as Yerba Buena). In the great central valley there were a number of newer arrivals, mostly Americans who had migrated across the plains. The establishment of John A. Sutter at New Helvetia, or Sutter's Fort, was there the center of activity. Other rival towns were already beginning to spring up, but the only one worthy of special notice was Benicia, Sonoma County, laid out in 1846 by Robert Semple and Walter Colton. It was believed to bid fair to outstrip any other town in California. It was but the first of many towns whose points of advantage looked well on paper.

In the south, the population was largely of the old Spanish stock, although a number of Americans and other foreigners had married native wives and thus acquired both large estates and large families. There the pastoral life still held sway, for cattle raising appealed strongly to the indolent native Californian. In the north, the mixture of Yankee blood increased by the discharged soldiers of the Mexican War and by a colony of Mormons made a difference in the industrial activities, for agriculture was being more fully developed and lumber and grist mills were being operated.

MARSHALL'S DISCOVERY OF GOLD.

Marshall's discovery of gold came at a time when its effect was like that of a spark in a powder magazine. Earlier discoveries of gold had been made. It is reported that Jedediah Smith picked up particles of gold when he visited California in the twenties.

A Mexican in 1841 discovered placer diggings just north of San Fernando Mission in Los Angeles County, and in 1842 gold was shipped from there to the United States Mint at Philadelphia. Yet these discoveries were insignificant in comparison with that of Marshall, due to the fact that the gold was now available in seemingly inexhaustible amounts.

During the summer of 1848 practically all of California made its way to the "diggings." Business in San Francisco, San Jose, Monterey and elsewhere was practically suspended. Stores were closed, newspapers ceased publication, building operations were halted, ripened grain was unharvested as the men hastened to seize their share of gold before it was exhausted. It was soon found that Coloma, where Marshall had first discovered gold, was not the only place where gold could be found. At Auburn, Redwood Bar on the Feather River, Woods Creek and elsewhere, and the eager goldseekers hastened to the local diggings, reported the rumor of gold in the territory reported from Mexico, but the prevalence of the disease to Congress in December, 1848, reported it as a confirmed fact and gold from California was actually on exhibit in the War Department office at Washington. The gold fever swept the East like an epidemic.

We are told that during the first week in February, 1849, over fifty vessels left American ports for San Francisco and that by March 15th over 17,000 had sailed from Atlantic and Gulf ports. The first vessel, the steamer "California," arrived in February, and by November over 600 vessels had cast anchor in Yerba Buena cove. It is estimated that forty thousand people came to California by sea in 1849. The overland migration was probably even greater. In the spring of 1849 nearly 18,000 people started westward across the plains in a period of three weeks. A continuous line of emigrant trains reached for a thousand miles. Some were well equipped, others traveled light. One man brought his possessions across the plains in a wheelbarrow.

It must not be thought that all this was accomplished as easily as a modern pleasure jaunt. Many unaccustomed to hardship turned back early in the trip. Others pressed on, but never reached their goal. Sanitary conditions along the way were not the best and the dreaded cholera then sweeping the country overtook the covered wagons. Cattle became worn out and were killed for food or left beside the road to die. Later, the Indians became hostile and many gave their lives to the vengeance of the Redman. Baneroff says five thousand people perished in the attempt to reach California. Those who survived were strong in courage and in body and in every way fit to become the founders of a great commonwealth.

History tells of the great Barbarian hordes who came down from northern Europe and overwhelmed the Roman Empire. If the real facts were available, it would probably be found that the Teutonic migrations were composed of but few people as compared with the great migration to California in 1849 and the years following. It is not possible to acquire definite data, but from the best estimates it is probable that during 1849 no less than one hundred thousand people poured into California. When it is remembered that at the beginning of 1848 there were but about seven thousand Spanish-speaking inhabitants in California, with probably six thousand more Anglo-Americans, it can be seen that in 1850 the population of the territory had suddenly become predominantly Anglo-Saxon, with a mixture of peoples from all over the globe.

The increased population was located largely in the northern and mountainous parts of the state, whereas previously the more settled parts on the Tuolumne and elsewhere gold was found to exist in large amounts.

THE GREAT MIGRATION.

If the first effect of the gold discovery was to depopulate parts of California, that was only a temporary condition. Ocean vessels quickly took the news to the Sandwich Islands and thence to Oregon, to China, to South America and elsewhere. Few months passed before the vacant streets in San Francisco began to be filled by people from distant places and then, like a mounwere along the south coast district. Cities sprang up as if by magic. San Francisco, which was begun as the little village of Yerba Buena in 1837, increased from about 800 in 1848 to 5,000 by the middle of 1849 and to 40,000 a year later. Sacramento, unknown in January, 1848, became the center of activity in 1849, with a population of 7,000 inhabitants in 1850. Other towns and cities sprang up. Marysville grew up on Nye's Ranch on the Yuba and Feather Rivers, Stockton at Weber's place on the San Joaquin. Mountain camps became cities almost overnight. Many disappeared almost as quickly, but certain centers steadily developed, some of which have remained to later years—as Downieville, Nevada City, Grass Valley, Auburn, Placerville (formerly Hangtown), Jackson, Mokelumne Hill, Angels, Murphy's Camp, Sonora and others.

NEED FOR STATE GOVERNMENT.

This new population was largely Anglo-American and knew little and cared less for the traditions and customs of Spanish America, except when their own property rights might be involved. The matter of government became therefore a problem to be considered, for when the American authorities had raised the emblem of

On the Pacific Coast, slavery was an unimportant issue. In the great scramble for mineral wealth the slaveholder and his great estates was at a disadvantage. California had no place for slavery. When the people of the new territory, tired of waiting for action by Congress, met to discuss the matter of a constitution, they decided to create a state government. The slavery issue was quickly settled by a provision declaring that Negro slavery should not be tolerated. When then this constitution with an anti-slavery provision was presented to Congress, the fight between the free and slave states became even more bitter. During the spring and summer of 1850, Congress struggled with the great issue threatening to rend the nation apart. The great Henry Clay came from retirement with a final plea for compromise. Daniel Webster, too, threw all the weight of his oratory for a united nation. Calhoun and others, both from the South and from the North, opposed any compromise, but the friends of union won out and the great compromise of 1850 was adopted. One of its measures provided that California should be admitted to the union under its free-state constitution.

The California bill was signed by President when, on October 18, 1850, the mail steamer "Oregon" came through the Golden Gate bearing aloft in large letters the legend "California is a State." Business was immediately suspended, and San Francisco celebrated a holiday. A more formal celebration was held October 29th.

THE STRUGGLE FOR ORDER.

Although California had created a state government and had been admitted to the Federal Union, her growth had been too rapid for her social, economic and political life readily to adjust itself. The early fifties were abnormal years. They were years of economic instability. High prices prevailed, although at times goods would be a drug on the market. Wages were high, for men could readily obtain gold from the mines. Speculation was rife, the spirit of gambling filled the very atmosphere. The social life of the times was as abnormal as the economic life. Men had hastened to the gold mines to seek their fortunes, leaving behind them their homes and loved ones. The result was that society lacked the stabilizing influence of the home, such as only strong womanhood could bring. This reacted upon politics, for without the feeling of attachment and loyalty such as comes when a man is interested in the future the United States in 1846 they had announced that not only would the rights of the inhabitants be respected but that the Mexican laws then in force would be continued until changed by action of Congress. Little was it thought then that more than four years would pass before Congress would take such action.

During the period from July, 1846, to February 2, 1848, California was under the rule of the military officers as a conquered territory, but in the minds of the settlers the signing of the treaty of peace in 1848 changed this status. It had then become a part of the United States, and Mexican customs and laws, of which no one was well informed anyway, ought, according to their point of view, to give way to a government adapted to the American settler. Governor Mason would gladly have granted the people's desires, but he was under authority from Washington and was required to wait until he had received instructions. Congress meanwhile was deadlocked in the greatest struggle that ever shook the halls of the nation's capitol. Slavery was being crowded to the wall. Should concessions be made by allowing it to advance into new territory, or should it be restricted to the states it then controlled?

Fillmore, September 9, 1850. As soon as it was signed California took her place with the other thirty states of the union. But already for several months California had been functioning as a state. On November 13, 1849, the people had adopted a constitution and elected the members of the Legislature and state officers, including the two representatives to Congress. On December 20, 1849, Governor Riley turned over control to the newly-elected civil governor, Peter H. Burnett. During the winter of 1849 and 1850 the Legislature formulated and adopted the necessary laws for the regulation of affairs in the new state. By an act signed February 18 the twenty-seven original counties were created. In April they had held their elections and so, by May of 1850, the local governments of the new state were in full operation. California then is unique, in that her admission to the union was not preceded by a period of territorial rule, and, with the exception of Texas, whose condition was peculiar, is the only instance where the state government was fully formed before Congress had passed the enabling act. Although enjoying the benefits of established state government as set up by themselves, the people of California were filled with delight welfare of his family he will not fully concern himself with the problems of government. Too many voters considered California as only a place to acquire wealth, rather than as a place in which to live. In view of these conditions it is not unnatural that scheming politicians were able to control politics much as they desired.

However, even in the days of the earliest arrivals there were elements which were to work for the uplift of California society. Many a frontiersman crossed the plains with his noble and brave-hearted wife and family to make his home in the West. In October, 1848, the Rev. T. Dwight Hunt had been made the pastor of a community church holding services in the public schoolhouse in San Francisco. The first steamer to arrive brought representatives of the Protestant churches to hold before the gold-mad crowds the ideals of Christianity. Slowly but gradually the forces for order emerged, but not without severe growing pains.

In the rural districts the adjustments came more readily, but in San Francisco and the other cities the opposing elements came into violent collision. From all parts of the world men gathered to make up the population of San Francisco. Many had come to the gold mines and, becoming disappointed, turned to the city and to their former lives as parasites on society; others doubtless came for no higher purpose. Because of the abnormal conditions those men were for a time allowed to go unchecked and even to control the offices of the city. A series of fires of supposed incendiary origin brought home the fact that society was tolerating a condition that should not exist. When it was found that the very officers of the law were controlled by this vicious element the indignation of the better class of citizens roused them to action, although it was somewhat belated. Vigorous measures were necessary. The first Committee of Vigilance, in 1851, proceeded to clean house, politically speaking, and thus freed San Francisco from the control of the criminal class. Four men were hanged, fourteen were banished from the state, fifteen were handed over to the regular authorities, and many others fled before justice reached them. The lesson was only partially learned, and five years later, in 1856, the Committee of Vigilance once again was forced to take a hold. This time four men were hanged, thirty were banished and some eighty or more fled.

By this time California had also begun to approach a state of economic stability. The mines, after a few years, ceased to yield great returns except to those who were able to expend capital for equipment and machinery. Agriculture and industry were found to yield good returns. California was discovered to be a pleasant place in which to live. Families were brought from Eastern homes and California became a prosperous Western state in the economic life of which mining, industry and agriculture were all a part.

THE SCATTER AND THE DON.

One of the features making for disorganization during the early years of American settlement was the confusion regarding land titles. The Western frontiersmen had been accustomed to dealing with lands occupied only by the Indian, whose title was respected only so long as his tomahawk made further intrusions dangerous. When at last the Indians were removed the settler was allowed, under the pre-emption law, to take up one hundred sixty acres of public land. When, therefore, these men reached California and found that the best lands were claimed in Spanish grants, measured not in terms of acres but in square leagues, there was a feeling that something was wrong, that they were being cheated out of their rights as American citizens.

Difficulties of this character arose particularly in the new population centers. During the summer of 1850 Sacramento experienced squatter riots in which blood was shed and it became necessary to call upon the militia to preserve order. In San Jose, San Francisco and elsewhere similar disturbances occurred. One difficulty was the indefinite manner in which the grants had been defined. Descriptions, although satisfactory in a sparsely settled community, were very faulty when the population had increased to the point where every town lot was of great value.

Realizing the difficulties that would arise out of the confusion of land titles, the United States Government, in 1851, appointed a commission to pass upon the land claims held under the Mexican government. The work of this commission was slow and difficult. Many fraudulent claims were presented, and others although valid lacked necessary documentary evidence. In all something over eight hundred claims were presented to the commission; of those, about six hundred were confirmed, the rest being rejected or withdrawn.

SETTLER AND PUBLIC DOMAIN.

Not only was it necessary to determine the location and validity of Spanish and Mexican land claims, but before the settler could acquire title to any public land it was necessary that it be surveyed and placed on sale to the public. In the case of California, an exception was made to the rule limiting pre-emption to those lands already surveyed because of the fact that the sudden rush of population to California created a condition where the settlers were already several years in advance of the government survey of the lands. In 1851 the United States survey was begun by fixing a monument on Mount Diablo as a point of beginning. Later Mount San Bernardino was selected for the southern portion of the state and Mount Pierce, in Humboldt County, for the northwestern section. During the fifties, when opportunity was offered, a large amount of the federal lands were taken up by pre-emption claimants. In 1862 the Homestead Act opened up a new and easier method of acquiring public lands and naturally became popular among those seeking to obtain a home.

The State of California was also a land dealer, for from the Federal Government the new state had acquired large amounts of the public domain. The greater portion of this was known as school land. Five hundred thousand acres granted to the state was devoted by the state constitution to school purposes in addition to two sections in each township. Sale of this land was provided for by the Legislature in 1852 at a price low enough to induce purchasers. The result was that by 1860 practically all of the school land available to purchasers had been sold. The state was also given control of all the swamp and overflowed land within its boundaries. California is peculiar, in that land which is under water at one portion of the year is valuable for crops later in the season. This condition led to a difference in opinion between the State and Federal Governments and it was not until after 1867 that the state was finally able to give a clear title to any of its public lands.

INDIAN DISTURBANCES.

Another element that tended to hold back settlement was the fact that in some portions of the state Indian hostility made frontier life unsafe. The California Indian had been peaceable until the White man, with seemingly insatiable greed, crowded him farther and farther back, killed off his game, drove the fish from the streams by his mining operations, and even killed the natives themselves at the least provocation. In the early fifties several outbreaks occurred, but they were largely local and the dominance of White men soon settled the difficulty. One or two of these, however, are worthy of notice.

Late in 1850 the Indians in the region of the Merced River were hostile and had killed several men at the trading post of Major Savage, on Mariposa Creek. The miners decided drastic action was necessary. A military company was organized and an attempt made to bring the unruly natives in and place them upon a reservation. The Indians withdrew far into the Sierras to a retreat where they had hitherto never been disturbed. The White men kept in pursuit and were rewarded not so much by the capture of the Indians as the discovery, in 1851, of the great Yosemite Valley, now recognized as one of the beauty spots of the world.

In the northwest, Indian wars persisted through many years and gave great annoyance to the settlers of that part of the state. The most able leaders in this disturbance were the Indians of Hoopa Valley, who were superior to their neighbors. Their ability to resist resulted in their securing from the Whites, in 1864, the beautiful Hoopa Valley as a reservation, in spite of the fact that many White settlers had already located homes there. The Modoc Indians were the last to cause trouble. The lava beds gave an excellent opportunity for the Indians to escape pursuit. This, together with treachery, cost the lives of several White men before peace was restored in the early seventies.

Although the result of these unstable conditions was to retard the development of the state, different forces on the other hand tended toward the rapid spread of settlement. These forces were founded upon the discovery that California has a pleasant climate in which to live and a soil capable of producing in great abundance. The natural result was a decided development of agriculture and horticulture. During the earlier years operations along these lines were experimental. The papers were filled with reports showing what crops could be produced. Gradually there was developed a knowledge of what crops produced the best results and from that time on there was less and less uncertainty.

It may be of interest to state that in 1855 Alameda County, with 56,109 acres of cultivated land, was the leading agricultural county in the state. San Joaquin followed, with 38,000 acres, and the others with less than one-half that of Alameda. At that time there were over 320,212 fruit trees in the state, over one-third of which were in Alameda County. With the development of the state the regions further from San Francisco Bay grew in importance. The great valley turned to raising wheat and became for a time the granary, not only for California, but for Europe as well. The lesser valleys were found to produce excellent fruits, so that horticulture and viticulture grew with great rapidity.

EFFORTS TO SPEED UP TRANSPORTATION.

The one thing the people of California felt was most needed, was more rapid communication with the Eastern states. Newspapers from Europe were fifty days old when received in California. Express and freight were still slower. If California were to be a real part of the Federal Union, some means must be found of shortening the time between California and the East. As early as 1832 the idea of a railroad to the Pacific had been suggested, but with all the agitation in its behalf the railroad was still un-built.

Various methods were employed in an attempt to solve the problem. In the earliest days parties crossing the plains carried letters in an irregular manner. In 1851 Chorpenning and Woodward undertook to carry the mail across the Sierras, and did perform this service against great odds for the next ten years. In 1857 the Butterfield Company established a stageline over a southern route, carrying mail, express and passengers. This latter organization was efficient and gave much satisfaction.

This, however, was a time of intense sectional feeling. It was felt that a southern route gave too much advantage to the Southern states. The demand for an expeditious northern line led to the establishment of one of the most spectacular express lines in our history—the Pony Express. In April of 1860 Russell, Majors and Waddell started the first Pony Express messengers from each end of the line, at Saint Louis and San Francisco. Light, experienced riders, equipped with the fleetest and best horses, these men dashed across the continent in a manner which merited the admiration they aroused. The activity of the Pony Express was not long in duration, but it came at a vital time in the nation's history. The war clouds were gathering rapidly and it was important that all parts of the nation be kept informed as to developments in the impending crisis. It was then that the pony performed a most important service, for it brought to California the news of Lincoln's nomination and election; it brought the first report of the firing upon Fort Sumter. Furthermore, it demonstrated that it was practicable to keep open a central route across the continent even during winter months. On October 25, 1861, the transcontinental telegraph connected the Pacific Coast with the Eastern states and the need for the Pony Express was over.

CALIFORNIA AND THE CIVIL WAR.

It was fortunate that this connection was maintained with the loyal north, for California's attitude toward the issues involved in secession was not well defined. In fact, to judge from the statements of many of her public men, including her representatives in Congress, she was not to be counted among those states whose loyalty was to be trusted. From the beginning of her history as a state, California had adhered to the Democratic party and in spite of her free constitution, she had maintained an attitude of indifference if not of toleration toward slavery.

The Democratic party for several years had been split between two factions, one led by David Broderick, the other by Dr. William Gwin. Although the issue was largely personal ambition of the leaders, Broderick represented the northern and Gwin the southern Democrats. In the election of 1860 these two factions were practically evenly divided, Lincoln, the Republican candidate, therefore received a sufficient number of votes to give him control of California.

Although California had not voted decisively for the Republican ticket in 1860, it was only because of her conservative attitude towards the issues involved, for it should be stated that, although the Lincoln vote was less than thirty-three percent, the vote of Breckenridge, the avowed Southern candidate, was less than twenty-nine percent. California was, at heart, loyal to the union in spite of the wavering attitude of some of her political leaders. This became evident as soon as the determined policy of the Southern states was manifest. Union mass meetings were held everywhere. Thomas Starr King of the Unitarian church, M. C. Briggs of the Methodist church and Joseph A. Benton of the Congregational church were but a few of the leading clergymen of the time who were outspoken for the union cause.

As the war progressed, California's loyalty became more manifest. Both political parties declared their adherence to the cause of federal union. Notwithstanding California's distance from the war, her enlistments greatly exceeded her quota. These men were used largely within her own borders in protecting the frontiers and in holding in check Southern sympathizers who were numerous, especially in the south and in the San Joaquin Valley. California's gold was an all-important factor, for her mines poured into the Northern states a supply of gold sufficient to maintain the credit of the federal currency. Furthermore, California's generous contributions to the relief work of the Sanitary Commission amounted to nearly a million and a quarter dollars, about one-third of the total sub-

BUILDERS OF PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The outbreak of the Civil War made easier the solution of the problem of a Pacific railroad, or it eliminated not only any consideration of a southern route but it also removed those who had strongly opposed federal aid because of the theory of state's rights. As early as 1853-54 the government had expended large sums of money in making surveys for the best railroad routes. Four very satisfactory routes had been discovered and reported. These have all subsequently been used for transcontinental lines, but at that time a keen sectional rivalry developed as to the proper route to follow, with the result that Congress was deadlocked between a southern and a northern route.

Not until the secession of the South, was Congress able to decide upon a route. By an act of 1862 Congress provided for the building of a railroad from the Missouri River to the Pacific Coast. The eastern part was built by the Union Pacific, the western part by the Central Pacific. This western portion was especially difficult, on account of the rugged nature of the Sierra Nevada Mountains and the distance from all construction supplies. Theodore Judah, an engineer, carefully studied the California mountains and saw the feasibility of building a railroad. He convinced Crocker, Huntington, Stanford and Hopkins, later known as the "Big Four," that it was a worthwhile investment. Those men then saw that the railroad was built. On May 10, 1869, the last spike was driven and California was joined to the East with bands of steel.

The building of the transcontinental railroad meant much for California, for now it had direct connections with the remainder of the United States. Furthermore, the building of local railroads connected up various parts of California with this main line. The first railway in California was the Sacramento Valley railroad, connecting Sacramento and Folsom, built in 1856. In 1862 a railroad was built from Folsom to Lincoln. In 1863 the California Northern railway connected Marysville and Oroville. In 1864 San Francisco and San Jose were connected by a railroad which was continued to Gilroy in 1869. In that year the California Pacific railroad was completed, running from Vallejo to Sacramento, with a branch line from Davis to Marysville. From this it will be seen that by the time the transcontinental railroad was completed, various local lines connected the more important sections of Northern California. A beginning had also been made in Southern California.

POLITICAL UNREST.

After the completion of the transcontinental railroad, the backers of the Central Pacific turned their attention to extending railroads and exploiting the resources of California. The people had greatly rejoiced at the work of railroad construction, and liberal subsidies had been voted by federal, state and county governments. The railroads were recognized as a valuable asset, yet a reaction soon set in and many began to question whether or not they had not paid too high a price for these improvements. Then, too, the railroad companies themselves, having made great outlays and now having the means and power to gain large returns, were not cautious to avoid arousing popular antipathy. Alongside of the railroad extension of the seventies went also a rising opposition, largely increased by the general economic condition of the country.

The Pacific Coast was still going through the period of re-adjustment following the earlier flush times; industry and agriculture had not yet developed to a point capable of caring for the growing population. Capital was scarce, interest rates prohibitive and wages low. The farmer had not yet learned how best to use his land, and the dry season with occasional droughts placed him in a very precarious position.

SAN FRANCISCO A MONUMENT TO CITIZENS' FAITH AND UNDAUNTED SPIRIT

Robert Newton Lynch

(VICE-PRESIDENT SAN FRANCISCO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

SAN FRANCISCO, PREMIER PORT AND financial center of the Pacific Coast, holds a lure peculiar to few cities of this country. Born a drowsy Spanish hamlet and developed by adventurous commerce, it has developed an individuality all its own.

Early in its history it became an objective of international strategy. Spain, recognizing the importance of the Pacific territory, sent expeditions to explore and lay claim to the territory which is today California. One of these, under command of Don Gaspar de Portola, governor of Lower California, left San Diego in July 1769, seeking Monterey, overshot his mark and arrived at the Bay of San Francisco instead.

In 1775, Don Juan Manuel Ayala sailed the packet "San Carlos" into the Golden Gate. The following year, 1776, a land expedition commanded by Colonel Juan Bautista de Anza, arrived on the peninsula and located the Presidio of San Francisco and the Mission Dolores. The next year, Padre Junipero Serra, father of California missions, arrived.

With the establishment of the presidio and the subsequent establishment of the Pueblo of Yerba Buena, began the real life of this community, later to be known as San Francisco.

The attempt of Russia, under Rezanov, to effect a settlement and lay claim to this territory failed miserably. Spanish rule was supreme. The community continued under the name of Yerba Buena until 1847, when it was changed to San Francisco.

The arrival of the Americans, Commodore Sloat at Monterey with the frigate "Savannah"; Captain Montgomery in San Francisco Bay with the sloop-of-war "Portsmouth" in 1846, and the raising of the American Flag on the plaza, now known as Portsmouth Square, are too well known to need further recital here.

Bancroft, in his "History of California," writing of San Francisco in 1848, said: "It is already in many respects the most thriving town in California, the prospective metropolis of the coast, with 200 buildings and 800 inhabitants."

At this time the town also boasted of a school, two newspapers and two wharves. Two years later, there were more than 20,000 people, three daily newspapers, seven churches, two theatres and a jail.

When compared with the San Francisco of 1925, with a population of approximately 675,000, many thousands of homes, 112 schools, seven daily newspapers, and forty-one piers providing fifteen miles of berthing space for ships, it will be appreciated what a tremendous growth this city has had since 1850, when California was admitted to statehood in the union. With the discovery of gold in 1848 came the great influx of population. It is recorded that in the winter of 1849-1850 an immense fleet of sailing vessels from all parts of the globe, numbering eight to nine hundred, were anchored in San Francisco Bay. Most of these had been deserted, the crews having gone inland to seek the golden treasure. The days of the sleeping pueblo had passed, and San Francisco had become a seething city almost overnight.

SAN FRANCISCO, IN 1849.

No transcontinental railroad had yet been built, consequently everything that came into and went out of San Francisco had to be carried by sea. To accommodate the fleets of shipping, many wharves had to be hurriedly built. It was thus that San Francisco had its beginning as a world port.

At this time the waterfront extended along what is now Montgomery street, the latter being the main street of the city. Among the outstanding accomplishments of the city was the subsequent construction of a seawall under the present Embarcadero and the reclamation of this great area, running into many city blocks.

What was, as late as 1868, a body of water known as "Yerba Buena Cove," is today covered by San Francisco's financial and commercial center, surmounted by many of the city's skyscrapers.

Bringing of the gold from the mines established San Francisco as a financial center. The progress of the city was particularly marked in 1853, with the expansion of business under the increasing gold yield and general development. Real estate rose in value, and building operations were undertaken in every direction.

Manufacturing also developed. By 1856 there were in operation a half dozen important foundries, machine and boiler works, employing several hundred men; four saw mills, besides sash, blind and box factories; eleven flouring mills; a steam cracker factory; a large sugar refinery; several breweries; oil, candle and soap works; and a host of establishments supplying necessities and luxuries for mining, field, and home life.

It can thus be said that by 1856 San Francisco had been transformed from an expanse of sand hills, from a tented encampment, to a city unapproached by any of similar age for size and to substantial improvements. Its population had increased to about 50,000.

In 1856, the city boasted of nine financial institutions. These were privately owned. Of them one still stands as a monument to the Pioneer who composed the early stock of builders of San Francisco.

Banks are the barometer of the financial strength of a community. Compare the record of early San Francisco with that of the present time. Today, the city has thirty-two banks showing total surplus and undivided profits of $65,379,239. The savings deposits of June 30, 1925, amounted to $758,273,421. The financial institutions also indicate the cosmopolitan character of the city. Banks of various nationalities include: British, French, Italian, Portuguese, Chinese and Japanese.

Clearings show San Francisco to be the most important banking center of Western America.

Discovery of the Comstock Lode in 1859 resulted in the greatest mining frenzy ever known. The Comstock mines in thirty years produced $350,000,000 worth of bullion and paid $130,000,000 in dividends, mainly to San Francisco shareholders.

The early days passed without a stock exchange. In 1862 there were three stock exchanges. Today San Francisco has two exchanges, the Stock and Bond Exchange and the Stock Exchange (formerly known as the Mining Exchange). Transactions of the Stock and Bond Exchange during 1924 amounted to $156,318.

MONTEREY

THE EARLY HISTORY OF CALIFORNIA revolves around Monterey. Its sheltering harbor beckoned the early navigators as a place of refuge for their frail craft, as they buffeted the waves and winds along the Pacific Coast searching here and there for a favorable landing. Cabrillo, in 1542, and Vizcaino, in 1602, are names and dates that stand out prominently, but it was not until that memorable day when Junipero Serra effected a landing on the shore of Monterey Bay and there established, in 1770, the Mission of San Carlos, that its settlement had its beginning. Portola, as governor of California under the Spanish reign, joined Serra and Monterey became the seat of both a religious and a civil authority in the new Spanish province of California, and from that time until its admission into the union as a state, the affairs of California were directed by those in authority who maintained their headquarters in the historical city. It became the center of life; the capital of the state. There lived the dashing caballeros and the dark-eyed, handsome senoritas with their fiestas and music and colorful life. Upon the streets walked and mixed soldier and sailor, skipper and whaler, trader and adventurer from every port. The historian loves to dwell on that romantic period when the sweet-chimed bells of the mission tolled their sacred music upon the passing air; when hospitality, generosity, chivalry and gallantry abundantly prevailed.

The end of Spanish rule in California was foretold by the action of the American colonists when the spirit of independence spread among the peoples of the earth. It reached Mexico, San Diego and Monterey, and in 1822 the Mexican Republic assumed control and authority, where previously the representatives of Spain asserted dominion. On July 2, 1846, another craft approached the Monterey shore from the ocean beyond. It was not that of navigator, whaler nor trader. It was the flagship "Savannah" of the United States Navy, commanded by Commander John Drake Sloat. It foretold the coming of a new nation, a new people, a new civilization, which was to become deeply rooted in the soil of California and forever there to remain. When the flag of that nation was raised to the masthead at the old Custom House that now stands at Monterey, it was the sixth flag to wave over California. The first was the Spanish flag, when Balboa dipped its colors in the waters of the Pacific, claiming the bordering lands for his sovereign crown. The second was that of the English, unfurled by Sir Francis Drake beneath the cliffs of Point Reyes, in 1579. The third was the Russian flag, appearing at Fort Ross, on the Sonoma coast, in 1812. The fourth was the Mexican flag at Monterey, in 1822. The fifth was the Bear Flag, flung to the breeze at Sonoma, in 1846.

The sixth, the Flag of the United States, served notice to the world that, as between the two oceans on the North American Continent, there was room for but one flag, the Stars and Stripes. At the conclusion of the war between the United States and Mexico, the treaty negotiated awarded California to the former and continued Monterey as the center of state activities. Here was established the military government which prevailed until the admission of the state into the union. Who can visit Monterey without living again that early life so fascinating and so appealing in interest? Each epoch has its characters, and as one approaches Colton Hall he is reminded of that splendid body of representative Americans who assembled there in 1849 for the purpose of instituting and organizing a government for a state that was to come into the union without serving the probationary period as a territory. There were those who came from various sections of the country; they had brought with them to this land the history and the traditions of the past; the struggles of the colonists and the government that they designed and the constitution that they framed and adopted served as the guidance and principles of these crusaders of a new and fertile country.

The first problem that presented itself was whether or not California should come into the union as a free state. The great question of slavery was appearing as a cloud of controversy upon the horizon of the nation. Texas was the twenty-eighth state of the union, afterwards Wisconsin and Iowa were admitted as Northern states. All eyes turned toward the West, to discover where the thirty-first state would come from and what its attitude would be on this great question. The men at Monterey hesitated not, but solemnly declared that servitude, neither voluntary nor involuntary, would ever be permitted within the confines of the state unless for the punishment of crime. These men gave to the state a constitution that served for thirty years. They fixed the eastern boundary line of the state, which gave to us the great Sierras with their aerial treasures of snow, which is the life of our irrigation districts that have caused arid lands to yield golden harvests and bountiful crops, and which today is the source of hydro-electric power that means so much for our people. They evolved a representative government and provided for a proper representation in both national and state legislatures. They sent their representatives to Washington with the declaration that they had come to this coun-

Yet, by the accidental discovery of gold, his name assumed a prominence that identifies it with an event that shaped the destiny of the American people, attracted the attention of the world and made the admission of California into the union as a state a certainty. A mechanic in the employ of General Sutter and engaged in erecting a mill which was to furnish lumber and wood for pressing necessities, Marshall caught the gleam of a shining substance in the millrace and, exclaiming it to be gold, the echo of his voice was carried by the winds to the four quarters of the globe. Then commenced that great movement towards California, both by land and by sea, such as the world had never witnessed. In swelling numbers men from every walk in life joined the caravan of human souls who pioneered the way across stretched deserts, parched plains, up mountain side, across unbridged rivers, toiling feverishly on to reach the Land of Golden Promise.

California soon became populated by a constantly increasing cosmopolitan class of people. Gold discoveries were frequent, and of great extent. In the succeeding years millions were taken from the surface of the "diggings," and there were enacted scenes that furnished material for Harte and Twain and their contemporaries. The days of '49 will ever linger in the memory of Californians as one of the most wonderful epochs in the world's history. There was brought together a race of men whose like will never be seen again. The very trials that they endured in reaching the Sierras, fitted them for try with an axe in one hand and a rifle in the other and were returning with a written constitution of a full-grown state in one hand and the American Flag in the other.

And because these stirring scenes were enacted in old Monterey and because of the historical characters that lived and died within its sacred precincts and because of its lingering missions, its adobe houses, its quiet streets, its enfolding hills, its drifting meadows, its crescent bay that once bore upon its waters sails from every zone, Californians will always find it a shrine for their constant devotion.

GOLD AT COLOMA

Who has stood on that historic ground at Coloma, El Dorado County, without conjuring up the scene that was enacted there on that memorable day, January 24, 1848, when the voice of James W. Marshall startled the civilized world. He was not a navigator, an explorer, a miner, nor an emissary of an ambitious government. He was one of the adventuresome men who had joined a great migration toward the West. He had endured hardships aplenty. He was living a simple life amidst a simple setting; there was nothing that distinguished him from his fellows or made him more than an average man of that time.

the frontier life before them. There were communities of tents and rudely constructed shelter occupied by all classes of society and of various avocations in life. Attracted by the lure of gold, came the adventurers, gamblers and desperados. Amid it all, law and order prevailed to a remarkable degree. This was due to the fact that a majority were composed of men of character and resolution, quick to act in protecting personal and property rights and then did not shrink from meting out swift punishment to violators of the criminal and moral code.

The greatest problem to be solved was the establishment of a code of laws whereby the respective rights of miners would be protected. No similar situation had ever arisen in the United States, and it remained for the men of that day and that time, without form or precedent to guide them, to evolve a code of mining laws that afterwards were enacted into statutes, both state and federal. Young men from Eastern homes, from the college, from the province and from the prosaic life of a farm in the Middle West, were suddenly confronted with a life of thrilling events, heightened by the free, easy and careless habits of those who had come into this scene without serious consideration. # A LITTLE GIRL'S TRIP TO CALIFORNIA IN 1851

Martha Cook-Hunt

WHEN GOLD WAS DISCOVERED IN California in 1848 people flocked there from every direction, going around Cape Horn in sailing vessels, across the country in emigrant wagons, and by way of the Panama Isthmus.

Mr. Cook, the little girl's father, who was a merchant in a small New England town, sold out his share of the business and went with many others to the land of gold, but instead of digging for the precious metal, he started in business in the then small town of San Francisco. Deciding to make his home there, he returned East to get his family, which consisted of a wife and two little girls, one 6 years of age, Mattie, and the other, 3 years old, Anna. Great was Mattie's joy on hearing of the proposed journey and she thoroughly enjoyed the preparations made for it, for in those days it was considered as dangerous a trip as we should now regard one to Central Asia or Africa.

Mr. Cook was unable to secure accommodations on the regular mail steamer but he procured them on a new vessel, the "El Dorado," which, although not built for ocean travel, had been hastily fitted up for that purpose. He also had engaged a nurse for the children, a middle-aged Irish woman who, desiring to seek her fortune in the new country, was glad to seize that opportunity of getting there.

On a snowy day late in March 1851 the little party started from New York. The vessel looked very clean and attractive, in contrast to the old dirty mail steamers, and the children were delighted with the little rooms with shelves to sleep on, as they called the berths. Their joy did not long continue, for almost immediately the ship ran into one of the worst storms of that year. The ship was crowded with hundreds of men, a few women, and but four children, our little girl and her baby sister, another little girl and a boy of 12. The Atlantic, never a very quiet ocean, was very rough, and by night the passengers were all ordered below, and for thirty-six hours the storm raged. It was impossible to move around and the vessel would be shaken with the tons of water which swept over the decks, now diving down as if determined to find the bottom of the ocean, and then swooping up as if trying to fly. Life lines were stretched across the decks, for instead of the high sides of the ocean steamers the "El Dorado" had the low railings of an inland steamer and the water drained off as fast as it came on. Not until long years afterward did the little girl learn that two sailors were washed overboard in that terrible time.

She sat for long hours in her father's lap, too young to realize the danger, or the fear of the older people that the good ship would never reach its destination, but would find a resting-place in the depths of the Atlantic. Then the rain ceased, and the wind calmed, and although the sky was still grey and the waves high, meals were regularly served again. One morning the little boy was standing with little Anna in his arms in the doorway of the cabin, and seeing Mr. Cook on the deck, started to walk towards him, when a high wave broke over the vessel, throwing him down. Both children rolled over and over to the low railing, where they would have gone overboard, had not a sailor, who happened to be near, caught them and bore them back to safety. After that, they were not allowed outside the cabin door.

At last, however, one fine day the poor battered vessel, looking very unlike the one that left New York, steamed into the harbor of Aspinwall, or Colon as it is now called. The mail steamer, which had started some days before it, had arrived only the day before, having encountered the same stormy weather.

Crossing the Isthmus in those days was accomplished by sailing up the Chagres River in small steamboats, and finishing the journey on muleback. This last part of the journey was anticipated by little Mattie with a great deal of pleasure, as she imagined herself jouncing along on the back of one of the small animals. Hearing that there was a chance of catching the steamer at Panama, the passengers determined to start at once, and the next morning found the little party safely ensconced on one of the river boats, where the children were much interested in seeing the baggage loaded. Suddenly there was an accident and several of the trunks were dropped into the muddy water. The trunks of those days were small leather ones, securely en-

This facts-story, prepared by Mrs. Martha Cook-Hunt, the "little girl" referred to, was recently radioed from Oakland for the benefit of the schools of Alameda County. It deals with the journey to California, via the Isthmus of Panama in 1851, of Charles W. Cook and his wife, and their daughters, Martha B. now Mrs. Hunt, and Anna E., now Mrs. Willey.

Charles W. Cook first arrived in California in 1849, on the second trip of the steamer "Oregon," and engaged in the banking business in San Francisco, under the firm name of Palmer, Cook & Co. Mrs. Cook passed away in San Francisco in 1857, and Mr. Cook in 1892. Mrs. Martha Cook-Hunt and Mrs. Anna Cook-Willey are both residents of Alameda City.—Editor.

cased in stout canvas with strong leather straps, and they were soon recovered. As one of the trunks belonged to Mr. Cook, the children saw the contents, among them being their best red cashmere dresses, strung around the deck and up in the rigging to dry. The hot tropical sun soon did the work and the contents of the trunks were restored, not much the worse for their bath.

At first the sail was pleasant, for the trees on either side of the river were festooned with vines covered with beautiful flowers of all colors and multitudes of brilliant-plumaged birds were flying around. The children were much amused by the monkeys, which had an uncanny way of winding their tails around the branches of the trees and leaping from one limb to another, chattering loudly all the while. Many of them had baby monkeys which clung tightly to their mothers. After a while the sun grew very hot and the air close and damp, and the numerous insects very troublesome, especially the spiders, which were very large and the children were very much afraid of them.

girl was put to bed in a large room in the quaint old stone building used for a hotel which had iron bars at the windows instead of panes of glass. The next morning they went aboard the old steamer "California," which was very dirty, slow and crowded to the limit, as were all the steamers at that time, but the ocean was smooth and the weather pleasant.

The first stop was at Acapulco, and as soon as the ship dropped anchor it was surrounded by natives, great and small, who, when the passengers threw small coins overboard, would dive to the bottom of the clear water and, placing the coins in their mouths for safekeeping, would come to the surface for more. Multitudes of small boats filled with vegetables and native fruits, and many women carrying tiny naked babies in shawls tied to their necks like slings, some having parrots and tiny green parrots and other beautiful birds to sell, interested the children very much. But their joy was great when their father, placing a silver dollar in a woman's hand, took her tiny fat baby and, putting it into little Mattie's lap, said: "Here is a live dolly for you, children." But the cry of "all ashore" came too soon, and the children sorrowfully saw the baby restored to the mother and were not at all consoled by the present of a pretty little parrot.

Now commenced the last stage of the journey, which was perhaps the most trying, for the ship was crowded and dirty, the food very poor, and many of the passengers had to sleep on the floor or on the tables in the cabins. The nights, particularly, were awful to little Mattie, who fancied she felt rats, of which there were hordes, running over her in the darkness and she would

Glad, indeed, were the little party to arrive at Gorgona, a miserable little village of native huts and adobes, where they were to pass the night. The children were put to bed in a large room filled with cot-beds, where the weary travelers tried to get a little sleep. Early the next morning found them ready for the mules, of which there were not nearly enough for all. Mr. Cook had secured some for his party but, much to Mattie's disgust, she was seated in front of a dirty native, who embraced her closely with one skinny arm. Her little sister was consigned to the arms of another native, who was to walk by short cuts not practicable for mules, and her devoted Irish nurse announced her intention of walking also for fear the baby would be lonesome. Several of the younger men decided to walk, so they set off at once and were not seen again until they reached their destination at Panama. At first the novelty of riding the mule pleased Mattie, but the road was rough, the sun hot, the insects disagreeable and, worst of all, was the close proximity of her native guardian.

At Panama they found the California steamer was to sail the next morning so, after a walk around the old city with her father, the little lie for hours wideawake, wishing for the morning light. Every morning the good nurse would dress her by daylight and she was allowed to sit on deck outside the stateroom door with the promise that she would not get out of her chair.

Early one morning she saw some sailors bearing a long bundle of blankets on a litter, followed by a small party of men, and her curiosity being aroused she slipped from her chair and went toward them. One of the men took her in his arms and she listened to the words being read from a book, and at a given signal saw the sailors move aside a part of the high railing of the vessel and lift one end of the litter and allow the long bundle to slide off into the ocean. Then the child realized that she had witnessed a burial at sea, and with a wild cry she struggled down from her friend's arms to seek refuge in her mother's lap, and for many days the scene was ever present with her. She grew daily more pale and listless, until one would hardly have recognized in her the merry, rosy, little girl who had left her New England home so few weeks before.

At last, one beautiful afternoon, just at sun-

SAN JOSE, CALIFORNIA'S FIRST CAPITAL AND SANTA CLARA, "THE VALLEY OF HEART'S DELIGHT"

Fred Lewis Foster

(ASSISTANT SECRETARY, SAN JOSE CHAMBER COMMERCE.)

THE SEVENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY of California's admission into the union is a reminder that San Jose was the first state capital of and the first incorporated city in California. Historically, these facts are of interest, and of still deeper interest, perhaps, and certainly of far more importance, is the outstanding fact that here in Santa Clara Valley was developed the great horticultural industry that has made California known the world over. In this valley, also, one of the very earliest missions was established—Santa Clara de Asis, January 12, 1777,—and later, June 11, 1797, the Mission San Jose de Guadalupe, which, however, by change of county lines as originally fixed by the Legislature, was afterward included in the territory assigned to Alameda County. In this valley, also, occurred preceding and during the war with Mexico some of the most stirring incidents of that memorable strife between the Gringos and the Mexicans.

DISCOVERY OF VALLEY.

Santa Clara Valley, pronounced by Bayard Taylor "one of the three most beautiful valleys in the world," was discovered accidentally by a party of Spaniards who had been dispatched by orders of the Spanish government to establish an outpost at Monterey. Although California was at that time, 1769, a portion of Mexico, subject to Spain, very little was known of its geographical features. In 1602 Sebastian Vizcaino visited the coast of California, and he was deeply impressed with Monterey Bay. His reports were so glowing that the Spanish authorities determined to establish an outpost there, but nothing was done until 1769, when officers in charge of the pueblo at San Diego were ordered to send out a party to locate Monterey Bay.

Captain Gasparde Portola, civil and military governor, and Captain Fernando Javier Rivera y Moncado started from San Diego, July 14, 1769, with a small company to search for the port. Moncado was in command of twenty-seven soldiers, including Sergeant Joseph Francisco Ortega and Lieutenant Pedro Fages, with several Catalan volunteers. Engineer Miguel Costanso, Fathers Juan Crispi and Francisco Gomez, seven muleteers, fifteen christianized Lower Californians, and two servants for Portola and Rivera were included, the entire company numbering sixty-four persons. The guides were inexperienced, and the party suffered many hardships on the way.

DID NOT RECOGNIZE MONTEREY.

Singular as it may seem, the party did not recognize Monterey Bay when they arrived there, October 1st. They continued up the coast in search of the bay. They crossed the Pajaro River a week later, naming it from a stuffed bird found among the native Indians at that point. They reached the San Lorenzo River, at the site of the present City of Santa Cruz, on the 17th, and Point San Pedro, further up the coast, October 30th. Their supply of food was almost exhausted, rain was falling, and they camped there several days. It was while the party were in camp that two soldiers, hunting for deer, climbed the northeastern hills, and from the summit saw "a valley like a great inland sea, stretching northward and southward as far as the eye could reach." They reported that it was well wooded and very beautiful. These two soldier-hunters were the first Europeans to gaze upon Santa Clara Valley, subsequently named by a famous traveler and writer "The Valley of Heart's Delight."

In the meantime Ortega with a small party had proceeded along the beach toward the Golden Gate. He learned from natives that at the head of a "brazo de mar" there was a harbor with a vessel at anchor. As the party were looking for the arrival of the ship "San Jose," at the sought-for Bay of Monterey, with supplies, they crossed the San Bruno Hills, on the 4th of November, to explore the "brazo de mar," which they supposed to be Monterey Bay, and to look for the ship. On the 6th they reached San Francisco Creek—the present boundary line between Santa Clara and San Mateo Counties—and camped for four days in the vicinity of the spot later known as Searsville, during which time a small party explored the bay and reported a large estero but

at San Jose

no sign of any port. The leaders concluded that it would be useless to search any further north for Monterey Bay, and the entire party returned to San Diego.

SANTA CLARA VALLEY EXPLORED.

Later, from time to time, several exploring parties visited Santa Clara Valley. In May, 1796, Monterey Bay was visited and recognized by Junipero Serra, Portola, Crespi, Fages and others, and a mission established. In March, 1772, Fages, Crispi, twelve soldiers, a muleteer and an Indian started from San Diego on a voyage of exploration and on the 22nd they entered the Santa Clara Valley, which they called the "San Bernardino," encamping a little north of the present City of Gilroy. Proceeding down the valley, they entered the northern portion, which they called the "Robies del Puerto de San Francisco," being the northern portion of the Santa Clara Valley. This company was the first to explore the Golden Gate, and returned soon to Monterey. In an expedition lasting from March 23, 1776, to April 6th, Captain Anza, Moraga, Font and eleven soldiers, starting from Monterey, found three streams in this valley, the Rio Guadalupe, the Arroyo Coyote—both of which flow through San Jose—and the Arroyo de San Salvador, or Harina. In June, 1776, Moraga made another trip through the valley to San Francisco Bay, and in November of the same year Rivera and Pena, on their way to San Francisco, visited the proposed site for a mission near the banks of the Guadalupe; it is not known by whom this site was selected, but probably by Moraga, on his June trip.

MISSION AND PUEBLO.

The Mission Santa Clara de Asis was founded January 18, 1777, on the site aboriginally called Thamien, and by the natives also known as Tares, meaning men, and Socoisuka, meaning laurel. On the 29th of November of the same year the Pueblo San Jose de Guadalupe was founded on a site near the eastern bank of the stream, about three miles easterly from the mission. In the previous year the first cattle and horses ever brought into the valley arrived from Monterey, being portions of small herds that had been driven to that place from Mexico by Felipe de Neve, who had been transferred from Loreto, in Baja California, where he had been serving as governor of the Californias, to Monterey, as capital of the province.

The main purpose in establishing the Pueblo de San Jose de Guadalupe by the mission fathers was to promote agriculture, because it was desired to make the country self-supporting and no longer dependent upon Mexico for supplies. Every settler at the pueblo was given a piece of cultivable land, also a house lot, ten dollars a month and a soldier's rations, and a yoke of oxen, two horses, two cows, a mule, two sheep and two goats; seed and farming implements were supplied them, payments being required for these and for the animals in products of the soil. Pear, olive and other fruit trees, grape vines and garden vegetable seeds and flowering plants, and seed grain for the growing of hay and wheat, were brought from Mexico for the use of the mission and pueblo farmers. As early as 1792 Vancouver, visiting California, saw at Santa Clara Mission a fine small orchard of apple, peach, pear, apricot, olive and fig trees, all thrifty and promising. By 1800 ample fruit of various kinds was grown to supply the needs of the mission and pueblo settlements, and by 1805 more fruit was grown than could be disposed of in its natural state.

NURSERIES AND ORCHARDS

It was a long span, however, between the old mission and pueblo fruits to the planting of nurseries and orchards on a commercial scale. After the secularization of church properties in 1834 the mission orchards and gardens were neglected and they rapidly deteriorated. American settlers here and there from 1849 on planted fruits from the mission stocks, and the first fruit offered for sale in the San Francisco market was pears grown in this county, at Santa Clara and San Jose.

From 1852 to 1858 small orchards here, not much larger than town lots, were turned to great profits with dwarf pear and apple trees. The first strawberries, now to be had in our local markets every year from the middle of March until the following January, were planted in 1853. For many years horses and cattle were the predominant farm products in Santa Clara Valley, but as the vast Spanish ranches were sold off bit by bit to the Gringos—American settlers—the production of hay, wheat and barley steadily increased, until finally the entire valley was practically one big hay and grain field, with many small orchards and vineyards scattered throughout.

BEGINNING OF FRUIT INDUSTRY.

The beginning of the fruit industry on a commercial scale in this valley may very properly be assigned to the year 1856, when Louis Pellier, a Frenchman, brought from his home district of the valley thoroughly, and after also exploring San Francisco Bay, Alameda and Contra Costa Counties, San Pablo and Suisun Bays, and the San Joaquin River as far north as the present City of Antioch, they returned, camping, April 2, on a stream near Milpitas, which they named San Francisco de Paula, being probably the present Arroyo Coches.

In November, 1773, Moncado and a party of soldiers started from Monterey to establish a mission on the Bay of San Francisco; they came by Hollister and Gilroy and on the 28th encamped on San Francisco Creek, below Searsville. There they raised a cross as a sign of their purpose to locate at that spot the Mission San Francisco, but pushing on, they discovered

Agen, in France, a number of prune scions to his place near San Jose. Although since that date quite a considerable number of varieties of prunes have been introduced and propagated in California, the original Pallier prune, which later was named the "Petite Prune D'Agen," has been and is today the great commercial prune of this state. About that time fruit tree nurseries were established near San Jose, and the orchard industry began to expand, and it has been rapidly growing ever since.

Today Santa Clara Valley has nearly 80,000 acres in prunes, growing nearly fifty percent of all the prunes in California and one-third of the prune crop of the world, its average annual production being 120,000,000 pounds dried; in 1919 the local crop reached approximately 150,000,000 pounds. There is now in the valley a total acreage of 127,000 acres in orchards of all kinds, comprising prunes, cherries, apricots, plums, pears, apples, peaches and many other kinds of fruits; almonds and walnuts, and grapes. There are in the county forty-five fruit, vegetable and berry canneries, nearly as many dried fruit packing houses, several green fruit packing houses, and many dehydrators and evaporators. In the canning and packing industry there is capital invested to the extent of $13,000,000 and this great local industry pays annually on an average more than $34,000,000 for the fruits it handles, does an annual business of $49,000,000, and has a total payroll of nearly $5,000,000.

EARLY HORTICULTURE.

While Father Serra was establishing missions from San Diego to San Francisco, Hager Galves, visitador-general of the king of Spain in ing up from the Golden Gate and penetrating the lower end of the valley, admits the tempered summer trade winds with their cooling influences to modify the summer temperature. With natural conditions so favorable, it is not surprising that the mission fruit trees grew and flourished and that gradually horticulture became the basis of a prosperity that has been continuous and promises to be abiding.

The normal rainfall is 16 inches at the lowest point of the valley to 30 or more in the foothills, and from 40 to 50 in the mountains. The county comprises an area of 1,328 square miles, or approximately 867,000 acres, and in addition to the vast acreage of fruits, nuts, berries and vegetables there are numerous general fruit farms, poultry ranches, grain and alfalfa farms, dairies, purebred cattle farms, beef cattle ranges, thoroughbred stock farms, sugar beet farms and seed farms. Exportations of canned fruits, berries and vegetables, dried fruits, green fruits and garden seed exceed annually 180,000 tons.

HISTORY OF SAN JOSE.

The first settlers in the Pueblo of San Jose comprised a party of sixty-six men, women and children, chiefly from the Presidios of Monterey and San Francisco, who were sent here by Neve to cultivate the land. The houses were built of adobe. The land set apart by the government for the pueblo was four square leagues, equivalent to thirty-six square miles, or 23,040 acres. The lands were formally distributed in 1783. For nearly fifty years following the settlement of San Jose, business was something practically unknown. The valley swarmed with herds of horses and cattle, raised by the residents of the edly, growing fruits and vegetables for home consumption, and pasturing their cattle on a thousand hills." In 1814, in which year John Cameron, commonly called John Gilroy, a Scot, arrived in the valley, San Jose had only about twenty houses, all adobe. The present City of Gilroy, thirty miles south of San Jose, was named after this venturesome Scotchman. In 1816 Robert Livermore came to San Jose, but within a few months he moved on to the valley subsequently named for him, twenty miles northeast, now in Alameda County. In 1818 Don Antonio Sunol arrived, from whose family name the small but beautiful Sunol Valley, lying between Santa Clara and Livermore Valleys, received its name.

MISSION LANDS CONFISCATED.

A deadly blow was struck the California missions when, January 4, 1813, by a decree of Cortes all lands except necessary suburbs of pueblos were reduced to a status of private property. By this decree, made for increasing the royal revenues, the lands of the missions were practically confiscated, and following its promulgation the herds, crops and buildings of the missions were neglected, production decreased, and the Indian neophytes gradually dispersed. In 1822 another Gringo arrived in San Jose, being Philip Doak, who had been with a whaling vessel that had anchored in Monterey Bay; he married a daughter of Mariano Castro and settled down to the pastoral life of the natives.

In 1821 Mexico passed from Spanish domination and became an empire, and in 1824 a republic, but these political changes had no effect upon the placid life of the San Jose residents. The local crops that year amounted to 1,657 fanegas (a fanega being about two bushels) of wheat, 1,560 fanegas of corn and 191 fanegas of beans. The stock owned included 4,443 head of cattle, 2,346 horses and 134 mules. The average price of a mule or a saddle horse was $10, a fat ox or cow $5 and a sheep $2; wheat sold for $3 a fanega, the principal purchasers being the Russian-American Fur Company which, without permission, had established itself on Bodega Bay, north of San Francisco.

A notable local historical event was the arrival of Colonel John C. Fremont, in March, 1846, with a party of sixty-two men, including Kit Carson. On the 5th of that month, while encamped near the Mission San Juan, about forty-one miles south of San Jose, he was notified by Don Jose Castro, the prefect, to leave the country. Instead of doing so, he led his party to the summit of the Gavilan Mountains to the south, and on its highest peak constructed a rude fort, over which he unfurled the American flag. Don Jose started out with a force of 200 men, but returned without attacking. The following July, Captain Fallon hoisted the American flag in San Jose. February 2, 1848, the United States acquired title by treaty to California. In the preceding year, by authority of the alcalde and the ayuntamiento, William and Thomas Campbell surveyed a plot of land for town lots, embracing one square mile of land, and the land outside these limits was divided into 500-acre tracts, each man drawing by lot. The title to these 500-acre "grants" was subsequently declared by the Supreme Court to be invalid.

THE FIRST LEGISLATURE.

A Constitutional Convention assembled at Monterey in 1849, and it adopted articles dividing the state into counties. The First California Legislature convened in San Jose, December 15, 1849, and on February 18, 1850, it passed the act that apportioned the state into counties. The original boundary lines of Santa Clara County, which was named for the mission of Santa Clara, and which act was confirmed April 25, 1851, were described as follows: "Beginning at the mouth of Alameda Creek, and running up the middle of said creek to its source in the Coast Range; thence in a southeasterly direction, following the summit of the Coast Range to the northeast corner of Monterey County; thence in a westerly direction, following the northern boundary of Monterey County, to the southeast corner of Santa Cruz County; thence in a north-westerly direction, following the summit of the Santa Cruz Mountains to the head of San Francisco Creek; thence down the middle of said creek to its mouth; and thence in a direct line to the mouth of Alameda Creek, the place of beginning." The "Coast Range" above alluded to, subsequently became known as the Mount Hamilton Range, which is east of the Valley.

In 1853 the Legislature, in forming Alameda County, took a large strip of land along and south of San Francisco Bay from Contra Costa County and also from Santa Clara County, all the land between Alameda Creek on the north and Lone Tree on the south, and between the Mexico, was sending plants, seeds, cuttings, etc., to the new missions, and it was from the Santa Clara Mission fruit trees and vines that the valley's present vast horticultural and viticultural industries had their beginning. In July, 1846, the American flag was hoisted for the first time in San Jose by Captain Fallon, and the First Legislature of the state was held in this city, convening December 15, 1849. This Legislature, February 18, 1850, passed the act dividing the state into counties, which act was confirmed April 25, 1851. In 1831, San Jose had a population of 524.

A glance at the map of Central California will enable the stranger to the valley to perceive what it is that makes it so notable for the salubrity of its climate and the extent of its fruit and other soil productions, and why it is that during the seasons of the year when the valleys of the East are mantled in snow the palms in our gardens are green and flowering, the roses are running riot over porches and fences, the nasturtiums are blooming vigorously by the sidewalks, and the geraniums are imparting life and color to the surroundings of every home.

BASIS OF PROSPERITY.

The Santa Clara Valley is protected from both coast fogs and interior heat by its east and west mountain ranges, while San Francisco Bay, open-pueblo and the friars in charge of the missions, but there was no market for them. In 1820 trading vessels began to arrive, and there was a demand for hides and tallow.

In 1783 no attention had been paid by the San Jose Pueblo to exterior pueblo limits, save the vague establishment of a boundary line between the pueblo and the Santa Clara Mission lands. By 1806 the number of horses in the section of the valley around San Jose had become so great as to be a nuisance, and on May 11th of that year the officers and other residents of the pueblo held a mass meeting at which it was decided that twenty-five good mares were all any citizen could possibly have use for, and this allotment to each resident made a total of 800 horses for the village; the remaining number, being more than 7,500, were slaughtered. Cattle, however, were allowed to increase. There was not a vehicle in the valley with wheels and spokes, no fireplaces, and no stoves until a few were brought in by immigrants in 1846.

As stated in "Sunshine, Fruits and Flowers," issued by the San Jose "Mercury" in 1896, from which publication much of the above data has been taken, "it was an easy-going life that was led by the residents of the pueblo and the mission during the mission era. Their wants were few and easily supplied, and they lived content-

Bay of San Francisco on the west and the summit of the Mount Hamilton Range on the east, the entire tract containing about 39,000 acres. This threw Mission San Jose into Alameda County. By 1860 the raising of horses and cattle in the valley had given way to the growing of grain, and the cattle were driven to ranges in the mountains.

Alviso, located at the southern end of San Francisco Bay, seven miles from San Jose, became a port in 1849, when a steamer was placed on the route between that little settlement and San Francisco. The run took ten hours, and the fare was $30. March 27, 1850, the act to incorporate the City of San Jose was passed by the Legislature.

MODERN SAN JOSE.

As Santa Clara Valley is famous chiefly for its sunshine and its fruits, so San Jose for many years past has been known for its homes and gardens, its schools and its churches. Ever since 1851 it has been the recognized educational center of the coast. California is notably the most progressive state, educationally, in the union, and to Santa Clara County belongs the honor of having been the earliest educational center not only in California but in the whole territory west of the Rockies. The year 1851 was notable, in an educational way, because in that year a charter was issued for the College schools in the county and also to community branches. In San Jose are two business or secretarial colleges; there is a military academy at Mayfield and another at Palo Alto, and several efficient private schools in Palo Alto and other cities. And a part of the state educational system is the famous Lick Observatory, at the summit of Mount Hamilton, at an elevation of 4,209 feet, twenty-six miles from San Jose by the smooth, winding road that leads to it.

INDUSTRIAL SAN JOSE.

Industrially, San Jose cannot be considered except in connection with the Santa Clara Valley as a whole, for the reason that the city's biggest industries have grown out of the fruit industry and are largely dependent upon it, and also because nearly every business man in San Jose owns an orchard, and practically all the leading fruit growers are interested financially in the industrial, commercial or banking lines in the city. Although known chiefly for its fruit productions and its educational facilities, in recent years the residents of Santa Clara County have been awakening to the fact that it is expanding steadily in manufactures. This is true of every city and town in the valley, but it is especially noticeable in San Jose, which is today the largest fruit canning center in the world.

In city and county there are forty-five large of the Pacific, in San Jose; in that year the College of Notre Dame was opened, in this city, and that year also witnessed the founding of Santa Clara College, in the old mission city. The College of the Pacific graduated its first class in 1858, and it was the first college of liberal arts in California and the first to give a course in medical instruction. The Santa Clara College was chartered as a university in 1855; it is now expending some millions of dollars in new, modern buildings.

The first State Normal School was erected in San Francisco in 1862, but it was removed to San Jose in 1871, since which time it has been everywhere recognized as the mother normal school, the most important in the state. Its present official title is the State Teachers' and Junior College, and its splendid Moorish-mission buildings, surrounded by several acres of trees and lawns and gardens, are a picturesque and attractive feature of San Jose. Stanford University, at Palo Alto, is known the world over, and according to Dr. Jordan, president emeritus, who has seen every notable university, it is the most beautiful university in the world. There are nine high-schools in the county, seventy-one grammar-schools and seven kindergarten-schools. The San Jose public high-school has an enrollment of whole and part time students of more than 5,000. The Santa Clara County Free Library circulates books to all the fruit, berry and vegetable canneries, and almost as many dried fruit packing houses. Fully 3 percent of the total of California's canned fruit output is canned in this city and county, and here 50 percent of the fancy canned fruits of the state go into the cans. According to Elmer E. Chase, president of the Cannerymen's League of California, more varieties of deciduous fruits suitable for canning grow to perfection in Santa Clara Valley and its adjacent foothills than in any other section of the state, and in no other place in the world, according to the same authority, can cherries and apricots, as well as pears, peaches, plums and tomatoes, be grown that for canning purposes will compare with those of this favored valley. The local canneries handle not only all kinds of deciduous fruits but also berries and vegetables, particularly spinach and tomatoes, and much Italian tomato paste is made and canned here.

The annual Santa Clara pack of canned goods averages more than 3,000,000 cases, or 72,000,000 cans, and at twenty tons per carload, approximately 4,000 cars are required to load the pack. So important is San Jose as a canning center, that a can company has here a factory with a capacity of half a million cans per day to meet the cannery requirements, and two local factories manufacture every kind of fruit handling and canning machinery, supplying no only this district, but also all domestic and foreign markets. At the peak of the cannery season, which begins with early vegetables in February or March, and ends with tomatoes in the latter part of October or early November, there are from 15,000 to 20,000 men and women, mostly women, employed in the local canneries.

DRIED FRUIT PACKING HOUSES.

Ranking with the local canning industry, is the drying and packing industry. As with canning, Santa Clara County is the center of the world's dried fruit industry. From 85 to 90 percent of the prunes and all the dried apricots grown and consumed in the United States are produced in California, and Santa Clara County produces 42 percent of the state's prune crop and about 50 percent of the state's dried apricot production. Over a series of years the annual value of the local prune crop has been $10,000,000, and of the local dried apricot production $1,500,000. But the proportion of dried to canned apricots varies from year to year, the tendency for several years past, with the exception of one single year, being to send more to the canneries and less to the drying grounds. During the picking and drying season, which for apricots is from late June to early July, and for prunes from the first or second week in August to the latter part of September, many thousands of persons are employed in handling the fruit through the various processes which it must go before it is ready for delivery to the packing houses. Women, schoolchildren, summer vacationists and others, desirous of making extra money during the harvest season, flock to the valley to earn the profitable wages that are paid for labor during the rush of the picking, drying and packing season.

Between one-half and two-thirds of the dried prunes and apricots of the state are handled by the California Prune and Apricot Growers' Association, which was organized May 1, 1917, in San Jose, and there are many large independent firms and corporations operating extensive packing houses, also canneries, in the valley. Until a comparatively recent date, all the prunes grown in this valley were sun dried, but for several years past the use of evaporators and dehydrators has been becoming more and more general, and there are now many of them here. Although the bulk of the valley fruit is canned or dried, large quantities of fresh fruits are annually shipped to Eastern markets, and there are several fresh fruit packing houses in San Jose and other portions of the valley, also precooling plants in which apricots ripe from the trees and fresh strawberries are precooled and shipped by rail, arriving in Eastern markets in perfect condition. The latter phase of the local fruit industry is in its infancy, but it is full of promise for the near future, as it is creating a new outlet for the valley fruits.

MANUFACTURING INTERESTS.

As indicated above, San Jose has been built up industrially chiefly by the agricultural and horticultural resources of Santa Clara County. But as the city lies within the San Francisco industrial region and shares with the other bay counties the many industrial advantages of that region, steadily if slowly it has been developing into a manufacturing center of no mean proportions, a subject however that cannot be intelligently discussed except in connection with that of the vast local fruit industry, because this industry is the basis upon which the city's largest industrials have been constructed, and in turn the presence of these has been, to a considerable extent, instrumental in attracting others. In fact, it is difficult to speak of production or business of almost any kind in San Jose or Santa Clara County without taking the city and the county as a unit.

The city's largest manufacturing firms and corporations, whose products supply not only the domestic trade throughout the United States but are continuously being exported in quantity to European countries and to some extent to South America and Africa, are directly connected up with the fruit industry, which made these factories possible. Beginning as small concerns many years ago to meet the local demand for farm, orchard and cannery machinery, such as spraying and irrigation pumps, fruit graders, canning equipment, etc., the firms have grown year by year until they have reached their present extensive proportions, the largest factories of their kind in the United States—and to these may be added the local manufacture of dehydrators.

MANY FACTORIES.

Exclusive of canneries, there are in San Jose and the county, including Palo Alto, Mountain View, Sunnyvale, Santa Clara, Los Gatos, Gilroy, Campbell, Morgan Hill and other smaller towns, approximately 350 factories, large and small, the majority of them being in San Jose. The invested capital in iron and metal products, manufactories, canneries, lumber mills, wholesale houses and public-service corporations in city and county is $97,000,000, in round numbers; the annual business aggregates $190,000,000, and the annual payroll is more than $34,000,000.

These figures do not include the large investment and business in the commercial lines. San Jose's stores, while not so large as those of San Francisco, fully equal them in the attractiveness of their window displays and the up-to-date styles and the quality of their goods, and they are the most striking feature of the business portion of the city. San Jose has a number of wholesale houses, covering a large territory, also several commission houses, and the city is becoming more and more important as a distributing center.

San Jose's relations to the San Francisco metropolitan area is a significant fact regarding its industrial, and to some extent its commercial, development. It is one of the four largest cities in the bay district which, because of its situation and other advantages, is destined to become the industrial, commercial and trading center of the Pacific Coast; hence, San Jose's future may be clearly visualized. Favorable living conditions, great advantages of resources, good transportation facilities, cheap potential power, low overhead costs, a highly intelligent labor supply, and a climate that makes it possible to utilize every work day in the year, coupled with the fact that San Francisco and the bay area is the logical distribution center for the coast and foreign markets, point to an era of development based upon a foundation that cannot fail to be enduring.

GROWTH OF CITY AND COUNTY.

That San Jose has been growing steadily during the last several years, not rapidly or feverishly, but on a sound basis, is shown by the annual census taken by the Polk-Husted company; by the increase in the number of pupils in the public schools; by the increasing post office business; by the building permits; by the gas, electric, telephone and water extensions and installations; by the bank clearings, and by other unmistakable evidences. In the matter of population, San Jose is everywhere largely underrated, because one-third of the city as a whole lies outside the official municipal lines and therefore does not figure in the federal census reports. In 1920 the city as a whole had a population of

SACRAMENTO, "THE CITY BEAUTIFUL"

VISION OF INDUSTRIAL GREATNESS FAST BECOMING REALITY

Irvin Engler

(SECRETARY-MANAGER SACRAMENTO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

EVER LINKED WITH THE GLORIOUS pioneer past of the Golden State, Sacramento, "the city beautiful," California's entrancing capital, where American civilization first gained a foothold in the Western wilderness, sits majestically at the confluence of the Sacramento and the American Rivers, reigning over a vast inland empire, whose wealth can hardly be computed. Ninety miles inland from San Francisco Bay, Sacramento is the distribution center for the world's richest agricultural section and is also the hub of recreational travel, its streets of arboreal beauty being thronged at all seasons of the year with tourists.

When Junipero Serra, Franciscan father, toiled over the hot sands into what is now California in 1769, and established twenty-one missions which later became centers of population, he had no knowledge of the great Sacramento Valley. Even when Richard Henry Dana visited the coast of California in 1835, little or nothing was known of the vast interior region, which had only been penetrated by a few daring trappers and hunters, who reported finding hostile tribes of Indians.

ARRIVAL OF SUTTER.

It remained for Captain John A. Sutter, adventurous Swiss soldier and world traveler, to brave the dangers of the unknown and lay the foundation of the Sacramento of today. In the face of ridicule and warnings, Captain Sutter set forth with three White companions, a number of Kanakas and a small supply of provisions, in whaleboats from San Francisco, and in eight days reached the mouth of the Sacramento. There he persuaded two friendly Indians to act as his guides, and they led him to the mouth of the American River. On August 12, 1839, the valiant band landed on the river bank near the present city.

Captain Sutter was favorably impressed with the location at the confluence of the two rivers, and visioned a big city there some day. He determined to establish a White trading center. Indians inhabiting the territory now occupied by the City of Sacramento were decidedly hostile, and endeavored to draw away the explorers. Therefore, Captain Sutter and his men erected a strong adobe building near a lagoon, and later erected a high adobe wall around it in the form of a fort. Several small cannon, which Sutter had brought with him, were mounted in the corner turrets and did yeoman service in driving back the Indian hordes.

Today visitors to Sacramento can inspect this fort, the first White settlement in Northern California, for it has been restored through the splendid work of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West. Both exterior and interior are today as they were when Sutter occupied the fort. Pioneer relics are found within the various structures located on the inner side of the wall, while the main building in the center is virtually as it was left by Sutter. Grounds around the fort have been made into a beautiful park, with a lagoon. The cannon still command the surrounding section from the fort, erected on a knoll.

ESTABLISHES BIG RANCH.

Captain Sutter obtained from Governor Alvarado of California, then a Mexican territory, a large grant of land embracing the Sacramento district. Having demonstrated his supremacy over the Indians through the use of firearms, he then proceeded to make friends with the tribes, and soon had them working for him. He put several tracts under cultivation and established large herds of cattle.

Sutter's Fort rapidly became overcrowded with the increasing number of White settlers and the extensive trading operations. In 1844 Captain Sutter laid out the town of Sutterville, three miles south of the fort and on the present southern boundary of the city. Today a few adobe structures remain to tell of the town that flourished there briefly.

By 1847, Captain Sutter was a man of great wealth, employing several hundred men, and possessing 13,000 head of cattle, a vast acreage of wheat which yielded as high as 114 bushels to the acre, and a mercantile business surpassing any other on the Pacific Coast.

DISCOVERY OF GOLD.

Owing to the scarcity of sawed lumber, Captain Sutter, in the summer of 1847, sent James W. Marshall, one of his men, to scout for a location for a sawmill. Sixty miles from the fort, on the South Fork of the American River where Coloma, El Dorado County, is now located, Marshall selected the mill, the erection of which was started that fall. By January it was nearly completed.

January 24, 1848, while testing out the mill-race on the bank of the river, Marshall noted a pebble with a golden glow in the race and picked it up. He believed it was gold, and crude tests bore out his theory. He rode furiously into Sutterville with the nugget to inform his employer of his discovery. Sutter's tests of the nugget convinced him it was gold.

SACRAMENTO, EARLY IN 1849.
A View From the River Bank.

The day of the discovery marked a reversal in the fortunes of John A. Sutter, while it marked for the rest of the world the greatest gold discovery of history, a discovery that gave a great commonwealth to the world and later saved a nation. It was Sutter's and Marshall's plans to work their gold holdings quietly, but the news leaked out.

Overnight Sutter's employes left him for the "diggings." His stores were deserted, his cattle starved and wandered away for lack of attention, his wheat shriveled, unharvested, his sawmill proved a total loss, and his tannery was idle. In a year he was reduced to poverty.

NEW CITY IS BORN.

By fleet-mounted couriers and by crews of vessels the news of the new El Dorado was spread throughout the world. The gold districts became the mecca for tens of thousands, who braved the perils of the terrifying overland journey through an Indian-infested wilderness, or the equally dangerous crossing of the Isthmus of Panama, or the hazards of the sea voyage around Cape Horn to reach the land of their golden dreams. And so rich were the gravels, that from $40 to $1,800 per day was washed out with a pan by the miners in a single day.

A new city began to appear almost overnight, structures being hastily erected near the river, as the earliest gold-seeking hordes poured into the district via that stream, traveling in all manner of craft from San Francisco. Crews deserted their ships in the bay to rush to the diggings. Hotels, stores and saloons were built. Before the discovery of gold, there were not 150 persons living in what is now Sacramento.

Within three months after the news had reached the East, there were thousands, in rude shelters.

Captain William H. Warner of the United States Army made a survey of the new city in the fall of 1848. However, the checkerboard plan proposed by Captain Sutter, with its series of public plazas and parks, was adopted when the real construction of the community started. To his wisdom and foresight, Sacramento today owes its splendid wide residential streets and its magnificent park system.

Before closing the chapter of Captain Sutter and his fort—his later years formed a sad history of endeavoring to secure federal recompense for the ruining of his farm holdings and dissipation of his possessions—it is well to call attention to the fact that a unit of troops in the American occupation of California was formed at the fort, and that it was for a time the headquarters of General John Fremont. For his good work at that time, Sutter was later made a general of the national guard.

GROWTH OF SACRAMENTO.

By 1849, Sacramento was a flourishing city with several streets of hotels, stores, dancehalls and residences. A rather lawless spirit prevailed. In July, 1850, the better element decided that the time had arrived for an organized form of city government. A city council was formed, police powers established, and the city incorporated later in the fall.

Fifty stages a day left Sacramento for the gold diggings. The city was the outfitting point for the miners, no matter how far they might be going to wash the gravels. When the miners "cleaned up" their sluice boxes at the end of a long run, they came to Sacramento to spend their gold dust. As a result, all current forms of amusement existed in profusion. Dramatic troupes came clear from the Atlantic seaboard to perform for the miners, who threw bags of gold dust and nuggets onto the stage when especially pleased.

Swept away by both floods and fire, each time Sacramento rebuilt, better and larger. Three- and four-story buildings replaced the crude makeshift structures of the early days of the gold rush.

BIRTH OF TRANSPORTATION.

As Sacramento was the birthplace of American settlement in Northern California, it was also the birthplace of the first railroad in the West. In 1854 a railroad company was formed to construct a line between Sacramento and Folsom, twenty-two miles, and hired Theodore Judah as chief engineer. By 1856, the railroad was completed. Later it was extended towards "Hangtown," now Placerville, in El Dorado County.

Judah was a man of vision, and he early realized the necessity of a transcontinental railroad. He made a tentative survey for such a route and laid his plans before a group of capitalists in San Francisco, only to be ridiculed. But he was not to be deterred.

Early in 1862 an historic meeting was held on the second floor of a grocery store, then located at 52 K street. Four leading merchants of the community—Charles W. Crocker, Mark Hopkins, Collis Huntington and Leland Stanford—met with Judah and his friend, James Bailey, to listen to his plans for building a railroad from Sacramento to St. Jo. He convinced them of the feasibility of the project, and they pledged their fortunes to him. Land grants were obtained from Congress to the Central Pacific railroad for the construction of the road, and on February 22, 1863, the first spadeful of earth was turned at the foot of K street, on the levee. On May 10, 1869, at Promontory Point, Utah, Senator Stanford drove the golden spike that united the lines from the East and the West, and the transcontinental railroad was a reality.

Since 1854, Sacramento has been the Capital of California. The first capital in the city was the courthouse. The present State Capitol and its park are regarded as the most beautiful in the nation.

Having described how Sacramento was the birthplace of American settlement in interior California, and how modern transportation was given its first start in the West in this city, let us now consider the birth of a new Sacramento, an industrial Sacramento whose possibilities are just being glimpsed.

INDUSTRIAL ADVANTAGES.

Considered from a manufacturing standpoint, the pertinent viewpoint of today, probably no other Western city, or Eastern community for that matter, has so great a potential industrial future as Sacramento. No other community is more signally favored by location and environment, situated as it is on the fourth most important commercial river of the United States, and being the distributing and marketing center of the nation's most productive area. In addition to its natural waterway, plans are under way to build a deep water ship canal for ocean vessels to connect Sacramento with Suisun Bay.

Everything is found in Sacramento and its tributary territory, both natural and man-made, to appeal to industrial interests. The wonder of it is that the city has not long before this become the industrial metropolis of California. Today it is in the making.

SHIP CANAL PROJECT.

As the landing of ocean steamers at Sacramento's docks naturally ranks as the most important factor in the city's industrial development, we will first take up the ship canal project. For more than half a century Sacramento's men of vision have dreamed of the day when the products of the Sacramento Valley would be loaded directly on ocean-going ships at the docks of the Capital City, and numerous movements were launched to make this vision a reality.

Owing to the tortuous course of the river, plans of deepening and widening it were early abandoned, although recently Major U. S. Grant encountered and the expense will be amply justified by the future returns. He urges quick action on the project, so that the canal may be operating by 1930. He approves the Norboe plan of a waterway to the east of the river, and recommends that the main terminal harbor be placed six miles south of the city. With the port thus located, Grunsky says a ship canal approximately thirty miles long, thirty feet deep and one hundred fifty feet wide at the bottom, can be built for $15,957,490. Locating the port at the city proper will cost nearly $5,000,000 more, according to Grunsky. He says the government can be reasonably expected to maintain the canal's depth.

WOULD LOWER RATES.

In closing his report, Grunsky said: "The construction of a deep water canal to Sacramento, however, and the establishment of a deep water port at Sacramento, would not alone bring ocean-going vessels closer to the producers and consumers of water-borne freight, thereby reducing freight bills on shipments originating in or destined for points within the port's zone of influence, but it would also cause a lowering of rates of competing ports, thereby benefiting the entire great central valley and adjoining area. The interior deep water port would, moreover, stimulate agricultural, industrial and business activities. It would contribute materially to general prosperity, with accelerated increase in population and property values. In view of these direct and indirect benefits, the region in fair proximity to the canal and port would be warranted in carrying out the deep water navigation project."

The proposed Sacramento port district legislative bill includes all of Sacramento County and portions of six adjacent counties which will directly benefit. Grunsky estimates that about

SUTTER'S FORT, SACRAMENTO, AS IT APPEARS TODAY.

III of the army engineers outlined a tentative plan of locks and a number of cuts to straighten out some of the curves. It would be expensive and it is doubtful that a depth of thirty feet could ever be achieved by this method. More than ten years ago, the deep water canal committee of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce secured an exhaustive engineering survey of the project by the late Major Paul M. Norboe, then connected with the California State Engineering Department. Major Norboe advocated the construction of a thirty-mile canal to the east of the river, utilizing several deep sloughs and lakes, to connect Sacramento with the deep water of the San Joaquin River, east of where it empties into Suisun Bay.

C. E. GRUNSKY'S REPORT.

The world war and its aftermath caused the ship canal project to be shelved, but early last year it was revived by Chairman Herman Davis of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce's ship canal committee, and a successful campaign carried on to raise funds for the employment of a competent economic engineer to make a survey of the Sacramento Valley to determine the necessity for the canal. The sum of $11,000 was raised through contributions by the city, county and chamber, and C. E. Grunsky, noted consulting engineer of the West, was employed.

In a report submitted March 3, 1925, Grunsky strongly advocates the construction of the ship canal, saying that it is entirely feasible and desirable, that no engineering obstacles will be 450,000 tons of freight originating in the territory tributary to the proposed port could be handled annually via the canal.

Nineteen Northern California counties, embracing 25,692,800 acres and with a population estimated at 321,216, form the territory tributary to the ship canal and Sacramento port. In addition, it is estimated that there is a secondary tributary territory of three counties in Southern Oregon, with 10,696,320 acres and a population of 35,809, and eight counties in Northwestern Nevada, embracing 15,876,480 acres and 39,647 population. Combined, there is a territory of 52,265,600 acres or 81,665 square miles, and 396,672 population from which freight will originate for the ship canal.

SACRAMENTO RIVER DATA.

Theoretically, the Sacramento River is navigable from Collinsville, where it empties into Suisun Bay, to Red Bluff, Tehama County, a distance of 250.6 miles. But the channel has become so filled up that the head of navigation is now Colusa, 146.9 miles from the mouth. According to the 1920 federal census, the average annual value of farm products in the watershed counties of the river was $122,387,117, divided as follows: cereals, $52,327,248; other grains and seeds, $7,774,418; hay and forage, $20,107,242; vegetables, $5,611,832; fruits and nuts, $33,391,297; all other crops, $3,795,079. Since 1920, it is estimated that the annual value has increased by at least $15,000,000.

Governmental statistics show that the Sacramento River carries the richest river cargoes in the United States, the average value per ton being $88.75. On the other main streams, the ton values are as follows: Mississippi River, $78.15; San Joaquin, $77.60; Hudson, $75.80; Ohio, $31.90; Potomac, $17. It is also higher than the ton values of the cargoes received at the leading California ports, which are: San Francisco, $86.65; Oakland, $71.35; Los Angeles, $40.75; San Diego, $33.80.

During the ten-year period, 1910-1920, there were 9,620,958 tons of freight, valued at $591,780,371, transported on the Sacramento River, while during the same time 1,632,868 passengers were carried. The percentage increase in tonnage during the census period, 187 percent, led the nation, the nearest competitor being the San Joaquin River with an increase of 72 percent. During the past two years the river's cargoes have averaged nearly a million tons annually. At the present time, 265 vessels, with a combined tonnage of 13,310 tons, ply the stream.

Commercial fisheries also add to the industrial importance of the Sacramento River. It is estimated that the annual value of the fish caught in the stream, principally salmon and striped bass, is $2,500,000. This does not include private catches.

CITY'S NATURAL RESOURCES.

Of paramount importance, industrially, are the natural resources of a city and its tributary territory. Sacramento may be said to have every natural resource required by modern industry. For most lines of industry, it is a veritable paradise.

Sacramento has ample water for both domestic and industrial uses, supplied by the municipality at low cost from the Sacramento and American Rivers. The water is filtered and chlorinated in a new $3,000,000 filtration plant and high pressure is maintained. Its equable climate permits the operation of plants 365 days minerals, which form the basic raw materials of industry. Few of these deposits are yet developed, as there are no industries to utilize them. Mountains of highgrade iron ore are to be found a little farther to the north, although there is an immense deposit within sixty miles of the city, and a good grade of sub-bituminous coal is being developed about forty miles south of the city in Amador County. With the exception of salines, practically every mineral used in industry is found in commercial quantities in the city's tributary territory. Space does not permit listing these minerals.

Construction of the ship canal would undoubtedly result in smelters being erected near the city, which would provide many byproducts for industrial use. As the world's finest mineral paint deposits are found within 100 miles of the city, immense paint factories will eventually be built, as well as potteries, as extensive beds of finest pottery clays are available.

HYDRO-ELECTRIC POWER.

Sacramento is served by two large electric power companies, with transmission lines coming from immense hydro-electric plants in the high Sierras, and two gas companies, one of which is operating seven natural gas wells within the city. The second unit of one of the largest steam electric generating plants in the country, insuring uninterrupted power service in an emergency, was recently completed at a cost of more than a million dollars, by one of the power companies. Power and gas rates are low, and the average gas and electric bill for a six-room house is $4.50.

In addition, the city has created a public utility district, the Silver Creek power project, and proposes to erect its own municipal hydro-electric plant, sufficiently large to meet all future needs. Recently, what is said to be the largest gas storage tank in the West was completed in Sacramento.

in the year, if desired. The average summer temperature is 72 degrees, although the mercury passes 100 a few days in late summer, while the average winter temperature is 43 degrees. Seldom does the mercury drop below 32 degrees. The normal rainfall is 20 inches. Beautiful trees lining the residential streets insure coolness even on the hottest day.

There is ample ground for expansion. The city now contains 13.92 square miles within the incorporated area, but it can expand ten to fifteen miles both east and south. Across the American River to the north is the rapidly growing suburb of North Sacramento, while to the west, across the Sacramento, is West Sacramento. Numerous new industries have located in these suburbs recently.

ALL KINDS OF RAW MATERIALS.

Raw materials of nearly every class are found in almost limitless quantities within the tributary territory. Sacramento is the distribution center for a great inland agricultural empire, the annual farm products of which exceed, according to present estimates, $135,000,000 annually. Citrus fruits grow luxuriantly within the territory, the oranges maturing a month ahead of the southern crop. Within the territory, are the largest cattle and sheep ranches in the state, furnishing hides and wool.

Within 100 miles of the city are almost inexhaustible deposits of industrial and structural Sacramento is California's greatest clearing house of labor, particularly of seasonal workers. From here the labor needs of not only Northern California, but also Nevada and Oregon are filled. Both skilled and unskilled laborers flock to Sacramento when in search of employment, and industries have no difficulties in maintaining full forces. Owing to the fact that the immense canneries of the city provide seasonal work for the wives and daughters of workers, the best class of labor seeks permanent employment in Sacramento.

HUB OF TRANSPORTATION.

Few communities in the world can boast of the transportation facilities possessed by Sacramento. In fact, it is a hub of all forms of transportation. Two transcontinental railroads directly serve the community, while an inter-urban electric line affords connection with a third at Stockton. Three transcontinental routes are afforded by the Southern Pacific, which enters the city from the four points of the compass; the Shasta route, via the Northwest; the Ogden route, directly East, and the Southern route, via the Southwest.

In addition, Sacramento is served by a network of fast electric interurban trains reaching to Woodland, Marysville, Colusa, Oroville, Chico, Lodi, Stockton, Modesto, Escalon, Turlock and the bay cities. One hundred and sixty passenger trains arrive and leave Sacramento daily.

Sacramento is the center of motor stage systems reaching all parts of California, and extending north through Oregon and Washington. From a handsome union stage depot, 110 auto stages arrive and depart daily. There is now nearing completion a $25,000 union depot for Mention has already been made of the extensive transportation facilities and immense volume of traffic of the Sacramento River. Palatial river steamers carry hundreds of passengers daily between Sacramento and San Francisco, the trip requiring about twelve hours. Numerspace, of which the city owns 74,000. The city is completing the building of new wharves and modern warehouses at a cost of $250,000. A belt railroad serves the wharves and industries facing them. Across the river are other docks and warehouses, and between Sacramento and the mouth of the river are a great number of smaller wharves, landings, warehouses and canneries, built along the banks.

Finally, an airplane passenger service has been inaugurated between Sacramento and San Francisco, so that the city can justly be said to enjoy every transportation facility.

"CALIFORNIA RESORT WONDERLAND."

Known nationally as the "Gateway to California's Resort Wonderland," Sacramento possesses a unique distinction from a scenic point of view. Located itself scenically at the confluence of the Sacramento and American Rivers, with the snow-capped Sierras furnishing the horizon line to the east and north, Sacramento has within a day's auto ride more masterpieces of Mother Nature than any other large city in the United States. Paved highways radiating to all points of the compass lead the autoists to spots of entrancing beauty and sublime grandeur—Lake Tahoe, turquoise gem of the high Sierras; the Calaveras Grove of Giant Sequoias, "oldest of living things"; the Mother Lode, with its romance of '49, its historic structures and its great operating gold mines; the Feather River canyon, the fisherman's paradise; Lassen Volcanic National Park, with its ever menacing, smoking Mount Lassen, and Nature's weirdest display of the earth in the making; Mount Shasta, eternal snow-crowned sentinel of the Sacramento Valley; the gem lakes of Lake County; the strange petrified forest of Sonoma County, and, last but mightiest of all, Yosemite Valley, God's most artistic handiwork.

Can any other community offer such wonders in her back yard? Only the high spots have been mentioned. There are vistas of rare beauty to be glimpsed traveling the river highway along the top of the levee; quaint mining towns that give a faithful portrayal of the atmosphere and life of pioneer days, are within a forty-mile drive; model farms and mile after mile of perfectly kept orchards can be visited in a few hours' drive. And the city itself, with its tree-lined streets and numerous parks and playgrounds, and its two silver ribbons, to the north and to the west, viewed from the 237-foot height of the Capitol dome, offers a real picture of beauty.

CIVIC RESOURCES.

There are few cities which have more to offer the homeseeker, as well as the manufacturer, than Sacramento. No modern convenience is lacking, yet there is an historical atmosphere, a spirit of hospitality found elsewhere in few American communities. Today its population is estimated at 100,000. There is room for ten times that number.

Educators have said that Sacramento's school system is unexcelled in the United States. During the past ten years, $5,014,000 has been spent on the erection of twelve new schools, regarded as models by other communities, and the remodeling of three buildings. The erection of a junior college, to cost $550,000, has also started. The new Sacramento high-school building, costing $1,540,000, is said to have the most efficient equipment of any in the nation. There are three junior high-schools in addition to this senior high. In addition to the public schools, there are four parochial schools and several private institutions.

CULTURAL ATTRIBUTES.

Sacramento is fortunate in having the State Library, as well as a Carnegie Public Library, with 107,742 volumes. It also has one of the finest collections of paintings and statuary in America, the Crocker Art Gallery, which is open to the public. Here exhibits by noted artists are often held. Plans are being completed for the erection of a $750,000 municipal memorial auditorium. Firehouses in the residential districts have been built in the bungalow style.

Exceptional recreational advantages have been provided. In addition to Capitol Park, a world showplace with great varieties of trees, shrubs and flowers from all parts of the world and its memorial groves of trees from the famous battlegrounds of the Civil War, there are three large parks within the city proper. These are the William Land Park of 236 acres, with a nine-hole golf course; McKinley Park, with duck ponds, a zoo, a community playhouse and all kinds of athletic grounds; and Southside Park, with a lake sufficiently large for elaborate water pageants, wide, sweeping lawns shaded by trees, and grounds for various sports. Diagonally across the city extend a series of "plazas," handsome little parks occupying a block each.

NATIVE SONS' BUILDING, SACRAMENTO.

the numerous auto truck freight lines serving Sacramento, which relieve the freight congestion in the height of the fruit season. Sacramento is the hub of the state highway system, with splendid concrete roads extending out from the city in all directions.

ous lines of barges and smaller steamers are also operated.

Sacramento has excellent wharfage and warehouse facilities. There are now 4,734 linear feet of wharves, of which 1,850 are municipally owned, and 201,000 square feet of warehouse

Eight miles north of the city lies Del Paso Park, a municipal pleasure ground of 828 acres, with liveoak groves, paddocks of elk and deer, picnic and recreation grounds, and the municipal golf links with an artistic clubhouse. The Del Paso Country Club is nearby. It has a splendid golf course also.

Sacramento was the birthplace of American settlement in the northern end of the state, and one of its main tourist attractions is Sutter's Fort, erected in 1839 by General John A. Sutter as a protection against hostile Indians. It has been restored exactly as it appeared in those early days, and with its grounds occupies a two-block knoll. In it are historic pioneer relics.

MUNICIPAL ORCHESTRA.

Concerts are given regularly by the Municipal Symphony Orchestra of fifty-five instruments, and a large municipal chorus is being formed. There are numerous musical organizations, which bring world-famous artists to Sacramento each season. In the matter of luncheon clubs and civic organizations, Sacramento leads all communities of its size for attendance and membership. An organization that has attracted national attention is the Sacramento boys' band, which is in demand at all notable occasions, and is often heard over the radio. Plans are under way to erect a 500-watt broadcasting station on the top of a fourteen-story building.

In one phase of American civic life, Sacramento claims preeminence. This is its community spirit, so splendidly exemplified in "The Days of '49" celebration in 1922, when the entire citizenry doffed the clothes and manners of the present age for those of the pioneer days, its men even growing whiskers over a period of six weeks to insure the proper '49 atmosphere.

BIG BUILDING PROGRAM.

For the past two years, Sacramento has averaged more than 100 new homes every month. During 1924, there were built 1,216 new residences at a cost of $4,792,976 in the city. In two years, twenty new residence subdivisions have been opened up, and virtually all lots sold and built on.

Great as were the building operations in Sacramento last year, totaling 3,314 permits valued at $7,666,668, the present year promises to double it. Already under way, contracted for and being planned, are new structures exceeding $13,500,000 in value. No city anywhere near Sacramento's size has such a building program for 1925.

A comprehensive industrial survey of Sacramento and vicinity has just been completed. It will enable the industrial bureau of the Sacramento Chamber of Commerce to furnish all the necessary data to manufacturers contemplating locating in this part of California. It demonstrates what industries can be operated successfully in Sacramento, as well as those for which conditions are not suitable.

INDUSTRIAL OPPORTUNITIES.

Until the survey was completed, it was difficult to say exactly what lines of industry would profit by locating in Sacramento. Some needs of industries are self-evident, however, and will be discussed generally.

With the ever-increasing acreage being planted to fruits and vegetables in the territory tributary to Sacramento, there is need for additional canneries, and especially for plants to utilize the culls in making fruit juices and jellies. A marmalade factory could make good use of the orange culls from the Fair Oaks and Orangevale districts. Meat packers would also find Sacramento an advantageous location, as would tanneries and shoe and leather goods manufacturers. Vast quantities of wool are exported from the Sacramento Valley, which could well be utilized in cloth plants in the Capital City. With thousands of acres being planted to cotton, textile manufacturers will find exceptional opportunities in Sacramento.

Perhaps the greatest advantages are offered to the industries utilizing raw mineral materials, owing to the vast deposits within easy shipping distance of the city. Half a score of potteries could be operated profitably in the vicinity of Sacramento, while the opportunities for paint manufacture are unlimited. Every mineral used in paper making is adjacent to the city, and the fir forests offer pulp in immense quantities.

It will be only a short time until the development of the iron ore deposits in Northern California is undertaken, probably through the adoption of the United States Bureau of Mines' process of making a sponge iron with lowgrade fuel, and then completing the process in an electric furnace, as no coking coal has yet been found in California. Extensive copper mines and deposits would provide at lower cost than in Eastern manufacturing centers the raw material for copper fabricators. Large lowgrade asbestos deposits are found within sixty miles of Sacramento, affording material for a wide variety of products.

A cursory survey of existing conditions indicates that plants making auto accessories, electrical apparatus, farm implements, tractor parts, river craft, canning equipment and home furnishings would find Sacramento a most profitable field. Assembling plants for both automobiles and tractors would succeed, particularly after the ship canal is built. There is an urgent need for one or two fully equipped steel casting plants at the present time. Firms manufacturing "package goods" of fruits and nuts could also operate profitably in Sacramento.

It is only necessary for one to spend a few days in Sacramento to realize that a real industrial center is in the making. Nothing is lacking. All that is needed is manufacturers with vision and capital. It is estimated conservatively that raw materials available in the Sacramento territory will maintain plants employing a million workers. "Industrial Sacramento" is no longer merely a vision. It is fast becoming a reality.

SACRAMENTO NATIVE SONS

WILL INVADE SAN FRANCISCO.

Sacramento—The Sacramento City Parlors of Native Sons—Sacramento No. 3, Sunset No. 26 and Sutter Fort No. 241—will make a fine showing in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant. The marchers will appear in a unique uniform, led by the Native Sons' drum-corps. Accompanying will be a beautiful float.

Headquarters for the Sacramento contingent and their friends will be at the St. Francis hotel. The quarters will be open continuously from Tuesday evening to 9 o'clock Wednesday evening. From 2 to 5 p. m. Wednesday, Admission Day, dancing will be in order and refreshments will be served.

NEW WORLD SEAPORT-STOCKTON

NEW ERA IN HISTORY SAN JOAQUIN METROPOLIS DAWNS

A. S. Dudley

(SECRETARY-MANAGER STOCKTON CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

A NEW WORLD SEAPORT! THAT IS the fifty-year dream of Stockton, San Joaquin County, California—a dream which now seems about to come true. Recently $3,000,000 was voted by the city towards improvement of the present San Joaquin River channel connecting with San Francisco Bay.

The plans, approved by the United States Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors, provide for a depth of 26 feet and a bottom width of 100 feet, capable of accommodating 90 percent of the vessels entering the Golden Gate.

With the aid of the Federal Government, Stockton expects soon to achieve her ambition. It is confidently predicted the population of the city will double within five years after the completion of this great project.

Thus will dawn a new era in the colorful history of Stockton. Although founded before the discovery of gold, it did not spring into prominence until 1849, when it became an important outfitting point for miners on their way to the Mother Lode in the nearby Sierras.

History reveals that the territory surrounding Stockton was originally inhabited by a tribe of Indians known as the Yachicumened. Less than 100 years ago these aborigines lived in the forest primeval around what is today Stockton. Their crude, one-room huts were made by fastening long poles together with grass and covering the top and sides with tules which grew along the river. Adobe mud provided protection from winter rains.

The first United States citizen to enter the "Valle de los Tulares" (Valley of the Tules) was the famous fur trader and trapper, Jedediah Smith. Smith and his party visited the valley in the spring of 1825 and found fur-bearing animals in abundance. While on a similar mission two years later, the Smith party was attacked and only Smith and one companion managed to escape. It was their report of the abundance of fur-bearing animals that brought Hudson Bay representatives into the region around Stockton in 1828. These traders located at French Camp, near Stockton, and each year carried their catch back into the northland.

In the year 1841, Captain Charles M. Weber, a naturalized American citizen, while on his way from San Jose to Sutter's Fort, passed through the Stockton territory. Immediately he recognized the possibilities of developing the country to serve as a shipping point for the products of the valley. He also saw good grazing land for the cattle that he was raising in the region surrounding San Jose and realized how easily their hides and the tallow could be shipped direct by water to San Francisco.

Only citizens of Mexico were at this time able to obtain grants of land in California. Accordingly, in 1843 Weber arranged to acquire the grant of land surrounding Stockton through his partner, William Gulnac, a citizen of Mexico. Gulnac petitioned the Mexican governor, Micheltorena, for the land, and in 1844 received a grant of 48,747 acres of some of the richest land in California. As Gulnac was a worthless sort, Weber dissolved the partnership the following year. Weber made peace with the local tribe of Indians and from that time onward the White man and these Indians had no conflicts.

From native oak trees, the first cabins were built. They were hardly finished when a severe epidemic of smallpox broke out and the White settlers returned to San Jose, leaving a man named Lindsay to care for the stock. Later a visiting tribe of Indians raided the settlement, driving off the stock and killing Lindsay.

Far from being discouraged, Weber started another settlement in 1847 and this time was his new friend, and named the town Stockton.

News of the discovery of gold in California at Coloma, El Dorado County, was brought to Stockton on March 15, 1848. The settlers were anxious to leave at once for the goldfields, but Weber reasoned with them, telling them that if gold had been found on the American River there was every probability that the rivers south of the American also contained the precious metal. Subsequently he organized the Stockton Gold Mining Company, which proved very successful and confirmed his contention.

By this time news of the discovery of gold had been carried to the East and hordes of adventurers began to arrive at San Francisco, only to find that the goldfields were two hundred miles inland. The easiest route was by water from San Francisco to Stockton, where miners could buy their supplies and leave for the mines.

Stockton became a great tent city, almost overnight. The miners had no time to build houses, but simply set up their tents for a day or two and then moved on. In December 1849 a fire broke out in a restaurant near the river, and in less than an hour the tent city was in ashes. After another destructive fire, two years later, a more substantial type of construction was used.

Probably never in the history of business in Stockton was trade as profitable as it was in the years following the discovery of gold. The fortunes made in business were equal in many cases to those made in the mines. In April, 1850, more than three thousand persons purchased their supplies in Stockton on their way to the mines.

The period from 1850 to 1856 was one of lawlessness. Crime was prevalent, the courts were corrupt, and in every way Stockton upheld the reputation of a frontier community.

A census, the first to be taken, made in 1853, showed the following results: White males, 3,532; White females, 387; blacks, both sexes, 81; Indians, 379; total, 5,029.

Plans for an incorporation were adopted at a meeting held on June 25, 1850, and the first mayor elected on August 1st of that year. The first public-school was started in 1852 from money raised by public subscription. Great difficulty was experienced in securing competent teachers and many of those that were secured were later discharged because of incompetence.

Mail from the East was received on the average of once a month by means of the famous pony express. Those receiving letters were glad to pay the express rider $1.50 for the service and they also received a like amount for each newspaper sold, although the copy might be a month or more old.

Following the period of lawlessness, it is natural that there should be considerable difficulty in determining the titles to all property. As a result, the activities of the land-grabbers, or squatters, became pronounced.

During the Civil War, Stockton, in common with the rest of California, played no important part in the actual fighting, but much sentiment was displayed on both sides.

The first overland railroad was constructed to the city in 1869, being an extension of the Central Pacific line from Sacramento. The arrival of the first train was an occasion of great rejoicnot doomed to failure. At first the town was known as Weber's Settlement, or French Camp. Captain Weber, himself, called it "Tuleberg" for a time, because of the tules that grew along the river.

While in the southern part of the state, during the Mexican War, however, he became acquainted with Commodore Stockton, whose interest in the settlement and promises of aid from Washington built up a strong friendship between the two men. Then it was that Weber resolved his life's work should bear the name of ing, for the citizens realized that they were once more in close touch with the remainder of the country.

Stockton stands as a permanent monument to the foresight of Captain Weber. It was his generosity that provided the city with its present parks and its waterfront. It was his interest that made it possible for the early settlers to get implements, stock, and even titles to their land.

His vision was responsible for a survey of the city in 1849 and he laid it out in checkerboard style, in blocks measuring 300 feet square. The north and south streets were given a width of eighty feet and those running east and west sixty feet.

Unlike most California cities, the central dis-

This position was still further strengthened when the Western Pacific built its line into California, in the year 1909, placing Stockton in the unique position of being the only city in the interior of the state on the line of three great transcontinental railroad systems.

The growth of Stockton has been steady and substantial. The people pride themselves that it has never experienced a boom. From the small mining camp it developed into a town and from a town gradually into a city. Just how substantial the increase in population has been is shown in the government census figures. From 10,282 in the year 1880, it jumped to 14,424 in 1890. During the next decade it advanced to 17,506, and then to 23,253 in 1910.

The greatest period of growth occurred between 1910 and 1920, for when the census was taken in the latter year 49,296 people were found living within the corporate limits of the community. The present estimate is 55,000.

At this time a channel, having a minimum depth of nine feet at all times, is maintained by the Federal government from Stockton to Suisun Bay. With such facilities, a commerce totaling over 700,000 tons of freight, valued at approximately $40,000,000 annually, has been developed. In addition to this business some 165,000 passengers are carried.

The completion of the deep ship channel is not expected to seriously affect the present commerce. There is some tonnage which is now transferred to sea-going vessels at San Francisco Bay points that will likely move without transfer when the project is completed, but this will be more than offset by the development that will unquestionably follow the carrying out of the plan.

Important as the deep water issue is, it is but a part of the program which Stockton has either planned or which is under way at present. In all, the community is expending $7,000,000 in betterments of various kinds, there never having been a time when more public work was under way in the city.

No less important in this development program is the Calaveras flood control measure, for which funds have been provided and on which work is expected to start in the near future. This project has been designed for the future protection of Stockton against floodwaters of the Calaveras River watershed by the construction of a dam costing $1,560,000.

A modern fire alarm system is being installed at a cost of more than $100,000, which, together with additions in equipment, will place the Stockton Fire Department in a high state of efficiency. The total cost of the equipment and alarm system will be $346,000. Extensive improvements are being carried out in the park system, at a cost of $137,900. When completed, Stockton will have unequalled recreational facilities, every part of the city being adjacent to some playground.

Within a few months a Memorial Auditorium, having a seating capacity of 5,000, will be available for all kinds of public gatherings. This structure, together with the site, represents an expenditure of $600,000, and few cities, regardless of size, will be able to point to a more handsome and commodious auditorium than will Stockton upon its completion.

Construction has also started on a new city hall, located adjacent to the auditorium, and representing a similar expenditure. The same tract of Stockton has no lettered or numbered streets. Main street and Center street are, respectively, the dividing lines for the north and south, and east and west streets. Nearly all of the streets of Stockton within the two-mile city limits were named or approved by Captain Weber. He admired plants and flowers, and seldom was seen without a buttonhole bouquet. As a result, many of the street names reflect this interest, such as Oak, Park, Flora, Poplar, Acacia, etc.

With the construction of the San Joaquin Valley Railroad, in 1896, Stockton's transportation facilities were greatly improved. This road, which shortly thereafter became part of the Santa Fe system, gave Stockton a direct entrance into the heart of the San Joaquin Valley.

type of architecture will be carried out, the two buildings forming an important nucleus of the proposed civic center. In the same group will be located the central fire alarm station, of fire-proof construction. Another half-million dollars is being expended for street improvements, sewers and bridges. Stockton, being one of the older communities of the state, has found it necessary to replace many of the original pavements, necessitating large expenditures.

All of these things demonstrate the faith that the citizens have in their community, for in a majority of instances such improvements have meant the issuance of bonds. By their progressive spirit they have shown that they believe in the future of their city and are willing to back that belief with cash. Not only by such methods, but by other means, Stockton has been making real forward steps that are fast placing it in the metropolitan class. However, municipal improvements indicate that the increased population is to be properly cared for.

Many changes have occurred in the appearance of the Stockton business district within the past twelve months. In fact, the building permit total for that period has been one of the largest in the history of the city. For the year 1925 a building total of approximately $5,000,000 is expected to be established. The principal changes in the skyline have been the erection of a number of new mercantile buildings. Hotel accommodations have been increased by the addition of new structures, and in every way the growth of Stockton has been uniform.

With the growth of Stockton there has been an increasing demand for space in the postoffice building. Year after year the recommendations of the postal inspectors have gone unheeded in Washington and the postal employees have been handicapped for room. Now, the Treasury Department has adopted the plan of providing a sufficient amount of floor space by constructing the addition in units, the first of which has been completed. It is the announced intention of the department to spend $200,000 in such improvements until the Stockton office is capable of handling the business that the larger community requires and deserves.

From the foregoing, it may be seen that Stockton is experiencing a period of remarkable development. Should any doubt remain, it can quickly be dispelled by producing the figures of bank clearings, building permits and postal receipts. All of these indices are showing substantial increases over former years, and they furnish undisputed evidence of growth.

Probably more gratifying than anything else, is the spirit of co-operation that has been developed by the citizens. They are working together as never before, firmly convinced of the future possibilities and determined that through their concerted effort Stockton is to become one of the great cities of California.

STOCKTON

(Written in 1854, and Signed "S.H.S.")

In the tules of the lowlands,
Bordering the San Joaquin,

With its bridges, mills and islands,
Lakes around and lakes between,
Stockton looms upon the vision,
With her cupolas and vanes,
And the prestige of position
As the city of the plains.

With her villas neat and pretty,
Hemming in the busy mart—
Of the system now the city
Seems the great commercial heart;
Arteries in all directions
Life unto the hills convey,
Men of fair and all complexions
Strive and labor night and day.

From the golden mountains daily
Comes the ore beladen team;
While her port with colors gaily
Speak the commerce of the stream;
And her summer fields are teeming
With the golden fruit and grains.
Thus in hopeful promise beaming,
Blooms the city of the plains.

"The Native Sons, in going forward with their policy of establishing monuments of California history and restoring some of the historic buildings of the olden times, are doing a public service that will be appreciated more and more as the years go by.

"California's present assets and opportunities have come so swiftly, and have been so widely exploited, that the average Californian, as well as the average visitor, is apt to forget how romantic and colorful the past has been. Yet the memories of that past are worth preserving, and the landmarks of early days are worth saving. The Native Sons have done much to make us realize that."—Editorial, San Diego "Union."

HOW REDWOOD CITY GOT THAT WAY

(SECRETARY REDWOOD CITY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

THERE IS A TWOFOLD PURPOSE FOR this article: First, it will attempt to tell the reader how Redwood City became the county seat of San Mateo County, and second, it will try to show how Redwood City has prospered and why its prospects for a golden future are brighter than ever.

The incidents attending the final selection of Redwood City as a county seat are amusing now, and they throw a spotlight upon the "good old days" when "a feller could trust a friend," as Jim Bridger, the famous scout, is credited with having remarked. A "History of San Mateo County," printed in 1878, is authority for the information herewith.

In 1856 a bill was passed by the State Legislature which established San Mateo County. It provided that "the seat of justice shall be at such place as may be determined by the qualified electors of the county at the election for county officers." At an unprecedented election in May, 1856, Belmont, a town a few miles north of Redwood City, was declared the county seat. The county court, with Judge Benjamin F. Fox presiding, was there convened and contest number one of a series was opened, when the case of Askerson vs. Mulligan was called. This case was brought to test the legality of the May election by impeaching the returns of several precincts.

After a full hearing of the case and after discarding the returns from three precincts, Redwood City was declared the county seat and the archives of the county government were removed from Belmont to that place. The store of J. V. Diller became the first court house in Redwood City. Diller was paid a rental of $40 per month by the Board of Supervisors. At a meeting of the supervisors on July 26, 1856, a special tax of 50 cents on the $100 was levied for the purpose of building a jail and court house.

But the subject of the removal of the county seat was not to die easily. In May, 1861, a bill passed the Legislature which submitted to the voters of San Mateo County the privilege of voting on the matter again. In pursuance of this act the election took place and resulted as follows: Redwood City, 656; San Mateo Villa, 364; San Mateo, 11; Belmont, 1.

All went well for twelve years, when Alvinza Hayward conveyed to the Board of Supervisors two lots in Oak Lawn Villa, San Mateo, on the condition that a court house and jail be erected thereon within two years. Accordingly, the supervisors called another election for December 9, 1873. Redwood City received 703 votes and San Mateo 693. Instead of determining the question, this election had the effect of stimulating the partisans of San Mateo to renew the contest.

Within five months, J. E. Butler of San Mateo presented a petition to the supervisors asking that another election be ordered. A majority of the board was in favor of this movement, and the wish was granted. The day of the election was fixed for June 13, 1874. At this election, Redwood City received 690 votes and San Mateo 956.

But the petition on which the election was based had been declared illegal by C. N. Fox, on the ground that there were "irregularities" in it. There was a great deal of legal argument over this. Finally an order was made allowing fourteen issues of fact to be tried. Colonel J. P. Hoge was made a referee. He commenced hearing testimony on the 24th of September, and on the 24th of February, 1875, the case was decided in favor of Redwood City. Thus again Redwood City was a victor in this series of memorable contests.

Redwood City is still the county seat, but it has many other claims to distinction. Not only is it on the justly famous San Francisco Peninsula, but it is also located in one of the better seaport and industrial center. It is already an ideal homesite.

Then there is Dumbarton bridge. This huge span, which is being constructed across the bay from Redwood City to the Alameda County shore, will be finished this fall, it is expected. Completion of this bridge, which will bring the East Bay section and the interior valleys of California in close touch with the San Francisco Peninsula, will mark the realization of a dream of ten years ago, when the agitation for such a structure first started. In the big task to get the bridge, Redwood City has had a part of which it is justly proud.

Close in the civic pride of Redwood City is its magnificent Sequoia Union high-school. The word "magnificent" is frequently misused, but a better one could not be found to describe this institution. The delicately tinted buildings of Spanish renaissance style of architecture are set in the midst of beautiful trees and shrubs which cover a forty-acre campus. The school was completed at a cost of $573,000 in January, 1924, after a year of continuous building. The estate on which the school stands was purchased for $80,000. The three stucco buildings were constructed and equipped for $450,000, and the mechanical arts building was remodeled at a cost of $10,000. Landscaping, athletic fields, roadways, gates and water systems are improvements which cost $35,000. The auditorium to the north of the main building is one of the largest theaters with modern equipment on the peninsula. It has a seating capacity of one thousand, with room for two hundred more in the arcades.

To the right of the front gate to the high-school stands the old "chained oak," famous in California history as a landmark along El Camino Real in the early days. This old tree was partially broken by storm. Chains were put around it and fastened to another tree, so that the ancient oak would remain upright. This tree was a sizeable youngster when they were playing checkers with the county seat. It has seen a remarkable development in the intervening years. It is now witnessing new changes for the better, and it will see even greater things in the not-far-distant future.

The educational needs of the Redwood City school district, of which Roy W. Cloud, Historiographer of the Grand Parlor N.S.G.W. is the superintendent, are cared for by a force of thirty regular teachers, two special instructors and one kindergarten teacher. Citizenship training is given the first place in importance. It is taught in connection with moral training and current events. The boys and girls early learn that they are part of a school world where each one has his rights. They learn to respect the rights of others and recognize the authority of the teacher. They are taught to discuss world and local events so that they may have an intelligent understanding of every-day problems.

Redwood City homes are in demand. This is best shown by the fact that up to the present date this year there has been an average of one dwelling house per day started in the city. The building permits for 1924 totaled $1,103,441, while the first quarter of 1925 showed a total of $315,379, an increase of $39,500 over the same period last year. Practically all of the permits issued have been for homes.

parts of this region. The city's slogan is: "By Government Test, Our Climate is Best!" That means much to the homeseeker and to the manufacturer.

Redwood City is on the lower arm of San Francisco Bay. Time was when lumber and grain were loaded on boats and sent to markets in large quantities. For various reasons, this traffic dwindled, but now there is a well-defined movement to develop Redwood Harbor. Experts have been consulted, and they are unanimous in declaring that it is possible to make Redwood City "tremendously" important as a would remain upright. This tree was a sizeable youngster when they were playing checkers with the county seat. It has seen a remarkable development in the intervening years. It is now witnessing new changes for the better, and it will see even greater things in the not-far-distant future.

ADMISSION DAY, THE TWENTY-fifth anniversary of California's entrance into the Sisterhood of States, was celebrated September 9, 1875, by military parades in San Francisco and Sacramento and by reunions of the Pioneers.

The Native Sons of San Francisco received their first Admission Day mention, being presented by a delegation of native daughters with a beautiful banner. Afterwards they were addressed by R. Guy McClellan.

Lotta Crabtree, called the "California Nugget," made her gift of a fountain, at the intersection of Market and Geary streets, to the City of San Francisco. It cost $9,000. Harry Edwards made the presentation address to a crowd that blocked Market-street traffic. The first drink from the fountain was given to Mrs. Vernon, Lotta's aunt, and the next to Mayor Otis.

The election September 1 resulted in a Democratic sweep. For governor, William Irwin, Democrat, received 61,070 votes; Timothy G. Phelps, Republican, 31,322, and General John Bidwell, Independent, 29,752. The Independent party, referred to as the "Dolly Vardens," now faded away.

Among the future political geniuses making their debut in this election was Creed Haymond, who was elected to the State Senate on the Independent ticket in Sacramento County by a plurality of ten. In Yolo County, Dan M. Burns, also an Independent, was elected county clerk.

The annual State Fair opened in Sacramento, September 15. At its commencement, the Capital City was "wide open," and those who desired to become separated from their money had every opportunity to do so. The gala day was the 22nd, when General Phil Sheridan was the honor-guest.

San Francisco gradually emerged from the financial clouds that hovered around following the closing of the doors of the Bank of California and the aspect grew brighter as the month passed on. A number of "Napoleons of Finance" began to appear, most of whom had been fortunate investors in the bonanza stocks and were anxious to help the situation, but the man of the hour appeared in "Lucky" Baldwin. He was in New York when the bank failed and had $1,700,000 on deposit, assets acquired from his clean-up of mining stocks. He returned and at once became an investor in the institution. September 25 the bank was officially reorganized. It was announced it would reopen its doors in a few days with capital a million in excess of its liabilities and would pay off in full all indebtedness. This was said to have been brought about by the action of seven millionaires, who put up the necessary capital to do it with.

SITE CHOSEN FOR LICK OBSERVATORY.

A mammoth grapevine, planted by Indians half a century before, was reported found in the chaparral on Santa Cruz Creek in the San Rafael Mountains of Santa Barbara County. Another mammoth grapevine was reported as growing at Carpinteria, Santa Barbara County. It was 14 inches in diameter three feet above the ground and 18 inches at the ground. It covered a space of 10,000 square feet and bore an average of 7,500 bunch of grapes, nearly 12,000 pounds in weight. It was planted by Donna Marcelina de Dominguez sixty years previous to commemorate the birth of a child.

The Rising Sun mine near Colfax, Placer County, came to the front as a producer this month. Out of 422 tons of rock crushed, $17,500 was obtained.

The Woodside mine at Georgetown, El Dorado County, struck a vein of quartz that had more gold than rock in it and was reported to be fabulously rich.

A cinnabar ledge was found in the vicinity of Gilroy Hot Springs, Santa Clara County, by James Reynolds.

Owners of the Stewart mine near Middle Bar, on the Mokelumne River in Amador County, struck a rich streak of quartz and took out $15,000 worth of gold in a week.

A slab of quartz from the Green mine near Auburn, Placer County, was on exhibition. It was two feet square and had a streak of gold through it four inches wide. Its estimated value was $1,500.

Mount Hamilton, twenty miles from San Jose and 4,448 feet in elevation, was selected by James Lick as the site of the observatory which he gave $800,000 to establish.

The Southern Pacific, building a railroad track up the west side of the Sacramento Valley from Woodland, Yolo County, was eight miles north of there September 1.

A new ferryboat, the "Oakland," considered commodious and elegant, went into service September 4 between San Francisco and Oakland. It was the old steamer "Chrysopolis" made over.

On the Gerke ranch in Tehama County, September 12, a large crowd gathered at a sale of acreage, $125,000 worth of which was disposed of.

Over 1,000 acres near Santa Barbara were planted to beans; it was considered remarkable.

September 7 was considered a field day for San Francisco-Oakland ferry trade. Both ways, 11,600 passengers—a record number—were carried.

Antelope were reported abundant in Kern County. Several droves were feeding in the valleys, but the animals were so wild as to be unapproachable.

A steer at Klamath Falls, Siskiyou County, was 19 hands high, 20 feet from nose to tail, and weighed 5,000 pounds. It was to be taken to the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia.

With the aid of George Wallace, a 12-year-old lad, a twenty-seven-pound badger was butted to death by a billygoat near San Rafael, Marin County.

"KIDS" PLAY BEAN POKER.

At a September 7 meeting the Academy of Sciences, in San Francisco, was shown specimens of the California pitcher plant from the Mount Shasta region, where it grew in abundance. One, being cut open, revealed thirty-eight flies, seventeen grasshoppers and a few dragonflies imprisoned in it.

The Intrepid and Silver Star clubs played the final game of baseball for the championship of Yuba County at Marysville, September 12. The Intrepids won by 20 to 11.

An earthquake shock, severe enough to disturb the people of Siskiyou and Trinity Counties, occurred September 30 at 4 a. m.

John Whalen and Joseph Lindsay, young lawyers practicing in San Francisco, quarreled and proceeded to Lake Merced to fight a duel. The pistols were loaded with blank cartridges by their friends and, after firing at each other several times, they concluded that their bad marksmanship made all things even and they shook hands.

A bean-poker game in Grass Valley, Nevada County, the afternoon of election day and to continue until the next day in order to keep in touch with the election returns, had four pioneers as players whose combined ages amounted to 306 years. The "kid" of the quartette was 73.

A bear killed on Eel River had fastened to its paw a chignon with a dozen hairpins in it. It did not represent a tragedy, but a loss by a woman riding in a wagon a month previous. The bear was in a famished condition, probably being too scared to eat since becoming entangled in the mesh.

The anniversary of Mexican independence was celebrated September 16 in Los Angeles in an enthusiastic manner by the Mexican residents there. The town was illuminated in the evening and fun, frolic and fireworks held sway. Pio Quinto Davila was orator of the day, aided by Don Juan Lopez. J. J. Carillo was grand marshal, with fourteen aids. The Los Angeles fire department and several thousand Mexicans of both sexes, many of them mounted, were in the parade.

A railroad man while bathing in Whitewater Creek, thirty miles east of San Bernardino, found in the stream, under running water, a peculiar slate-colored stone that is only found in a ledge in British Columbia and from which the Indians there made pipes. It was six inches in diameter, shaped like a saucer, and decorated with engraved leaves and vines with lines run across the disk. It was highly polished and was a relic of an ancient race who must have brought it from the far north.

HOW REDWOOD

San Mateo County, of which Redwood City is the county seat, is efficiently governed by a set of public officials whose record shows they are at all times working for the best interests of the county. With its varied interests, such as a big home section, manufacturing districts, a mountain district and a coast and agricultural section, San Mateo presents a greater variety of problems of government than most of the state's other counties.

The county officials and departments are housed in a fine set of buildings at Redwood City. In addition to the elected officials there is a county welfare department which ministers to the needs of those in need of aid, and it has done much to make happier the lot of fatherless children, of the sick and of those upon whom Fortune has temporarily frowned.

The mountains of San Mateo County offer many attractions for the summer vacationist, construction difficulties, industries find in Redwood City a location equal to any around San Francisco Bay and for this reason it now ranks high among the bay cities in the number of its industries and the size of its payrolls. Because of the advantages enumerated a number of other big factories are planning to locate here.

NATIVE SONS' SAN MATEO COUNTY MOUNTAIN LODGE DEDICATED.

Redwood City—The beautiful new Bear lodge in the redwood park recently purchased by Redwood Parlor No. 66 N.S.G.W., in the Tunitas Mountains near Woodside, San Mateo County, was dedicated August 16. Over 200 persons, including the Native Sons and Native Daughters and their families, attended the impressive and interesting ceremony. Fletcher A. Cutler, Grand President of the Native Sons, delivered the dedicatory address, and among the other prominent speakers were Grand Trustee Charles L. Dodge of Martinez, Grand Secretary John T. Regan of San Francisco, Grand Trustee Charles Thompson of Santa Clara and Grand Trustee John T. Newell of Los Angeles.

ARLINGTON ROAD, REDWOOD CITY.

the week-end picnicker, and those in search of real nature. There is some cleared land in the La Honda Canyon on which fine apples are grown. Fine highways lead from La Honda to the coast section and nearby beauty spots.

Offering every advantage as a "home center," Redwood City also stands forth as an industrial center, the same factors that make it a fine home city making it attractive to industries—location, transportation and home life worth while. The industrial heads know that good home surroundings make for contented workmen and greater efficiency, and that is why they are coming to Redwood City in increasing numbers.

With both rail and water transportation to bring in the raw materials and to carry the finished product to the markets of the world, and with good sites which offer little in the way of

Luncheon was served by the Native Sons, and this was followed by dancing in the lodge. A happy feature of the day was the presentation of a four-piece hickory porch set to the Native Sons for their lodge by the members of Bonita Parlor No. 10 Native Daughters. The gift was accepted by A. S. Liguori, secretary of Redwood Parlor.

Redwood Park, where the Bear lodge is located, consists of 150 acres, and the tract was purchased by Redwood Parlor as a recreation place for its members and their families. Members of the Parlor have been given an opportunity to purchase sites in the park, and a number of them have already made their selections.

August 15 was the fortieth anniversary of the institution of Redwood Parlor, and the event was made a part of the following day's festivities. The three surviving charter members are W. J. Plump, J. F. Johnston and H. W. Schoberg. The latter recently retired as treasurer of the Parlor after thirty-nine years of service. In the San Francisco Admission Day pageant September 9, Redwood Parlor will depict the Indian period of California's history.

MILLIONS INVOLVED.

Redwood City—At a meeting August 17 of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors, a franchise was granted to a representative of Eastern capitalists to construct a bridge across San Francisco Bay between Little Coyote Point, opposite San Mateo, and a point on the Alameda County shore opposite Hayward.

The project will involve the expenditure of between $10,000,000 and $12,000,000, and will require three years to complete.

Costly Government—To run the California State Government for the fiscal year ended June 30, according to the annual report of State Controller Ray L. Riley, cost the taxpayers $73,796,620.91, an increase, compared with the previous fiscal year, of $10,012,270.04.

"BUSYBODIES" RAPPED

"BEFORE THE GRINGO CAME," SAID Senator James D. Phelan in an address before the San Francisco Diamond Jubilee Celebration Committee, August 13, "the Spaniards were perfectly happy. They loved their fiestas and their dancing. They even planted the grape upon the hillside and they were not restricted by imported ideas of people who were not in sympathy with the spirit of the West."

"California is near the hearts of all the other states because she has been peopled by all the other states. If we do justice to ourselves in this generation, we will make the occasion worthy of the memory of posterity."

The remarks were brought forth because "busybodies" are attempting to close many of the places of amusement. Continuing, Senator Phelan said: "San Francisco has always had a reputation for hospitality and people flocked here of old to have a good time. Now, anything that would divest San Francisco of that character is a very distinct loss."

"There are busybodies, even on the eve of the diamond jubilee festival, who are trying to deprive us of the innocent purposes of festivity by closing places of delightful resort. In the name of the jubilee I protest!"

"You and I should not be deprived of the right to go, after the theater, to a resort where we may enjoy music and dancing, which have not, as yet, been forbidden us. As it is, we are going to have to make the very streets of our city our dance halls, under the shadow of the City Hall, which still preserves some authority."

TO INVADE CAPITAL CITY.

Old Spain will lay siege to the State Capital of American California, September 5. A horde of dons and donas of San Francisco will invade Sacramento on that day and run riot over the State Fair grounds, assist in the opening of the 1925 State Fair and invite Northern California to the diamond jubilee of the state which will open in San Francisco the same day.

Plans have been perfected for an excursion of 300 costumed men and women to Sacramento. Representatives of all the principal social, civic and service organizations will join the delegation which, headed by Mayor James Rolph Jr., will depart for the Capital City at 8 a. m. September 5. The return trip will be made Saturday night, in time for the delegates to attend the opening grand ball of the jubilee at the Civic Auditorium.

GRAND MARSHAL N.S. SURPRISED.

At a joint meeting August 10 of Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 N.S.G.W. and Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D.G.W. a beautiful ebony gold and silver mounted baton was presented Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Marshal N.S.G.W., who will direct the Admission Day pageant, September 9.

Adolph Eberhart, on behalf of the two Parlors, made the presentation, which was a complete surprise to Grand Marshal Gaetjen. Refreshments were served and a select musical program was rendered by the Native Daughters.

FOR MISSION'S RESTORATION.

The campaign to raise San Francisco's quota for the restoration of Santa Barbara Mission, seriously damaged in the recent earthquake, will start September 1. The drive for funds will continue three weeks.

MILLION A DAY.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, San Francisco's foreign shipping through the Golden Gate averaged a million dollars every working day, according to the annual report of Customs Collector W. B. Hamilton. The foreign commerce increase the fiscal year just closed, compared with the previous year, amounted to nearly $28,000,000.

Carlson, by her home-Parlor, Dolores No. 169, invitations having been sent to local Parlor and past and acting grand officers. May Barry of Mission Parlor No. 227 gave the address of welcome and announced a program of special merit.

The Home Committee takes pleasure in expressing thanks to the members of Dolores Parlor for choosing to hold the reception at the home and for the generous donation of groceries to the home, and compliments the members on the beautiful effect in the decorations of greens and flowers.

"The Settlement of California and Its Bearing on American History," was the theme of an address by Fletcher A. Cutler before the California Historical Society, San Francisco, August 25. Judge Cutler is Grand President of the Native Sons of the Golden West.

OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Officers of Presidio Parlor No. 148 N.D.G.W. were installed August 11 by D.D.G.P. Anna Thusen, Della Molinari becoming president. Past Grand President Margaret Grote-Hill and D.D.G.P. Thusen delivered addresses.

"PATHWAY OF SUNSHINE."

August 13, in the banquet hall of the Native Sons' Building, Pacific Parlor No. 10 N.S.G.W. tendered a banquet to Grand Trustee Dr. Frank I. Gonzalez. An elaborate menu was served under the direction of Harry Marquard, and an interesting vaudeville program was presented.

Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler eulogized the good work of his co-worker, Dr. Gonzalez, and in fitting phrases referred to him as the "pathway of sunshine" in the Order. Thomas M. Foley, president of Pacific, officiated in the capacity of toastmaster, and the following speakers responded: Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, August Fournier, Thomas F. Duffy, Walter V. Walsh, Frank Soracco, James O'Gara.

SAN FRANCISCO'S JUBILEE WEEK PROGRAM

"THE MAGIC CITY" TO PRESENT A GALAXY OF FEATURES

Malcolm Fraser

SAN FRANCISCO'S ACCEPTANCE OF THE role of stage manager for all California in the culminating programs of California's diamond jubilee, promises to result in the presentation of a series of spectacles without rival in the annals of the West. Although such is no mean prediction, the citizens' committee has matured its plans to a point wherein it seems amply justified. The unrolling of California's story in a great historical pageant, authentic in detail and beautiful in picturization, is in itself no minor task, but the staggering responsibilities of the constantly expanding program of the week, September 5-12, renders this just one of many details in a monumental series of patriotic tributes to this Golden State, in commemoration of its seventy-fifth milestone of achievement as a member of the Sisterhood of the Union.

Briefly, the program begins with a ball at the Civic Auditorium, September 5, in which the colors of old Spain, music of the most skilled musicians, costumes and decorative motif, hark back a century to the delightful days of dolce far niente. It has been the ambition of the committee in charge to excel all previous efforts. The opening ceremonies, officially ushering in the supreme realization of California's anniversary, will precede the dancing.

The afternoon and evening of Sunday, September 6, a series of costume presentations covering the period 1850-1925 will be followed by an ultra-modern Fashion Show at the Civic Auditorium, bringing out creations so new that even New York will not have had the delight of such an exhibition. The most brilliant stagecraft and directorship are employed throughout, and the manikins, scores of them, are recruited from California's most unimpeachable daughters. This show steps out from the common or garden fashion show, being the subject of a scenario carrying a decidedly refreshing plot which will while away two bewitching hours.

Labor's annual ceremonial takes the form

this year of a pageant-parade, Monday, September 7, symbolizing the dignity and achievements of the crafts in California. The parade will be headed by a dazzling float, and twenty stately presentations of similar character will pervade the line, with ten bands and thirty-five thousand marchers, including representatives from unions in all parts of the state. At the Civic Auditorium in the evening literary and musical features, followed by a ball, will close the most eventful Labor Day California has yet seen. In the Civic Center fireworks, including set pieces appropriate to Labor, will be set off.

As several foreign powers are sending battleships to denote their joy in the jubilee, it goes without question that the Army and Navy parade, on the morning of September 8, will shed new splendor on California's military accomplishments. Every arm of the United States service will be represented in the line, with complements from visiting ships and their crack bands.

Admission Day, September 9, will present California's historic pages in their chronological order, from the distant vistas of legend to the amazing accomplishments of the day, a stretch of four centuries. To portray this picture one hundred floats and twenty thousand marchers costumed to suit the periods they must represent will make a line over three miles in length, with thirty bands and other musical units, cavalcades caparisoned in Spanish, Mexican and '49 trappings—an astounding picture with color and dazzling effect. To this, Native Sons and Native Daughters throughout California, its counties and cities and civic organizations, will lend themselves in a prodigality of expression unmatched by previous tributes to their native or adopted state. Startling departures from usual Admission Day observances will emphasize every phase of this triumphant depiction of the march of California into the zenith of world attractions.

Admission Day afternoon at 2:30 at the Civic Auditorium, a grand concert, under the direction of Dr. Hans Leschke, will hold sway and the scores of Parlors of Native Sons and Daughters have engaged every available hall and assemblyroom for the entertainment of their brothers, sisters and guests, joining in the evening in programs of dancing, theatre parties and general conviviality. A pyrotechnic display, with set pieces of outstanding historic value, will be seen in the Civic Center at 8 p. m.

Varying the week's program delightfully, a series of aquatic and athletic contests, field and track meets, yacht races and regattas of national interest will be given. These will enliven the afternoons of September 6, 8, 11 and 12.

Haydn's oratorio, "The Creation," with the San Francisco Municipal Chorus of 500 voices, and the San Francisco Orchestra of 100 pieces under the baton of Dr. Hans Leschke, will be presented after months of painstaking rehearsal.

All the floats and spectacular features of the preceding parades, with forty more thrown in and thirty-five thousand costumed marchers representing civic, fraternal and military units, will appear in the great closing parade of September 12, at 8 p. m. This will be the largest parade ever seen in the West. When the last glittering picture fades out, carnival will hold sway, and a ball at the Civic Auditorium will complete California's diamond jubilee amidst flashes of fire in red, yellow and green, touched off simultaneously from 150 building-tops.

Around this galaxy of features, myriad lights from countless lamps in globes of designs not seen elsewhere before will make San Francisco, indeed, "The Magic City." The lighting and decorating scheme—including a succession of arches, huge standards of flambeaux, festooned lights and flood lights hidden by oil paintings of California's historic events—will carry a path of gold to the Civic Center, where fountains, subjected to radio effects, will spurt streams of different lengths and colors. This is a step forward in scientific achievement, first to be seen at San Francisco. The illumination and decorative scheme will see the jubilee through with a blaze of glory at a cost of over $100,000.

NO TAINT OF DISLOYALTY ON CALIFORNIA'S ESCUTCHEON

Hon. James D. Phelan

CALIFORNIA IS A DUTIFUL DAUGHTER of the American Union; her filial devotion has never been questioned. She may, in common with other states, begrudge the assumption of federal power by the central government in matters which properly belong to the local field, and will, doubtless, participate in a national movement, which is contemplated, to check the aggressions of the bureaucracy in Washington.

But, on the other hand, the federal connection has been of overwhelming importance in the development of the state. It has given prestige to our ports and it has nationalized the matchless wonders of the Sierras.

Daniel Webster foolishly opposed the admission of California into the union, because of its remoteness, in an age when communication was not only restricted, but seemed to be permanently so. The mountains, forests, rivers, hostile savages and, apparently, barren soil, led him to say that Washington could not properly govern so remote and resourceless a country. But he patronizingly saw fit to express the hope that California would set up an independent government, and maintain amicable relations with Washington. He lived to acknowledge his mistake.

The gold of California, in the possession of the North, served to cement the Union of States by giving victory to the armies of Grant, Sherman and Sheridan. As the thirty-first state of the union, holding the balance between the fifteen slave and the fifteen free states at that time, California unhesitatingly cast its fortunes with the North. The Monterey Constitutional Convention of 1850 declared for freedom, and there has never been a taint of disloyalty on the escutcheon of this state.

On the other hand, the Federal Government has responded always to our reasonable demands. It has given us Oriental exclusion, because, as "the warder by the Golden Gate," we saw the peril and informed the country. It has given us the Pacific fleet, because the Federal Government realizes the priceless value of California, and the tempting spoil it is for potentially powerful and covetous foes.

So eager was California to enter the American Union that it adopted its constitution and set up the machinery of an American state before it was formally admitted. A star of the first magnitude, from the very beginning, it was proud to join the constellation of the other states. It rejoices in the gorgeous jewel which it has contributed to the diadem of Columbia!

SENATOR JAMES D. PHELAN.
(Pacific Parlor No. 10 N.S.G.W.)

It is fitting that the "Diamond Jubilee" should be celebrated by the Native Sons and Native Daughters of California in a blaze of glory. "A blaze of glory" will fittingly characterize the celebration in San Francisco, which has been organized for the Seventy-fifth Anniversary of California's Statehood—the glory of achievement, monumental and permanent!

DEATH SPOT OF FAMOUS NAVIGATOR TO BE MARKED.

Santa Barbara—The Board of Supervisors of Santa Barbara County at a meeting August 13 adopted a plan to place tablets on all the historic spots in the county. The first to be marked will be the spot on San Miguel Island where the famous navigator, Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo, died.

Cabrillo was the first White man to visit this section of the coast, and he died on the island January 3, 1543, after discovering Bahia de Los Fumos, San Pedro Harbor and other ports as far north as Monterey. He died on San Miguel on his return trip, as the result of injuries received aboard his ship.

Other points to be marked by simple tablets include the spot where General John C. Fremont entered Santa Barbara County and planned his conquest in an old adobe at Santa Maria.

ADMISSION DAY PARADE

SAN FRANCISCO PAGEANT TO BE GORGEOUS WONDER

THE PAGEANT-PARADE IN SAN FRANCISCO the morning of the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission to the Union of States—Admission Day, September 9,—will far eclipse, in extent and grandeur, anything heretofore seen in this state of many wonders. The parade is one of the features for Admission Day's observance arranged by the Native Sons and the Native Daughters of the Golden West, and they have spared no expense in arranging to pay homage, in this manner and at this time, to the heritage of which they are so justly proud—California!

The Admission Day parade will move under the direction of Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Marshal N.S.G.W., who will be assisted by James A. Wilson, Grand Third Vice-president N.S.G.W., chief of staff, and Charles A. Koenig, Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 N.S.G.W., chief aide. The line will move at 10 a. m., and the route will be: From the Embarcadero and Market street, west on Market to Fulton, thence west to Larkin, thence north to McAllister, thence west to Polk, thence south to Grove, thence east to Market, thence west to Fell, thence west to Van Ness, thence north to Turk and disband.

Grand Marshal Gaetjen furnished The Grizzly Bear with this formation of the Admission Day parade, complete at the time of going to press. Notice of additional features and more entrants is being received daily, so that by Admission Day, the number of divisions will be considerably augmented, it is predicted.

Division one—Trumpeters; police band; Chief of Police Daniel J. O'Brien; platoon mounted police; platoon foot police; official banner of California's N.S. and N.D. diamond jubilee; band.

Division two—Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Marshal; James A. Wilson, chief of staff; Charles A. Koenig, chief aide; Joseph Clement, Malcolm A. Fraser, aides de campe; I. H. Reuter, Max Licht, J. J. Lane, Frank Glynn, H. De La Rosa, Ed. F. Bryant, Ethel Stuhr, Emma G. Foley, Marie Surme, Evelyn Olsen, aides to the Grand Marshal.

Division three—Vice-presidenth Dawes and suite; Governor Richardson and suite; San Francisco's mayor, James W. Rolph Jr., and Board of Supervisors; ambassadors and consular representatives.

Division four—Society of California Pioneers and allied organizations; banner; float, "Pre-corps; California 1 N.S.; Alta 3 N.D.; band;

CALIFORNIA

First prize in California's diamond jubilee poem contest—a diamond-studded medal—has been awarded Joseph Barnett of Livingston, Merced County. More than 300 poems were submitted. Barnett's winning poem follows:

Domain where nature's fairest face
Reflects the charm of morning's glance,
Its rivalry of strength and grace
The mirrored soul of all romance.

Adventure's most alluring name,
The best beloved of fortune's quest,
A world frontier whose beacon flame
Lights all the highway of the West.

Its winnowed wealth, its treasure trove,
The ages' hoards, for him who dares;
The teeming fruits of field and grove
Awaiting him who plants and cares.

Where yesterday the herald bells
Awaked a distant, dreaming land,
Its commerce throbs and culture dwells,
Its orchards bloom and cities stand.

The State whose buoyant life looks on
To farther fields and ocean ways
And sees beyond tomorrow's dawn
The shining sails of future days.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment

(A National Organization)

Headquarters: WASHINGTON, D. C.

HOW YOU CAN HELP!

The fighting force against prohibition and all its resulting evils is The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. The present goal we are driving for is a modification of the Volstead Act. Our battlecry is: "Light Wines and Beer Now, No Saloons Ever." With the steady growth of the Association our political strength has become pronounced and through such organized effort, and only thus, can any hope for modification be entertained. To win in politics, organization—voting strength—is the first requisite. To educate the people to the Association's stand for Temperance, against Prohibition; for Liberty, against Tyranny; for Preservation of Constitutional Rights, against Rule of a "Thou shalt not" Fanatical Minority, requires the maintenance of a magazine broadcasting an educational campaign.

Every subscribing member gained by the Association brings nearer the day when prohibition, with its present drastic, unenforceable laws, will be a thing of the past.

Now is the appointed time to join—not that elusive tomorrow! At no future time will your membership or your subscription mean more as a contribution toward the success of our cause! Let us hear from you! We are fighting YOUR fight—to restore YOUR rights, and to reduce YOUR taxes.

LABOR, AMERICAN

The American Federation of Labor took an American stand when, at Washington, D. C., its executive committee passed resolutions denouncing the insidious propaganda, being circulated in carloads by the American Protestant Church Federation and other pro-Jap interests, in favor of breaking down, at the coming session of the Federal Congress, the exclusion provision of the Immigration Law.

The resolutions rightfully declared that "those who favor permitting aliens ineligible to citizenship coming into this country are un-American," and also declared that the Federation will fight any attempt at modification of the law.—C.M.H.

GRIZZLY GROWLS

DUAL JUBILEE

THE CROWNING EVENT OF CALIFORNIA's year of jubilee will be the week of festival in San Francisco, September 5 to 12. And the crowning event of festival-week will be the Admission Day celebration, for that day, September 9, will be the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admittance into the Sisterhood of States.

Native Sons and Native Daughters will flock to San Francisco by the thousands for Admission Day, and their numbers will be augmented by additional thousands of Californians, both native and adopted, all bent on paying homage to what has, in the brief period of seventy-five years, developed into the greatest and most promising of all the United States—California!

Native Sons have also been inspired to wend their way to San Francisco—where the news of California's admission to statehood was first received in the state—because it was in the City by the Golden Gate that the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West had its beginning, July 7, 1875. So, for Native Sons, at least, this year's Admission Day fete has been arranged in observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the admission of California to statehood and of the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Order—a dual jubilee!

This, jubilee number, of The Grizzly Bear is presented as a souvenir of Admission Day. It contains a world of information as to the progress of California the Supreme through seventy-five years of statehood, as well as pre-admission information of an historic nature. As a matter of fact, by a perusal of the many excellent articles presented, one may become accurately familiar with the history of California from the time of its discovery until this, the seventy-fifth birthday anniversary of its American statehood.

To all those who have, through their generous co-operation, made possible the presentation of this jubilee number, the thanks of The Grizzly Bear are gratefully extended. These include not only the writers of the several articles, but the advertisers, and also Don McFadyen, the cover artist. All this splendid co-operation was forthcoming in appreciation for the Order of Native Sons' unselfish labors of a half-century for the state, and for the glory of the thirty-first, and brightest, star in the galaxy of states—California!

In an address before the "Institute of Politics" in Williamstown, Massachusetts, according to the Associated Press, Professor George H. Blakelee of Clark University said: "There is good reason to believe that if no agitation is made to do away with the statutory exclusion of the Japanese, the people of California will begin at the very next meeting of their Legislature to repeal the discriminatory laws against Oriental residents."

California has no "discriminatory laws against Oriental residents." It does have laws to protect the state against inundation by Orientals, and particularly unwanted Japs who, prior to the going into effect of the Federal Immigration Law with the provision excluding all aliens ineligible to citizenship, were coming here in hordes, carrying out the "peaceful invasion" program of the Japanese government.

What information Professor Clark has, upon which to base his prediction that if the federal law is allowed to stand, "the people of California will . . . repeal" the Alien Land Law of this state, we know not. He certainly is unfamiliar with the Jap sentiment of the great mass of California people. Probably he gets his cue from the few who would sell the state outright for yellow dollars.

Would that there is as little likelihood of the federal statute being repealed or modified, to pacify the white- and yellow-Japs, as there is of the California law being tampered with or repealed. Of course, Professor Clark may count on the laxity of public officials in enforcing the state law to fulfill his belief. The Japs, however, have had that assistance right along, but it is not unlikely that, because of their failure to enforce the California Alien Land Law, there will begin soon a determined effort to clear out, as in the case of former Governor Stephens, all those officials charged with the law's enforcement who are and have been derelict, to that extent, in their duty.

In the midst of celebration, Californians should not forget Santa Barbara, sorely stricken by an earthquake. Reliable information is to the effect that, out of an assessed valuation of $30,000,000, damage to the amount of half that sum was suffered. Havoc was wrought with hospitals, orphanages, schools and charitable organizations.

To assist in restoring these necessities, the California Development Association has undertaken to raise $1,100,000 within California, "outside" aid having been declined by Santa Barbara. To date, the response has not been as prompt nor as generous as the emergency warrants. But one county, Ventura, has gone "over the top" with its quota.

The sum asked will be used in reconstruction of and repairs to hospitals, orphanages and charitable organizations, as well as for emergency health and sanitation work and for temporary school buildings. With it, the citizens of Santa Barbara, many of them heavy losers as individuals, will have a fighting chance to "come back." Without it, the damage-load will be near to unbearable.

Jubilee week in California should not be permitted to pass into history without every dollar, and more, of this needed sum being in the hands of the Santa Barbara Relief Committee. Exemplify that generosity for which the state is world noted, by sending your donation, large or small, to the relief committee at Santa Barbara now.

W. B. Shearer, in previous issues of The Grizzly Bear, pointed out the many weak spots in the United States' defense plans, particularly on the Pacific Coast. Those who have been following the course of events, must be impressed with the fact that every one of his charges and statements have been upheld by tests and concurred in by government officials who have made extensive investigations.

As a result, there is some hope that the Federal Congress to assemble in December will provide for strengthening the national defense weak-spots. Hats off to Shearer! He has rendered, unsolicited, splendid service to the Pacific Coast and the country. May his days be lengthened and his power increase!

California is always advertised as a state where the people enjoy exceptionally good health. It would appear that this is untruthful advertising, for Collector of Internal Revenue Rex B. Goodcell is authority for the statement that physicians' prescriptions for 929,882 pints of whisky and brandy were issued in this state during the fiscal year ended June 30.

The authorities should take cognizance of this fact, for there must be an epidemic of some sort, and quarantine the afflicted. Something is wrong somewhere, and even a poor guesser could correctly guess what and where the trouble is.

State Controller Ray L. Riley made the public statement in Sacramento the other day, that the average family in California pays $60 a month taxes in the aggregate. That means that the total of all taxes paid in the state amounts to approximately $750,000,000 annually.

Commenting on the state controller's statement, the California Taxation Improvement Association says: "The total income of the people of the state from natural resources in 1924 was $3,500,000,000. Therefore, 21.4 percent of the income goes for taxes. In other words, one earns a dollar, and 21.4 cents of it goes to support the government, general, state and local. On the average, the citizen puts in 1.7 hours every week-day working for government."

Something to think about! Are the people getting good value for their huge investment?

There will soon be ready for distribution a work on California history—prepared by the University of California Extension Division, in co-operation with the California State Historical Association,—that is certain to fill a long-felt want.

The work, entitled "A Pictorial History of California," comprises two hundred fifty loose-leaf pages measuring eight by eleven inches. Commencing with the days of discovery and exploration, it then illustrates the colonization by the Spaniards as pictured in the missions, the discovery of gold and that period covering the migration of thousands to California, the types of people, mining, etc., the important period of '75 to '80, and the present-day development of the state. It is a thorough and authentic work.

Dr. Owen C. Coy made the selection of the pictures and edited the entire work. It is the Extension Division's aim to dispose of it to school and other educational organizations at low cost. It will be released at an opportune time—the diamond jubilee of California.

Incidentally, The Grizzly Bear was favored with advance sheets from this important work, and accorded the privilege of reproducing some of the illustrations in its jubilee number. Those made use of will be noted by the copyright indication. Other illustrations of historic places and scenes in the number are from the magazine's collection. Every one interested in California history will certainly want a copy of "A Pictorial History of California."

Through figures obtained from the Los Angeles port authorities and made public by W. B. Shearer, this startling information is disclosed:

Japanese navy tankers, officered and manned by naval crews, carried from San Pedro in the period between January 1 and July 1 of this year, cargoes of oil equaling one-third (approximately 15,000,000 barrels) of the aggregate shipments of oil (59,626,684 barrels) to all points for the entire four years of 1921, 1922, 1923, 1924.

What does Japan want with this oil? Propaganda originating in that country is to the effect that there is an industrial lull there. The plain truth is, that Japan is storing California-produced oil in preparation for war with this country for possession of California! And still, the authorities, federal and state, sleep on, induced thereto by the "peace" and "friendship" lullabies of the pacifists and the Jap propaganda agents.

CALIFORNIA—OUR STATE

(WILL C. WOOD.)

SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO A BABY state was knocking at the door of Congress in far-off Washington, the capital of the nation, asking for admission into the great family of American states. In those days there was a dispute among the states over slavery, and newcomers were not welcome. We may well imagine that the doorkeeper was very gruff when he heard the knock on the door and the baby state pleading to be let in.

"What do you want?" said the doorkeeper in a voice like that of the wolf in "Little Red Riding Hood." "I want to come in and join the family of states," piped the baby state in pleading tones. "But you are too young—you are only a babe," replied the doorkeeper. "We have no place for babies now. We have enough to do to keep peace between the states that believe in slavery and the states that oppose it. You are young, but you are big enough to add to our troubles, so run away and don't bother us any more." "I know I am young, but I am big beyond my years," replied the babe. "In fact, I am one of the biggest babes ever born. When they measured me, they found that I was seven hundred miles long. I am not flat-chested or thin either, for I measure from two hundred and fifty to three hundred miles through my heart. I am many times bigger than little Rhode Island, who toddles about with the sister states. In fact, I am, in spite of my babyhood, larger than any of the sister states except Texas."

"But you haven't any children," said the doorkeeper. "All the other states have hundreds of thousands of children. We don't want baby states without children." "It is true," replied the babe, "that I have few children of my own and most of them are Indians and Mexicans, but I have more than a hundred thousand adopted children. They came to me since 1848, from other states and countries, attracted by my gold, and I have adopted all of them as my children. I have a wonderful family—as fine a family as any other sister state. Please open the door and let me in, for I am worthy of a place in the great family."

"Well, what is your name?" growled the doorkeeper, who was now satisfied he couldn't scare the babe away. "My name is California," replied the babe. "Don't you think it is a pretty name?" "I don't think your name commends you," said the doorkeeper. "It has a foreign sound. Most all the other states are named in English, or in the Indian language. We have New York and New Jersey and Virginia, all named in English. We have Massachusetts, Connecticut, Kentucky, Michigan, Illinois and other states whose names are Indian in their origin. Your name is neither Indian nor English. It sounds as though it came from the Spanish, like Florida and Texas. How shall I tell the sister states you came by your name?" "Well," replied the babe, "there is some dispute about the origin of my name. Some scholars say it is derived from two Latin words, 'call', meaning hot, and 'fornax', meaning furnace, that 'California', therefore, means 'hot furnace', but I don't believe it. California is not a hot furnace. It is a state where summer is warm but the rest of the year is quite cool. I think the other scholars are right when they say that 'California' was named after a wonderful Spanish romance, written four or five hundred years ago, about an island of eternal spring, lying toward the setting sun." "A pretty story," said the doorkeeper. "I'll take your message to the sisters and see what they say."

California sat down on the doorstep and awaited the answer. She sat for more than a year. She could hear the dispute raging among the sisters and wondered if she would ever be admitted. Finally, on September 9, 1850, the door opened and the doorkeeper in a kindly voice bade her enter. Into the great family of states walked the babe, California, leading a great grizzly bear, and all the sisters joined in a splendid welcome.

CALIFORNIA—A TRIBUTE

YOU HAVE ASSIGNED A TASK TO ME that is at once the glory and the despair of painters, artists and orators. The subject of "California" is at once so vast, inviting and majestic a topic that the mind can hardly realize the just proportions in which, in a short address, to select the proper features.

Nearly 400 years have rolled away since Cabrillo sailed into San Diego Bay. When Queen Elizabeth was sitting on the throne of England, Sir Francis Drake was looking for San Francisco Bay. And yet, the geological history of California runs far behind the time of those men into the dim and distant past, probably for more than one hundred and fifty million years.

California, like some of the traditional gods of the ancient world, "was born out of the sea." The Sierra Nevada Mountains have witnessed the gradual unfolding of the California drama—an epoch that rivals in marvelous beauty and heroic detail the grandeur of the Homeric tale told in the "Iliad" and the "Odyssey."

This tribute to California was paid by Phillip M. Carey affiliated with Berkeley Parlor No. 210 N.S.G.W., at the banquet held in San Francisco, July 11, in observance of the fifth anniversary of the founding of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West.—Editor.

This "land of the heart's desire" was sought by bold mariners and explorers whose names have embellished its history and enriched its literature with a glory, tradition and renown all its own. Their purpose was, like that of Ulysses, to "Sail beyond the sunset and the baths of all the Western stars."

Such names as Balboa, Cabrillo, Portola, Anza and Drake, who sailed in "The Golden Hind," have given a background of thrilling romance and endeavor to a glorious past that belongs to California for all times. When their eyes first beheld our native state, Jamestown had not yet been planted, and the Pilgrim Fathers had not yet set foot on Plymouth Rock. The Gigantea Sequoia redwood trees were then older than the oldest civilization, from which the discoverers of California had sprung. They looked on mountains that were older than history—those same Sierra Nevada Mountains that had stood, rock-ribbed and ancient, watching as silent sentinels and solitary spectators through vast and succeeding ages of geological time the gradual unfolding of the California drama—more than a thousand miles of that same ocean upon which Balboa first looked.

The author of that famous Irish song, "Kil-larney," surely must have seen California when he composed the following beautiful lines to describe his native Ireland:

No place else can charm the eye
With such bright and varied tints.
Every rock that you pass by,
Verdure broiders or besprings.

Verdant there the green grass grows,
Every morn is Spring's natal day.
Bright-hued berries daff the snows,
Smiling Winter's frown away."

Before the liberty bell announced the glad tidings of America's Declaration of Independence

COVERED WAGON MOTHER PASSES

(MAY S. CORCORAN.)

AT FOUR SHE CROSSED THE OCEAN from Germany and, with her parents, settled in a little village in Missouri. There she married a Mr. Bigler, and when the gold rush flashed from mountains to farmlands, she packed the clothes of her two-year-old and infant daughters, entered the covered wagon with her husband, trailed through the great basin over the Sierras with its storms and Indian perils, down into the Valley of the San Joaquin, then up again through the Sierras to Bear Valley in Mariposa County, without a word of complaint, but many of prayer.

One only little story she let slip, of how an Indian once cut the canvas of her wagon to get "Maggie," now Mrs. John Goodwin. She saved her baby, for she possessed that firmness which enabled many Pioneer Women to face otherwise infinite danger.

Bigler settled his family pleasantly in Bear Valley, and his wife set to work about the flowers she loved so dearly. Then a stray shot made her a widow. She was left utterly alone, but she looked to God. She married another good man, Maurice Newman, who served Mariposa County for over thirty years in various official capacities. In Bear Valley they built a beautiful home and bought the house of Colonel Fremont, on the western slope of mountains, of which the colonel, his wife, Jessie Benton-Fremont, and his daughter, Elizabeth Benton Fremont, each wrote beautifully. Mariposans always knew it as the "Newman Ranch." Then they went to live in Mariposa.

Newman was a good writer, a strong thinker, a man of the highest intellect and culture. He was not ill but, one sunny morning, he did not wake up. This was in 1895, and telephone wires were not plentiful, but the very treetops flashed the news, and as prancing stage horses stopped on the mail route from Mariposa to Merced, from ravines and hilltops miners came, moaning, to know if the thing was true,—had he, they trusted, gone?

Mrs. Newman bore her grief almost in silence, and thought there could be no worse. In 1902 her son was suddenly killed. Tranquility and trust were harder then. The time had come which, with certainty, comes to all. Christ took to himself every human grief; He, while human, prayed that the chalice might pass, but he drank to the dregs. I think he never laughed again; we seldom do. She smiled afterward.

in Philadelphia, the mission bells of California were calling the faithful to worship on California soil—a refining influence that has never ceased to make its strong impress upon the civilization, refinement and culture of our native state. And the mission structures mark, no doubt, the most distinctive and harmonious architecture of the nation.

"Bells of the past, whose long-forgotten music
Still fills the wide expanse,
Tinging the sober twilight of the present
With color of romance."

When the mission padres came here, the Indians thought that grasshoppers were a delicacy, and wives were bought and sold, even as they are in our day. Indeed, in Central California, when an Indian married a bride, he married not only the bride, but all of her sisters, and her mother, too, if she was not married.

The strains of many races of people, widely different in habits and manners and customs, are to be found in California history—the Spanish and the Mexican, the Russian and the British, the native Indian, and, finally, the conquering American. From the sixteenth century, a romance and tradition and legend, and a tale of historic pride had been built with the unfolding of California's epoch, by the gigantic men of these various races who came here to discover, to explore, to woo and to win her.

But, perhaps, of all those whose footsteps have wandered thither, the most picturesque and truly romantic are the Pioneers and Argonauts of the "days of '49" who, like Jason of old, came in search of the golden fleece. They were a sturdy race of men. They were really the pioneers of the California of today, and we, their sons and heirs, stand in their place, on our native soil of California, in the foremost files of time and enjoy this heritage of all the ages.

"They were strong men who had done God's work,
And held His peace, and had no fear to die;
They deserved God's praise, for that they served His world."

"They found here the bounteous, immemorial parks
Of oak,
Whose acorns fed the bear and Indian folk;
The quiet forests of the pine and spruce,
Where Time and Grief hold endless truce."

Mrs. Newman went to live in San Francisco. Miss Emily Newman, who had been raised as a queen at home and in school, worked as a nurse until she bought a lovely home in the Richmond district. During all these years she has been perfection of devotion to her loving mother, as has been Mrs. Newman's daughter, Mrs. Goodwin, and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Maurice Newman Jr. (once Miss Elizabeth Barrett of Merced Falls), and O, so many more. The family

MRS. MARGARET NEWMANN, and her great-granddaughter,
BETTY WEBB.

reaches to the fifth generation, and among others, includes Miss Edith Black, Mrs. Sydney Webb (Clair Newman), Maurice Newman Jr. and Jo Newman, well known around San Francisco Bay, and Mrs. Campodonica, Mrs. Newman's eldest daughter, who resides in the southern part of the state.

Long ago, in 1849, Margaret Newman crossed the plains to California. August 18 she passed away in San Francisco, at the age of 93, and her remains went back to Mariposa, to rest in peace under the pines in the old cemetery.

Californians, Santa Barbara Needs Help!

An emergency fund of $1,100,000 is needed immediately by the stricken city of Santa Barbara to care for the unfortunate inmates of charitable institutions made homeless; to reconstruct hospital buildings; to give temporary housing to school children in the autumn; and for Red Cross work of mercy.

You are asked to give. A California community "is seeking bravely to meet the demands of a great emergency suddenly thrust upon it by an overwhelming disaster." Give in large or small amount according to your means, but give freely.

SPANISH DAY AT VENTURA COUNTY FAIR

Sol N. Sheridan

VENTURA COUNTY'S FAIR, RANKING now as the second in size and importance in the entire state, will this year be one in the long list of celebrations swinging into line for the jubilee year of California the Golden. Ventura County, perhaps the very choicest bit of that long stretch of sunny coast south of Point Conception, is glad and proud to honor the seventy-fifth anniversary of the admission of California, the brightest star in the flag, to the American Union of States.

That there will hover over the fair grounds beside the sea in the beautiful City of San Buenaventura some part of the colorful, dreamy atmosphere of the olden time is due, directly and distinctly, to the members of Cabrillo Parlor No. 114 N.S.G.W., the county-wide organization of the state order here. Ventura, more perhaps than any other of the mission cities save only the sister City of Santa Barbara, has preserved, through all the changing years, some part of the atmosphere of the old days. You feel it, immediately, on coming into the town that has still some measure of quaintness, despite the rapid growth of a city that is at once commercially prosperous, something of a manufacturing center, an attractive tourist resort and sitting at the very heart of the newest and what is perhaps destined to be the most productive oil pool in the state. Ventura County gave California its first oil production, too, the first well put down being not many miles from the old town—and fewer miles from the present-day gushers of Ventura avenue field. But let that pass. It is a part of the olden time, too.

There are men and women in Ventura whose memories hark back to the last of the old Spanish days in California; who love the old time, and who keep some part of the glamour of other days in their modern workaday lives. When the County Fair Association, always a mighty force in county development and progress, began to stir for its regular annual awakening, it was these oldtimers, with the jubilee year in mind, who bethought themselves that the most fitting way to honor the anniversary of California's birth as a state would be by the setting aside of a Spanish Day at the county fair.

And what more fitting agency for the direction of an observance of so great an occasion than the Order of the Native Sons of the Golden West? It is made up of sons of the sun of California. The state is dear to them as the place whose air was first breathed into their lungs as mewling infants. They have grown strong and lusty as the free winds from the wide Pacific, on these golden shores, won for them by the sweat and blood of their sturdy fathers.

Moreover, the Native Sons of Cabrillo Parlor had themselves, just at the time when the celebration of Spanish Day at the county fair began to be talked about, experienced something which, in its nature, amounted almost to a new birth. Its charter never lapsing, Cabrillo Parlor went through a long period of quiescence—neither growing nor going backward. There was a gathering of the clans, and a practical reorganization. The new president of the Parlor, Don Adolfo Camarillo, bean farmer and owner of the rich Calleguas Rancho, himself a descendant of a family in whose veins runs the blood of Castile, was also chairman of the entertainment committee of the county fair and a member of the board of directors of the Ventura County Fair Association.

The president of the association, John Lloyd Butler, was and is a Native Son. So is Fred Noble, chairman of the fair executive committee. What more fitting, when the celebration of Spanish Day at the fair was broached as a part of the observance of jubilee year, that the matter of handling the celebration should be placed entirely under the direction of the members of Cabrillo Parlor? The Native Sons jumped at the opportunity, as an active trout to a fly. Camarillo was made chairman of the Spanish Day committee of the Parlor. George L. Daly, a consistent and always an enthusiastic Native Son, was made secretary.

Then, President Camarillo, in behalf of Cabrillo Parlor, carried the plan to the meeting of the directors of the Ventura County Fair Association. The directors leaped at it, almost with the same enthusiasm as the Native Sons—it was felt to be so eminently fitting a thing! Camarillo was made chairman of a newly-created Spanish Day department of the fair. Then, he called his committee of Cabrillo Parlor together, and began the framing of a program for the proper observance of the day.

It was felt, from the beginning, that Spanish Day should be on the opening day of the fair. How wisely this time was selected, has already been demonstrated. The whole Ventura County Fair, this year, will be pervaded by a golden haze, as of a dream of the olden time. The women's exhibits even will feature in their character the days of the California Pioneers. Every one, on the first day of the fair, will be in Spanish dress. This will be worn, more or less, every day of the fair. A lot of the younger natives are raising Spanish type whiskers to dress the character better. And, on Spanish Day, refreshments sold on the fair grounds will partake of the flavor of old Spain.

The boys will make a striking picture in their flat hats, wide trousers, gay sashes and bolero jackets—but think how the girls will dim their light in the pretty dress of the Iberian Peninsula! High combs, beautiful gowns, gay colors, mantillas, coquettish fans, laughing eyes and demure glances! It will be like a picture from days that are gone, long and long ago. But the life and the beauty and the joy of it will all be brought back for a few sunny hours in the land where the sun once shone on similar pictures, day by day.

The program arranged for Spanish Day, which will be on Wednesday, September 16, the opening day of the fair, will be fitting—and it will be unique. In all the celebrations that have ever been held in the state, there has been nothing like this one will be. In all the celebrations to be held this year, there will be no equal to this one. Pageants without number have been and will be given. Spanish Day at the Ventura County Fair will be different.

ADOLFO CAMARILLO,
President Cabrillo Parlor N.S.G.W.

It has taken labor to shape it up, to get all the features for the affair. Camarillo, Daly and the entire committee have worked long—and they are still at work. But, results have been achieved—and success at the end is now in sight. The pageant parade, typing the progress of Ventura through the years—and, incidentally, the progress of the entire West—will be a thing to be remembered; and perhaps better worth seeing than any similar pageant has ever been. The fair opens on the morning of September 16. Samuel M. Shortridge, United States Senator from California, will deliver the opening address in front of the women's pavilion, on the grounds. That will be the morning feature.

Then, in the afternoon, the racetrack in front of the grand stand will be cleared. The stage will be set for the pageant parade that is to give its tone to the whole fair. Southern California has been searched for the several features for this parade. Each one will be true to the life of the olden time. In their order, they will move before the crowded grand stand, thus—like the figures in a dream:

A band of the Chumashan Indians, whose villages once sat beside the sea at Ventura, and whose women fed Don Gaspar de Portola's men when, haggard and starving, they were making their weary way back from a vain quest for Monterey, will lead the van. The Franciscan fathers, in robes and sandals, will come next. The Franciscans built the Mission of San Buenaventura—the ninth church built and the last one founded by Frey Junipero Serra—and the old church is still in daily use by the faithful. Its walls were reared more than a century ago; and its old bells were on board the first mission ship that sighted the shores of California. Then will ride Don Gaspar himself, with his gallant followers, the soldiers of New Spain. The caballeros and señoritas, in Spanish dress, will come next—as many in line as choose to ride, and indications are that this section will be long, and attractive. Following it, rather in the middle of it, will be the old caretta, ox-drawn, with its solid wooden wheels, in which will ride the Spanish dancers and the Spanish music. Then, an American covered wagon—men and women and children of the pioneers, all complete; there will even be the dog tied under the wagon, and the old cow tied behind. There will be a stagecoach and six, regular Concord thoroughbred wagon, next in line; such a stage as once carried mail and moneyed travelers all up and down the dirt roads of the West. Then will come the oldest automobile to be found in the county, followed by a procession of cars of fast improving models, down to the very latest thing in luxurious covered cars. The procession will close with an aeroplane, running on the ground—which, as the parade countermarches for the last time before the grand stand, will rise from the earth and soar away into the blue.

Thus will be typed the real march of progress in this Western land. For, as the world has moved, so man has gone forward. Never has such a parade been staged. And there will be other attractions at the fair—all the usual features. The livestock exhibit will be the biggest and best ever made in the West. The horse show will be the greatest ever seen in Southern California—and second in the United States only to the big horse show at Portland, Oregon, in number of entries and classes, and in the purses given. The baby show, the agricultural and horticultural exhibits, the showing of women's work, the auto show will be tremendous.

But, the air of olden days will be over it all; and Spanish Day will give the fair this year a touch never before tried, bringing back the glamour and the magic of a colorful time. And, after the Spanish Day parade, the dances of old Spain, to Spanish music, will be given in front of the grand stand, and there will be a bullfight, and the matadors, toreadors, banderillos and Espada will perform their finished functions as of old they used to do. Save that there will be no blood-letting, and toro will live to fight another day.

A TRIBUTE

"O California, just the dear old sound,
Again that one word can the whole world bound!
Thank God for that Sierran world."

From the time of her admission to statehood, California has been ever a loyal sister in this union. She poured a tremendous and continuous stream of gold into the federal treasury during the Civil War to save the union. When President Lincoln called for 75,000 volunteers, California alone gave 6,000 men. And in the recent World War her vast contributions of men and material are so recent that they are still in the minds of all of us.

Probably no human being ever lived who was not proud of his native soil. But certainly as Native Sons of the Golden West, born here on the rich and fertile soil of California, in this balmy climate tempered by ocean breeze and sweetened by the winds of California forests—in this land of so much picturesque beauty, romance and tradition—we have more reason to be proud of our native soil than any other race of people who ever lived on this earth.

And now, in conclusion, I would like to drink a toast to the daring and noble spirits who, in the olden days, sailed their Spanish galleons over the waves of the Pacific Ocean, to discover —California! I would like to drink to the padres who founded the missions, and to the Argonaut and the Pioneer of '49. And finally, the last toast of obligation and health to the native-born:

"Our heart is where they rock our cradle;
Our love where we spend our toil;
And our faith and our hope and our honor
We pledge to our native soil."

HISTORY FEATURES ADMISSION DAY PAGEANT

THE PAGEANT PORTION OF THE Admission Day parade in San Francisco, September 9, will outline, by periods, the history of California. It has been planned, largely, by George H. Barron of Precita Parlor No. 187 N.S.G.W., curator of the M. H. De Young Memorial Museum in Golden Gate Park, and will be portrayed, mainly, by Native Sons and Native Daughters. Barron prepared for The Grizzly Bear the following descriptions of the historic floats:

EXPLORATION BY LAND AND SEA.

First will come the Society of California Pioneers, representing the Constitutional Convention in Monterey in 1849, when men were selected from various sections of the state to frame a constitution. In the gathering were the best the world produced. As a monument to their abilities, "giants in intellect" as they were, four-fifths of these statutes remain today on the statute books.

Then will come the Pioneer Women, and the daughters of California Pioneers and their association. No class of women in the world's history ever suffered so many hardships, trials and tribulations as those women who came to California in the early days—women who would have made good in any section of the country; noble, inspiring, and always working for the ascendancy.

Float, "Land of Heart's Desire." When news of the discovery of gold stretched throughout the nation, the best the world produced, "the survival of the fittest," sought the promised "Land of Heart's Desire." The land of opportunities, where the energetic, the courageous and the unconquerable had an opportunity. Nothing was impossible to them; they worshipped no god but ambition, and acknowledged no criterion but success.

Float, "The Aborigines," by Redwood Parlor No. 66 N.S. and Bonita Parlor No. 10 N.D. The members will be dressed as Franciscan friars and Spaniards. No native race in any new country were so peaceful and so subjective as the Indians of California, because, in every rancho, the natives had a different dialect. They were not warlike; they were peaceful and tractable, and were soon taught the useful arts by the padres and soldiers.

Float, "The Discovery of the Pacific by Balboa," by Balboa Parlor No. 234 N.S. This will portray the intrepid Spaniard wading waist-deep in the calm and tranquil waters of the Pacific and touching with his sword the snow-capped waves, taking possession of the ocean in honor of his majesty, the king of Spain.

Group on foot, "Melchior Diaz' Discovery of California in 1540," by Olympus Parlor No. 189 N.S. Impersonating a small body of men sent out from Mexico on a land discovery. They marched over the sands and cactus waste and saw this "promised land," without ever reaching it.

Float, "Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo's Discovery of California at San Diego in 1542," by Estudillo Parlor No. 223 N.S. and El Cereso Parlor No. 207 N.D. Juan Rodriguez Cabrillo was the first man to set foot on California soil, and he sailed as far north as Mendocino. On his return trip he was taken sick and died on one of the islands in the Santa Barbara group.

Float, "Discovery of California by Sir Francis Drake in 1579," by Castro Parlor No. 232 N.S. and Castro Parlor No. 178 N.D. Drake had encompassed the world and all the high seas, and the winds of chance brought him to the calm and peaceful waters of the Pacific. Like Cabrillo, he passed the Golden Gate and sailed as far north as Tomales Bay. In ignorance of the visit of Cabrillo, he took the land in her majesty's, Queen Elizabeth's, honor and named it "New Albion." His chaplain, Rev. Dr. Fletcher, read the first English spoken prayers in this new great state. Drake had a cross erected and an effigy of Queen Elizabeth nailed thereon, and the Indians of Marin County placed on the cross their offerings and the chief of the tribe gave the country into the keeping of England.

Float, "Discovery of Monterey Bay by Sebastian Viscaino," a Spaniard, who gave us the first chart. He also erected a cross, as did all the early navigators, and at its foot left a note.

Float, "Discovery of San Francisco Bay by Don Gaspar de Portola in 1775," by Rincon Parlor No. 72 N.S. This great Spanish explorer, the first governor of California, with his Caledonian soldiers, muleteers, friars and Indian guides, found the land-locked harbor. Don Gaspar will be shown looking towards the bay, and in vision dreaming of the time when ships flying the flags of every country in the world would fill it.

Float, "The Frigate 'San Carlos,'" the first vessel to enter San Francisco Bay through the Golden Gate, by Golden Gate Parlor No. 29 N.S. and Golden Gate Parlor No. 158 N.D. While the early navigators passed the Golden Gate, it remained for the "San Carlos" to enter to discharge her freight, and then, by a strange destiny, it was washed up on the sands. All that remains of it are three copper spikes, now on exhibit in the M. H. De Young Museum, Golden Gate Park. Built of teakwood, its ribs lie buried under the concrete at Battery and Clay streets.

Group, "Anza's Expedition, Discovery of San Francisco Bay in 1775," by James Lick Parlor No. 242 N.S. and Fremont Parlor No. 59 N.D. Anza, with a gray robed Franciscan friar, plumed

GEORGE BARRON,
Chairman Pageantry Committee.

knights of Spain, soldiers and the Indians, attempted to find a bay they were to name in honor of the patron saint of the Franciscan order, Saint Francis. These men suffered every hardship, as they wandered over from the old country without a chart to guide them. Footsore and weary, discouraged and scurried, they had but one ambition, not the conquest of an empire, not to wade through gory fields of bloody strife, not for personal aggrandizement, but to discover the bay.

MISSION PERIOD.

Float, "Landing of the Ship, 'San Antonio,' at San Diego, 1769." The "San Antonio" brought from Mexico the artisans who were to aid in the colonization of California. It glided into the calm and tranquil waters of San Diego Bay, dropped anchor, and on its deck were assembled the men who gave California its heritage. The plank was lowered, sailors, artisans and soldiers descended, the ground was crossed and the standard of their faith, the cross, was erected, and also the banner of Castile. They constructed a rude altar, mass was said, and this country was taken in the name of the king of Spain.

Float, "Mission San Diego, 1769," by Twin Peaks Parlor No. 214 N.S. This was the first mission in California—the first cornerstone of conquests, the first success, the first ascendancy. In this mission took place the first baptism in California, an Indian neophyte.

Float, "Mission San Francisco de Assisi in 1776," by Dolores Parlor No. 208 N.S. and Dolores Parlor No. 169 N.D. This mission was established in 1776 on the wind-swept shores of San Francisco and little did the early friars know of the struggles of the band of sturdy colonists on the Atlantic seaboard who were struggling for their liberty and their freedom and their independence. The San Francisco mission was founded by Serra, Cambon and Palou. Palou, in this same mission, wrote the life of Serra, and he was the first historian in California.

Float, "Mission Santa Clara, 1777," by Mission Parlor No. 38 N.S. and Mission Parlor No. 227 N.D. This mission was founded by Serra in the fertile Valley of Santa Clara, and in that mission was established the first permanent college in California, from the portals of which have emanated some of the most brilliant men of the West.

Float, "Father Junipero Serra, at El Carmelo, 1784." California's great apostle ended his earthly career in the arms of an Indian, and when his death was announced the Indians were disconsolate. They rolled upon the ground, and only by the stern order of the commandante of the presidio was their grief assuaged. All California made a pilgrimage to the bier of California's founder, and each and every person took a piece of habit as a memento. Finally came the obsequies; a military mass was said and the Indians acted as pallbearers. His ashes now are at a shrine in El Carmelo.

SPANISH PERIOD.

Float, "Presidio of San Francisco," by Presidio Parlor No. 194 N.S. and Presidio Parlor No. 148 N.D. The float will portray the commandante headquarters in 1776. Around this adobe structure clings the tenderest and sweetest romance of California. In the commandante's home was born Concepcion Arguello, and in that building she was wooed and won by a Russian count.

Float, "Founding of Fort Ross by the Russians, 1806," by Santa Rosa Parlor No. 28 N.S., Santa Rosa Parlor No. 217 N.D. and Sebastopol Parlor No. 143 N.S. The Russians remained in this state for about thirty years, and were engaged in the catching of seals and otters, exporting their catch to Russia.

Float, "Baptism of Chief Marin," by Mount Tamalpais Parlor No. 64 N.S., Tamalpa Parlor No. 231 N.D., Sea Point Parlor No. 158 N.D., Sea Point Parlor No. 196 N.S., Nicasio Parlor No. 183 N.S., Marinita Parlor No. 198 N.D. and Fairfax Parlor No. 225 N.D. Marin was one of the most spectacular Indian chiefs of California. Of a commanding appearance, he ruled the tribes with an iron hand. He was known and beloved by all the early Spanish officials and padres, because of his sterling character.

ROMANTIC GROUPS.

"The Spanish Fan," by Golden Gate Parlor No. 50 N.D. The Spanish fan played a very important part in the history of California. No woman's personal adornment was complete without one.

"The Caballeros," by Pacific Parlor No. 19 N.S. as Spanish dons. The caballeros of California were lavish in expense for their attires. The well-dressed caballero of the old days paid from $2,000 to $3,000 for his uniform.

MEXICAN RULE.

Float, "Declaration of Independence in California, at Monterey, in 1822." In 1822 the Californians threw off the yoke of the Spaniards and connected themselves with Mexico, and from 1822 until 1846 the Mexicans ruled in California.

Float, "Rodeo," by Guadalupe Parlor No. 231 N.S. and Guadalupe Parlor No. 153 N.D. The rodeo was a very important epoch in California history; the marking and branding of cattle was as important as a land title. When the rodeo was given, the vaqueros from all the adjoining ranchos assisted in the branding.

Float, "Vallejo's Fort," by Petaluma Parlor No. 27 N.S. and Petaluma Parlor No. 222 N.D. General M. G. Vallejo was commander in chief of the northern forces of California and one of the greatest land owners. He erected on his Petaluma Rancho a fort, where he stored grain, wool and hides. The fort still stands, and is in a splendid state of preservation.

Float, "The Planning of Yerba Buena, in 1836," by Alcalde Parlor No. 154 N.S. and James Lick Parlor No. 220 N.D. Previous to 1836, there were two settlements in San Francisco proper, one in the Mission Dolores and the other at the Presidio. In this same year Jean Vigot, a French civil engineer, Jacob P. Leese, an American merchant, William Richardson, an English navigator, Francisco de Haro and de Guerrero, and two Franciscan padres planned, advised, argued and fought for a new city by the bay. The American, Leese, triumphed, and the Mexican government gave him a grant of land, and on the corner of Clay and Dupont streets was built the first frame structure in San Francisco, in the year 1837.

Float, "Bear Flag Republic, 1846," by Berkeley Parlor No. 210 N.S. and Bear Flag Parlor No. 151 N.D. Representing the raising of the Bear Flag at Sonoma, June 14, 1846. Robert Semple, William Ide and Mrs. Sears, who gave her skirt to the members of the Bear Flag Party to make a flag, will be impersonated.

HARMON BELL URGES CLOSE RELATIONS WITH INTERIOR VALLEYS

CLOSE AND CORDIAL RELATIONS BETWEEN Oakland and its great and fertile back-country are advocated by Harmon Bell, noted Oakland jurist and civic leader. Bell points to the fact that Oakland is the natural shopping and marketing center for the prosperous population of the San Joaquin and Sacramento Valleys, and he emphasizes the desirability of using every means to cement the relations already existing between the interior valleys and the Eastbay district to the mutual advantage of both.

the rivers is of great importance to California and should not be lost sight of by us, in our most advantageous and strategic position."

Harmon Bell is chairman of the Law and Legislation Committee of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce. He is a former president of the Chamber of Commerce, and is distinguished through many civic activities. During the war, Harmon Bell established a high record as food administrator for Oakland, and as the president of the Oakland War Service League with its membership of 30,000 men and women. He was

HARMON BELL

In this connection Harmon Bell points to the importance of the early completion of the bridge over Carquinez Straits which, he says, will serve as an "open door" from the Napa, Sonoma and Sacramento Valleys into the Eastbay region. "We should pay special attention to the subject of bringing the water-carried commerce of the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers to Oakland," Bell says. "At present we do receive a certain share of this commerce, but this proportion could be largely increased. The commerce of also the first president of the Commerce Club, and ranks foremost among those civic leaders who have made Oakland a great industrial and residential city.

"The destiny of Oakland and the Eastbay region leads on to yet greater things," Bell says. "With our splendid location, wonderful shipping and transportation facilities, unrivaled working climate, fine schools and universities, we have everything that calls for greatness in a metropolis."

530 Broadway, SAN FRANCISCO

FOR MANY MONTHS, SAN FRANCISCO'S Native Sons and Native Daughters have been making elaborate preparations for the participation of their several Parlor in the Admission Day, September 9, festivities. The Grizzly Bear presents the following information concerning the plans of some of the San Francisco Parlor:

ALTA NO. 3 N.D.G.W.

Members of this Parlor will appear in the parade costumed to represent Amazons, a race of warlike women who dwelt on the fabulously rich "island" of California, as related in a novel, "The Adventures of Esplandian," published between 1510-1521. Accompanying will be members of California Parlor No. 1 N.S.G.W.

Alta's headquarters will be at the Whitcomb Hotel, where everybody will be welcome during the afternoon and evening of Admission Day.

STANFORD NO. 76 N.S.G.W.

This Parlor has an elaborate program for jubilee week, admittance to all the affairs being by invitation. It will start with a stag banquet September 8, at which the speakers will be Senator Samuel M. Shorthridge, Justice Thomas J. Lennon, Judge Rex B. Goodcell, Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler; Edward A. Cunha will be the toastmaster.

Headed by a twenty-five-piece band, the Parlor's members, in their new uniforms, will appear escorting a magnificent float. Luncheon will be served after the parade, and at the headquarters in the Fairmont Hotel "open house" will be maintained from 3 to 6 and 8 to 12 p. m. September 12 a full-dress jubilee ball will be featured.

BAY CITY NO. 104 N.S.G.W.

This Parlor will appear in the parade in Spanish costumes. Miss Ramona Luttrell, in a handsome outfit, will accompany as a mascot.

Headquarters, in the colonial ballroom of the St. Francis Hotel, will be open from 2 to 6 p. m., September 9, and the members and their friends will be royally welcomed. From 8 p. m. to midnight, a grand ball, admittance by special invitation only, will be in order.

HESPERIAN NO. 137 N.S.G.W.

This Parlor, along with Darina Parlor No. 114 N.D.G.W., will portray in the parade the arrival of the steamship "Oregon," bringing the news of California's admission into the union.

SAN FRANCISCO NATIVES' PLANS

Headquarters will be maintained at the California Club, Clay street, between Van Ness avenue and Polk street, where dancing will be in progress and refreshments will be served.

KEITH PARLOR NO. 137 N.D.G.W.

In the parade, this Parlor will portray the legend of the early-day Monterey romance of Lieutenant William T. Sherman and a beautiful Spanish maiden. The roll of Lieutenant Sherman will be assumed by Ralph Cole, and that of his betrothed by Helen Fairbairn, president of the Parlor. A bevy of pretty girls, attired in Spanish costumes of rich laces and satins ornamented with jewels, will form an escort. This promises to be one of the spectacular features of the parade.

SOUTH SAN FRANCISCO NO. 157 N.S.G.W.

This Parlor, it is predicted, will have the biggest turnout in the parade. There will be six stagecoaches, each drawn by six fiery steeds; two prairie schooners, of the type known only to pioneer history students; two covered wagons, several carryalls, Spanish carts, tallyhos, buckboards, and every variety of vehicle used in the earliest days, as well as those now in use.

Three hundred members will be on horseback, as escorts to the vehicles, and there will be a long line of "foot passengers." All members will be dressed in costumes of the days of '49. Those who are unable to "hoof it," will be taken in the coaches.

South's headquarters in Eagles' Hall, 270 Golden Gate avenue, will open from 8 p. m. until midnight September 8, and from after the parade until midnight of the 9th. "All members of the Order, their friends and the general public are invited to partake of the Parlor's hospitality," says Grand Secretary John T. Regan, who is also secretary of No. 157.

OLYMPUS No. 189 N.S.G.W.

This Parlor will portray the Melchior Diaz expedition of September 1540 in the parade. "Melchior Diaz was the first White man to set his foot on the fertile soil of California; his expedition was the first to see this golden land over 385 years ago."

The members will appear in leather jerkins with breastplate, leather breeches, gray socks, low shoes, helmets; lances will be carried. The Olympus drum corps, appropriately uniformed, will accompany.

Headquarters will be maintained at Hibernian Hall, Sixteenth and Valencia streets, and the Parlor will be assisted in entertaining by Fremont Parlor No. 59 N.D.G.W.

PRESIDIO NO. 194 N.S.G.W.

Acting as escort to Presidio Parlor No. 148 N.D.G.W., this Parlor will have a very large representation in the parade. The members of both Parlor will appear in Spanish costumes. A gorgeous float, the commandante's headquarters, built in 1776, in the San Francisco Presidio, will be featured.

The evening of September 8 and the afternoon and evening of the 9th, the Parlor will maintain "open house" at Dean's Ballroom, 1052 Geary street, at Van Ness avenue. Both evenings there will be dancing and entertainment, and refreshments will be served. All Natives, their families and friends are invited to partake of Presidio's hospitality. Out-of-town visitors are especially invited.

DOLORES NO. 208 N.S.G.W.

This Parlor, along with Dolores No. 169 N.D.G.W., in the parade will have a float portraying Mission Dolores, and their members will be costumed accordingly.

The afternoon and evening of September 9, the Parlor will have a dance and entertainment at their headquarters, B'nai B'rith Hall, 149 Eddy street.

LONG BEACH'S LIFE GUARDS MANY "CAL." AND "STANFORD" STARS ENROLLED E. A. Barrymore

(DIRECTOR PUBLICITY, LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA, HAS THE largest bathing beach on the Pacific Coast, being more than five miles long. More than 100,000 weekly gather here from Los Angeles and other parts of Southern California, and Sunday crowds during the summer months have reached as high as 75,000 in one afternoon.

To train and equip a sufficient life guard corps for the adequate protection of such vast numbers of bathers has for a long time been a subject of study to the Long Beach municipal authorities. The old plan of stationing life guards at intervals along the beach and the various piers and making rescues by launching a

Under the new plan, the beach is divided into zones. The system involves the use of smoke bombs to signal the pending rescue of a bather who has ventured into treacherous waters. When a bather calls for help, a life guard shoots a smoke bomb, aiming it so as to burst as nearly over the drowning person as possible. This signal is seen by guards located at the end of an 1,800-foot pier which extends into the ocean midway on the beach. A twenty-one-foot high-powered launch, capable of creating a speed of twenty-five knots an hour, equipped with a 100-horsepower engine similar to those used by the United States Navy, is constantly ready at the end of a boom for the life guards to drop into boat from the shore had been in practice for many years. This system offered a certain amount of safety, but fell short of the perfection which was the aim of the authorities.

After experimenting with various methods of life guard arrangement, a system was devised that has no counterpart either on the west coast or elsewhere in the United States. Under the supervision of Squire Du Ree, commissioner of parks and recreation of Long Beach, a very unique and efficient system was adopted and is known as the "Du Ree System."

it, start the engine, and be on their way.

The bathing zone at Long Beach covers a distance of nearly six miles, consisting of several beaches. However, because of the pier's location near the center, it is possible for the speed boat to reach any section of the bathing beach in a few minutes. As the boat reaches the drowning person, a guard dives overboard immediately and supplements the efforts of another guard who approaches from the shore.

It has been found from experience that a boat can approach a bather in distress more readily and more safely from the open sea than it can by battling its way through the breakers, especially if there is a heavy sea running. When the bather is picked up from the sea and is in immediate need of medical assistance, a white flag is hoisted on the power boat. This is a signal of distress to the men on the pier to communicate with a doctor. In many cases the prompt arrival of the physician, made possible by this system of signals, has saved lives.

The system has taken hold in the East and has been put into effect at some of the east coast resorts. Its application was explained in detail at the World Congress of Community Service at Atlantic City last year and was endorsed as a decided step toward efficient life-saving service.

The personnel of the Long Beach life guards is, to a great extent, responsible for the fact that only one drowning has occurred in the past three years. A boy was drowned last year just before roll-call at eight in the morning when the guards were going on duty. There have been no fatalities this year to date, and the life guards as an organization pray that they will go through the season with a clean slate which, if it is accomplished, will be a record unequaled by the life guards of any of the beaches in the country for many years.

Captain Roy Miller is very proud of the personnel of his organization, many of whom are popular college athletic stars. He mentions with pride such men as Jim Lawson, captain of the Stanford football team; Roy Price, quarterback of the Oregon "Aggies"; Fred Price, captain of the Stanford basketball team; Don Hill, another popular Stanford football star; Bob Sims, famous for water polo and basketball at Stanford; Marvin Babcock, star of the Santa Clara University football team last year; Dennie Evans, brother of "Hogie" Evans, quarterback of California University football team; Ned Anderson, basketball and football star of Stanford.

The routine that the men are compelled to go through daily is another interesting feature of the life guard service. Captain Miller and his lieutenant, Harry P. Coleman, patrol the beach every morning and, as they approach the various stations, the guards located there are ordered to enter the surf and swim to a point beyond the "breakers" or into the open sea, then return. This keeps the men in condition and fit to combat the surf on stormy days as well as in mild weather. The guards are also drilled daily in first-aid work, using the Schaefer method of resuscitation.

Many of the men on the guards have been awarded medals for live saving. Captain Miller having been recommended last year for the Carnegie medal, which was denied him because he is a professional life saver. However, it is next to impossible to induce the men to display their medals and tell their story of how they won them. As Captain Miller in a recent interview said, "It's all in a day's work. We will give Long Beach swimmers this year the best protection they have ever had."

N.D.G.W., Miss Grace S. Stoermer, Past Grand President N.D.G.W. and chairman of the Department of History, California Federation of Women's Clubs, was the main speaker at the Long Beach Federation of States Societies' luncheon July 31. She was introduced by Mrs. Clara Fay, president of the Parlor.

"If we're just telling the truth about California, we're telling enough," said Miss Stoermer. "Restoration of old landmarks throughout California is the principal activity of the Native Sons and Native Daughters," and then she proceeded to instance what has been and is being accomplished along that line by the Orders.

WATERMELON FEED.

Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. had an enthusiastic meeting August 19, when the San Francisco jubilee was discussed. Visitors included Walter Slosson, Walter Baskerville, Charles Russell, W. H. Trollinger, and many others. The latter created no little amusement by his presentation "stunt," handing out candy, raisins, etc. A watermelon feed at the meeting's close was much enjoyed. Several members expressed their intention to be in the Admission Day parade.

DANCE GREAT SUCCESS.

The dance of July 29, given jointly by Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. and Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W., was largely attended and a great social success.

Numerous prizes were awarded, the one for the best waltzers going to John T. Newell, Grand Trustee N.S.G.W., and Mrs. Newell. E. C. Crowell as the floor manager added "pep" to the occasion.

PERSONAL MENTION.

Mrs. Emily Tower-Cousins (Long Beach N.D.) is visiting in Sacramento.

Mrs. John T. Beam (Long Beach N.D.), accompanied by her husband, is enjoying a world tour.

Edgar McFadyen (Long Beach N.S.) and his wife and daughter, Miss Marie McFadyen (both Long Beach N.D.), were visitors last month to San Francisco.

E. C. Crowell (Long Beach N.S.), his wife (Long Beach N.D.) and two little daughters left last month for Donner Lake. Before returning they will visit the State Fair at Sacramento and be in San Francisco for the Admission Day festivities.

TREES AND CHICKENS.

A hen will furnish enough fertilizer for a fruit tree, according to farmers who have tried the plan. The hens, in trees of most kinds, do no damage whatever, but keep the soil built up and the trees producing. The trees, for their part, furnish a shade for the hens in hot weather and the orchard makes an excellent range. Why the combination of poultry and fruit is not more popular, seems difficult to say.

MILLIONS OF STATE FUNDS

FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS' SUPPORT.

Sacramento—Based on $30 per pupil in average daily attendance at the public-schools last term, Superintendent of Public Instruction Will C. Wood announced August 10 allotments of the annual apportionment of state school funds. A total of $21,235,754 will be distributed, $16,- 813,938 to the elementary-schools and $4,422,816 to the high-schools.

Los Angeles County, having by far the largest number of schoolchildren of any California county, will get the greatest share of the state's contribution, $5,422,816 for the elementary and $1,515,110 for the high schools.

GRAND PRESIDENT N.D.G.W.'S OFFICIAL SEPTEMBER ITINERARY.

Berkeley—During September, Grand President Sue J. Irwin will officially visit the following Subordinate Parlors on the dates noted:

- 15th—Fremont 59, San Francisco.
- 17th—Vendome 100, San Jose.
- 18th—Fruitvale 177, Oakland.
- 21st—Las Juntas 221, Martinez.
- 22nd—El Cereso 207, San Leandro.
- 24th—Encinal 156, Alameda.
- 28th—Golden Gate 158, San Francisco.
- 30th—Bay Side 204, Oakland.

SAN JOAQUIN COUNTY NATIVES SELECT STATE SEAL FOR FLOAT THEME.

Stockton—Perhaps one of the most active of jubilee units in the state is that of San Joaquin County, where all the Parlors of Native Sons and Daughters formed one grand unit, known as the San Joaquin County jubilee booster committee, comprising representatives of Stockton 7 N.S.G.W., Joaquin 5 N.D.G.W. and Caliz de Oro 206 N.D.G.W. of Stockton; El Pescadero 82 N.D.G.W. and Tracy 186 N.S.G.W. of Tracy; Phoebe A. Hearst 214 N.D.G.W. of Manteca; Ivy 88 N.D.G.W. and Lodi 18 N.S.G.W. of Lodi.

The "top" county's division in the San Francisco Admission Day parade-pageant will be headed by a twenty-five-piece band and a magnificent float, "The Great Seal of the State of California." Minerva, the central figure of the seal, will be represented by Miss Wilma Schmidt of El Pescadero Parlor. San Joaquin County's Native Daughters will represent the sunshine, flowers and fruits of the Golden State, attired in petal dresses, hats of taffeta silk in pastel shades, silver chiffon hosiery and black slippers, carrying garlands of choice flowers of California, while the Native Sons will have the appearance of the gallant dons, in suits of black, silk sashes, and canes and accessories in keeping.

Officers of the San Joaquin County jubilee committee are: Louis Dentoni, general chairman; Julius Gaedtko, secretary. Manelita Aldecoa is in charge of the publicity. The committees on costumes include: Native Daughters—LaBelle Aldecoa, Emma Ludwig, Lorraine Gillick, Josie Frederick, Mrs. Ward Gregg. Native Sons—Ray Friedberger, Harry Herrmann, Walter Rothenbush.

CALIFORNIA

(SARAH CARMICHAEL.)

Cheer for the Queen of the Western wave—
California!

Where the sunbeams walk on a golden pave
And the moonlight lides in a silver wave—
California!

Where the day that came to the land of ours
Faded, brightest seen, and rarest does run,
When the lightning day, when it must depart,
Leaves the last red pulse of a broken heart—
California!

Cheer the Lady of the West—
California!

With a warm heart in a jeweled vest
And a regal brow by a rose-crown pressed—
California!

From the burning gold of her shining sand
Is the scepter formed for the nation's hand,
And the sword that cancels a traitor's guilt
Hath her diamond stars in its flashing hilt—
California!

Cheer for the coast where the billows sing—
California!

The proudest plume of an eagle's wing,
The brightest ray of a starry ring—
California!

Pouring the wealth of her yellow veins
And her ruby gems on the battle plains;
True to the core of her deep, warm breast,
All hail! thou beautiful Queen of the West—
California!

(With the expressed opinion that "it ought to be republished in The Grizzly Bear," this early-day poem was recently received from Mrs. Ella Sterling Michels of San Francisco, daughter of a forty-niner. Editor.)

In Memoriam

EMORY E. GILMAN.

We, the undersigned, committee of Mount Tamalpais Park No. 61 N.S.G.W., to draft resolutions, do hereby present them flowing:

Whereas, The Almighty, in His infinite wisdom, has seen fit to call to the Heavenly Father on High our beloved brother, Emory E. Gilman, thereby causing the Order the loss of a true and loyal brother, and the bereaved family a loving husband and father, therefore, be it Resolved, that we stand united for one minute in memory of the departed, and be it further resolved that copies of this resolution be forwarded to the deceased's family, and to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that they be spread upon the minutes of this meeting.

Respectfully submitted,

CHAS. H. LOCATI,
GEORGE STRICKLUS,
WALTER GRADY,

NATIVES GOING TO SAN FRANCISCO

FINAL TOUCHES ARE BEING PUT TO the plans for participation by all the California South Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters in the monster Admission Day pageant in San Francisco, September 9. Walter Slosson will marshal the division. Headquarters will be at the Bellevue hotel.

The Native Sons Parlors to be represented include: Los Angeles 24, Ramona 109, San Diego 108, Arrowhead 110 (San Bernardino), Cabrillo 114 (Ventura), Santa Barbara 116, Corona 196 (Los Angeles), Long Beach 239, Pasadena 259, Vaquero 262 (Los Angeles), Sepulveda 263 (San Pedro). Native Daughter Parlors—Los Angeles 124, Reina del Mar 126 (Santa Barbara), Long Beach 154, San Diego 208, Rudecinda 230 (San Pedro).

For the Native Sons, a costume of white and orange has been selected, and the Native Daughters will appear in Spanish costumes. The latter will ride in an auto handsomely decorated under the supervision of Mrs. Helen Cervantes.

In the division will appear twenty gaily-costumed vaqueros, in charge of Captain "Bill" Bright, escorting the Ramona Parlor stagecoach, in which will appear Joe Coyle, a shotgun messenger; Frank Pursell, a sheriff; Charles Gas-saigne, a chinaman; Ernest Orfila, a gambler; Cecil George, an indian; William Calderwood, a miner—all dressed to impersonate the assumed characters. Charles Bryant will be the cochoero.

A large committee, with representatives from all the Parlors, has been holding weekly meetings for some time, planning for participation in California's seventy-fifth birthday anniversary festival. Sidney Witkowski is chairman of the joint committee, and John Topham the secretary.

The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce will have an elaborate float in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant, and there is a possibility that a band will accompany the southern delegation and also a detail of Los Angeles City policemen.

CLEARING HOUSE LIBERAL.

The Los Angeles Clearing House, August 18, appropriated $20,000 toward the $1,100,000 Santa Barbara earthquake relief fund being collected in the state by the California Development Association.

PIONEER MONUMENT.

At Carthay Center, September 19, a bronze monument, erected by J. Harvey McCarthy of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., will be formally unveiled and dedicated.

The ceremonies will be under the supervision of the Grand Parlor N.S.G.W., and Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler will deliver the dedicatory address.

While in Los Angeles, Judge Cutler will present flags to the Belmont high-school, and will visit Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 and Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W.

U.S.C. RENDERING SERVICE.

Instructional lectures, travelogues, scientific discourses, entertaining reviews, musical programs, patriotic speeches, literary talks and other educational messages are being provided for civic associations, women's clubs, lecture groups, anniversary celebrations and commercial and social gatherings in Southern California towns by the Department of Community Service of the University of Southern California.

Through the service of this department, the art life, the civic life or the commercial life of the community—or a group's desire for development and advancement—finds the university in a position to serve not only the youth within its gates, but all of the people all of the time.

Programs are listed for contact with the Redlands Rotary Club, the Santa Paula Ebell Club, the Pasadena Women's Club, the Los Angeles Friday Morning Club and various organizations in such communities as Riverside, Glendale, Santa Barbara, Eagle Rock, Santa Ana, Fullerton, Fresno, Pomona, Corona, Whittier, San Fernando, Compton, Inglewood, La Jolla, Monrovia, Huntington Park and Hollywood.

Among the lecturers are Dean Rockwell D. Hunt of the graduate school; Dean Ray K. Immel of the school of speech; Bruce R. Baxter, director of religious and social interests at U.S.C.; Emery E. Olson, director of Metropolitan College, U.S.C.; Harold J. Stonier, executive secretary of the university; Laurabelle Dietrick, professor of English literature and assistant dean of women; with the name of Dr. von KleinSmid, president of U.S.C., heading the list.

geles Parlor No. 124 N.D.G.W. at Fremont-Pico Memorial Park was a success. A pleasing program was presented, including a splendid address on "California" by Joseph A. Adair Sr. The Allen Jr. home for babies was the subject of talks by Mr. and Mrs. Ratterree.

Officers of the Parlor were installed August 5 by D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, who was presented with a handsome traveling bag. Past Grand President Grace Stoermer making the presentation address. The trustees complimented the officers on the splendid financial condition. Toward the restoration of Santa Barbara Mission, $100 was donated, following impressive talks by Miss Stoermer and Mrs. Florence Dodson-Schoeneman, and $25 was sent to Reina del Mar Parlor No. 126 N.D.G.W. of Santa Barbara, which has been without a home since the recent earthquake. Many visitors were in attendance, from San Francisco, San Rafael, San Pedro and Long Beach.

Los Angeles' recent bride, Viola McKenzie-Holtz, was presented with an electric toaster and flashlight by the Parlor. To the strains of a wedding march, played by Organist Grace Norton, the bridal party entered the room, little Miss Baskerville carrying the gifts. Mrs. Holtz was completely surprised, but in her pleasing manner thanked the Parlor for its remembrances. Delicious refreshments were served. August 19 Los Angeles initiated a large class of candidates.

INSTRUCTIVE.

One of the most enjoyable affairs ever given by Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. was the address August 6 by Dr. Alfred Jenks of the University of Minnesota on "Known Facts Regarding Prehistoric Man and His Culture." It was, indeed, instructive, and the great regret was that he did not reveal more facts. The speaker was introduced by First Vice-president Andrew Stodel, and at the conclusion of Dr. Jenks' remarks Grand Trustee John T. Newell extended the Natives' thanks. Following the address dancing was in order. Several candidates were initiated August 13.

With the vacation season over, there will be a great deal of activity in Los Angeles, both socially and in building up the membership. President Sid Witkowski wants to do things, and he has the united support of the membership in his plans. A class of candidates will be initiated September 3, and on the 31st the Parlor will give one of its always-enjoyable dances.

JOKER BRINGS UPROAR.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., still maintaining its place as the largest, numerically, in the Order, initiated several additional candidates during the past month. The entertainment presented July 31 by the good of the order committee, Leon J. Leonard chairman, was a "dandy." Things looked serious for a while, but when the "joker" was brought to light there was an uproar. Several Native Daughters were guests on this occasion, and refreshments were served.

Ramona's program for September includes a class initiation for the 18th and a feature entertainment by the good of the order committee the 25th.

FIRST OF DANCE SERIES.

Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. will resume its meetings in the remodeled Catholic Women's Clubhouse, September 3, when a smoker will be held. September 17 a class of candidates will be initiated.

September 24 the first of a series of monthly dances will be given under the supervision of the Parlor's entertainment committee, First Vice-president John W. Topham chairman. Co-

U. S. C. ALUMNI PRESENTS WESTERN TRAVELS

PROMPTED BY THE INCREASING interest in California and Western history classes offered at the University of Southern California, Los Angeles, the Alumni Library Association has made a gift to the university of thirty-two volumes comprising the Rueben Thwaite set, "Early Western Travels." This widely-known set augments the Western history collection, which has been increased during the past year by 150 volumes.

Dr. Owen Cochran Coy, director of the California State Historical Association, has been appointed to the history faculty of the University of Southern California and will offer several courses in the field of California and Western history beginning with the fall semester, which opens September 16.

Dr. Coy was appointed to the position of the State Historical Survey Commission in 1915 and has been in charge of the work since that time, and is at present director of the California State Historical Association. He was the editor of "California History Nugget," a monthly publication giving the results of research in readable form. His lectures with the Extension Division of the University of California have had as their object the same purpose, that of bringing the results of historical research in California to the public generally.

The subjects of his most popular lectures are: "California Under Six Flags," "The Significance and Romance of California Place Names," "Pioneers of the Protestant Faith in California," and his illustrated lectures on the California Missions, of which he has made a special study. Among his larger published works are the "Guide to County Archives of California," "The Care and Use of the County Archives," "The Battle of San Pasqual," "The Genesis of California Counties," "California County Boundaries." He also edited "The Architectural History of San Carlos Mission."

With the opening of the University of Southern California in September, two new buildings will be available for use—the women's building, and the new School of Law building. The women's building will accommodate 100 college women with living accommodations and will also be the social center for the co-eds on the campus. The student-body of the School of Law has greatly outgrown the present quarters in the Tajo building. The large law library owned by the university will be brought out to the new building and, besides the classrooms, there will be public speaking rooms for practice in argumentation and court proceedings.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

MORNING

(MISS ESTHER CRONE.)

Oh Morn! how lovely is thy face,
When breaking in the endless space
With new life for the day.
You dispell darkness with its gloom,
And softest radiance fills my room
With each new gentle ray.

You slip within my window pane,
And positive admittance gain
With quiet, peaceful poise.
You smile upon the promised hours,
Awake the birds and kiss the flowers,
And never make a noise.

POPULATION OF LOS ANGELES

COUNTY INCREASES A MILLION.

In his report for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1925, Mark Keppel, superintendent of Los Angeles County schools, gave the average daily attendance of all public-schools in the county as 265,986, an increase, compared with the previous fiscal year, of 20,369. Of the increases, 1,772 was credited to the kindergartens, 11,461 to the grammar-schools and 7,126 to the high-schools.

Taking the average daily attendance in the grammar-schools of the county, 193,200, as a basis, and employing the theory that one out of every ten residents of the county is a grammar-school student, Superintendent Keppel estimated the present population of Los Angeles County as 1,932,000. This is an increase, compared with the federal census figures of 1920, of approximately 1,000,000 in population over a five-year period.

CARE WITH POISON.

Poultrymen must be careful during the spring and summer seasons, if they have plants or trees that require spraying, not to let the fowls have access to any place where poison sprays may have settled on feed. It has occurred in several places in California this year that hens have eaten green feed that had been sprayed with arsenate or nicotine solutions, and have died in large numbers. One poultryman, for example, had kale interplanted between the apple tree rows of his orchard. He applied an arsenate spray to the trees for codling moth and the spray settled on the kale. The hens ate the kale and died. A mysterious disease was suspected, until the explanation was reached. It often happens there are a lot of plants that are sprayed around a farm, and in such instances care must be exercised or valuable fowls may be lost.

"WHAT EXTREMISTS WE ARE!"

INTERWOVEN IN THE FASCINATING NEW fabrics for fall is a delightful color harmony, which is the season's mode. During the past summer, Fashion reveled in a brilliant range of gay hues, but now she chooses to adorn herself in colors more mellowed in tone, yet nonetheless alluring. This color tendency is reflected in the new woollens, which have a soft, velvety sheen, the fine light-weight worsteds of twill weave and the silky cashmere. These are well suited for dresses and ensembles and are both fashionable and flattering in lovely shades of mahogany, rust, lacquer, tapestry blue, dark purple and navy, also the range of true grays, the subdued shades of wood and the luster of metals. The rich tones of autumn leaves and the multi-colored plumage of birds all find expression in the colorings of smart woolen fabrics. Other smart woollens which display these subtle color notes are cheviot, rep, fine serge and wool ottoman.

Shiny broadcloth, especially in black, is combined with some vivid color, like red or purple, while plain weaves are much exploited. The mannish mixtures and novelty weaves come in for their share of popularity for fall and winter tailored costumes.

English tweeds, plain and fancy coverts, shepherd checks, and herringbone, chevron and diagonal weaves rank high in favor. The street shades predominate, and among them may be signaled black and white combinations and the ranges of gray, brown and beige, together with a sprinkling of the more glowing shades.

Plaids and stripes continue to be shown, but the designs are not so bold as those featured last winter. Shadow plaids are smart in blending tones of blue and brown. A pencil stripe of white, or some bright color, is displayed on tailored fabrics. Bordered cashmere and flannel are novelty materials favored for sports wear, and the designs include jacquard patterns, checks and stripes.

The popularity of balbriggan is still apparent and indications are that milady will continue to favor two-piece costumes of this soft sports fabric.

Although cottons do not figure in the domain of fall fabrics, still in our climate, where the warm weather pleasantly persists through late September, figured voiles are appropriate and attractive materials for simple frocks, to be worn about the home. They are developed in all the lovely pastel and high shades of the printed silks and georgettes. Most unusually effective are the voiles which display large, gay-colored flowers against a dark background.

Ginghams will ever remain a practical cotton material and imported designs reveal stripes, ency and softness lend themselves to the creation of dance frocks that reflect a youthful charm.

Metallic threads are applied to fabrics, not only in brocaded patterns, but in a variety of simpler weaves as well. An ombre ribbed silk, shading from a deep orange to a pale yellow, is interwoven with strands of antique gold, and a burgundy colored flat crepe is enhanced by thin stripes of gold outlined in black.

What extremists we are! How we enthuse and then grow cold, before we are able to reach a sane and reasonable appreciation of values. An idea, a fad, a mode of dress, an article of apparel is received with widespread approval, then is suddenly discarded, only to be later accepted in a greatly modified form.

checks and plaids in a wide variety of high or subdued shades.

Soft crepe satin is used for dresses and heavier satin for wool-lined coats. For afternoon frocks black and the dark tones of blue shading from crayon to deep midnight are good. A very beautiful satin brocade, decorated with a circular design, is of a rich wine color. Now and then, one notices a flash of color, as in a fabric of black crepe-de-chine bordered with brilliant roman stripes.

Plaid surah is smart in tones of reddish purple, combined with black, or shades of navy and brighter blue.

It appears as if velvet will return this season to the front rank. It comes in the soft chiffon quality that reflects such beautiful glossy tones. Sapphire, emerald, light mahogany and brown, as well as black, are colors displayed to advantage in this lovely, soft fabric.

Velvet broche is a novelty tissue that fashions afternoon frocks of exquisite charm. Plain chiffon is one of the most fashionable sheer fabrics for afternoon and evening wear. Its transpar-

LEADERSHIP

Not in one day or one year did the Birkel Music Company win its position of leadership in Southern California.

Over a quarter of a century of time . . . a policy of representing quality pianos and musical instruments . . . and the highest standards of business practice . . . have all combined to bring this position of leadership to the Birkel Company.

When you hear such names as "Steinway" . . . DUO-ART . . . Weber . . . Kurtzmann . . . you are reminded that each in its price class is without a peer.

Thus, the woman who was an advocate of the rigid over-boned waist compressing corset of long ago. As a reaction against such close confining of the figure, this generation went to the other extreme, of totally abandoning the corset, but this attitude, also, had its disadvantages.

Women discovered that in many cases going without a corset allowed the figure to spread to such an extent that some form of corseting became an absolute necessity. The slim hips of girlhood vanished, but showed a tendency to form over the diaphragm and around the waist Dame fashion, as usual, played an important role, in the one-piece frock, hanging in a straight line from shoulder to hem. Waistlines became lower, and finally were abandoned altogether.

Thus, having tried both extremes, we have arrived at the sensible middle course and must wear the corsets of today. These are made of brocade and satin, with silk elastic inserts designed to conform to the natural beautiful lines of the human figure. They are as delightful and comfortable to wear as they are lovely to behold and they can be fitted to any figure.

The step-in, the combination corset, brassiere and girdle, the wrap-around and the laced corset all await milady's approval, for the new fall fashions demand perfect corseting.

Next in importance are the soft little underthings for the young miss who goes off to school, for school days are the most thrilling events in her brief career. New faces to meet, new friends to make, naturally, then, one's school trousseau must be ready.

A corn-colored crepe-de-chine pajama suit, for instance, for a shared room, is sleeveless, with square neck and arms, and the scalloped jacket edge is piped with Nile green. Pajamas are growing more and more enterprising these days. The coat is of Chinese persuasion, with a bewildering oriental design in blue, gray, tomato, yellow and green. With sleek little tomato-colored trousers buttoned snugly around the ankles and embroidered slippers to match, a pajama suit at once graduates into the negligee class and becomes a charming costume for the tea hour.

Color and youth go hand in hand, so it is a foregone conclusion that when a step-in of peach color crepe-de-chine adds to itself bands of orchid and blue, to say nothing of tucks and lace, it becomes an essential.

Slips, of course, must be slightly more conservative, having a regard for the frock they are to chaperon. But one in sand, with brown binding and straps, may be used with many a costume.

In the trunk drawer or bag should be at least one dance set, with its comforting little brassiere and step-in that opens on the right side and is shaped at the waistline with a fitted belt that prevents unwanted wrinkles under a thin dance frock.

A sweater for brisk days is an essential garment. The slip-on model may be had, with skirt to match. The darker stripes in popular sweater colors are to be brown and buff, powder blue and gray.

The school outfit would not be complete without a useful bag in which to keep one's allowance. One of striped silk moire, with silver finish coin purse and mirror, makes a fitting companion for sorority teas and other school functions.

A three-strand necklace of frosted rounded beads in lovely pastel shades lends distinction to the dark little school frock and adds a charming colorful note at all times. For the soft, youthful arm, a bracelet curiously wrought in antique gold finish is studded with amethyst, topaz, sapphire, aquamarine or rose quartz.

GRAND PRESIDENT RECEPTION

GUEST OF HOME PARLOR.

BERKELEY—GRAND PRESIDENT SUE J. Irwin was feted by her home-parlor, Berkeley 150, August 14 at a reception and installation of officers. Having been visiting Subordinate Parlors since her election at Placerville in June, this was the first opportunity the Parlor had to officially congratulate Miss Irwin. Native Sons' Hall was lavishly decorated in the diamond jubilee colors. D.D.G.P. Gladys Clancy officiated at the installation, Miss Anna Woodall becoming president. The grand officers and deputy grand presidents of Alameda County who assisted in the installation were presented with bouquets and potted plants. Mrs. Belle O'Neill, chairwoman of the evening, presented an overnight bag to the Grand President and a silver bud-vase to the installing officer. Mrs. Gertrude Morrison, supervising district deputy, on behalf of the Alameda County deputies, presented Miss Irwin with a silver meat fork.

In the banquet hall, where the decorations were unusually attractive, refreshments were served and a program was presented. Grand President Irwin spoke interestingly on the work of the Order, emphasizing the things being done in the smaller towns of the state, where the Native Daughters are leading in civic development and upholding the pioneer spirit. She told of her interesting visits to the mountain Parlors, and traced the growth of the Order from the Mother Lode country to the present organization, and deplored the passing away of the old mining towns in which the pioneer spirit of California had its birth. In charge of the arrangements for the affair was a committee composed of Lois Williams, Belle O'Neill, Annie Woodall, Anna Klein, Mrs. J. A. Chambers, L. Baker.

FINAL APPEAL FOR WORTHY CAUSE.

A couple of years ago the Grand Parlor instituted a proposal to erect in San Francisco a suitable monument to the memory of the late Fairfax H. Wheelan (Pacific 10 N.S.G.W.), founder of the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' homeless children work. A committee was appointed to raise funds, but a sufficient sum has not yet been accumulated. Mae L. Edwards is chairman of the committee, and hopes to raise the required anything else that is salable and send to the chairman, Mrs. Mae Edwards, 1375 California street, San Francisco, by October 10. Your Parlor will get the credit. Each article received will bear a notation stating from what Parlor received, and when sold the credit will be given to that Parlor in the final report.

"Get busy now, and make your donation to the bazaar. The committee will appreciate your help."

"Old Timers' Nite."

Oakland—The July and August birthday committees of Piedmont 87 combined, with Mrs. Mildred Gluck as chairman, and entertained with an enjoyable program. Delicious refreshments were served in the tastefully decorated banquet-room. A successful whist for the Parlor's funds was given August 20, with Miss Patricia Reardon in charge, and another, with Mrs. Gretta Murden in charge, was given August 27 for the benefit of the Admission Day fund.

September 3 will be "old timers' nite" at the Parlor, when the surviving charter members—Gertrude Bibber, Tillie Paul, Kate Perry, Emma Munson, Theresa Hahn, Hattie Planer, Tillie Coulter, Anna Mohr, Jennie Brown—will be especially honored. The September birthday committee, Mrs. Gretta Murden chairman, hopes to make that occasion the banner social event of the year. A large class of candidates will, it is believed, be ready for initiation at that time.

President Betty Meinert has appointed the following chairmen of the various committees for the term: Civic, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher; spoon, Alice Miner; homeless children, Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher; welfare, Alice Miner; Admission Day, Betty K. Meinert; press, Augusta Huxsol.

funds so that the memorial may be erected and dedicated in the near future. She makes this appeal, through The Grizzly Bear:

"The Fairfax Wheelan memorial fund committee is making its final appeal for help. We are anxious to get the work completed this year, and to that end are arranging for a big bazaar, to be held the latter part of October. If everyone will do her 'bit,' we can make this affair a howling success, and it will not be hard on anyone. We are asking help of all the Parlors, so that each will have only a small share of the work. Will you not do this, to perpetuate the memory of the man who established this great work for the future men and women of California?

marshal of Copa de Oro 1925, entertained a large number of the members of the Parlor at a charmingly arranged bridge party at her home July 14. At the close of the card game the lights were dimmed and, to the strains of soft music, daintily decorated trays were placed upon the card tables before the guests. When the lights again shone forth in their usual brilliancy, exclamations of surprise and pleasure were heard from all sides, for, in the center of each tray stood a dainty bride in bridal array. At each plate a saucy kewpie displayed a message announcing the betrothal of the young hostess to J. Erle Dean. Congratulations were showered upon the happy and blushing bride elect.

July 24 the Parlor tendered a joint kitchen shower to Miss Bonnel and to Mrs. Kate Brown-Sullivan, a recent bride. Organist Harriet Hooton struck up "Here Comes the Bride" and from the anterooms emerged the guests of honor with their attendants. The music quickly changed to a lullaby and behold! there followed a beribboned bassinet and a decorated gocart, each heaped high with gifts. Atop of the Sullivan bassinet sat a chubby baby-doll, while in the Bonnel gocart reposed a pair of smiling twins. The march continued about the hall to the cheers and laughter of the assembled guests. Social conversation and delicious refreshments closed a joyous evening.

To "Carry On."

Santa Barbara—D.D.G.P. Annie E. McCaughey installed the officers of Reina del Mar 126, August 4, Edna Sharpe becoming president. D.D.G.P. McCaughey, in appreciation for her valuable services to the Parlor, was presented with a silver chafing dish.

In addition to continuing its labors in behalf of Santa Ynez Mission, Reina del Mar has resolved to lend its assistance to the restoration of Santa Barbara Mission and has named Mrs. L. V. Brady chairman of a committee to "carry on."

Officers Installed.

Taft—Officers of Miocene 228 have been installed by D.D.G.P. Josephine Barboni of Visalia, Grace P. Forbes becoming president. Mary E. Campbell, retiring president, was presented with a set of book ends and D.D.G.P. Barboni was remembered with a silver tray. Both recipients made pleasing responses. Refreshments were served following the installation ceremonies.

Officers Entertain.

Quincy—Plumas Pioneer 219's officers were installed July 20 by D.D.G.P. Louise Lee Stephan, assisted by Lolita Chaffey. Refreshments were served, and Past President Sarah Boland Wilson was presented with an emblematic pin.

Following the August 3 meeting, the members of the Parlor were entertained by President Rosabel Hunt and First Vice-president Nellie Baker Erwin at a delightful social session.

Neighbors Visit.

Saint Helena—Officers of La Junta 203 were installed August 4 by D.D.G.P. Celeste Thorsen, Madeline Vasconi becoming president. Supervising Deputy Grand President Cora Herrick of Middletown was in attendance, accompanied by members of her Parlor, Clear Lake 135. During the course of light refreshments President Vasconi presented Mrs. Herrick a pretty gift.

Joint Session.

Calistoga—Grand President Sue J. Irwin paid an official visit to Calistoga 145 and La Junta 203 (Saint Helena) in joint session here July 27. Accompanying Miss Irwin were Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher and Grand Trustee Sally Thaler. Supper was served, the tables being decorated in the Order's colors; tiny State (Bear) Flags were the favors.

At the meeting which followed two candidates were initiated, one for each Parlor. Grand President Irwin gave a most interesting talk on the Order's objects. On behalf of both Parlors she was presented with a picture of the old mill, a Napa County historic landmark.

Farewell For Member.

San Jose—D.D.G.P. Mabel Sontheimer installed the officers of Vendome 100, July 23, Edwina Buffington becoming president. Numerous presentations were made, to Past Grand President Mamie Pierce-Carmichael, the installing officer and others. Miss Beldon Gallagher and Mrs. Anna Farnsworth have been named aides to the grand marshal for the San Francisco Admission Day pageant, in which the Par-

LET US DO HOMAGE TO OUR ### STATE ON ADMISSION DAY.

BURLINGAME—GRAND PRESIDENT Fletcher A. Cutler has issued the following Admission Day proclamation, directed to the officers and members of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West:

"We are approaching the seventy-fifth anniversary of the admission of our beloved state, California, into the Union. We are obligated by every sense of loyalty and patriotism to observe the day that decided the 'Unity' of the American states. The thirty-first to be admitted into the Union, California came into existence at a critical time in the history of our country as a 'free' state and with a golden treasure that swelled the coffers of the nation to proportions that guaranteed its government at home and abroad. We of this generation would be recreant to our citizenship and our birthright if we did not appropriately manifest our appreciation of the mighty deeds and achievements that constitute California's glorious past.

"Prompted by these commendable considerations, the Native Sons and Daughters of California have banded themselves together to keep alive its history—a history that is replete with memorable events that assured the extent of the American domain and shaped the destiny of the American people. Especially do we seek to perpetuate the memories of one of the most wonderful epochs in the world's history—the days of '49.' In obedience to the laws of our Order and the annual custom, I now call on each Subordinate Parlor to again properly observe Admission Day.

"The people of California, mindful of her past, her wonderful present and the promise of her future, have invited their fellow countrymen to join in the celebration of this Diamond Jubilee Year of California. Responsive to the request of the citizens of San Francisco, the Native Sons and Native Daughters will present a historical pageant on the streets of that city on September 9th. It will be a spectacle unsurpassed for its beauty, unexcelled for its colorful settings and unrivaled for its historical significance.

"Let us once more do homage to our state on this Admission Day and again with parade, speech and music emphasize our ever-increasing love for and devotion to California."

"God's Country."

Fort Bragg—Alder Glen 200 will be represented in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant by a float depicting Mendocino County's lumber industry. In charge of the arrangements is a committee composed of J. A. Pettis, Fred Aulin, Leonard Stone, Henry Schefer, R. D. Watkins.

From the float will be distributed cards bearing this inscription: "God's Country"—McDonald-to-the-Sea Highway, San Francisco, Cloverdale, Boonville, Fort Bragg. Alder Glen Parlor No. 200 N.S.G.W., Fort Bragg, California. Fine Climate; Opportunities, Commercial, Agricultural; Running Streams, Clear and Cool; Beautiful Scenery; Redwoods; Roads Smooth and Safe; Atmosphere Refreshing and Invigorating; Good Hunting and Fishing; Good Camp Sites."

High School Dedicated.

San Rafael—Under the auspices of Mount Tamalpais 64, this city's $300,000 high-school, just completed, was dedicated by the officers of the Grand Parlor, headed by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, August 22. The oration was delivered by Associate Justice of the California Supreme Court Thomas J. Lennon, a past president of Mount Tamalpais.

San Rafael was beautifully decorated in diamond jubilee colors, red, yellow and green, for the occasion. Preceding the dedicatory ceremonies there was a street parade, and following them the Parlor entertained the grand officers at a banquet. In the evening there was a Spanish costume ball.

Mount Tamalpais, along with Sea Point 158 (Sausalito) and Nicasio 183—the three Marin County Parlors—will have in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco a historic float, representing the "Baptism of Chief Marin," which took place in the old mission town of San Rafael about 1817.

Hospitality Extended Scouts.

Ukiah—Ukiah 71 joined with the local Troop 24 B.S.A. in extending the hospitality of this city July 29 to the Boy Scouts of America from many communities camped at Ford's swimming pool under the supervision of Eugene C. Peckham, camp director.

Everybody was made to feel at home. Judge Preston spoke on "Boy Scouts, Citizens of the Future," and the scouts gave an interesting demonstration of camp life. Following the program ice cream and cake were served. Rousing cheers were given by the visiting scouts of Camp Skidoo for the Native Sons, Troop 24 and all who contributed to the evening's enjoyment.

Big Sum for Mission.

Ventura—The benefit dance given July 22 by Cabrillo 114 to raise funds with which to repair the damage done in the recent earthquake to Ventura Mission netted close to $1,000. The committee in charge was J. H. Morrison, Charles Daly, Pablo de la Guerra, Edgar Orton, Lawrence Rundle, Herbert Harwood, Charles Donlon.

A ritual team from Ramona 109 (Los Angeles) visited the Parlor July 24 and initiated eight candidates for Cabrillo and five for Ramona. Composing the team were Walter Baskerville, John McCroskey, Adolph Rivera, Leon Leonard, Dwight Crittenden, William Coffey, Carl Mueller, Walter Slosson, Ralph Harbison, Julius Krause. Grand Trustee John T. Newell was one on the long list of speakers, which included not only visitors but members of Cabrillo.

Annual Roundup.

Oakland—An immense outpouring of members of Piedmont 120 is expected September 3, which has been set down in the Parlor's calendar as the date for the annual roundup. The good of the order committee has exclusive charge, and promises a sensational program as well as out-of-the-ordinary "eats." As usual, Piedmont will make a big showing in the Admission Day pageant.

Welcome Arches Presented.

Placerville—At the meeting of the Board of City Trustees August 3, Fred Irwin, representing Placerville 9, presented to the city the welcome arches constructed by the Parlor at the east and west entrances to Placerville. In accepting the arches the trustees unanimously adopted the following resolution:

"Be it and it is hereby resolved that the Board of Trustees of the City of Placerville, on behalf of the inhabitants of said city, accept the arch towers heretofore erected by Placerville Parlor No. 9 of the Native Sons of the Golden West at the east and west entrances of said city, and that the thanks and appreciation of the city be expressed by publication of this resolution in the local papers."

Moonlight Boat Ride.

San Diego—San Diego 108 entertained the Native Daughters and other friends at a moonlight ride on beautiful San Diego Bay, August 6. A four-piece orchestra was provided for dancing, there was a program of vocal and instrumental selections, and refreshments were served. The outing was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone.

Grand President Visits.

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

FREQUENTLY, THE HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE is asked to name the elements that combine to make Hollywood popular and successful. The question could be answered variously and without allusion to anything particularly specific, because Hollywood possesses an extraordinary amount and number of excellent causes that lead to popularity and success as an effect in the community.

Quite naturally, it is generally assumed that to the motion picture industry goes the preponderance of specific notability in making Hollywood the important community it is today, and it is a fact that to this great industry should be accorded first place in this respect. The success of Hollywood is based, primarily, on the coming and subsequent activities of the "movies." And it is quite natural to assume, also, that had the motion picture industry not selected Hollywood as the site for the industry's capital, Hollywood today would not proudly point to the extraordinary population growth in the past decade.

But there are other important elements which should share with the motion picture industry prominence in building up Hollywood, as not only an object and mecca toward which much of the tourist travel of the country points, but as a locale for permanent residence. Climate, moderate the year through, has its "place in the sun" as a prominent and important influence in Hollywood's development, and so, in the final analysis, has the proximity of this place to the beach and the mountain resorts.

But, supported by and supporting these influences are the two outstanding features that attract equally with the motion picture industry, the climate and the proximity to the beach and mountain resorts—the "Pilgrimage Play," Life of the Christ in drama, and the Summer Symphonic Concerts, as presented by the Hollywood Bowl Association in that notable outdoor theater in the foothills of the Santa Monica Mountains, the Hollywood Bowl.

Through the first mentioned attraction, Hollywood has won the sobriquet "Oberammergau of America," and through the summer concerts, the home of the "Symphony Under the Stars." Through six successful seasons and through nationwide publicity the "Pilgrimage Play" at Hollywood is steadily becoming recognized as "America's Passion Play."

"The Pilgrimage Play" fits in admirably with the growing tendency in Southern California to promote the resources of this section as a stimulant to summer travel, the play being produced annually in the months of July, August and September. The play is strictly non-profit and non-sectarian. It originated through the efforts of one woman, Christine Wetherill Stevenson, transcriber and producer. Is it not a splendid achievement for Hollywood to gradually become known not only in America but elsewhere in the world as the home of the finest regular production of that greatest of all inspirations to mankind, the story of the life of the Christ?

The average season of the "Pilgrimage Play" is ten to twelve weeks. The Christ drama is presented every night in the week, except Sunday, and attracts an average of 1,000 persons to every performance. Thus it will be seen that no less than 60,000 witness this wonderful tracing of the footsteps of The Christ during every season. Because of the greater capacity for accommodating throngs, the Hollywood Bowl naturally plays to a vaster composite multitude during the regular season, which extends over practically the same period as that of the Christ drama. Summer concerts, however, are given on only four nights each week, thus the advantage of time favors the Christ drama. Because of the superior seating capacity of the bowl, however, the concerts play to a much larger season's audience, reports of the sum total last year showing something more than 200,000.

Hollywood Bowl comprises nearly sixty-five acres in the heart of Hollywood Hills, near the junction of Highland and Cahuenga avenues. It is a naturally perfect amphitheatre, with space for approximately 90,000 people. It now has seats for about 30,000. The natural acoustic is so perfect as to render audible and distinct throughout the bowl the slightest word or sound made from the stage down in the center.

History tells of padres, Indians and soldiers using the spacious, shady hollow as a resting-place as they journeyed along El Camino Real (the King's Highway) in early Spanish-California days. Within a stone's throw the famous treaty was signed which translated California's destiny into an American one. A half-mile away, in pioneer days, lived Don Tomas Urquides, his modest, hospitable home the center for rodeos, dances and all sorts of meetings in Spanish fashion. Before him, there dwelt Chief Cahuenga, head of all surrounding Indian tribes.

In this generation, the greater part of the sixty-five acres was first owned by two generous women, Mrs. Chauncey Clarke and Mrs. Christine Wetherill Stevenson, founder of the "Pilgrimage Play." When these two public-spirited women realized the value of their property as an outdoor home for art, as a communal expression they sold their land to the community of Hollywood at a nominal sum. A mortgage of $60,000 was carried by the people of this community and paid off in 1923.

July 4, 1919, the men, women and children of Hollywood met in the bowl for their first real "community sing." Arthur Farwell, the "father of community singing," spoke then of the future of a community spirit and community music, fostered in such a spot as the bowl could become. The people met again for an Easter Sunrise Service. They decked their first "Altar of Lilies," they listened for the first time to the fresh voices of their children, in chorus, singing outdoors at dawn. At Christmas time they brought a tall tree down from the mountains, and gathered around it at dusk for their first communal Christmas Eve service. Followed pageants, one staged by H. Ellis Reed depicting the "Landing of the Pilgrims," a beautiful American historical play on the three hundredth anniversary of the arrival at Plymouth Rock, 1620-1920. On Armistice Day, 1921, the clubwomen organized a jubilant peace day meeting in the bowl, with Schumann-Henk as soloist. Hollywood children scattered flowers among the audience, and sang. In those early days a few sun-blistered wooden benches started precipitously in a little space around a make-shift stage. Hollywood high-school installed a $3,000 lighting equipment for their presentation of "Twelfth Night," and left it as their contribution to a growing bowl ideal. Little by little seats have been added, and this year permanent benches are being installed, with the nameplates of their donors—a gracious way for music lovers to pay a lasting tribute to this Temple of Music!

Motion-picture folk living in Hollywood joined forces to produce under the open sky and a full moon, "Midsummer Night's Dream," a lavish performance with renowned stage and screen stars taking part. Grand opera has been staged and sung in the bowl, enhanced by a "backdrop" of lovely hillslopes. Edward Johnson, Henri Scott and Margarite Sylva sang "Carmen" in 1922. In 1923 "Aida" was produced magnificently, with Lawrence Tibbett and other fine artists in the cast. Community "sings," picnics and immense gatherings have made the bowl spirit of friendliness burn the brighter.

President Harding's untimely death was commemorated by the unforgettable rendition of Tchaikowsky's "Pathetique" to an immense crowd. Harding's last public speech had been read in the bowl by his secretary shortly before, and the inspiring words of part of his text will be graven into the cornerstone of the permanent stage, when it is constructed. He looked toward the brotherhood of man. One meeting celebrated the planting of trees by the Daughters of the Revolution. Another brought Knights Templar from every corner of the world, to celebrate the

A UNIQUE "LITTLE THEATER"

M. Elisabeth Smith

(PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

DURING THE PAST FEW MONTHS ONE of the most modern and completely equipped community theatres has been erected in Pasadena at a cost of approximately $400,000. The new "Little Theatre" is the home of the Community Playhouse Association, and this structure stands as a monument to the success of this organization.

The history of the Community Theatre, as well as the association back of it, is colorful. Early in the fall of 1916, Gilmor Brown came to the Savoy Theatre and there, with his group of professional players, attempted to keep alive the spoken drama, which was threatened with destruction, due to the advent of the moving pictures.

After much discouragement, late in the summer of 1918 the Community Playhouse Association was organized. It is now, as then, purely a chased, plans were drawn, and money was donated for this great project, and at the end of two years of steady advancement, eight years after the idea was evolved, the building was finished.

It is a home worthy of much praise, and can be pointed to with pride by Pasadenans. As a theatre, it is entirely different from the commercial playhouse. It is essentially a working center with various departments, the main idea, of course, being for the presentation of plays, but space has been provided for community activities, as well.

The building is so constructed that the main auditorium is set well back from the street, and the recital hall, offices and shops are on either side, thus forming a friendly court where a great profusion of palms, ferns and other plants have been placed. An artistic stairway winds up to the balcony, on which the offices, etc., open.

non-profit organization with the players on an amateur basis. Under the new arrangements, production was begun in the Shakespeare Clubhouse, but this did not prove satisfactory, so the players returned to their former playhouse, and remained there until the completion of their new home last May.

The attendance and interest in the productions increased finally to such an extent that the need of a permanent home for this association was felt, and plans were immediately laid to bring this home into existence. A lot was pur-

This stairway is one of the most beautiful and impressive features of the exterior of the theatre.

The architecture is of the early California type, typical of the time when the padres and the Indian workmen were not skilled in the intricacies of design and building. The exterior is finished in white stucco, with roofs of hand-made mission tile in red, dotted here and there with green, giving the appearance of age, which is carried throughout the entire structure. Great lamps of wrought iron adorn the massive pillars which lead to the foyer, and here the decoration takes on an added feeling of richness and splendor.

Immediately upon entering the auditorium, which is separated from the foyer by heavy hangings, a sense of the glory and grandeur of the building is felt. Such a friendly, home-like atmosphere pervades in all this great beauty. It greets you at the very entrance, and is felt throughout the entire theatre.

The first feature of the interior of the theatre that impresses one is the proscenium arch, which is elaborately decorated and covered with gold foil. Unlike most arches, it is built rather low, the curtain when raised being completely hidden, and with this arrangement the arch forms a perfect frame for the scene being presented.

On either side of the stage are false boxes, the upper doors of which have elaborately decorated grilles, swinging open when needed. The lower doors are guarded by old Spanish chests ornamented with brass straps and nail heads. Hangings of red and gold are used here, and the act curtain is of black velvet heavily embroidered with gold designs. The main drop curtain depicts an old Spanish galleon, brilliant in hues of green and gold, with a large red pennant flying from the poop deck. This curtain was designed by Alson Clark, one of the foremost painters of America.

The stage is one of the most perfectly equipped in the country. The latest mechanical devices are employed in handling the paraphernalia, and the lighting effects are most striking. There is a commodious scene dock and a large stage entrance. The switchboard is the latest type and is so compactly constructed that it can be efficiently operated by one man instead of requiring the services of two or three electricians, as is customary in most other theatres.

The auditorium has a seating capacity of 850. All of the seats are upholstered in leather of a shade that harmonizes with the general color scheme perfectly. Two main aisles go directly to the orchestra pit, where steps lead under the stage and into the Green Room. Here the very heart of the theatre is found. At the conclusion of each performance, a reception is held in this room, where members of the cast are presented to the audience.

The value of this Green Room is a great factor in the Community Playhouse. People in all walks of life are members of the association, and those who have been deprived of the advantages of a more cultured environment in their youth have an opportunity to improve themselves, for in here there is no sign of social caste. Millionaires rub elbows with plasterers, and all meet on a common ground.

Surrounding the Green Room are completely equipped dressing rooms. In addition there are shower baths, storerooms, a fully appointed kitchen, a wardrobe room, and a musicians' library where 2,700 volumes are at the disposal of the members.

The business offices are over the main auditorium, and on the second floor of the right wing is to be found the recital hall, which is in itself a complete little theatre with a seating capacity of 250. Well appointed dressing rooms are provided here also, and in this hall recitals, meetings of various kinds, dances and other forms of entertainment are held.

The association itself consists of more than 1,100 performers, who are eager and ready for a part in the production of a play, no matter how small that role may be. Several hundred of these players are practically professionals, and this occurs not only through their years of experience, but many are really employed in the moving pictures in nearby communities. Many successful professionals in different parts of the country began their careers in this little theatre in Pasadena.

Plays are staged continuously, summer and winter, it being customary to present four plays traveling beausant and its reception by the California knights.

HOLLYWOOD BOWL

Gatherings of all kinds have taken place, but the climax of the community life in Hollywood, and of outdoor music in this country and in symphony music of all time, is in the Bowl Summer Concerts, which are in their fourth successful season. The people of Hollywood had been meeting for weekly sings in their high-school auditorium ever since wartime. A strong feeling of neighborliness had grown up among them, so, when Artie Mason Carter became their president and in 1922 proposed summer concerts for the bowl at "popular" prices, a splendid group of people were quick to organize. The bowl was still under heavy debt, so a guaranty fund had to be raised to insure engaging the players of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra. The women of Hollywood formed "teams" and plunged into the seemingly hopeless task of selling season tickets for an eight weeks' season of concerts. All obstacles were met and overcome in those pioneering days and the now-famous "Symphonies Under the Stars" opened with Alfred Hertz conducting. At first the crowds were small, people were not used to listening to symphonies.

The second season of "Symphonies Under the Stars," with a series of free afternoon concerts for the children of Los Angeles schools, orphanages and other institutions, for the disabled veterans at Sawtelle, and for old and blind people, made a still greater success, and pioneered still further in that most far-reaching of all phases of music—the making of future audiences! Emil Oberhoffer, whose twenty years of conducting the splendid Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra had endeared him to all the Mississippi Valley, won every heart and every intellect when he conducted the second bowl season.

At the end of the second season, the concerts were not only found to close with a profit, but a sufficient sum was raised to pay off the mortgage, which was publicly burned at the concluding concert. This was a proud moment for Hollywood, and one of the most romantic stories in the world! Long before the summer concerts opened, George Brookwell proposed a "penny-box" on every mantelshelf in Hollywood, with a "penny-a-day" from each member in the family. Ten thousand dollars raised in this way, added to by pennies dropped in the miniature "golden bowls" in the pepper-tree lane, approaching the bowl proper, helped to pay off the bowl debt and, better still, brought hundreds of people into direct contact with and a lively interest in the bowl ideal!

A third season of concerts brought Alfred Hertz again to conduct, and still larger audiences. About three-quarters of a million people have attended the concerts. Visitors pouring into Hollywood from all parts of the earth to inspect, at close range, this new "people's music" movement, caught the vision, and stayed! Backed now by every thinking citizen of Southern California, the great "Temple in the Hills" is the center of attraction for travelers, musicians, and artists from every country. It now is the outdoor music center of America.

The fourth concert year, the festival year in Hollywood Bowl, is half over. American genius is finding a larger recognition and greater honor, before the largest audiences ever assembled for symphony concerts. Ernest Bloch, Edgar Stillman Kelley, Ernest Schelling, Deems Taylor, Dr. Howard Hanson, Samuel Gardner and other Americans are being presented to the bowl audiences as composers, conductors and soloists. Eight weeks of thrillingly beautiful programs, conducted by men renowned the world over. Fritz Reiner of Cincinnati, Willem van Hoogstraten of New York, Rudolph Ganz of St. Louis, Ethel Leginska, Walter Henry Rothwell, Sir Henry Wood of London and others are creating lasting impressions by their musicianship. Compositions never before heard in the West, some never heard in America, are included on these marvelous programs. The crowds are responding in a remarkable way.

TOKIO-LOS ANGELES.

It is reported that a site has been selected in Los Angeles for a $250,000 Buddhist temple, to seat 1,000 persons, a fifteen-room house for priests, and a community hall. Seven priests and five monks will hold forth, to make Tokio-Los Angeles the headquarters of Nippon's sphere of activities in the United States.

It is not known, even to Los Angeles residents, that an Asiatic peril exists in their midst. It is a fact that the Japs have the people of that city by the throat. There are tens of thousands of Japs in Los Angeles County, and they control the entire vegetable business, and their fruit stores are to be found in almost every section of that city, competing with the American, and slowly, but surely, driving the White American out of business.

Is the purchasing public of that city absolutely dead to Americanism, and do they want to be brought down to the level of Oriental conditions? It seems so!—Facts and Figures, Sacramento.

LOS ANGELES COUNTY FAIR

(EDWIN M. GORE.)

A VERITABLE PANORAMA OF CALIFORNIA, from the old pre-state Spanish days, through the "wild west" frontier period to the present highly cultured stage of intensive culture and rich development, will be unfolded at Pomona, September 22 to 26, inclusive, at the fourth annual Los Angeles County Fair.

This being not only the "diamond jubilee" of California, but the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Pomona as well, a truly native son motif will be carried out in a series of pioneer pageants, to be staged daily in front of the grandstand at the racetrack.

The interest of these early-day tableaux, in which genuine old native Californians with the blood of old Spain in their veins will personally appear, will be augmented by a series of "wild west" events, it is announced by the management. Veteran cowpunchers, lariat artists and broncho busters from the "western" film studios and from the cattle ranches of the West, will appear in rodeo performances typical of the old "two-gun" days in the West.

Modern life in California will be exemplified by afternoon races of thoroughbred pacers, trotters and running horses. By horse shows each night in which the deluxe animals owned by wealthy fanciers of this section will be exhibited. By an automobile show displaying the cream of the nation's 1926 model engineering accomplishments in motordom. By agricultural, horticultural, livestock, poultry, rabbits, pigeons, fine arts and flower displays and exhibits of the countless and varied prize products in which California excels in 1925, three-quarters of a century after the state's foundation.

Much stress is being laid by the fair management on the pioneer pageant. It is believed this will lend the true Spanish flavor to this year's fair. With red, yellow and green selected as official colors for the fair city and for the fair grounds and with many ancient vehicles and pioneer implements of industry collected for the occasion, the series of prologues to the daily matinees of horse racing should prove a most interesting contrast to modernity—powerful tractors, motor-driven farm machinery, high-powered automobiles, etc.

Taking an especial interest in this phase of the 1925 fair, it is announced, is the Pomona Historical Society. This organization has collected a veritable museum of old photographs and historical articles to be displayed. At this exhibit may be seen the much-whiskered first city council of the fair town, pictures of cowpats which now are broadly paved Los Angeles County highways running through intensively cultivated districts and built-up cities, as well as photographs of early-day women—native-daughter belles of yore in their costumes which form such a quaint antithesis to the sketchy up-to-date gowns of the 1925 model flappers, mothers and even grandmothers.

Students of antique furniture—and there are many such, now that there's such a renaissance of interest in "period stuff,"—will learn at the Los Angeles County Fair there was a genuine "California period" to be reckoned with, along with Colonial, Georgian, Queen Anne, etc. In the exhibit of antiques will not only be shown some of the most precious pieces collected from New England, the South and abroad, but also some lovely old furniture designed and built by veteran native son artists nearly a century ago.

All in all, according to announcements of the fair management, the 1925 Los Angeles County Fair at Pomona, starting a five-day run on September 22, will be replete with interest to all—a truly educational spectacle which will be a cross section of life and manner and products of the Golden State since the day that "Eureka" was emblazoned on its coat of arms.

a month. Splendid performances have been given of "Mary the Third," "Fashion," "He Who Gets Slapped," "Intimate Strangers," "Little Women" and many other equally popular plays.

Pasadenans are indeed proud of their new playhouse, and especially are they proud of the organization which has given so unselfishly of its time and money to further the cultural standard of this community.

PASADENA TO FEATURE THEATER PARTY FOR ALL NATIVES.

Pasadena Parlor No. 259 N.S.G.W. had a most interesting meeting August 6 at the attractive home of President John Breiner, when a program of activity was mapped out. Grand Trustee John T. Newell was in attendance and offered suggestions which were approved. The Parlor will have representation in the San Francisco Admission Day pageant, and Third Vice-president Oliver McCobb has been appointed one of the grand marshal's aides.

Wendell Wilson, a member of the Parlor, will entertain all Native Sons and their ladies at the Liberty Players' tent show some time around September 20, the exact date to be later announced. Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler will be among those present. Secretary Vincent E. Savory will, in behalf of Pasadena, which is arranging the details, send an invitation to all the southern Parlor. A great outpouring of Native Sons and their ladies is urged and anticipated.

Manager Wilson of the Liberty Players will be the host, and wants all the Natives as his guests because he is not only one of them, but is particularly pleased at the arrangements, just completed, for a theater building for his company, to be ready by the middle of winter. It will be erected at the corner of Chester and Colorado streets, within a stone's throw of his birthplace.

Population Growing—According to the State Bureau of Vital Statistics, there was a daily average of 239 births in California during the first five months of 1925. For the same period last year, the daily average was 237.

RULES FOR TESTING ABILITY PROSPECTIVE AUTO OPERATORS.

Ten rules for California peace officers to follow in the examination of prospective automobile operators and chauffeurs, as required in the Motor Vehicle Law recently effective, have been laid down by the State Division of Motor Vehicles. Here they are:

Let applicant start car; see how he shifts gears.

Let him drive short distance and stop; note signal he gives.

Have him back car into curb.

Have him start car and get away from curb.

Have him make left and right turn; note hand signal.

See if he can read road signs.

See if he has any physical defects and note if they affect his carefulness while driving.

See if he is cautious and careful at all times.

Ask him if he is familiar with headlight requirements.

Give him a copy of the Motor Vehicle Act and tell him to study it.

CALIFORNIA, PER CAPITA, LEADS IN NUMBER OF AUTOMOBILES.

Sacramento—To August 1, motor vehicle registrations in California for 1925 totaled 1,350,517, exceeding the total number for all of 1924, according to Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Department of Motor Vehicles.

"California is now the second state in the union in point of motor vehicle registration," says Marsh. "New York is first and that state beat us out last year by only 70,000. However, the number of machines in California in proportion to the population is the highest in the world. In this state there is a machine for every 2.9 persons."

"BOX BACK" CAR OWNERS MUST SUBMIT AFFIDAVITS.

Owners of small cars equipped with "box backs" will be required to submit an affidavit covering the uses to which the vehicle is put to secure its registration under the regular automobile license fee, says Will H. Marsh, chief of the State Division of Motor Vehicles.

Owners of such vehicles were relieved from payment of the higher commercial fee by an amendment to the law, recently effective, which provides that "box back" cars used only incidentally or occasionally for commercial purposes could be registered on the regular $3 fee. An affidavit will be necessary, Marsh says, to prevent persons using such cars entirely for the transportation of property from taking advantage of the new act.

Millions From Gas—For the second quarter of 1925, California collected a gasoline tax of $4,065,589; the tax was paid on 203,279,495 gallons of gasoline.

A LITTLE GIRL'S

set, in the first part of May, the old "California" slowly made her way through the Golden Gate, not the truly gate of gold that the little girl had pictured, but between high cliffs and beautiful green hills, golden in many places with the lovely wild flowers, past Alcatraz, then a conical rock surmounted by its lighthouse, past Yerba Buena, or Goat Island, to a long wharf extending far out in the water. San Francisco Bay then reached nearly to Montgomery street and the little town of San Francisco had only a few scattered small buildings on the hills, now so closely covered with houses.

Mr. Cook secured one of the few carriages for his family and they were soon on their way to the house on Clay-street hill, where he had engaged rooms for them. Mattie was curious to see it, as she had heard some one say that it had been brought on a ship around Cape Horn and she imagined it sailing along somewhat like the Noah's arks so popular with children, but she was quite disappointed to hear that it came in sections in the hold of a vessel and that it had been put together after its arrival.

The children were glad to go to bed, after a good supper, but it seemed only a moment to the little girl before she was awakened by the ringing of bells and loud shouts and cries. They had arrived in time for one of the great fires which almost wiped out San Francisco that year. As the child looked out of the window onto the sea of fire below she was terribly frightened, but the houses then were mostly shacks, with here and there an adobe one, and they burned very quickly.

At last the flames died down and she went to bed again, to wake the next morning to lovely sunshine. All around the house were the beautiful green hills covered with lovely wild flowers, with here and there scrub-oak trees, wild lilac and buckeyes. As she looked on the beautiful picture the little girl's heart was filled with joy and love for her new home, and she knows now that no Native Son or Native Daughter can love California any better than she does today.

PALO ALTO, THE HOME OF STANFORD UNIVERSITY

Ray W. Smith

(SECRETARY PALO ALTO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

SOME CITIES STRIVE TO BECOME larger, others to become finer and greater. Such a city as the latter is Palo Alto, Santa Clara County, California, the home of Stanford University. Palo Alto is situated at the head of the beautiful Santa Clara Valley, on the Peninsula of San Francisco, thirty miles south of San Francisco.

While not an old city, Palo Alto has traditions and had a colorful and romantic beginning. Palo Alto (Spanish for "tall tree") takes its name from a giant redwood which stands on the banks of the San Francisquito Creek at the northern entrance to the city. This tree served as a landmark for the early travelers and was frequently mentioned in the records of some of California's most noted Pioneers. The tree stands not only at the entrance of the city, but at the head of the Santa Clara Valley, and here many of the early travelers made their camp.

Later, Senator Leland Stanford and his wife made their home near this tree, while the former contributed so much to the beginning of the state. Here, also, they raised their only child, Leland Stanford Junior, only to lose him when he was 16 years old. Their lives had been centered around the boy, and after his death their future was spent building a great memorial to him—Leland Stanford Junior University.

Here, Senator and Mrs. Stanford, when they founded this great university in honor of their son, founded also a city, which has tried, and successfully so, to be an honor to the university of which it is so proud and to the state and the nation of which it is a part. High ideals inspired and became a part of the university and the city with which it is so closely associated. Palo Alto never expected or never desired to become a large industrial center. Rather, it hoped to be one of the leading educational centers in the world, a place where people could live amid cultured and refined surroundings and give their children an ideal education—a place where people would be happy and contented and their children strong and healthy.

The city's ideals have been high, but few will deny that it has striven to live up to them and accomplished much. In addition to its great university, the city now has many private schools. In addition to these, it is to be expected that such a city would develop an excellent public-school system. No expense is ever spared to make the school system of the very highest order. Beautiful buildings have been constructed for the high-school, intermediate-school and grammar-schools, but of more importance than this, high educational standards have been maintained. Many subjects are taught that are not common to most schools, and careful attention is given to the development of the body as well as the mind of the children.

Palo Alto has been equally fortunate in its municipal government. Here, no hint of corruption or graft has ever existed, and the municipal bodies have functioned with unusual efficiency. This has been due, to a considerable extent, to the character of the men and women serving in public office, and also to the type of average citizen who would be attracted to such a city. The faculty of Stanford University has furnished the city with many of its leading public officials. At present, the mayor is a professor of political science at the university and one of the country's leading experts on municipal government. The chairman of the Board of Public Works is an eminent engineer and professor emeritus of the university. All serve without pay and give thousands of dollars' worth of valuable time to the city each year, not only for its development, but for its improvement as well.

The Planning Commission has zoned Palo Alto wisely and well and provided for further growth on scientific and artistic lines, instead of the hit-and-miss fashion which has been all too common in American cities. The Board of Public Works paves the streets and keeps them well lighted. It operates the utilities, such as water, gas, light and power, at a profit.

Palo Alto also maintains as a community enterprise a well-organized and well-conducted Community Center. This includes a community house, which is the gathering place of the citizens on many occasions, and where are conducted classes in clay modeling, basket weaving, dancing and Spanish, besides a night school in high- and grammar-school subjects. This building is also the headquarters for many of the city's organizations, and serves as a rest-room and meeting place for visitors. In back of the community house is an outdoor theatre where programs are given on such occasions as Memorial Day, Armistice Day and other special holidays.

Health conditions in Palo Alto are unusually good—so good, in fact, that the United States Government established one of its largest hospitals here. The city maintains a Health Department that is recognized as one of the most efficient and effective in the country. Operating with a liberal budget and a trained staff, it has been able to reduce the number of preventable diseases to the minimum. The Palo Alto Hospital is owned by the city and operated on lease by the Medical School of Stanford University.

One of the principal factors in keeping the base of the foothills. They are constructed of buff sandstone, roofed in red tile, and grouped around open courts, or quadrangles, connected with continuous open arcades, a type finding its inspiration in the Spanish missions of California. In the center of the main quadrangle is the Stanford Memorial Church which, with its rich mosaics and Latin style of architecture, is considered by many critics the most beautiful church in America. The library, museum and art gallery contain a generous share of the world's treasures in books, art and educational materials. These are available to the residents of the campus and the city.

The campus itself has a considerable settlement of homes, fraternity and sorority houses, and public buildings. It has its own postoffice, waterworks, fire department, bookstore and publishing plant. The Stanford Stadium is one of the largest and most unique in the United States. It is constructed of earth, hollowed out and piled up in the shape of a horseshoe, with wooden seats and the sides covered with grass and shrubbery. It seats about 65,000 people comfortably.

Stanford University has been built upon the sound American ideals of the founders and now takes rank with Harvard, Yale and Princeton. It offers instruction in a full range of courses leading to bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees. Registration is limited, so that the student has an opportunity of close contact with the instructor and the advantage of being able to do his work in small groups rather than in large classes. The total registration is 3,000, of which but 500 are women. The highest of scholastic standards are required, resulting in a student body of an unusually high type.

As would be desirable, the university and the City of Palo Alto work together in the closest harmony. University functions are always open to Palo Alto people, usually without charge, and the city is justly proud of the institution.

Besides being an educational center, Palo Alto is rapidly becoming a city of homes. This is to a very large extent due to the fact that it is an education center. People are realizing more and more what advantages this city has to offer in that line. Here, it is possible for one to raise his family where it is assured that they will be healthy, happy and receive the best there is in education. A child may start in kindergarten and go through the grade-schools, high-school and university to a degree of doctor of philosophy without the necessity of ever having to leave home.

Palo Alto has a population of approximately 12,000, according to a recent census taken by the Health Department. That is within the corporate limits, and does not include Stanford University, South Palo Alto, East Palo Alto, Ravenswood or North Palo Alto, the last four of which are communities of small ranches of one to six acres. While they are not politically a part of the city, they are so close that they must be counted a part of the community. Altogether, the city has an immediate trading area of about 25,000.

To the south of Palo Alto stretches the Santa Clara, one of the most beautiful and most fertile valleys in the world. Here, half the prunes raised in the world are grown, and no other single district produces so many apricots or cherries. Pears, apples, peaches and plums, besides all kinds of berries, are raised here, and each year nearly 200,000 tons of fruit, both canned and fresh, are shipped out of Santa Clara County to the Middle West and East and to foreign countries. Approximately one-third of the total canned fruit output of California is from this valley. In the springtime, when all the orchards are in bloom, Santa Clara Valley is a beautiful picture.

Palo Alto is modern in every way, and well organized. The Chamber of Commerce has a membership of approximately 400, and is extremely active in every project which has for its object the betterment of the city. Other organizations have good memberships and are very active.

STANFORD MEMORIAL CHURCH FROM THE INNER QUAD.

health conditions so good is the climatic condition, which is almost ideal. The general location with reference to the Pacific Ocean, the high interior plateau, the trend of the trade winds, together with the closer factors of San Francisco Bay and the sheltering mountains which protect the valley from the ocean fogs, combine to produce one of the most perfect climates in the world. This has been so declared by the United States Weather Bureau, which points out that there are three "perfect climate belts" in the world, one in the Canary Islands, another in Africa and the third on the Peninsula of San Francisco. Its statistics, tabulated for over thirty-seven years, show that this section averages 233 clear days, 132 cloudy days and 43 rainy days a year.

Motoring is a delightful recreation and may be enjoyed the year round. There are many scenic and historic places within easy traveling distance over paved highways. It is but an hour's ride into the beautiful La Honda Canyon, and only a few hours' distant is the California Redwood Park, better known as the Big Basin, where some of the largest and oldest living trees in the world may be seen. There are six of the old Spanish missions in the vicinity.

Stanford University is Palo Alto's main attraction. It is located on an estate of 8,000 acres which stretches west of the community up into the foothills of the Santa Cruz Mountains. It was founded in 1891, with an endowment of over $30,000,000, as a memorial to Leland Stanford Junior. The main buildings lie a mile from El Camino Real, the state highway, right at the

QUALITY AND SERVICE

Palo Alto is showing a steady and consistent growth. Building permits are increasing rapidly, and last year ran over one and a half million dollars. Hotel and transportation facilities are excellent. In fact, Palo Alto feels that it has a destiny that is alluring, and it feels confident, also, of being able to keep the city on the same high plane it has always maintained.

PALO ALTO'S SHOWING IN

ADMISSION DAY PAGEANT.

Palo Alto—In the San Francisco Admission Day pageant, Palo Alto Parlor No. 216 N.S.G.W. will be represented by a large number of members in uniform, a decorated auto, and a float, "Driving the Last Spike," typifying the rail connection of the East with the West at Promontory, Utah, May 10, 1869.

The float will represent Governor Stanford engine No. 1, which was shipped around the Horn in 1864. The engine will be 10 feet high above the track, 14 feet long, and have a six-foot tender. It will be in complete working order, with bell ringing and smoke issuing from the smokestack, and will have an honest-to-goodness engineer. Accompanying characters will impersonate Stanford, Huntington, Crocker, Hopkins, railroad workmen, etc. The auto will have banners lettered "Palo Alto Parlor No. 216 N.S.G.W." and "Palo Alto Parlor No. 229 N.D.G.W.", as the Daughters will also march in the parade. Side draperies will consist of drawings of Palo Alto's Free Library, City Hall and Native Sons' Building.

SAN JOSE

58,256, but the census figures were less than 40,000, as they included only that portion within the municipal lines. The population January 1 of this year, according to the Polk-Husted local directory, was 73,167, and it is increasing right along.

Bank clearings in San Jose—there are six banks in the city and twenty-four in the entire county—grew from $54,226,506 in 1918 to $121,661,524 in 1923; the figures for 1924 show a slight falling off, being $120,514,138, due to the dry year that prevailed over the entire state, but for the seven months of the present year, to August 1, total clearings of $75,985,238 are very much greater than for the corresponding period of either 1924 or 1923. Seven building and loan associations in city and county have total resources of $19,956,815, a fact that is suggestive of the extent of home building operations here. Building permits (within the municipal lines only) were in 1920, $1,743,411; in 1921, $1,413,091; in 1922, $1,967,720; in 1923, $2,737,290; in 1924, $3,958,390, and for 1925 to August 1, $2,342,805. In the third of the city outside the official lines the aggregate value of building construction has been at least 50 percent as great as within the lines. Along the historic Alameda, reaching three miles from San Jose to Santa Clara, fine residences now line the avenue the full distance, with a few vacant lots here and there, so that the mission and the pueblo of the old time are now one in appearance and without doubt, before many years, they will be one in name and official status.

NOTABLE NEW BUILDINGS.

The building era in San Jose is notable not only for the number of residence and business structures, but also for the architectural beauty and solidity of the new construction. Among the leading structures may be mentioned the San Jose Hospital, at Santa Clara and Fourteenth streets; the Scottish Rite Temple, at Third and St. John; the St. Claire business and office block at First and San Carlos, all costly and imposing structures, worthy of any metropolis. Adjoining this latter, at San Carlos and Market, the T. S. Montgomery syndicate, which erected the St. Claire building, has plans prepared and the enterprise financed for a modern hotel, to be built and furnished at a cost of one million dollars. On North First street, near Santa Clara street, the Knights of Columbus are just finishing a modern building of several stories, and between the Knights' building and the Bank of San Jose a ten-story structure has been begun, two or three floors of which will be occupied by the Commercial Club.

On West Santa Clara street, the old College of Notre Dame property, consisting of several blocks, is rapidly being transformed into business lots; the historic buildings are being torn down, and before the end of the year business blocks will be going up all along the Santa Clara street frontage. Everywhere in the business portion of the city there are evidences of improvement and progress. Old-time buildings, such as the Porter block and the Auzeais building, have been taken over by outside capital and transformed into modern structures. Numerous small but handsome business blocks are going up; old store fronts have been renewed and made attractive; scores of apartment houses have been built, and a continuous program of street paving has brought the mileage of smooth, firm streets up to seventy miles or more. The public service corporations are expending hundreds of thousands of dollars in extensions and have recently erected costly new business headquarters. The city during the last year has built three fine bridges and is now building another; a large sum is being expended in the construction of a new outfall sewer, and two of the largest junior high-schools in the West are about completed, at a cost of nearly a million dollars.

The above is merely a brief outline of what is doing in San Jose. This progress is being duplicated, in proportion to population, in every one of the smaller cities in Santa Clara County, and throughout the county as a whole during the last three years and at the present time there have been and are being expended several millions of dollars for new grammar-schools and community and union high-schools.

NUMEROUS ORGANIZATIONS.

San Jose is strong for civic and fraternal organizations. The Chamber of Commerce and numerous clubs all co-operate for the good of the city and the county, and about every fraternal organization in the United States is represented here by flourishing lodges.

Santa Clara County Consolidated, an organization comprising all the Chambers of Commerce and leading improvement associations in the county, has brought all sections of the valley together in harmonious relationship, and its team work is accomplishing great things for the several communities and the county as a whole.

MOUNTAIN VIEW IDEAL RURAL HOME CITY

R. Hook, Jr.

(SECRETARY MOUNTAIN VIEW CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

WHEN GENERAL JOHN C. FREMONT, with his first path-finding expedition to California, hitched his horse in front of the old hotel which marked the first stop in a day's journey south of San Francisco, he probably had little vision of the future of the township in Santa Clara Valley which bears his name. There, in what is now known as "Old Mountain View," the general made his headquarters, and became familiar with the natural beauties of the valley stretching out between the southern end of the San Francisco Bay and the symmetrical tree-covered coast range of mountains to the west.

The old hotel was on the old El Camino Real, the line of the present magnificently paved state highway that borders the present beautifully laid out home city of Mountain View. In the old days Mountain View marked the first stop at the end of a weary day's journey by stage from San Francisco. Today its residents get on a comfortable bus in San Francisco and are home in an hour and a half. There is a twenty-minute service down through the series of peninsular cities, a distance of thirty-six miles. A more restful scenic trip is hard to find.

After reaching San Mateo, about half-way, the valley begins to widen, and soon one is into the very heart of the great orchard section, in which Mountain View is almost centrally located. Here are grown the choicest varieties of apricots, plums, prunes, pears, peaches, apples and cherries. Here also is a great garden spot for the growing of tomatoes, strawberries, raspberries, blackberries and every kind of vegetable. The great city markets are supplied, and the products of the farms are shipped to all parts of the country and to many foreign lands.

Mountain View was probably so named because of its location with reference to the Santa Cruz Mountains. The view of the mountains, a few miles to the south and west, is superb. They form a perfect background in scenery to the miles of well-kept orchards that extend well into the foothills. These orchard rural homes range in size from five to twenty or more acres, lying close together, and are accessible from every direction by well-kept graveled or paved roads.

The valley surrounding Mountain View in the early days was one great holding extending many miles in every direction which had been granted to a Spaniard, Crisanto Castro. His control was quite complete, and early White settlers were very dependent on Castro's decisions. Not until the coming of a group of Missouri farmers, who, by their courteous approach to the wealthy landholder, gained his favor, did White emigrants into this section get a foothold. They were peaceable and co-operative, and assured the Spanish Pioneers that they were not here to drive them out. They were here not to seek the gold of the mines, but agricultural gold. The character of those early settlers has been impressed very definitely upon this section of the Santa Clara Valley. Their families were reared here, and their children and children's children, with the same spirit, have remained and have been the backbone of progress throughout the years.

Mountain View today is primarily an ideal rural home city. There is hardly any advantage that can be conceived of that Mountain View does not have for the convenience, comfort, happiness and success of its people. It is large enough to provide all of the desirable things of life in the way of social, educational and religious activities. It is small enough, and sufficiently restricted, to be free from the undesirable conditions for real home life that so often prevail in a city. Its location is such that, within a few moments, one can be in San Jose, a city of a hundred thousand population, twelve miles to the south; or in Palo Alto, the home of the Stanford University, only seven miles distant. Besides the twenty-minute bus service between San Francisco and San Jose, the schedule of trains is such that one can, within an hour from Mountain View, be in his office or at his work in San Francisco.

Climatically, the spot in which Mountain View is located is one of the favored of earth. World travelers who have spent time in parts of Italy and other sections similarly favored are profuse in their praise of the ideal year-around climate enjoyed in this section of the Santa Clara Valley. The mean average temperature throughout the year is about 68 degrees. There are practically no extremes of either heat in the summer or cold in the winter. When other sections are seething in the summer's heat, those living in Mountain View are enjoying the refreshing ocean breeze which tempers the influence of the sun's rays. When in winter, snow and ice are the program for many sections, on the coldest night in Mountain View the ice scarcely forms, rarely ever more than a quarter of an inch in thickness. The sun shines a large part of the year and, due to its inland location—some thirty miles—and protection by the mountains, the Mountain View district is very free from ocean fogs.

Mountain View is unique in the advantages offered its families educationally. It is equipped with the best in way of kindergartens, grammar-schools, and one of the finest high-schools, built in 1924, in the state. One can live in Mountain View and send his boys and girls through school commencing with kindergarten, through the grades and the high-school, and then to Stanford University—and have them at home every night. This feature alone is attracting many of the best families in the land to Mountain View as a desirable location for their homes. Few places offer such advantages.

Another important item is the fact that during the summer or vacation season there is work of a healthful, remunerative character calling for the energies of children and young people. Hundreds of tons of ripened fruit must be cared for, this requiring work in the orchards, packing houses and canneries. At the time this article is being written every man, woman and child able to work and available for work is busy at good wages. Canneries, handling as high as 2,500 cases of fruit a day, are calling for more help.

Another consideration from an economic standpoint is the fact that home owners in Mountain View have the advantage of a very low tax rate. Valuations for town property are low, and taxes for the year amount at present to only $1.80 a hundred. And here is offered every modern improvement and convenience enjoyed in larger cities—beautiful paved streets, electric lights, gas, a fire protection that is unsurpassed anywhere, with correspondingly low insurance rates,—and other things making an ideal environment for home life.

From Mountain View, by auto on paved highways, points of interest may be quickly reached. One is within an hour's ride of ocean beaches. Over the famous Santa Cruz Mountain highway he may be at Santa Cruz, Capitola and other most desirable family beach resorts, within the space of two hours' time. It is a day's drive to Lake Tahoe, or to Yosemite Valley, or to the State Capital, Sacramento. Within a couple of hours he may be on the top of Mount Hamilton, where is located the great Lick Observatory, or into the Big Basin reserve, one of the scenic government camping reserves of California. Scores of canyon spots offer camp or summer cottage locations within a distance of ten or twelve miles. Another unique recreation place, recently established near Mountain View, is a large salt-water plunge, located on the bay three miles distant.

From a civic standpoint, Mountain View is making good progress in providing the very best for the people who live here. There are between three thousand and four thousand people within the exact borders of the city, with probably ten thousand more closely settled in the surrounding district for which Mountain View is the trading center. A Board of Town Trustees is actively anticipating the needs of the community, and a representative Chamber of Commerce is working unitedly with it on a strong progressive program. An electroler lighting system, a city park, an extensive street paving program, the securing of mail delivery, installation of gas, and other lines of improvement mark steps of progress of the past two years.

Commercially, Mountain View is favored, located as it is on a main line railroad between San Francisco and Los Angeles. Besides the freight service the railroad supplies, Mountain View also has a tidewater daily freight service which handles hundreds of tons of freight at low rates in and out of Santa Clara Valley at this point. The port is about three miles from Mountain View, and from it a fleet of trucks distribute to all parts of Santa Clara and adjoining counties. The principal plants located in Mountain View are the canneries and packing houses, required to care for the fruit grown in the section tributary to it. These employ several hundreds of workers.

While Mountain View has many advantages that should attract various kinds of manufacturing plants, its civic bodies are not bidding for these. Because of its ideal location, climate and educational advantages, Mountain View is destined to become a home city. Its people are those who appreciate these advantages, and they are hearty in extending to others an invitation to come and share the blessings they enjoy.

CALIFORNIA AND FINLAND

BACK FROM EUROPE, WHERE HE HAS been spending his sabbatical leave of absence in the Scandinavian countries, Prof. E. C. Voorhies of the College of Agriculture, University of California, is quite enthusiastic over his observations on co-operative farmers' organizations, both for buying and selling, importing and exporting. Oddly enough, it is Finland to which he points as the example in co-operation, although in America more is heard of Denmark.

In Finland, the farmers have an idea that has been adopted here, that of employing brains to run these co-operative organizations. Here in this state, such men as Ralph P. Merritt, C. C. Teague, Carlyle Thorpe and others of their caliber have made outstanding successes. Merritt, taking over the business of the raisin growers when it appeared almost hopeless, has paid the debts of the organization, developed markets and devised means of turning byproducts from losses to profits. The highest salaried man in co-operative marketing in California or the United States, the growers of his organization believe the money they are spending for him is well invested.

Finnish farmers found that out long ago. The choosing of some well-intentioned farmer to lead such an organization does not bring it success. Business brains are required, and that fact has been found more than true in California. Men of Merritt's type, saving hundreds of thousands, even millions, to the growers, surely are worth a few thousand a year more than incompetent, albeit honest and well-meaning, leaders. Like other rules, this one has its exceptions, but California and Finland are convinced that too much money cannot be spent for brains in leadership.

THE AMERICAN FARMER.

The American farmer, without question, is the most efficient in the world, notwithstanding those who point to other countries and their agricultural development. Per man, the American farmer produces more than any other. Perhaps, per unit of ground, he does not, but there still is plenty of land in the United States, and the farmer here is concerned with getting the most he can for his efforts. It would not pay him to produce more intensively, for labor here is too high.

Why, then, is the American farmer not more prosperous? Because he is an American. Standards of living here are higher than elsewhere, and the farmer, while growing more, demands more. There is no reason why he should be isolated, why he should not have telephone, lights, power, automobile, radio and modern plumbing, so he has them. Increasing desires have brought increasing production. The farmer has produced more, and what is even better, he has become a business man and has learned he can sell, through co-operative effort, just as well as he can grow.

FARMS STILL PRODUCE.

There has been much talk in recent years about the trend from the farms to the cities. Country boys and girls, attracted by what they believe a more pleasant life and higher pay, are leaving the farms and going to the urban districts. This has caused a wave of apprehension, but so far no disaster has followed. The truth of the matter is, the farms still are producing all that it is economically possible for them to grow. Machinery has taken the place of man power as well as horse power, and while there is an attraction in the city, it is just as true there is less place in the country for the young folk than formerly.

There is no cause for alarm in the drift to the cities. Economic rules govern it now, and always will. Until profits on the farms increase, there will still be the trend to the cities. But as long as there is demand for farm produce, which will be as long as men live on earth, the acres of American farms will yield their wonted crops.

RADIO AND AGRICULTURE.

Nearly forty millions of persons live on farms in America. Demand for greater production per unit of area continues as an economic necessity. Yet only about 150,000 young men and women are studying agriculture in the colleges of the United States. This ratio has been, in the past, a cause of some concern on the part of those interested in the development of agriculture.

But with the coming of the radio, a new era appears to have been reached. Already the institutions of learning are augmenting their agricultural extension courses by those given by radio. How many millions of American farmers are profiting from information as to markets, production and economic conditions, is hard to say; but it is safe to risk the guess that radio is reaching more than direct contact of instructors and students ever could have hoped to do.

SCARCITY OF TREES.

Apparently, there is going to be a shortage of nursery stock this winter, unless an unprecedented slump comes in the planting program that has been under way in California in recent years. Overproduced for several years, the nurserymen this season budded fewer trees, and had a smaller percentage of buds take than in many seasons, less than half. As a result, if the demand continues as in the last few seasons, the nurserymen are going to be caught short. Advising early purchase of trees for planting this winter is justified by the conditions.

GREEN FEED FOR HENS.

This is the season of the year when green feed is hardest to obtain in most parts of California, and when egg prices are soaring. Hens must have greens, whether lawn clippings, lettuce or other material. Neglecting this factor means poor production and small profits. The poultryman, whether he operates on a large scale or in a back yard, must see that his hens are supplied. Advice is given on this subject by authorities until it seems no hen would be without her daily ration of lettuce or clover, yet it is true that even commercial poultrymen are prone to neglect this matter as the fall season approaches and greens are hard to get.

CALIFORNIA FARMERS PROSPEROUS.

George P. Gray, chief of the division of chemistry of the California State Department of Agriculture, says farmers of this state are prosperous, and cites the fact that they are buying fertilizers in larger quantities than ever before, as evidence of their prosperity. Gray has charge of overseeing all commercial fertilizers sold in California, and receives sworn statements of fertilizer sales quarterly. The sales this year, he says, have been heavy. Farmers have not had to curtail their expenditures; they have had money for the work they wanted to do, and included in this is the building up of the soil that supports them.

GUIDE FOR PLANTING.

What crops pay best in California? Which of the California specialties is it wise to plant? To answer these questions, the farmers of the state have asked the College of Agriculture, University of California, to conduct investigations, and Dean E. D. Merrill of the college has signified his willingness to do so. At a meeting of the farmers, college experts, State Department of Agriculture heads, and leaders of farmers' organizations, it was decided a committee should be appointed to head the work. This committee is to be named soon.

The plan of the college is to take the statistics available on the most important California crops, securing them for the state from the California Co-operative Crop Reporting Service and for the world from the United States Department of Commerce, and assembling this data on production, price trends and market quotations, to give the farmer an idea of what may be expected in the future. No attempt will be made to give advice, but the data furnished will be a guide for any farmer who cares to use it, for it will be put into understandable form.

POULTRY PESTS PLENTIFUL.

During the summer and early fall, poultry pests are not only annoying to the flock, but are decidedly harmful. Parasites take a heavy toll from the hens, the chief offenders being body lice and red mites. Paint the roosts with oil or creosote, clean the houses often, and dust the hens with sodium fluoride around the vent and over the breast. Vigilance must be eternal in production with poultry, but it is well repaid. In fact, no flock bothered by insect pests has a possibility of profitable production.

EFFICIENCY IN MARKETING.

Not the largest co-operative marketing organization in California, the California Lima Bean Association can lay claim to being one of the most efficient. Last year the growers of lima beans who were members of this organization were given sixty cents of every dollar spent by

PROMOTE INDUSTRY'S CAUSE IN CALIFORNIA

(E. L. FALLS.)

WHEN THE ANNOUNCEMENT WAS made about six years ago that Goodyear was going to build a tire manufacturing plant in California, but few people realized that this was the beginning of a "Westward Ho" industrial movement that was to be worth many millions of dollars to the State of California. California was known the world over as a wonderful vacation land and tourist country. Its climate was acknowledged to be superior in many ways to any other section of the country, and its oranges, figs and other fruits and vegetables were conceded to be of the best obtainable. These advantages were attracting people from all parts of the country to California.

There was one big drawback, however. There were comparatively few industries to offer employment to the thousands of people who were flocking here from the various industrial sections of the East. Chambers of commerce officials and civic leaders throughout the state began to realize that their big job was to attract industry to California, so as to provide employment to these people, many of whom were skilled artisans along various industrial lines.

Then along came Goodyear's announcement that they were going to build a large plant on the coast. Goodyear's lead in building a $15,000,000 tire plant in Los Angeles in 1919 was quickly followed by several other Eastern concerns who realized the advantages of having a manufacturing plant right out here in the West to take care of the fast-growing requirements of this Western country. That this decision on the part of Goodyear had a marked effect on the industrial development which followed during the next few years, is conceded by civic leaders who have made a study of this situation.

A comparison of figures showing the value of products manufactured in the State of California five years ago and today shows that their value has more than doubled. That is, industry in California has developed more during the past five or six years than it had during its entire previous existence as a state. Especially has this tremendous industrial growth been true in Southern California, where the need for industry was felt perhaps more keenly than in any other section of the state. That the Goodyear industry contributed largely to this development in Southern California is attested to by local business men, many of whom claim that the real estate boom in this section was given its official start through the building of this Goodyear plant in Los Angeles. Many Eastern manufacturers have been waiting the results of the Goodyear venture into this new industrial field with a great deal of interest. Since Goodyear's venture has proven highly successful, it should have the effect of encouraging other large industries to establish plants out here in the new industrial West.

The story of Goodyear's growth here in the West is best told by the increase in production since this new plant was established. Starting in June 1920 with an average daily production during the first six months of 1,000 tires and 1,600 tubes, the production of this California Goodyear plant has steadily increased each succeeding year reaching an average production for the first six months in 1925 of 5,300 tires and 6,500 tubes daily. The plant has been operating to its full capacity recently, and now employs about 2,500 people, disbursing a total annual payroll of around three million dollars. The distribution of this large payroll, together with the purchases of supplies and materials, which to the largest possible extent are California grown or made, affects every phase of the commercial, agricultural and industrial life of the entire state.

Every production increase which Goodyear is enabled to make as a result of increased buying of its California-made products increases the potential wealth of the state to a proportionate extent. It has been pointed out that whenever the motorists of California make it possible through their purchases for Goodyear to increase their production to the extent of 300 more tires per day they make it possible for another 100 people to be employed in this plant.

It is true that we are always ready to cheer and extend the hand of welcome to a new industry coming into our state that employs 100 people or more, and yet but few of us realize that we have it within our power to virtually start new industries in California every day. If Californians generally would make a decision to purchase California-made products to a greater extent, that would have the same effect on our industrial situation as the starting of new industries. It would enable our present California industries to expand and thus give employment to many more of these new residents of California.

As citizens of this great State of California, we are all virtually shareholders in her prosperity. The success of each one of California's industries is reflected in the growing prosperity and development of the whole state. If, whenever we plan to purchase anything, large or small, expensive or inexpensive, we ask ourselves the question, "Is it made in California?" and if it is, give it the preference, we'll be rendering a practical service to our state, as well as to our own community, and we'll be rendering a profitable service to ourselves as well.

While it's true that our industrial growth during the past five years has been remarkable, there is still a great need for more industries and larger industries to give employment to the ever-increasing thousands who are coming out here to live. As Native Sons of California we can make no better contribution to our state than to promote the cause of industry in California by buying and boosting California-made products wherever possible.

"An honest man, sir, is able to speak for himself, when a knave is not."—William Shakespeare.

LITTLE JOURNEYS

in Tuolumne County, now an almost deserted settlement, at that time polled the largest vote in the state and contained a population of upwards of fifty thousand people. The yield of the surrounding country was fabulous.

Again, an event had occurred on California's soil that was, indeed, providential. For three hundred years Spain, and for twenty-five years Mexico, possessed and controlled the soil where all of the golden wealth of California was exposed. The incentive that caused the Spanish navigators to roam the seas and invade foreign lands awaited but their exploration of the Sierras to meet its consummation. If, during that time, the golden treasure had been uncovered, Spain would have achieved a position among the powers that would have continued her reign over California, and perhaps the western boundary line of the United States would have halted at the Rocky Mountains. The addition to the gold supply of the United States from the mines of California increased the country's trade and commerce, stimulated industries, strengthened credit and assured a commanding position in the financial affairs of the world.

SAN FRANCISCO BAY

When it was reserved for the Spaniard, Portola, to discover San Francisco Bay, rather than the Englishman, Drake, it was decreed that ultimately the United States would become possessed of the finest harbor in the world. Drake, after effecting his landing at what is now known as Drakes Bay, sojourned for nearly two months on the coast, making frequent journeys inland. During that time there is no record of his having discovered San Francisco Bay.

It is related that he was at times sorely pressed for a harbor of refuge, and it would be reasonable to suppose that, if he knew of its whereabouts, he would have recorded it on some of his voyages or in some of his communications to the mother country. It is also reasonable to suppose that if England had known of this great harbor which would accommodate a considerable portion of its navy, with its solicitude for its future it would have, through peaceful overtures or by aggressive action, made some claim to it. Portola, who reported its extent and commanding position, aroused Spain to the necessity of protecting it against the invasion of the Russians from the north.

Accordingly Anza, the pathfinder, in 1774, started from old Mexico with his band of faithful pilgrims to make the trip overland across the desert sands of Arizona to San Diego and thence to where the present Presidio is located, and having survived the long journey, with its terrible sufferings and privations, this little band were the first to effect a settlement on the shores of San Francisco Bay and they chanted their evening hymns as the sun disappeared through the Golden Gate. This was the beginning of San Francisco, the city that stands today overlooking the bay, even as Portola did on that eventful day as he stood on the San Bruno Hills. He had started from San Diego in quest of Monterey Bay, that had been charted in a crude manner by the navigator, Vizcaino. He had passed it by unknowingly and, reaching a prominence, stood there, wrapped in wonderment as he beheld an unknown arm of the sea that held within its hidden embrace the secrets of a great and mighty future.

consumers for their product. Over a five-year period the return has been fifty-five percent. At the annual meeting of the association last month, General Manager Churchill reported the return for last year was $11.50 a bag, the best the association ever has obtained for its members.

SEED WHEAT AND SMUT.

Before the seed wheat is stored this summer, it should have the copper carbonate treatment to prevent smut, or stinking hant. If this is done now, the wheat will be ready when seeding time comes, and what is more, it will be safe from weevils. The treatment costs no more now than at seeding time, and carries its own insurance. The use of copper carbonate dust prevents smut, costs less than other treatments not as efficient, actually improves germination, induces a better stand in the field, plants are made more vigorous, less seed is needed and no seed is lost by delay after treatment.

FAIR SEASON HERE.

The annual county and district fair season has rolled around again, and once more the products of California soil are being exhibited from one end of the state to the other. No other state can show such a diversity and excellence of produce as can California, and visitors to these fairs are amazed at the showings made. Interesting as the exhibits are to the visitors, and valuable as they may be for promotion and advertising, they carry a more earnest purpose, that of the betterment of agriculture.

No agency could replace the fair, with its friendly competition and prizes to stimulate effort. Agriculture in California and throughout the United States owes much to its fairs, and while other attractions have been added for those who desire them, to the farmer the fair, be it community, county, district or state, means an opportunity to see development, to learn of his shortcomings and the means of correcting them.

STOPPING A LOSS.

In former years, it was not unusual for sugar beets to be pulled, topped and left in the fields loose or in small piles for several days. Now that is not done. The haulers follow the toppers very closely, and get the roots to the scales just as soon as possible. If the beets must, for some reason, be left in the field, they are put in piles of from five hundred pounds to half a ton, and well covered with tops. The reason for this is that college research found that beets lose five percent of their weight a day for five or six days. In a week they should shrink one-fourth. The margin of profit might easily be wiped out. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been saved to the growers of California as a result of the proving of this fact.

PROTECTION FOR EGGS.

The new California Egg Law is in effect, and through its operation the producer and consumer alike are protected. It is to the interest of all to co-operate in making it a success. Under this law eggs must be labeled as to grade and size, according to standards prescribed by the State Board of Health. Inedible eggs cannot be sold, and the consumer knows what he is getting. Hence, if the producer is honest and careful, he establishes a confidence that means increased profits through greater consumption and consequent better prices.

Reception—Rudecinda Dodson, Carolina Sepulveda, Florence Schoneman, Christina Gaffey, Verna Menner, Josephine Savage.

This being the eve of the seventy-third birthday anniversary of Pioneer Roman Sepulveda, the Parlor presented him with a floral basket. James Dodson Jr., president of the Native Sons, making the presentation address, in the course of which he told of Santa Barbara Mission. The hall for the benefit was donated by John T. Gaffey, one of San Pedro's oldest and most respected residents.

NATIVE DAUGHTERS INSTALL.

Officers of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. were installed July 24 by D.D.G.P. Marvel Thomas, Margaret Dever becoming president. Hazel Boston, retiring president, gave remembrances to all the officers of her term. For the Parlor, the good of the order committee—Charlotte Bennett, Elizabeth Kelley, Rose Buchanan—presented a bud vase to D.D.G.P. Thomas, an emblematic pin to Lottie Sandstrom, retiring charter past president, and an emblematic ring to Hazel Boston, retiring president.

Twenty-five visitors were present from Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 and fourteen from Long Beach Parlor No. 154. The hall was prettily decorated in flowers of the Order's colors by Carrie Kuhlmann, Carmen Ardiar, Juanita Sorry, Hazel Boston, Carrie Lenhouse and Madeline Boone. Short addresses were delivered by President Clara Fay of Long Beach Parlor, D.D.G.P. Thomas, Secretary Annie Adair of the homeless children committee and Secretary Mary K. Corcoran of Los Angeles Parlor, the latter, on request, rendering "O'Grady's Goat." Refreshments were served by Mary Doyle, Victoria Adler, Juanita Sorry, Elizabeth Jorgensen, Carmen Ardiar and Marie Smith.

CALIFORNIA STATE FAIR

(CHARLES H. MERRY.)

THIS YEAR MARKS TWO IMPORTANT events in the history of the state—the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission into the Union of States and the seventy-first anniversary of the California State Fair. Both are significant, denoting as they do a great state's progress and advancement and achievement in all things that make life better.

At the time of California's admission to the union, the feverish quest for gold had not abated, and four years later, when the first State Fair was held, agriculture had made but slight impress upon its people. Today, agriculture is the state's substance, and those farsighted pioneers who blazed the way and first called attention to the richness of California's soil possessed vision in great degree.

From a modest beginning in 1854, the State Fair has developed into one of the greatest institutions of its character in all America. It has done more than keep pace with the times. It has pointed the way in agriculture in all its branches, and is directly responsible for the proud station California today occupies in the Sisterhood of States.

The State Fair this year, commemorating two epochal events as it does, will be the greatest and most instructive of any in its proud history. It will open at Sacramento September 5 and close September 13.

The great agricultural pavilion will house the most impressive displays of the agricultural and horticultural products of more than thirty counties, all vying in friendly rivalry for the honor of producing and showing the best from orchard and farm. Among them will be several counties which have never exhibited at the State Fair before, and others which have not made displays in recent years.

Four of the seven counties in Southern California have reserved space—Orange, which will make its first showing, Los Angeles, San Bernardino and Riverside—emphasizing the fact that the State Fair is an institution of all California.

The livestock department will present the largest and finest assembly of high-bred horses, cattle, sheep and swine ever seen in the West. The livestock exhibit at the State Fair has been conceded for many years to be the greatest west of the Rocky Mountains. This year breeders, who were unable to show at the last State Fair by reason of the prevalence of the foot-and-mouth disease, will be represented in greater numbers than ever before. The various classes of livestock will be judged by men of national and international reputation, the directors having spared no effort to secure the best talent available in this important branch.

The immense display of farm machinery and implements and irrigation equipment will be truly educational in its scope, for the benefit of the farmer, orchardist and vineyardist.

The poultry department and the dairy products department have been given unusually generous appropriations in recognition of their growing importance, and splendid displays are assured.

The educational department will make a strong feature of vocational and industrial training in the public-schools, those of nearly every county in the state being represented. Eleven counties will make exhibits from all three divisions of the public educational system—high-schools, grammar-schools and rural-schools.

Conspicuous among the many features of amusement and entertainment is the horse show, where nightly the finest of saddle horses, roadsters, high-steppers, hunters, jumpers and heavy harness horses will be put through their paces to thrill the thousands in attendance.

The racing program is replete with valuable stakes and purses for harness and running horses, and many of the best on the coast will compete.

Vaudeville features of unusual merit and carnival attractions without stint will be provided, and every night there will be a brilliant display of fireworks by the company which fairly amazed the throngs at the Panama Pacific Exposition several years ago.

"Special days" will be a great feature throughout the State Fair. The program in this respect is not complete, save that for the opening day, Saturday, September 5. This will be "California Press Day," when hundreds of editors and publishers from all parts of the state will be present as guests of the State Fair management, and Governor Friend W. Richardson, president of the California Press Association, will receive and welcome them to the grounds. This will also be "Children's Day," the little folks being admitted free and entertainment and amusement provided for them. Also, it will be "California Diamond Jubilee Day," when hundreds of visiting San Franciscans will be in attendance under the guidance of the California Diamond Jubilee Committee of San Francisco. Other special days are being arranged, which will be announced later.

"The idol of today pushes the hero of yesterday out of our recollection; and will, in turn, be supplanted by his successor of tomorrow."—Washington Irving.

tion, for irrigation was still only experimental and water rights were uncertain. When then, about 1875, the mining interests declined in value and forced the suspension of the Bank of California in San Francisco, the situation became acute.

The railroads alone seemed to be prosperous, and that at the expense of the farmer and the laboring people. The farm classes organized as Patrons of Husbandry to defend their rights. In San Francisco the unemployed found a leader in Dennis Kearny. Loud was the outcry against the railroads, the Chinese and the politicians, and that California must have a new constitution. In 1879 a constitutional convention met and drew up a document which, for its extreme length and the complex nature of its provisions, was unique in political history. After a bitter campaign it was adopted. A conservative party was, however, placed in charge of the new state government and many of the radical provisions were quietly ignored; others were voided through judicial interpretation.

MATERIAL PROSPERITY.

In spite of the economic and political unrest, California steadily advanced. The mining district, to be sure, did not hold its own after the first few years, but later settled down to a more sure and steady development. Lumber and fruit gradually came in to take their place along with mining as a means of livelihood. The north coast, with Humboldt Bay as a center, developed as a principality, due especially to lumber and dairying. During the sixties the trans-Sierra region came to the fore with the discovery of mineral deposits, and as a result four new counties were created—Mono, Alpine, Inyo and Lassen.

The greatest development, however, came in the Great Valley and in Southern California. In the great central valley the building of the railroad was followed by a development in grain production, especially wheat. The cattle ranches now became great bonanza wheat farms. In 1889 California led the United States in wheat production, with over 50,000,000 bushels. California wheat found a market in Europe, and Liverpool prices determined the selling price in California. But with the nineties a change took place. Europe found other grain-producing regions, constant use of the ground for this one crop tended to exhaust the soil, and land became too high in value for the raising of wheat at a profit. The coming of irrigation, with a greater population, led to diversified farming with vines and trees and other crops.

In the southland, the change was even more noticeable. For many years it had lagged behind the north, due to the persistence of great land holdings by the old Spanish families. The drought of 1862 had forced many to dispose of both cattle and lands, and this had tended to increase settlement. With the coming of the railroads, however, a spirit of advancement became marked.

In 1868 Phineas Banning had constructed a railroad from Wilmington to Los Angeles. This was the beginning of railroad building south of Tehachapi. In 1873 this was taken over by the Southern Pacific Company. In 1876 that company had completed a northern road through San Fernando joining the Central Pacific to the east. The next year a road was completed to the Colorado River, in 1887 a road was extended up the coast as far as the Santa Paula Valley, and then on up to connect with the coast route from San Francisco in 1904. Meanwhile the Santa Fe railroad reached the south, having been completed to the Colorado River in 1883 and to Los Angeles in 1885. In 1905 the San Pedro and Salt Lake gave a third transcontinental line.

The effect of these roads was to bring to Southern California a great population. As soon as the first competing line had been completed a rate war was begun. For a number of months passage could be had from the Missouri River to Los Angeles for five dollars, and for one day, we are told, it was as low as one dollar. The rates were again raised, but a boom had started and 1887 witnessed wild speculation in real estate all through the southern part of the state. After the initial excitement was passed, development became more normal, based upon more sound economic foundations.

The naval orange, introduced in 1868, led to the development of the citrus fruit industry, until now over 50,000 carloads per year are exported. The great need was for more water. The parched desert was situated alongside of a mighty river. Under the hand of the engineer, Imperial Valley, the early garden of California, began to bloom and bring forth fruit, not only that common to the rest of the states but tropical products as well. The need of water for a growing city caused Los Angeles to look to the snow-capped summits of the Sierra Nevada hundreds of miles away. The Owens River, fed by perennial snows from Mount Whitney, was called upon to aid the thirsty city. In 1913 the great aqueduct, 250 miles in length, was completed, bringing to Los Angeles some 300,000,000 gallons of water daily.

MARVELOUS CHANGES.

In view of the great resources behind the state, combined with the optimism and energy of her people, it is not a cause for wonder that California has grown in population and wealth. During the two decades from 1900 to 1920 the total population of California increased from about 1,500,000 to nearly 3,500,000. At that time she had two cities, Los Angeles and San Francisco, with over a half-million population each.

As we now look back over these three-quarters of a century, marvelous changes are seen to have taken place. No longer is California isolated from the remainder of the continent by weeks and months of travel. The telegraph, telephone and radio have given all parts of the state instantaneous connection with all parts of the civilized world. A half-dozen transcontinental lines await the traveler to the Eastern states and the aeroplane speeds across the continent in a few hours with its more important mail.

Gold still remains an important item, but the great deposits of petroleum have given the state a new and greater source of mineral wealth. California fruits are the desire of all the world. Her forests and sparkling rivers still contain untouched wealth sufficient to support an empire.

Great as has been this past development, it cannot be doubted that the potentialities of the future are even greater and that at no distant date there will be seen here, on the shores of the Pacific, a state whose population, wealth and influence are second to none other in the Federal Union.

172, placing it as third in rank among the exchanges of this country, being exceeded only by the New York and Chicago exchanges.

San Francisco's growth and prosperity are further reflected in the growth of per capita wealth from $1,244 in 1850 to $2,932 in 1924.

The year 1869 witnessed the opening of the transcontinental railroad directly linking the young city with the east coast of the United States. San Francisco's position as the metropolis of the West had already been established. Its future was definitely assured with the opening up of rail connections. Subsequent opening of the markets of China and Japan inaugurated a trade which has made San Francisco the focal port of the West and the second port in this country.

Each decade showed an enormous increase in population. By 1870 this had increased to 149,473; by 1900, to 342,782; 1910, to 416,912; 1920, to 506,675; and today it is estimated at 675,000.

A comparison of the San Francisco of 1851 with that of the present time serves to show the progress which has been made. In 1851 the city had 6,000 registered voters, as against 221,260 in 1925. The assessed valuation of property in 1851 amounted to $21,621,214, while today it is $989,217,070. The tax rate was $4.10 per $100 valuation as compared with $3.47 at present.

San Francisco's fame as a city of "good eating" dates back to its earliest history. In 1851 it boasted of sixty-six restaurants. Today it has 1,371, including all kinds and of many nationalities.

The business of caring for and entertaining visitors is an old established one in San Francisco. In 1854 there were 160 hotels; today there are 1,600 hotels and rooming-houses of all classes. In addition, there are 2,400 apartment houses, many of which afford accommodations for visitors spending a week or more in the city.

Educational facilities have kept pace with the growth and development of the city. In 1851 San Francisco was the proud possessor of seventeen schools, with an attendance of 3,400. At present there are 112 schools with an attendance of 87,720. At its very door are California's two greatest schools of learning, the University of California at Berkeley, and the Leland Stanford Junior University at Palo Alto.

April 18, 1906, a great conflagration devastated 497 city blocks, or four square miles. Twenty-eight thousand buildings were destroyed in three days. The whole business section was a dreary waste of ashes. Undaunted by this holocaust and the fact that the city had twice before been burned to the ground, the citizens of San Francisco displayed an invincible fortitude and immediately set about rebuilding their city on a finer and better scale.

That they have succeeded, is borne out by its skyscrapers, beautiful residential sections, parks, and the Civic Center, the latter one of the most extensive examples of city planning in the United States. The newer San Francisco stands today a monument to the faith of her citizens and their undaunted spirit.

"So joys, remembered, without wish or will, sharpen the keenest edge of present ill."—William Wordsworth.

About Bills

By R. R. PEARSON, Chief Bookkeeper

HOW are my gas and electric bills made up?" asks the interested consumer. The process is quite simple and accurate, resulting in very few complaints from the more than 400,000 bills rendered each month.

First, the addressing department stamps the consumer's name and address in three places on the blank bill forms. This is done by automatic machines, each of which has a capacity of 16,000 bills per 8-hour day.

Next, the stamped bills go to the bookkeeper for comparison with the ledgers. They are then sent to the billing room, where the billing clerks insert the meter readings as shown by the meter readers' "statement books", and also the reading dates, total gas or electricity used and the amount of the bill. The total consumption and the amount of the bill are automatically calculated by the billing machines.

The bills as thus completed are again sent to the bookkeepers, who check them with their ledger records for any possible errors before they are presented to the consumers.

CALIFORNIA DESTINED TO BE GRANDEST PRODUCT OF HUMAN ENERGY AND ENDURANCE

"CALIFORNIA AS A STATE IS SEVENTY-FIVE YEARS OLD TODAY. As I stand here under the spell of the many inspiring historic deeds and events, born of the struggles of the state and the nation, which are called to mind by the day and the occasion, I truly feel that we—sons and daughters of California, native and adopted,—may rightly realize a greater boast than the Roman of old and be justly proud of and rejoice in the fact that the most priceless possession, the highest heritage on earth today, is to be a loyal American citizen.

"The early history of California possesses a wealth of romantic interest, a variety of contrast, a novelty of resourcefulness and an intrinsic importance which intrigues and enthalls the imagination. It is not my purpose, however, to review the varying phases of California's history prior to her admission into the sisterhood of states.

"I shall not attempt to visualize the twilight of romance and fable in this state when it was 'a mere field of cosmographic conjecture'; nor shall I endeavor to picture to you the decades of uninterrupted pastoral life of the hacienda and its broad acres, the missions and their memories, all of which made up so much of the spiritual and sentimental side of California's life 'before the gringo came'.

"In the history of the world the lives of nations are short. And in the history of nations seventy-five years do not encompass an appreciable period of existence. Seventy-five years, indeed, are but a hand-span, a brevity in that little eternity which man calls time. Nonetheless, if a people is judged by its accomplishments seventy-five years may be long indeed.

"Today we celebrate the seventy-fifth year of California's life as a part of the republic. And, measuring California's life by her accomplishments, that life has been long and fruitful of good result. For it must be admitted that of all the United States, California is most entitled to rejoice in the grandeur of her material and moral development and in the product of her soil, her climate and her people.

"It is therefore fitting and appropriate that we jubilate today, that we come together as citizens of a great commonwealth to give voice to the pride we justly take in the name and in the fame of California. After all, it is no mean thing for a people, reviewing its career, to be able to say, 'We have striven hard and we have done well, and now see golden days, fruitful of golden deeds.'

"Having reached the sublime heights of human achievement may we not look back upon the struggles of the past with serene satisfaction and with the proper pride bid the world join in our jubilation. Briefly to summarize the Pioneer of this state is to appreciate the stupendousness of the things California has done.

"In 1848 Marshall lifted a dripping, golden nugget from a millrace at Coloma, and, in a manner of speaking, fashioned that nugget into a key, which unlocked the rich resources of the state and marked the beginning of a new era in the prosperity of the people of America and of the world.

"Followed then the trek across the continent of the Pioneers—the men of old, the men of gold, the mighty men of forty-nine. No modern event has been the cause of so much romance in reality; nothing has approached so nearly to magic, as the discovery of gold in California. And nothing has approached so nearly to the ideal heroic as the courageous march of the Pioneers, through death and disaster, from the established and secure East to an unknown land of promise lying resplendent by the sundown shores of the Western sea where they found under one sky the wealth and beauty of all the world.

"The California Pioneer, rough, perhaps, uncouth, if you will, but hardy and strong and brave and true, was the pacemaker towards the Utopia which is this state. He was aggressive and fearless and commanding. And he bullded well as, with master hand, he laid in adamant the foundation stones of this state, whose greatness he first uncovered, and which, as it grows from day to day and year to year, is destined to be the grandest product of human energy and human endurance that has ever come forth from the womb of time.

"If ever a people became indebted to a group of individuals for all that its state is, that people is the people of the State of California, and that group is the pioneer group, which wrought this state from the trials and tribulations of frontier existence and gave it as a gem to the nation.

"To those Pioneers we are indebted not only for the works they did, but for the example they gave. They were great in their day and generation, and their greatness has endured; and we heart of the nation, is still the goal towards which all travelers speed, and the hope of all those who have heard of the comfort and the calm joy of living that is to be found here on the slopes and in the vale of the Sierras.

"This Diamond Jubilee is of and for ALL California—a united California—and the hearty response from every section of the state to the call of San Francisco to partake of her hospitality in commemoration of the memories of the past, the glory of the present and the aspirations of the future, demonstrates that there is no north or south to California.

"We Californians glory in all of California and have a common and particular pride in the City of the Angels and the City of St. Francis. We see in them a tribute to the power and enterprise of our citizenry. We look upon them as stalwart partners seeking, each in its own way, to make greater the splendor of the state. The two cities compliment each other—what one has not the other has—and together they constitute the state's greatest possessions.

"It is good to know that in the space of seventy-five years we have produced two cities of the size, importance and charm of Los Angeles and San Francisco. If we had no other reason, here would be reason enough for a jubilee.

"Los Angeles is a garden lying in the sun, beautiful and charming and lovely. Los Angeles, with its climate genial as a mother's smile, is the pride of the lowlands, as it were, the glorification of the great open spaces which were before the genius and industry of man improved and beautified them.

"San Francisco, with her hills reaching to the skies like tall towers, is the pride of the upland, the city of romance and splendor, the city of tradition and rugged strength, ground from the grit and the sand of a pioneer band and which rose from the ashes of a great conflagration once again to present a brave and smiling countenance to the world. We, of all California, are proud that 'among her other claims to greatness is that of having met and conquered a calamity that stilled and chilled the whole world's heart for a day.'

"Regenerated and rejuvenated, once again is she enthroned as the Queen City of the Pacific, and with radiant eyes she looks up, a new and peerless city, out of the wreck of the past, over and across the waters of the Western sea, where lies a future big with mighty fates for her beyond all prophecy. San Francisco the glad, the beautiful, today throws open the doors of her hearts and her homes, proclaiming to the state and to the world at large that she still is possessed of the traditional hospitality which made her and keeps her the city loved round the earth.

"I take it, though, that a state jubilee can be made to be something more than a colorful carnival of provincial pride and praise. I take it that a state jubilee may properly be made the occasion of a pledge and a promise for the future of the nation as well as a glorification of the state's past and present. I take it that today it might not be amiss for us, as Californians, to renew our oaths of allegiance as Americans.

"For, after all, California, seventy-five years old today, is a mere child among the states; the republic itself, not one hundred and fifty years old, is a mere child among the nations.

"It has been said that America represents the ultimate stability of the universe, that her destiny is chained unto a star, that she therefore has no cause for fear. Yet the fact is, that America has reached a plane of power and prosperity in a very short space of time which other nations have reached only after centuries of striving and of struggle. If America's rise has been rapid, we must make sure that her fall will not also be rapid. If her success has been quickly attained, we must make sure that her failure shall not be as easily contrived. And we can make sure of these things, because for America there can be no failure so long as her of the present know that only because of their greatness in the past is our greatness made possible. It is not amiss, therefore, to pay a passing tribute to the builders of this state, and to say of them that they were men and women of surpassing worth of whom the race may well be proud.

"From pioneer times upward and onward California has progressed. Where once small hamlets lay in the valleys and on the hillsides, great cities now rear their heads in pride. With the growth of these cities has come the growth of life's facilities, until today, with Los Angeles on the south and this city of splendor on the north, the state takes rank as possessed of metropolitan attributes, and, between and beyond the two cities, cities of lesser size but of equal relative accomplishments make known the fact that California, far though she may be from the

JAMES HARVEY COLE, PIONEER

Lela E. Price

THE FOLLOWING STORY OF HIS early life was told to me by James Harvey Cole, California Pioneer, who passed his last years at Markleeville, Alpine County. "Uncle Harve," as he was affectionately called by nearly all who knew him, died December 20, 1924, at the age of 90 years, 6 months, 8 days, and was laid to rest at Woodfords in Alpine County. The story is in "Uncle Harve's" own language, as dictated to me:

"Well, I was born in Woodfords County, Kentucky, Woodfords County Cross Roads, Kentucky, in 1834, June 12th. We migrated to Missouri in '35. I was one year old when we landed at St. Louis. From there we went to Clay County, Missouri, way up in the north part. Had a farm there until I was 10 or 12 years old. My father died in '37 or '38, I cannot remember just which year. We lived here until I was 10 or 12 years old, then we moved to Platt County, Missouri, and got a farm there. My folks still live there, what there is left of them.

"I left home and went to a town called Parksville. I worked on a ferry boat that supplied wood to the river steamers. We had a ranch above the river from Parksville and cut the wood there. Steamers would sometimes take on twenty or thirty or forty cords at a load. I worked at this till '53, when Judge Tillery came along with his stock. Had between five and six hundred head of cattle and about five thousand sheep. He was going to California. We were ferrying them across. The second load the cattle broke the bar that held them back and rushed forward and sunk one end of the boat, and the cattle all rushed off into the Missouri River. None were drowned tho. A feller in the crew, name of Ford, was summoned on the grand jury, and he had hired out to help this Tillery drive his train through, so I hired out to him to take this feller's place, for $4 per day to take charge of one team.

"After we got all the stock across, he wanted to know where I was from. I told him I was from Kentucky, and he knew all of my folks. He wanted me to go through with him, he was going to California. We took a spring wagon and went back to see my sister. She knew him as quick as she seen him. Then he got at her to let me go. My father and mother were both dead then.

"So I rigged up and we camped at Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, the first night. Next day we broke camp and went fifteen miles to what was called Salt Creek Valley. Next day we went to Little Blue River and the next day we went to what was called Big Blue. It runs northwest and Little Blue runs southwest. There we had our wagons built to ferry across the rivers when they were too deep to ford. We had them fixed with chains so the beds would not float away. We would swim the cattle across, then I'd swim across with a rope and then I'd draw a yoke over. Then we'd hitch the cattle on and let them pull the wagons across. We had about five thousand sheep, and a goat to lead them. We had to pull the goat into the river, with the rope around his horns, then he would swim across and the sheep would follow him.

"The next camping place was between Big Blue and Platt River. Here we had four horses stolen. Race horses they were. We followed the thieves up then, and got between them and the horses and they broke for the river and we fired on them and killed four out of five. There was a red-headed Indian among them. Course he was not an Indian, but was just painted up to look like one. The next day's journey the boss took the team I was driving and three of us took our guns and started out to see if we could get a deer. We did not see any deer, but we did see hundreds of buffalo. The next day the buffalo started north and we had to camp for two days to keep out of their way. It was a solid stream, and sometimes a hundred right abreast across the road at once. That day we went hunting we like to died for water before we got back to the train; but that don't amount to a hill of beans.

"One night when going into camp on the South Platt I was unhitching the oxen and had them all unhitched but the off wheeler and just as I took the yoke off his neck he let a bleat out of him and away all the cattle stampeded, about six hundred of them. The old man saw what had happened and jumped on one of his race horses and headed them off, and by riding in a circle around the cattle got them quiet and then got them back to camp without losing any. Never had any more trouble with them.

"The next day we traveled up the river looking for a good place to cross and another band of sheep came along, five thousand sheep in one band, and they went up to where there was an island and swam their sheep across onto this island and camped for the night. There came a hail storm in the night, enough to kill the sheep to stand out in it, and they didn't have gumption enough to let them sheep get warm before they drove them into the river, and they lost two thousand. Sheep were so cold they could not swim, you know.

"The next morning the judge rode his horse across to find the best place to cross and we followed him with the wagons and the sheep and cattle, and did not lose a sheep. Then we camped again on the same river and struck across to the North Platt. So the next day we got to the North Platt and camped there. The next day we went as far as Chimney Rock. It is a rock about ninety feet high, right out in the flat. It was a terrible rock to stand out there alone, but I suppose it is all worn away by this time. It was wearing pretty fast then.

"So the next day we went up the North Platt and while camped this day a colored woman that was with us went to the river to get a bucket of water, and she met a buffalo scrambling up out of the river, so she didn't wait for any water, but threw her bucket and run and tumbled over a wagon tongue. I shot the buffalo but he ran two miles before he fell, then he fell perfectly dead. We went out and skinned him, and jerked him and sacked the meat when it was dry.

"The next move we made we started for what is called the Rocky Mountains. There is a creek there called Sweetwater. I know we camped at the foot of the mountains and from there I cannot recollect whether we camped more than twice before we got to Green River or not; but anyway nothing happened here. Green River was a terrible swift river to cross. I swam across with the rope, and a feller by the name of Martin tried to swim across too, but he nearly drowned, would have drowned if I had not had the rope; I throwed it out to him and he just had sense enough to grab it.

"We got across alright, but it was a terrible lot of work to pull them wagons across against that swift current. We left Green River and traveled southwest and into what is called Echo Canyon, and made one camp in Echo Canyon, and the next camping place was Salt Lake City. It was pretty good sized place then. We camped there two nights and one of the elders came down and wanted to buy a cow. I had picked up one on the road, as fine a cow as I ever saw too, and the boss told him he could have her for $150. He paid $150 for his cow and I got the money.

"From there to Ogden I don't just remember how many days it took us, nothing happened any way. There we crossed Bear River. From that we traveled along without anything happening. More than one night they put me on guard and I went to sleep and let 500 sheep get away. Next morning I got on a mule and went way up on a hill and found their tracks and followed them up and finally found them and drove them back to camp.

"One day we were traveling along the Humboldt River and twenty-five Indians came along about a mile from us. There was eight trains of us traveling together, or close, so we could help each other if we needed help. When we got across the Humboldt River, old man Morrow got shot through the lungs right through the right breast, and the Indians took his sheep, cattle, horses and everything and drove them off. Our train and another one came up about the same time, and we went after them and got everything back except their bedding, clothes, grub and one yoke of oxen. I was not in the fight, I had to tend to my team, but I think seven of our men went out, also the company that Dutch Fred was with. They met a large band of Indians and had a battle with them and Dutch Fred and a Frenchman killed forty-seven Indians. They were sure shots, both of them.

"Well, then we traveled down the Humboldt until we got to the Sink and then we ferried across everything and got on the other side and started for Rag Town on the Carson River. We made that fifty miles from four o'clock one morning to about two the next day by traveling all day and all night too, and when we got within about eight miles from the river we didn't have any more driving to do. The stock smelled the water and they just went right along.

"Well, from there on we traveled up the Carson River. There was nothing you might say until we got to Carson. We camped where the prison is now the first night. There was just one house in Carson then. The next night we camped up King's Canyon. From there we went to Spooner's Station, just above what is now Glenbrook. From there we turned to the left and took what was called the Johnson Cut-off, but before we got down to the lake we had to let our wagons down with ropes. From the lake we went to what was called the Sierra House between the lake and what is now Meyer's Station. We camped the next night about two miles above Meyer's Station on the Hawley Grade, and the next morning I guess there was 10 or 12 different trains there, ready to go up the mountain, and fellers stood guard and made each take his turn according to the way they had camped.

"Well, from that on we camped in different places along until we got to Strawberry. From Strawberry we had to turn north and go to Sweetwater, where we camped. Then the next day we started the train to moving and it rained all day and all night. That was the first time I ever was drunk. But I came in all wet, and the old man always had lots of good whisky and he gave me a drink. Only one drink, but it made me drunk.

"We camped at the six-mile house on the 6th day of November 1853. From there we went through Placerville and camped between there and Shingle Springs. Placerville was about as large then as it is now, I think, tho I have not been to Placerville for a long time. Where we camped at Shingle Springs there was lots of Chinamen and they had had a battle that day. We could hear their guns but they didn't bother us. The fight was over a mining claim. There were high-binders and some other Chinamen, but anyway the men that owned the claim licked the high-binders.

"From there to Sacramento there was nothing happened. When we got to Sacramento the boss put me to work hauling timbers for the water works. The first water works in Sacramento, on I street. I hauled five or six days. The timbers were floated down the river and taken out there on L street, then hauled back to I street.

"Barkerville was our next camping place. We staid there all winter. I herded sheep. I'd just send the dog out and he'd do all the work. The next spring the old man sold them sheep for $14 a head. After the old man sold the sheep he wanted to take me back home, but I wouldn't go. I came back to Sacramento with about $800 in my jeans. He begged me to go back home with him, said he'd send me to school and all that, but I could not see it.

"I came over to what is called Folsom, and from there I went out to a road house to garden for a feller. One Sunday I took a walk. I saw a young man prospecting and went over to where he was. He said 'If you will get 40 sluices, I will give you a half interest in this claim, and we will take up the one above and we will be full partners in both of them.' So I bought the sluices and he cleared $7,500, and I'd have had just as much as he if I didn't gamble it away as I went. From that on I had several good claims and from one of them I took out $100 a day for a little while. I mined in Sacramento County up to '59 off and on, and had pretty good luck too.

"While I was mining over at Folsom there was a circus come to town. I took three fellers, by the name of Brown, Poplin and Adams. They said they didn't have any money to go on, so I took them to the circus, and broke a twenty dollar gold piece to take us in. After the circus I went home and after I got in the house I heard somebody walking on the gravel outside. I got up and got a pick handle and stood at the door. It was a canvas house, boarded up a ways. I heard them walk down, then I went out and stood behind a tree. They went in and helped themselves to everything I had to eat, but never found my money. After they left my place they went down and stole two horses from a man a ways below me. They caught them afterward and sent them to prison, one got twenty-one years, the other eighteen, and the other fifteen years. Folsom was a town a little bigger than Markleeville is now. Sacramento was quite a city in '59, several thousand any way.

"In December '59 I came over to Carson. I got to Carson New Year's Day. Sixty of us just wallowed through the snow up to our necks but we got through to Carson. The first stopping place was Sportsman's Hall about eleven miles from Placerville. We went from there to the old Brockliss House on the American River and Silver Creek. That was a great stopping place, had good feeds there. We went from there to Strawberry, then on to Hope Valley through snow up to our waists, until we got down to the Double S, and from there to Woodfords it was not so bad. We staid all night at Woodfords.

"Mark Twain was in the crowd that came along. From Woodfords I started out to make Carson by noon, and when I got into Carson, Mark Twain was just coming out of the restaurant, he had just had his dinner. He beat me in by about half an hour. He was the best walker I ever saw, and I was some walker myself in those days. A few days after I picked

PIONEER PERPETUATED IN BRONZE

"THIS FOUNTAIN IS A MEMORIAL to the Gallant Pioneers of '49, of whom Daniel O. McCarthy, Patriot, Miner, Leader, was an Outstanding Example. He was born Raleigh, N. C., August 24, 1830; died Los Angeles, August 13, 1919. Through his Newspaper, 'The American Flag,' San Francisco, he helped preserve California to the Union. This long, useful life is a heritage of which the Golden State is justly proud. Dedicated by Ramona Parlor 109, N.S.G.W. Henry Lion, Sec. 1925."

Such is the inscription on a handsome bronze statue and fountain unveiled at Carthay Center, September 19. It was erected by the founders of the center at the suggestion of J. Harvey McCarthy, a member of Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W., and was designed and executed by Henry Lion, also a member of the Parlor. The sculptor is to be congratulated, in that he has perpetuated in bronze the California Pioneer as a young man. The figure, from an old photographic study of D. O. McCarthy, father of J. Harvey McCarthy, represents a gold miner of the days of '49 panning the precious metal.

The formal dedication was conducted under the auspices of Ramona Parlor, those participating in the ceremonies being Past Grand Presidents William I. Traeger and Herman C. Lichtenberger, Leon J. Leonard, Irving Baxter, Ernest Orfila, Adolph G. Rivera.

Previous to the dedication, with Burrell D. Neighbours, president of Ramona, presiding, a program was presented, consisting of addresses by Judge Rex B. Goodcell, United States Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Miss Grace S. Stoermer, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., Dr. Rockwell D. Hunt, president Historical Society of Southern California, and John Brown Jr., secretary San Bernardino Pioneer Society. Interspersing these were band selections, a vocal solo by Helen Powers-Cervantes and a Spanish dance by Hortencia Herrera.—C.M.H.

LOS ANGELES IN SAN FRANCISCO.

Because of the splendid showing made in the Admission Day parade in San Francisco, September 9, Los Angeles added many Northern and Central Californians to its list of admirers. All along the line of march the southlanders were given a "hearty hand."

In the Los Angeles division were public officials, the fire department band, squads of foot and motorcycle police, a beautiful Los Angeles-Pasadena Chambers of Commerce float which won first prize among the floral entries of the parade, Native Sons and Native Daughters representing all the Los Angeles County Parlor of those Orders, and a stagecoach accompanied by vaqueros. All the Natives were in attractive costumes, the Daughters riding in a handsomely decorated carryall.

Arrangements for the Natives' part in the "big show" were perfected by a joint committee of which Sidney Witkowski was chairman and John W. Topham secretary. Appreciated co-operation was given by the Los Angeles City Council, the Los Angeles and Pasadena Chambers of Commerce and others. In addition to those who participated in the parade, hundreds of Angelenos were among the throngs of onlookers that witnessed the pageant.

INSTRUCTIVE GUESSING CONTEST.

The Soroptimist Club sponsored a California Admission Day luncheon September 8 which was acclaimed very successful and created an interest in the state's history. Miss Grace S. Stoermer, Past Grand President N.D.G.W. and chairman of the history and landmarks division of the California Federation of Women's Clubs, presided.

There was a program of appropriate vocal numbers, Charles F. Lummis spoke on "California Missions," with special stress on Santa Barbara, and Mrs. A. S. C. Forbes discoursed on "The Poppy and Its Legend," saying, "The poppy is the essence of our sunshine. Though slender of stem and fragile of silken petal, it represents the lasting beauty of the land, the gold of the hills and the valleys. When first this lovely land was seen by White people it was called the Land of Fire because of the flame of poppies."

The speaker of the day was W. Joseph Ford, a member of Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W., whose subject was "Admission Day." In an inspiring address he recounted the romantic and resourceful history of California.

In place of the usual attendance prize, Miss Stoermer's innovation of prize-giving was novel and delightful. Members and guests of the club were allowed to draw slips from a basket, three of which out of 300 bore dates. Those who drew them, if able to qualify by telling what the dates signified, were given books on California. W. L. Fuller guessed correctly that

September 28, 1542, was the day that first the eyes of Caucasian men saw the land of California; Miss Mary Taylor guessed that July 16, 1769, was the day the first mission of California, San Diego, was founded. Wayne Alles guessed that September 9, 1850, was the day California was admitted to the union.

MOUNTAIN CLUBHOUSE IN PROSPECT.

Los Angeles Parlor No. 45 N.S.G.W. has been tendered, by Grand Trustee John T. Newell, one of its members, an acre of ground in the Santa Monica Mountains, provided the Parlor will erect thereon, for the use of all its members, a mountain clubhouse. The Parlor's annual two-day outing was held at the site September 26 and 27, and plans were discussed for accepting Newell's generous offer.

President Sidney Witkowski has appointed a new good of the order committee which is arranging a series of social affairs for the coming months. It is composed of Howard Bentley (chairman), Ray Lemoine, Julius Leuschner, Irwin Spear, Albert Cron, William Girard, William Newell, Herbert Holtz, Howard Bell, John McGonigle, Richard Fryer. A class of candidates will be initiated October 8. Plans are under way for redecorating and refurbishing Los Angeles' home, Native Sons' Hall, 136 West Seventeenth street.

SONS OF LOS ANGELES ORGANIZED.

The Sons of Los Angeles, membership in which is confined to men born in the Angel City prior to 1881, was launched Admission Day, September 9. It is a social organization, whose chief object is to gather and perpetuate the history of Los Angeles City and County.

Officers of the organization include: Senator R. F. Del Valle, honorary president; Isidore B. Dockweiler, president; John H. Schumacher, Maurice H. Newmark, John P. Moran, Thomas D. Mott, Robert Dominguez, vice-presidents; George J. Kurtz, treasurer; Herman C. Lichtenberger, secretary.

ALLEN JR. BABIES' HOME OPENED.

The Allen Jr. Home for Babies, built and furnished at a cost exceeding $30,000 by Mr. and Mrs. Allen Ratterree, was formally opened September 23 and was inspected by many Native Sons and Native Daughters. Love for a little son, Allen Jr., was the inspiration for the building and naming of the home, which is located at 2834 Hyans street.

The founders of this home, who for several years have been vitally interested in the work of the Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Committee on Homeless Children, realized the great need for a home where the little ones could be cared for until such time as good homes and waiting parents could be found for them. A staff of three graduate nurses, especially trained in the care of infants, guided by two fine physicians who visit the babies daily, will build up the little bodies quickly and make them fit and ready for the finest homes in California.

The purpose of the home, first of all, is to help an unfortunate mother to "keep" her baby by caring for it for a few months until she might regain her health or better her circumstances. Secondly, the purpose is to give motherly and scientific care to babies for adoption and foundlings until they are placed in foster homes. Babies are admitted regardless of creed or nationality up to the age of six months.

In future, the office of Secretary Annie L. Adair of the Los Angeles County Native Sons' and Native Daughters' Committee on Homeless Children will be located at the Allen Jr. Home

THE SETTLEMENT OF CALIFORNIA

FLETCHER A. CUTLER, GRAND PRESIDENT of the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West, spoke before the California Historical Society August 25 on "The Settlement of California and Its Bearing on American History." Daniel Q. Troy, a director of the society and a veteran member of the Order, presided as toastmaster, and introduced guests who had seats of honor at the speaker's table. These included the following named Past Grand Presidents of the Native Sons: John H. Grady, Dr. Charles W. Decker, William P. Caubu and Lewis F. Byington. Other members of the Order at the table were Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Walter M. Brunt, County Clerk Harry I. Mulcreavy and Supervisor Angelo Rossi. The special topic was chosen as appropriate during the season of celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission to the union.

Judge Cutler drew attention to the efforts of the Order of the Native Sons to aid in gathering, restoring and preserving documents and information touching the early history of California. "Our organization," he said, "is allied with your society in this historical work. Through the University of California we are supporting two fellowships for the purpose of collecting the historical material needed for the writing of a complete history of California. For eleven years we have paid $3,000 annually for this purpose. The money is used to send young men to the original sources of information—to Spain, Portugal, France, England and elsewhere in search of material. These young men gather facts from the log books of old navigators, from official documents at home and abroad. More than twenty young men have been sent on these missions of discovery, and more than thirty books have been written on the subject, and at the University of California 1,500 students are enrolled in the course of the history of California.

"The first efforts to fix the boundaries of California led to dissension," said Grand President Cutler. "Some advocated setting the line at the Rocky Mountains. The other extreme was a suggestion that we go no farther than the foothills of the Sierra Nevada Mountains, and finally it was decided to go to the top of the Sierra Nevada Mountains in fixing our boundary.

"It seemed providential that after all the changes in the ruling power in this favored land it remained for an American—John W. Marshall—to broadcast to the world the discovery of gold. That discovery at the little town of Coloma, El Dorado County, was a momentous happening, which changed the history of the world.

"In celebrating the seventy-fifth anniversary of our natal day we do not rejoice because on a certain day California was admitted to the union, but because we are permitted to live in this era of great events, and to feel that California has been true to the principles of honor with which our state was endowed by those who laid the foundations of our government."

PAST GRANDS N.D. GUESTS.

At the close of the magnificent Admission Day pageant in San Francisco, Alta Parlor No. 3 N.D.G.W. entertained the Past Grand Presidents of the Order of Native Daughters of the Golden West at a splendidly appointed luncheon in the Italian room of Hotel Whitcomb, which was charmingly decorated with masses of golden-hued blossoms.

Past Grand President Hill introduced Mrs. Anna Thuesen, who graciously presided and introduced the following Past Grand Presidents: Carrie Roesch-Durham, Minnie Coulter, Dr. Mariana Bertola, Eliza D. Keith, Ella Caminetti, Dr. Eva R. Rasmussen, Ariana W. Stirling, Anna Monroe, Mamie G. Peyton, Olive Bedford-Matlock, Allison F. Watt, May C. Boldeman, Margaret Grote-Hill, Mamie P. Carmichael, Grace S. Stoermer, Addie L. Mosher, Mary E. Bell, Bertha A. Briggs, Dr. Victory A. Derrick, Mattie M. Stein.

Stirring addresses were made by Past Grand Presidents Coulter, Bertola, Keith and Hill. En-

FORTY-FIVE INITIATED.

The ballroom of Druids' Temple was beautifully decorated with greens and poppies August 28 in honor of Miss Sue J. Irwin, Grand President, who made her official visit to Twin Peaks Parlor No. 185 N.D.G.W. President Loretta Schaertzer presided at the initiation of a class of forty-five candidates.

In the course of her remarks Grand President Irwin expressed herself as pleased beyond measure with the near-perfect rendition of the ritual by the Parlor's officers. Other speakers were Grand Trustees Josephine Johnson, Lillian Beguhl, Sallie Thaler and Esther Sullivan, Grand Outside Sentinel Evelyn Carlson, Past Grand President Margaret Hill, D.D.G.P. May Noble.

Two hundred and fifty enjoyed a supper, served after the meeting, in a banquet room made gay with decorations of jubilee colors.

September 11, Twin Peaks initiated another class, of ten candidates, bringing the membership to over 200. September 25 a "get acquainted" party was featured and preparations were made for the annual bazar, to be held in December.

THE PASADENA ART INSTITUTE AND CARMELITA GARDENS

(PASADENA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AND CIVIC ASSOCIATION.)

THROUGHOUT THE CIVILIZED WORLD, Pasadena is famed as a city where culture and beauty abound, where the aesthetic overshadows the material, where the finer things of life are accorded a full measure of appreciation. Therefore, it is not surprising to find here an art gallery wherein are displayed, from time to time, many of the world's most precious canvases. Neither is it at all astonishing to learn that this temple of art is set down in an exquisite garden of rare plants and beautiful flowers culled from the furthestmost points of the earth.

The paintings exhibited at the Pasadena Art Institute run the gamut from priceless products of the old masters to the more modern works of our contemporary artists. Wealthy residents of Pasadena, whose private galleries contain some of the most valuable art treasures in the world, are uniformly generous in lending their collections for public display. There have been many year old, Carmelita Gardens, in which it stands, have long been famous as one of Southern California's most charming beauty spots. The gardens comprise thirteen acres of rare trees, shrubs and flowers collected from all parts of the world by the former owner of the land, a Dr. Carr, who was an eminent botanist, at one time identified with the University of Wisconsin.

Dr. Carr and his wife migrated to California in 1880, and settled in Pasadena. They purchased a tract of land, comprising forty-two acres, of which the present site of Carmelita Gardens and the Pasadena Art Institute was a part. Shortly after acquiring the tract, Dr. Carr and his wife made a trip around the world for the specific purpose of obtaining plants and seeds which were unknown to America and bringing them back to their newly-acquired homesite in Pasadena. They wanted to see whether shrubs and plants that were indigenous to European countries would grow in the fertile soil of Cali-times when the exhibits at the Pasadena Art Institute were worth several millions of dollars.

These displays, however, are not confined to the works of the old masters. Contemporary artists who do not have entree to private exhibitions, and who have not the means to afford commercial showings of their canvases, find an open door and a hearty welcome at the Pasadena Art Institute.

Although the institute itself is less than a fornia under the benevolent influence of the California sun.

Returning with a wealth of material, they disposed of all their land, except thirteen acres, and then began an intensive cultivation of this tract, on which they had built a home. The rare botanical specimens brought from Europe were planted with great care. Time proved that even the most delicate of these shrubs would thrive in California.

As a result, Carmelita Gardens today present a diversified array of rare trees, shrubs and flowers such as can be found at few other places in America. One of the most famous and interesting specimens in the garden is a huge Lebanon cedar tree, the seed of which was procured by Dr. Carr in Jerusalem.

Visitors to Carmelita Gardens always are much interested in a small log cabin which stands on the tract. The cabin was built by Dr. and Mrs. Carr, adjoining their larger home, and was occupied for several weeks by Helen Hunt Jackson, who was taking a respite from her missionary work among the Indians at the time, and was a guest of Dr. and Mrs. Carr. Many Pasadena pioneers contend that in this cabin Mrs. Jackson began the writing of her immortal novel, "Ramona," although there is no documentary evidence to support the claim. At any rate, there is no doubt that Mrs. Jackson occupied the cabin for a period of from three to four months.

Dr. Carr died in 1898, and the property subsequently changed hands several times. The Carr home was moved from the tract, and the huge house which now stands there, and which serves as the temporary home of the Pasadena Art Institute, was erected by one of the several owners, a Mr. Reade, who was the founder of the University of Portland at Portland, Oregon.

In 1919, Pasadena had become a city, and the property, situated at the junction of Orange Grove avenue and Colorado street, two of Pasadena's principal thoroughfares, had increased in value tremendously. The owners decided to subdivide and sell the land. Public-spirited citizens, determined to keep the property intact and preserve the magnificent array of rare botanical specimens, immediately formed an organization and launched an effort to have the land purchased by the city for use as a public park. A proposed bond issue for this purpose was placed before the voters and was defeated. The organization of citizens then set out to raise, by public subscription, the sum of $300,000, which was the price placed upon the property by the owners. Philanthropic citizens promptly responded, the fund was raised, and the gardens were saved.

To the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce and Civic Association goes the credit for having instituted the move that resulted in creation of the Pasadena Art Institute. Last year Pasadena celebrated its golden jubilee year. While making plans for the year's observance, the chamber conceived the idea of holding a series of arts and crafts displays in Carmelita Gardens House. George A. Damon was made chairman of a committee appointed to arrange for the displays.

In February, 1924, the first of these exhibits—a showing of camera studies by Moe Wine-man—was opened to the public. During succeeding months of 1924, there was an exhibit by the Painters' and Sculptors' Club of Southern California, a showing of Boy Scouts' work, an exhibit by Pasadena artists, another by the members of the Laguna Beach Art Association, a display of stagecraft by members attending the national convention of the Drama League of America, a series of music week recitals, a better homes exhibit, an arts and crafts exhibit, a Pasadena historical exhibit, a display by the Print Makers' Society of California, exhibits of photographic studies by Frederick Mansen and Clinton C. Clarke, and a showing of famous canvases loaned by the owners of private art collections.

Public response and appreciation were large. During the year, more than 70,000 persons viewed the various displays. The effort was deemed a conspicuous success.

Thereupon, the Pasadena Art Institute was born, with Joseph E. Tilt instrumental in founding it. Funds were raised, and Carmelita House was entirely remodeled, with special attention to lighting effects. The results surpassed the hopes of the most sanguine. It was found that the house lent itself admirably to the purpose. The informal atmosphere of a home was retained, without sacrificing any of the advantages essential to an art gallery, and the beautiful surroundings contributed a charm at once unique and delightful.

Owners of private art galleries immediately offered to lend their collections to the institute for public showing, and these offers were accepted, of course. Many of the private collections in Pasadena are famous throughout the world. The Henry E. Huntington collection probably is better known than any of the others. It includes many masterpieces, among them Gainsborough's "Blue Boy," which aroused so much comment when it was brought to this country by Mr. Huntington. The Huntington collection was recently enriched by the addition of four canvases by Gainsborough, Reynolds, Constable and Romney, for which Huntington is reputed to have paid $1,000,000.

Several canvases also have been presented to the institute as gifts, and this collection of permanent exhibits is steadily growing. Displays at the institute are now confined to paintings and sculptures. Many of the exhibits are changed each month.

The institute is open daily from 10 until 5 o'clock. Sunday hours are from 2 until 5. During the fall and winter, the institute also is open evenings from 7 until 9.

Sunday-afternoon musical concerts and community sings are held in Carmelita Gardens throughout the year, under the supervision of the Pasadena Chamber of Commerce and Civic Association. Famous artists frequently appear on these programs, which are conducted by Mrs. Bertha Calkins, hostess at Carmelita Gardens.

The institute exhibits are in charge of Mrs. Margaret Conless. Officers of the Pasadena Art Institute are: Arthur H. Fleming, president; Wallace L. DeWolf, vice-president; Miss Grace Nicholson, vice-president; James A. Nelson, secretary; H. I. Stuart, treasurer; Mrs. Margaret Conless, assistant secretary. There are fourteen additional trustees.

Breiner was largely attended and much enthusiasm was displayed. Oliver McCobb gave a glowing account of the San Francisco Admission Day parade, in which he appeared as one of the grand marshal's aides.

Allen Bigelow Bixby, charter member and treasurer of the Parlor, having that day been elected commander of the American Legion, Department of California, in session at Catalina, a congratulatory letter was ordered sent him.

Thanks to the Parlor, the State (Bear) Flag was conspicuous by its presence in Pasadena on Admission Day. It was flung to the breeze by Secretary Vincent Savory in Library Park, where it attracted a great deal of attention and caused no little comment.

October 7 has been definitely fixed as the date when Pasadena Parlor, through the kindness of Manager Wendell Wilson of the Liberty Players, one of its members, will feature a theater party. All Native Sons and Native Daughters and their friends are extended an invitation to attend. Full particulars will be presented to the several Parlors. Manager Wilson has a surprise "under his hat" which will be brought to light on this occasion.

FALL FLOWER SHOW.

The Pasadena fall flower show, under the auspices of the Pasadena Horticultural Association, will be held at the Maryland Hotel, October 22, 23 and 24, in conjunction with the annual meeting of the California Nurserymen's Association.

According to those in charge, the show will be a pretentious one, more than four hundred exhibitors displaying a beautiful and bewildering array of choice blooms.

EASTERN PRESS IS TOO

THOUGHTFUL OF JAPAN.

The Johnston "Democrat" remarks anent the proposal of Secretary Wilbur to shift the navy's dirigible base from the New Jersey coast to San Diego: "The shift would be noted in Tokio, where it would be promptly spotted as another evidence of an American preparedness program directed against Japan."

Well, what of it? Has the time come when Uncle Sam cannot even cut his toenails without looking across the Pacific to see whether thumbs are up or down at Tokio?

Or is it because the Eastern press is jealous of the increased attention the Pacific is receiving from Washington, that on every possible occasion it comes forward with the plea that our government must not do thus and so because it will offend the Japanese?

Think of what a furor some of these publications raised with regard to the maneuvers off Hawaii. Some of them even pretended to see therein almost a casus belli for the Nipponese.

Yet, those maneuvers have been held and the fleet has proceeded on its visit of friendship to Australia without causing any earthquake in the Japanese official circles. And Secretary Wilbur seems to be on sensible grounds in declaring that weather conditions make operations of the dirigibles more practical on the West than on the East coast the greater part of the year.—Editorial, Sacramento Bee.

HOLLYWOOD COMMERCE CHAMBER OPPOSES FURTHER ENCROACHMENT ON HOME PROPERTY

(HOLLYWOOD CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

FOR MORE THAN TWO YEARS THE Board of Directors of the Hollywood Chamber of Commerce has been seriously concerned over the fact that there has been a growing tendency on the part of owners of Hollywood property to break down zoning and deed restrictions on Hollywood property in an attempt to create additional business and residential income property.

The board has recognized that the Hollywood community cannot be what its citizens want it to be unless there is maintained here a great area of homes, nor can the present business property be successfully developed if property now set aside for residential purposes is taken from the residential zones and placed in business zones.

It is for these reasons that the board has constantly been extremely conservative in all matters of requests for additional business zoning, and its action with reference to the proposed creation of a new business area on Harold way west of Western avenue has been carefully considered with these points in mind.

A careful check shows that there are more than thirty miles of Hollywood streets zoned for business use, of which not to exceed ten miles is developed in the least with business buildings. The Hollywood business area of thirty miles of street frontage is more than the entire downtown business area, bounded on the north by First street and on the south by Pico, on the east by Los Angeles street and on the west by Figueroa.

The Chamber of Commerce is not opposed in the slightest degree to the operation of any high-class amusement enterprise, and is therefore not opposed to the operation of another ice-skating rink in the Hollywood area. It is opposed, however, to unnecessarily increasing present business areas and the consequent encroachment on present residential property which is demanded by the promoters of the skating rink in question. There are ample locations for skating rinks of the type proposed on practically every important business thoroughfare in Hollywood where no re-zoning will be needed to accommodate such an enterprise.

It should be understood by all Hollywood citizens that the proposal in question is not to add a certain amount of depth to existing business frontage. On the contrary, it is proposed to build a business facing on Harold way, which is a residential street, it being intended to place the west side of the proposed building 349 feet back of the Western avenue frontage. Should the city grant the re-zoning asked for, and consistently follow the same practice in all other similar locations in Hollywood, it would mean re-zoning 920 such parcels of ground, which would be equivalent to 2,760 additional business lots to compete with the areas already zoned for business purposes.

The inevitable result of such re-zoning is to curtail the building of residential improvements and to bring about a demand that additional property adjacent to that in question be also zoned for business. This has been true of the ice-skating rink now in operation on Melrose east of Vermont. This building was constructed in a location very similar to the one now asked for. The result has been a demand for the entire block in which it is located to be zoned for business, as the owners of the property in the block feel that it is useless to build residential buildings on it.

It is the hope of the Chamber of Commerce that all property-owners and citizens of Hollywood will realize the wisdom of maintaining the residential areas, and the further wisdom of avoiding adding to present business areas until the enormous amount now available is at least reasonably developed.

ating season for 1925 early in September. Executive officers of these institutions report greater daily attendances, with a much greater total attendance for the season.

In the case of the Hollywood Bowl concerts, it is estimated that the great orchestra of 100 instruments played to average nightly throngs of 10,000. Thirty-two concerts were given during the season, the total attendance being approximately 320,000.

With less accommodations capacity, the "Pilgrimage Play," giving approximately sixty presentations of the life of Christ drama, played to about 75,000 persons. The "Pilgrimage Play" outdoor theater has a capacity of 1,300.

For the first time in its history the Hollywood Bowl concerts "paid out" on the season. There was no surplus after operating expenses were defrayed, according to executive officers, neither was there any deficit, these officers declare. The concerts are non-profit, and tickets are sold at the rate of twenty-five cents per performance, on the season-book plan. It is proposed to carry on a community campaign for a fixed sum during the "off season" with which to defray the cost of making extensive permanent improvements in the big amphitheater known as the "Home of the Symphony Under the Stars." These improvements contemplate a rearrangement of the seating, with added capacity for accommodations.

Community night performances were specialized during the 1925 season at the "Pilgrimage Play," all of the Southland participating very generously in these special performances. Arrangements are being made for reforesting the hills which enclose the Christ play theater, and in this operation those trees that are native to Palestine, and which can be adapted to propagation in the Hollywood hills, will be used.

Prize Dahlia—At the San Francisco dahlia show last month "The Queen of the Garden Beautiful," a gigantic lemon colored dahlia, was awarded the prize for the most meritorious dahlia on display. It was grown by Frank C. Burns of San Rafael, Marin County.

Landscaping—

Older residents of California are familiar with the fact that Howard & Smith have created many of the most beautiful gardens in the State. With the vast development which has recently taken place in Southern California, however, it may be that some of the newer residents are not aware of the fact that Howard & Smith have a landscape department capable of rendering the very highest service in the treatment of their grounds. In the development of a property, confidence can only be placed in those having a thorough understanding of landscaping in its entirety. A full comprehension of this subject, from the minutest detail to the placing of the house itself, is essential if beauty and harmony are to be the ultimate result.

If you are contemplating the development of your grounds we will be pleased to have you confer with us.

CALIFORNIA FIFTY YEARS AGO

Thomas R. Jones

(COMPILED EXPRESSLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR.)

SAN FRANCISCO'S FINANCIAL SKIES cleared beautifully during October 1875. On the 4th a crowd congregated at California and Montgomery streets and at 10 a. m. a cannon boomed, announcing the reopening of the doors of the Bank of California. A million dollars, in $20 gold pieces, was exposed to the view of the public. At the close of the day's business the deposits had exceeded the withdrawals by $700,000.

The same day the Bank of Nevada, organized by the "bonanza big four," Mackay, Fair, Flood and O'Brien, opened with a capital of $5,000,000. The Mining Stock Exchange resumed its sessions at the same time.

At the state election October 20, Professor Ezra S. Carr, Republican, defeated Rev. O. P. Fitzgerald for superintendent of public instruction by a vote of 45,257 to 39,630.

County fairs were held during the month in Siskiyou, Santa Clara and Sonoma Counties.

The Santa Cruz and Felton railroad was opened October 13 with a largely attended celebration at the former city.

Flocks of plover gave excellent shooting to sportsmen in Yolo County this month.

Devil driving on an elaborate scale by the Chinese of Sacramento began October 9. As every Chinaman in the state had employment, ample funds were obtained by the promoters. A procession at midnight led by the priests, followed by a band whose din had never been excelled and a bamboo devil, stopped at the doorway of every contributor to drive away every devil with burning punk sticks and exploding firecrackers that lurked about the premises. The drive closed with the stuffing of three huge devils, made of paper and bamboo sticks, full of firecrackers and then exploding them in a deafening salvo. A phantom banquet was served; thirty-six pans of boiled rice, five roast hogs and fifteen roast chickens were set out on the street for the devils to partake of, in imagination, before vamoosing. After allowing sufficient time for them to feed, a lottery was held, with the thirty-six winning ticketholders getting each a pan of rice; the pigs and chickens went to the priests. Every Chinaman was smiling and appeared satisfied.

October 17 the first train, an excursion one, was run between Santa Monica and Los Angeles.

Eight thousand acres of the Hancock rancho in San Bernardino County was sold this month for $32,000.

Henry White worked three weeks near Oroville, Butte County, wheeling dirt from his claim to the river bank, where he had everything in place to sluice it. One night this month some Chinamen came along and did the sluicing for him. They cleaned up several thousand dollars' worth of gold dust and departed before daybreak.

STAGE ROBBERS AT WORK.

The Redington mine in Napa County produced during October 1,125 flasks of quicksilver, valued at $9,000.

George H. Beach, a passenger on the stage from Santa Barbara, saw a young seal on the beach a few miles from Ventura. He got out and captured it. It weighed fifty pounds, and when placed in the stage went to sleep.

James Otis, mayor of San Francisco, died October 30. He came from Boston in 1849, engaged in business and became wealthy.

Major L. Powers, who arrived in California July 7, 1849, died at Sacramento October 1. Since 1852 he had engaged in merchandising there.

Judge George M. Blake, a Pioneer of 1850, died in Trinity County October 16. At one time he was mayor of Oakland and had served Alameda County as district attorney.

Judge Walter Murray, district judge in Santa Barbara County for many years, died October 5. He came to California with Stevenson's regiment in 1848.

Sonoma County grapes for winery use were selling at $14 a ton for the mission variety, $37 for zinfandels and $25 for muscats.

In Los Angeles County grapes were $7.50 a ton, the lowest price ever known. The supply was far in excess of the demand.

The first refrigerator car loaded with California grapes was sent East October 19. Besides being iced, the car contained a rotary fan, operated by a belt attached to the car axle, to force the circulation of cooled air through the car.

Judge Clark of Anaheim, Orange County, established a precedent this month by fining men $5 for swearing in public.

An omnibus running from Bakersfield, Kern County, to the railroad depot at Sumner, was robbed of its express box, containing $300.

The Downieville, Sierra County, stage was stopped by five masked men near Dobbins' ranch and the express box, contents unknown, taken.

The stage from Sonora, Tuolumne County, was stopped near Milton by three masked men who wanted the express box, which the stage did not carry. The passengers were not molested.

The south-bound stage was stopped by three masked men near Soledad, Monterey County, and on demand the express box was thrown to them. A. W. Poole of Salinas, a passenger, was walking behind the stage, armed. When one of the highwaymen stooped to pick up the box Poole yelled, "Drop it or you are a dead man!" An exchange of shots followed and the robbers fled.

EXPENSIVE CHICKENS.

The ease with which a man could go hunting and secure a bag of game appealed to the foreign population, who had never enjoyed such privileges in the countries whence they came. They knew little about the birds or the animals that were being bagged. Peter Schnable, a young German, went for a hunt in the hills near Sausalito, Marin County. Coming upon a flock of chickens, he thought they were quail and accordingly bagged five. The owner hearing the shooting and the disturbance came up and demanded $10 in payment for his chickens. Peter, thinking this was a highwayman holding him up, prepared to protect himself with his gun and caused the owner to make a hurried exit. He soon returned, however, with the constable, who put Peter under arrest and took him before the justice of the peace. There Peter, finding himself in the meshes of the law, lost command of what little English he knew. An interpreter had to be obtained before he could explain or be made to understand what it was all about. The end of the hunt was, Peter paid $10 for the chickens, a $40 fine for disturbing the peace, and as his expenses were not less than $10, he paid $12 apiece for his chickens.

A rabbit drive conducted by twenty hunters at Turlock, Stanislaus County, netted 413 jacks October 6.

An Italian was seen on the ferryboat, returning to San Francisco from a day's hunt in the Marin County hills, with three woodpeckers, five bluejays, two ground squirrels and a hatfull of toadstools.

An elderly man arrived from the East October 24 and applied for his baggage at the Sacramento depot. It was found to be overweight, and he was taxed for the excess. Drawing what he thought was a $20 piece from his pocket, he offered it in payment. It was a spielmark, a German piece of brass about as valuable as the German mark has become. Dumfounded, he explained that a fellow named Jones had induced him to exchange $300 in greenbacks for gold, under the pretense that gold was the only kind of money taken in California. An examination of his wallet showed he had fourteen more spielmarks in it.

A San Francisco lad 10 years old was located by the chief of police at Stockton going East on a train alone. On making a close inquiry, he found him to be running away. He had on him $117, all in silver halves, quarters and dimes, also a cannon about eight inches long, loaded to the muzzle, with which he intended to kill Indians crossing the plains, and an automatic gymnast toy worked by clock work, of which he was very proud. His father got him back a day later, but appeared quite disappointed at his being stopped.

IMPRESSIVE INITIATORY CEREMONIES

UNDER TOWERING REDWOODS.

SANTA CRUZ—AUGUST 30 THE GRAND officers and members of the Order from different parts of the state journeyed to the California Redwood Park in the Big Basin of Santa Cruz County, where an outdoor initiation was conducted beneath the towering redwoods and surrounded by nature's most scenic beauty. It was an impressive occasion that will long linger in the memory of the initiates and the participants.

The ritual was exemplified by the following: Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler, Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch, Senior Past Grand President William P. Caub, Grand Secretary John T. Regan, Grand Second Vice-president Charles A. Thompson, Grand Third Vice-president James A. Wilson, Grand Marshal Harry W. Gaetjen, Grand Trustee Richard M. Hamb. Other grand officers in attendance were: Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch, Grand Trustees Frank I. Gonzalez and John S. Ramsay, Grand Outside Sentinel George Dethlefsen. Eighty-five candidates were initiated for the following Parlor: San Jose 22, twenty-one; Golden Gate 29, two; Mission 38, three; San Francisco 49, nine; Watsonville 65, four; Rincon 72, two; Monterey 75, two; Stanford 76, three; Santa Cruz 90, thirteen; Bay City 104, one; Piedmont 120, two; Gabilan 132, two; Alameda 154, one; South San Francisco 157, seven; Observatory 177, three; Olympus 189, one; Presidio 194, three; Dolores 208, two; Mountain View 215, two; Castro 232, one; Bret Harte 260, one. At the ceremonies' close, the assemblage was addressed by Grand President Cutler

and Past Grand President Lewis F. Byington.

Many spent the night previous to the initiation in the park, where a fine entertainment was presented and Grand President Cutler delivered an inspiring address. At noon the day of the ceremonies, Watsonville 65 and Santa Cruz 90 served a hot dinner consisting of clam chowder, steamed mussels, corn on the cob, etc. Following the feast, a State (Bear) Flag was presented to the park by Grand President Cutler on behalf of the Order of Native Sons, and Miss Stella Finkeldey, Past Grand President N.D.G.W., presented an American Flag on behalf of Santa Cruz Parlor No. 90 N.S.G.W. The flags were accepted by the president of the California Park Commission, who promised that they would be flown on all appropriate occasions.

California's Birthday Trees.

San Diego—With fitting exercises September 12 the seventy-fifth anniversary of the discovery by Dr. C. C. Parry of San Diego's unique trees, the Torrey pines, was observed on the promontory overlooking the Pacific, twenty-two miles north of this city, and the trees were dedicated as California's birthday trees. The history of the pines from their discovery to the present was told and their significance enlarged upon.

San Diego 108 took an active interest in the affair and presented American and State (Bear) Flags to Torrey Pines Park, E. H. Dowell making the presentation for the Parlor and the flags being accepted for the city by Mayor Bacon. Speakers of the day included Hugo Klauber, Daniel Cleveland, George W. Marston, C. H. Abbott and W. C. Crandall. Music was supplied by the United States marine band.

The Torrey pines were discovered in 1850 by Dr. C. C. Parry, a botanist on the Mexican boundary commission, who named them in honor of Dr. John Torrey, his instructor in earlier years.

Membership Standing Largest Parlors.

Color and Romance.

San Rafael—The Marin County Parlors of Native Sons and Native Daughters added a touch of color and romance to the San Francisco Admission Day parade. Of the former, members of Mount Tamalpais 64, Serrano 158 and Nicasio 183 faithfully represented the Tamel Indians, who inhabited the San Francisco Bay regions at the time of the coming of the padres. Then followed a float representing the baptism of Christ Marin, an event in the early history of the old mission established at San Rafael in 1817, no trace of which now remains, save four sturdy pear trees, back of the new Masonic temple, which are still bearing fruit, although over a century old.

Marinita 198 N.D.G.W. of this city was much admired and cheered along the line of march. Its members wore strikingly beautiful costumes of gold and silver, representing the golden wealth and the glorious sunshine of California. —L.J.P.

At the dedication of the new San Rafael high school August 22 by the officers of the Grand Parlor, Mount Tamalpais presented American and State (Bear) Flags to the school. The presentation, on the Parlor's behalf, was made by President Lester Knutte, and the flags were accepted by Mervin Miller, chairman of the student body.

Casa Ramona Awarded.

San Francisco—A. Campbell of Marshall 202 (San Francisco) was the lucky contributor to the Casa Ramona fund, created through the efforts of San Francisco's Native Sons to "put over" the Admission Day celebration in this city. He was subscriber No. 8372 Series D.

The award was made in the Civil Auditorium at 2 a. m. of September 13, at the close of jubilee week. The subscribers to the fund totaled 56,260, and among them were people in nearly every state of the union as well as many in foreign countries.

Three Initiated.

Plymouth—At the September 5 meeting of Plymouth 48 three candidates were initiated, the officers of the Parlor impressively exemplifying the ritual. There was a large attendance.

Officers Installed

Hollister—Officers of Fr. 1141 and Capade Oro 105, N. D. G. W. were formally installed August 29 by D. D. G. P. Paul Baker and D. D. G. P.
Arnold Baldwin. A most interesting program was enjoyed, including address by Senator
C. Baker, District Attorney George H. Moore and Deputy Grand President Albert V. Moore.
Notes and vocal solos by B. Brown and William O'Hara. Following the program, a re-dancing, music and refreshments were enjoyed.
Delegations of visitors were present from Selmas, Watsonville and Santa Cruz.

Spanish Day Big Success.

Ventura—Spanish Day, as an opener of the Ventura County Fair, sponsored by Cabrillo 1141, was a huge success. It was the biggest first day in the history of the fair, the receipts exceeding by $1,500 those on any similar occasion.

Five new members were added to Cabrillo's rolls September 11, among them being John Lloyd Butler, president of the Ventura County Fair Association, Abram L. Hobson, prominent in the affairs of the county, and Joseph D. Mc-Grath, an extensive landowner of Ventura.

Judge Robert M. Clarke of Los Angeles, a member of Cabrillo, was the main speaker at the Admission Day luncheon here of the service clubs of Santa Barbara and Ventura Counties.
He related California's history.

Pioneer Day at Fair.

Anderson—McCloud 149 (Redding), Camelia
41 N. D. G. W. and Hraowatha 149 N. D. G. W. (Redding) celebrated California's diamond jubilee by featuring a pioneer day, September 19, at the Shasta County Fair here.

Those who arrived in the county from 1818 to 1862 were registered, and a brief account of each one's trip to California, across the plains, around Cape Horn or across the Isthmus of Panama was recorded.

Past Grand Is Host.

Napa—Past Grand President Frank L. Coombs was host to the following Past Grands at his ranch near this city August 23: Lewis F. Byington of San Francisco, Thomas F. Flint of Hollister, John H. Grady of San Francisco, Dr.
Charles W. Decker of Palo Alto, Fred H. Greely of Marysville, William F. Toomey of Fresno, Sherin William I. Traeger of Los Angeles, Herman C. Lichtenberger of Los Angeles, Daniel A.
Ryan of San Francisco, Clarence E. Jarvis of Sacramento. Other guests included Grand First Vice-president Hilliard E. Welch of Lodi, Dan
Q. Troy of San Francisco, Owen Duffy, H. C.
Dunlap, Nathan F. Coombs of Napa.

SANTA BARBARA JUSTLY PROUD OF ITS NATIVES' SAN FRANCISCO SHOWING.

Santa Barbara is more than proud of the showing its Native Sons made in the San Francisco Admission Day parade, but it was not an unexpected triumph, for Santa Barbara is accustomed to making good in whatever it undertakes. However, it was under circumstances not at all favorable that the undertaking was launched, for the city had just undergone its misfortune of June and everyone has been busy since that time. Nevertheless enough loyal Barbareños gave their time and money to make the Santa Barbara section of the parade one that reflected much credit upon the city and its people.

The city owes a debt of gratitude to all those who gave their assistance to making a success of the Santa Barbara entry, particularly to Dwight Murphy and Adolfo Camarillo, who so generously furnished their own horses and shipped them to San Francisco for the use of those in the parade. Santa Barbara always has its dependable ones who come forward in the hour of need and meet the situation—Santa Barbara Press.

Bonds Voted—San Diego County's citizens have approved a bond issue of $475,000 for improvements to county institutions.

EVERY JAP IN CALIFORNIA INHERITANCE OF TROUBLE

"YOU DO NOT WANT, AND SHOULD not permit, Japs to colonize here, either as residents or merchants," said George J. Burns, former Massachusetts State Senator, now a Los Angeles City resident, in a recent address before the York Boulevard (Los Angeles) Chamber of Commerce, "because:

"First: Their presence depreciates the value of real estate for the White man. It may increase the value for the Jap to the extent that you obtain White customers to buy his products.
The Jap is a parasite who preys on the White man's prosperity.

"Second: The authorities of our state, county and city, whom we tax ourselves to pay to guard our health, say that the Jap has no respect for sanitary laws, beyond our ability to punish him for disregarding them. Every criminal has that degree of respect for all laws. The only clean vegetables in his market are American clothes worn over a kimono.

"Third: The control of the Pacific is the great international issue of the hour. Our only menace from that quarter is Japan, with whom we have several times narrowly avoided conflict.
Japan has repeatedly shaken an armed fist at us. She gave us notice of serious consequences should we exercise our highest attribute of sovereignty, control of immigration. Is it wise to trust our food supply, or any part of it, to the subjects of a potential enemy?

"Fourth: Do you desire as residents those who cannot become citizens? The Jap born in Japan is debarred from citizenship by our laws, and his children born here have no power to sever their allegiance to the mikado except with the mikado's consent, and they have no desire to shake that allegiance.

"Fifth: Every Jap in California is an inheritance of trouble for your descendants, to whom you owe no duty so high and sacred as to leave conditions better than you inherited. In what class of industry do you desire to have your descendants compete with the Jap?

"Sixth: The Jap is the most dangerous propagandist in the world. Contributions to the Japanese Society are included in the price you pay for your strawberries. Is it wise to tax yourself to provide funds to pervert the White man's institutions?

visit one of her fortresses or munitions factories. I have seen photographs taken by Japanese subjects of every important building and strategic point in this vicinity!

"Eighth: Talk about Christianizing the Japs would not fool an intelligent child in a nursery. Every race of people adopts a religion adapted and fitted to its temperamental and moral make-up. The Jap is an ultra-absolute monarchist. His mikado is not only his monarch but his god. He cannot be the subject of any derogatory comment. Our standard is Abraham Lincoln, who came up from the common people, and who never claimed to have descended from the sun. He never forgot that he was the servant of his people. We revere his memory because he was of us.

"Ninth: Our government is a protective institution. It was established at the cost of blood and treasures of our fathers, and its structure has been cemented by the bloods of their sons, to the end that the standards we believe are essential for our welfare may be preserved. That is as true of Japan as of America. Japan excludes the Chinese and Koreans, not because of their religion or color, for both are the same as hers, but because competition with them would lower the standards of her people. There can be no more conclusive demonstration of the undesirability of the Jap than the fact that he resents our doing just what he is doing.

"Tenth: York boulevard is ambitious, not to obtain everything that any other community possesses, for that would include houses of ill-fame and gambling dens, but to exclude everything deleterious. The Jap is not seeking to come among you in order to bless you by his presence, but to prey upon you. He goes to no community where there is against him a sentiment of boycott. That is why he got out of China. Are you less patriotic than the Chinese?"

POPULATION ESTIMATE FOR CALIFORNIA'S TWO CHIEF CITIES.

Los Angeles now has a population double that of San Francisco, according to a telephone census report made public by the engineering department of the State Railroad Commission. This report estimates the population of Los Angeles at 1,129,800 and that of San Francisco at 578,240 persons.

These figures, according to experts, are arrived at by taking as the basis the house-to-house canvass made some months ago by the telephone company and supplemented by the investigations of the State Railroad Commission.

This canvass figures that in Los Angeles there is one telephone to each 4.2 persons and in San Francisco, which holds the record of the world for the number of telephones in proportion to population, there is one telephone to each 2.78 persons.

San Francisco has a total of 208,000 telephones and Los Angeles has 269,000. The estimate of population, as applied to Los Angeles, does not include San Pedro, the shoestring strip or San Fernando; they would add materially to the population.

Thousands See Fair—The recorded attendance at the California State Fair in Sacramento this year, 160,418, exceeded the record attendance of 1924 by 21,919.

"I'LL SAY IT'S SAN DIEGO" (HARRY LEE BURGESS.)

Take me back to San Diego,
 To its sands beside the sea,
 With the spray and sound of breakers
 Dashing loudly, mad at me;
 Where my eye looks on to follow
 All the ships from care set free,
 Where the tide is inward flowing—
 San Diego — by the sea.

Let my soul set sail the ocean
 While its waves around me roar:
 On the sands of the Pacific,
 Set me down upon its shore.

LOS ANGELES' LEADING COLLECTORS FOR TWENTY YEARS

Let me still my restless longing;

Oh, one glorious day to see!

View the sun with crystal diamonds
 San Diego — by the sea.

Take me back to San Diego,

Where the sun shines all the time;

And the birds and flowers give gladness,

To this longing heart of mine.

For in my dreams my soul has flown

To hours I fondly passed with thee.

And all I want is my home, sweet home—
 In San Diego — by the sea.

(The above is being sung with great success by John H. Donahoe of San Diego Parlor No. 108 N.S.G.W., whose voice compares favorably with the celebrated tenor John McCormick. This song has been a feature at many big conventions, and may still be heard wherever good music is played; the audience nearly always demands encores; it is an assured hit.)

A BIT O' FARMING

BACK YARD POULTRY PROFIT

THERE ARE THREE PRIME REQUISITES for profit in poultry—breeding, housing and feeding. The last two are rather easily cared for. Feeds are obtainable now, ready mixed, in proper balance. Housing, while in the back yard is not always ideal, can be made adequate if the house is not drafty, has plenty of air and is kept clean. Breeding brings about another problem. The back-yard poultryman, in most instances, cannot conduct a breeding farm, if he is operating for the eggs and meat for his family. Some operate small flocks and build up high production, but this is the exception.

The average poultryman of the suburbs buys his baby chicks and raises his pullets. Or he may buy his pullets, and eliminate the guess-work there. But whatever he does, he will find some hens, if he watches closely, that are not earning their board. Cull them out, and quickly. Get rid of the hen that has a tail full of splendid feathers; it should be worn down from sitting on the nest. Kill the hen that has yellow in her shanks and bill; that yellow should have gone into eggs. Don't keep a hen that isn't a good layer, that spends her time in molting or clucking. The back-yard poultryman can no more afford the boarder hen than can the commercial egg producer, and he must adopt the same methods in getting production. Cull carefully, but vigorously.

THE SUGAR-BEET LEAF HOPPER.

One of the most perplexing problems that ever has faced the California College of Agriculture, is that of controlling the sugar-beet leaf hopper. This insect pest this year cut the sugar-beet crop of California at least in half, and turned a crop that has been returning sure profits to one bringing red ink. The leaf hopper itself does no damage, but it does leave the germ of the blight, or curly top, that checks the development of the roots, and therein is the damage.

Three methods of control are possible. The first of these is by an insecticide, or spraying. The difficulty here is that the hopper comes unannounced from the breeding grounds in the foothills, stays but a few days, and then returns. Spraying then becomes costly and inefficient. Parasites have been considered, but the migratory problem again enters. Too, where other pests are of known origin, and parasites are therefore obtainable, the beet leaf hopper has come apparently from nowhere and parasites are unknown. Ten different parasites now at work do not control the pest.

The third method suggested at a conference called by President W. W. Campbell of the University of California to consider the matter is by breeding resistant strains of beets that will not be affected by the blight. Dr. Eubanks Carsner of the United States Department of Agriculture has been doing this at Riverside for some years, and the College of Agriculture of the University of California will take up a breeding experiment of its own. While the tests will take a number of years, it is believed a resistant stock ultimately will be developed that will return the sugar-beet to its established position in agriculture.

FLIES AND COWS.

Don't worry too much about the flies that bother the cows. It always has been thought that the flies that cause old bossy to flick her tail in the milk'er's eye and to kick over the pail of milk caused another production loss through their annoyance to the cows. Firms making fly sprays have contended these losses are heavy. However, the California College of Agriculture has run an experiment, and while the figures are not yet available, it is unofficially announced that the cows which the flies bothered gave just as much milk as those protected by spray. At least the difference did not make up for the cost and labor in applying the preventative.

From a humane standpoint, however, the dairyman may continue to protect his cows, but there's not much need, if production and profits only are to be considered.

RECORD CUCUMBER CROP.

California often has occasion to boast of yields in agriculture. Here is one that deserves mention: Joseph Suppon, in the San Fernando Valley, in Los Angeles County, produced, on three and one-half acres of land, thirty-two tons of cucumbers, better than nine tons to the acre. This does not include some seven tons that were thrown away because they were not of good quality, or which were oversized before he could pick them.

When it is remembered that five tons per acre is a splendid crop in any district, this yield will be held all the more remarkable. The price this year was $40 a ton for firsts. It took six men to pick the cucumbers from the field.

GIRDLING GRAPE VINES.

The girdling or ringing of vines bearing Zante currants, which really are small grapes, has been practiced for many years. Without this girdling, there are no currants. Now, however, it has been found that in some instances, at least, this same treatment may be applied with success to the ordinary market grapes. The girde is made on the cane, preferably between the first and second buds, removing the bark and the cambium layer, but not going into the wood. The girde should be about a quarter-inch in width.

Experiments have not been carried far enough to determine the value of the practice, but in some localities it has been said to increase the yield greatly, through the increase in the size of the berries. The theory is, that when the girdling is done in the blooming period and the sap is up, the return flow is prevented and this vigor goes into the fruit.

ELECTRICALLY GROWN CROPS.

Growing crops by electricity is reported to be successful in France. No electric current is required, but an apparatus is devised that takes electrical energy from the air, something on the principle of the lightning-rod. This is placed on poles about ten feet apart, and wires are run toward the northern edge of the plot, in furrows ten to twenty inches deep. It is claimed grains yield twice as much under this treatment, that grape vines are cured of phylloxera, that fertilization is not necessary, and that it is immensely profitable.

As to the action of the electric current, it is suggested as probable that the current first stimulates the fertility of the surrounding soil and then forms nitric acid by the combination of oxygen, azote and water vapor, and some nitrates by the reaction of the nitric acid on the chalk-potash bases. It is also logical to suppose that the atmospheric oxygen is transformed into ozone, which has a very energetic microbic action; it appears in fact that electrified plants are less subject than others to certain maladies proceeding from bacteria.

DAIRYING IN CALIFORNIA.

The cow census of California shows that 650,000 dairy cows in the state produce only an average of 182 pounds of butterfat per year. Some dairymen are losing money, and he is the one whose low production brings down the average figure. G. E. Gordon, dairy specialist for the Agricultural Extension Service of the University of California, heads a movement of dairy interests that have set a goal for 1929 of 265 pounds of butterfat per cow per year. Gordon estimates the figures for 1925 will show a production of 200 pounds, and he has five years to reach his goal, which he hopes to attain through purebred bull campaigns and cow testing associations.

In Ohio, S. M. Salisbury, extension specialist, says a cow must return $2.50 for every $1 spent for its feed, and that 325 pounds of fat must be produced for fair returns on investment and labor. The man whose cows are producing, as some must in California, less than half this amount, surely cannot be progressing far along the road of financial independence.

PUREBRED LIVESTOCK.

Does purebred livestock pay? Those who have purebred animals think so, according to a survey conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture. The initial investment is larger, but over a period of years the profit on this investment is much larger. Take beef animals, for instance. Purebreds mature earlier with a resultant quicker turnover, require less feed, and losses are less owing to better condition of breeding stock. Prices are higher, because quality is better. Purebred dairy cows cost slightly more to raise than scrubs, but the production far more than offsets this. Above all the facts culled by the survey is this one: ninety-six percent of the farmers who have tried purebreds have stayed with them.

MILK GOATS POPULAR.

It has not been so many years ago that milk goats were rather scorned. That day, happily, has passed. The milk goat, an economical producer of a most necessary food, has found a place from which it never will be dislodged. Goat milk need have neither taste nor odor, if properly cared for. A goat will furnish milk for small families where a cow would be wasteful. The feed bill is small, and the milk supply is assured. California has led in milk goat production, but the movement is spreading, as witness the sale of two carloads of animals from this state to Missouri and Georgia. There is a place in California, however, for every milk goat that will be bred here in the next decade.

SLUGS IN THE GARDEN.

Slugs have become a serious garden pest in many parts of the state. Some back-yard farmers report this year having to plant two or three times to get a stand of vegetables. Slugs are hard to control, yet it may be done without too much trouble. An arsenate poison on lettuce leaves has proved efficient in some places, but there always is danger in leaving poison about.

Perhaps a better plan is to put a ring of dry lime about the garden, air-slacked lime. Few slugs will cross it. Lime scattered about the plants attacked will prevent the slugs from reaching them and eating the leaves. Strawberries in some gardens were devoured as they ripened, violets were eaten down so they never had a chance to bloom, beans were nipped off before they had a chance to more than get the bow of the stem through the ground, in many localities.

The lime treatment is worth while trying, and wood ashes, perfectly dry, are used by some with good results in preventing the slugs from working. A clean up of the premises, removing the damp, dark places for hiding and breeding of the slugs will aid in their control.

SAN JOSE PARLORS MADE GREAT SHOWING ON ADMISSION DAY.

SAN JOSE 81 AND SAN JOSE 22 N.S.G.W. walked away with the sweepstake prize at the Admission Day pageant in San Francisco September 9. To say that they were surprised, would be saying the least. At no time during the preparations were any efforts made to strive for a prize; however, at all times plans were made to have them help California to show the world that "she knows how." To be the proud possessor of a prize, let alone the sweepstake, was the farthest thought from their minds. Who would not thrill with pride when looking at the handsome trophy, one of the most pretentious cups that has ever been given as an award in any parade in the history of California? The Parlors have for many years past marched together, always the feeling of goodfellowship being fostered. They were proud to be able to carry the prize home to the "Garden Spot of California" and to feel that it was a triumph for the locality, considering the magnitude of the celebration.

The color-scheme of the Parlors carried out the national colors; the formation was diamond shape, typical of the celebration. The Daughters wore striking dresses of red satin and marched in the center of the diamond, while the Sons, wearing white trousers and flag-blue satin coats, outlined the diamond—a dazzling sight in the sunlight. This was not all: San Jose 22's drum corps led the division with their clever little mascot, Wilbert Robinson. Following them came the float representing the first capitol of California, which was situated in San Jose, and behind this stretched the rank and file of loyal members doing their part.

Who could resist the call of pride that prompted the Parlors to want to "tell the town" about their good fortune? Led by "Tim" Sullivan, popular member of No. 22, and Genevieve

Thirty-fourth Birthday Observed.

Sonora—Dardanelle 66 celebrated its thirty-fourth institution anniversary August 21, having as guests members of the neighboring Parlor, Anona 164 (Jamestown). The occasion was pleasantly spent in recalling recollections of the past. Refreshments were served, and at their close President N. A. Rother read a paper entitled "Reminiscences of Dardanelle," in part as follows:

"Dardanelle Parlor was instituted in Sonora, August 21, 1891, with fifty-four charter members, by District Deputy Grand President Mary Durkin. . . . The flame of Native Daughter zeal had been enkindled, and I am proud to say it has never burned low. . . . In the thirty-four years of Dardanelle Parlor's life it has steadily grown and held its own. . . . In the year 1897, Dardanelle Parlor most ably entertained the Grand Parlor, during which time Mrs. B. W. Conrad was unanimously elected and installed as Grand President, and Lottie Van Harlingen was elected Grand Trustee. The following year Dardanelle was again honored by Della Neal becoming Grand Trustee. . . . That our success from so humble a beginning has been all that could be desired is due, to a certain extent, to the untiring efforts of its members. . . . Let us not cease our labors, but continue on, bound together by the ties of nativity in such a sublime creed, winning for Dardanelle the many bright laurels hidden in the sequestered walls of life, as well as in the great avenues of fame."

Benefit for Lodge-rooms.

Santa Barbara—Participating in the Admission Day festivities at San Francisco from April Mar 126 did not hold its annual September 1 milk fund benefit this year.

During October the Parlor will give an entertainment, the proceeds of which will be applied to the restoration of its lodge rooms, badly damaged in the recent catastrophe.

Charter Members Honor Guests.

Oakland—Over a hundred members of Past mont 87 were present September 3 to welcome and honor the charter members. Tillie Coulter, Gertrude Hibber, Jennie Brown, Tillie Paul, Theresa Hahn, Anna Mohr—who were guests of honor on "old timers' nite." Others in attendance were Past Grand President Addie L. Mosher, Supervising District Deputy Gertrude Morrison, D.D.G.P. May Barthold. The following contributed to the program: Frances Rulfs, Mae C. Ward, Carol King, Jennie Brown, Augusta

News material for all departments of The Grizzly Bear MUST BE SENT DIRECT to the publication office, 308-15 Wilcox Building, Los Angeles, not later than the 18th of the month, as forms close the 20th.

Don't wait until about the 18th and then send in your news, that might just as well have been forwarded much earlier, for The Grizzly Bear force cannot do the impossible.

Send in your news promptly, when it is "alive," and it will be given due attention. Otherwise, otherwise.—Editor.

Huxsol, Gladys West, Neva Campana, Past Grand President Mosher, D.D.G.P. Barthold, Supervising Deputy Morrison, President Betty Meinert, the latter delivering the welcome address. Refreshments were served in the prettily decorated banquet room, the jubilee colors predominating.

Mrs. Alice Berthaud-Olson, a recent bride, was showered with congratulations and presented with an electric toaster by the Parlor and a handsome sofa cushion by the September birthday committee, of which she was a member. A shower of jams and jellies for the disabled war veterans in the Livermore hospital was a big success. Mrs. Augusta Huxsol was in charge of this feature. The committee in charge for the evening was: Greta Murden (chairman), Mabel Hamb, Erna Jenkins, Rose Worthington, Marguerite Vargas, Alice Berthaud-Olson, Harriett Emerson, Anna Woods, Edith Roemer.

District Thirty-one Outing.

Hollister—The Native Daughters of district No. 31, comprising Santa Cruz, Salinas, Watsonville, San Juan Bautista, Monterey and Hollister, will hold their annual district meeting at Asilomar, October 17 and 18.

The festivities of the gathering will be opened by a dinner on Saturday evening, which will be followed by a few hours of stunts and the discussion of questions of vital importance to the growth of the Order. One of the most interesting topics will be the formation of a Past Presidents' Club for the district. Social intercourse will mark the closing hours. Sunday will be given over to enjoyments of the seashore, with a few surprises to whet the curiosity of those assembled.

These district gatherings have been pleasurable and profitable in the past, and an unusually happy week-end is anticipated. With Supervising District Deputy Justina Lewis in charge, aided and abetted by Deputies Pearl Baker, June Lindsay and Mathilda Bergschicker, nothing will be left undone to make the occasion long to be remembered.

Five Initiated.

Pittsburg—Stirling 116 initiated a class of five candidates September 2. Following the ceremonies the entertainment committee rendered a program and served refreshments. During the evening $6.50 was netted from an ice book, which was awarded to Past Grand President Amy V. McAvoy.

Passing of the California Pioneer

(Confined to Brief Notices of the Demise of Those Men and Women Who Came to California Prior to 1860.)

HENRY H. SCHUESSLER, NATIVE OF Alabama, 80; came to California in 1849 with his father, who planted a vineyard in what is now the center of Yuba City, Sutter County; died at Berkeley, Alameda County. General John A. Sutter is said to have been a frequent visitor at the Schuessler place in early days, stopping there enroute from historic Hock farm to Marysville, Yuba County.

Mrs. Mary J. Freitas, native of Azores Islands, 83; came in 1850 and sixty-one years ago settled in Shaw's Flat, Tuolumne County, where she died; five children survive.

Mrs. Anna Stewart, native of Scotland, 86; came in 1852 and settled in Sonoma County; died near Sonoma, survived by a son.

Joseph Sigle, native of Poland, 98; came in 1852; died at Los Angeles City, survived by two children.

Mrs. Sarah Jane West-Conner, native of New Jersey, 83; came via the Isthmus in 1853 and two years later settled in Santa Clara County; died near San Jose, survived by four children.

Mrs. Ellen Hart, native of New York, 85; came via the Isthmus in 1855 and settled in San Francisco, where she died; six children survive.

James R. Wheat, native of New Jersey, 86; crossed the plains in 1852; died at Sacramento City, survived by four children.

Mrs. Mary Gluyas-Thompson, native of Pennsylvania, 83; came in 1854 and long resided in Napa County; died at Los Angeles City, survived by two children.

Mrs. Henrietta Mylar-Kelsey, native of Missouri, 83; crossed the plains in 1855 and resided in San Benito, Mariposa and Stanislaus Counties; died at Oakdale, survived by six children.

William Winn, 87; came across the plains in 1853; died at Escondido, San Diego County. He crossed the continent four times, twice in a covered wagon.

Mrs. Lena Mensing, native of Germany, 89; came via the Isthmus in 1856 and resided in Mariposa, Merced, Santa Clara and Alameda Counties; died at Oakland, survived by five children.

Mrs. Lizzie Ryan, native of Germany; came in 1856 and settled in Sacramento County; died at Santa Cruz, survived by a daughter.

David P. Stewart, native of Missouri, 84; came in 1858 and resided in Sacramento, Nevada and Santa Clara Counties; died at San Jose, survived by a wife and two daughters.

Mrs. Sarah Gibson, native of Illinois, 86; came in 1858 and with the exception of three years resided since in Petaluma, Sonoma County; died at Berkeley, Alameda County, survived by seven children.

Edwin Henry Hall, native of New York, 80; came in 1853 and resided in Stanislaus and Tuolumne Counties; died at Sonora, survived by six children. For years he engaged in freighting. "Old residents will remember 'Hall's bell team,'" says the "Union Democrat" of Sonora, referring to his demise, "the long line of animals that pulled the heavy wagons of supplies into Sonora, and that was the pride of the owner, and an inspiring sight to all who beheld the fine animals or heard the bells, warning at a distance, on the bad roads of the time, of the approach of the California 'caravan'."

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth McElroy, native of Ireland, 75; came with her parents around the Horn in 1858 and three years later moved to Nevada State; died at Reno, survived by four children.

OLD TIMERS PASS

Bingham C. Brier, native of Iowa, 70; since 1860 resident Sacramento City, where he died; two children survive.

SITE OF FIRST AMERICAN FLAG RAISING IN STATE TO BE MARKED

HOLLISTER (SAN BENITO COUNTY) Sunday, October 1, the membership of Fremont Parlor No. 44 N.S.G.W. and Copa de Oro Parlor No. 105 N.D.G.W., with San Juan Bautista Parlor No. 179 N.D.G.W., will dedicate a bronze plaque on Fremont Peak in commemoration of the raising of the American Flag on that spot by John C. Fremont, March 1, 1846, the first time the Stars and Stripes was raised on California soil.

A cement company has erected a seventy-five-foot flagpole on the peak, and this will be dedicated by President Humphrey of the company, who will also present a large American Flag. The grand officers of the Native Sons of the Golden West will present a State (Bear) Flag with appropriate ceremonies.

Addresses by Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler and Past Grand President Lewis F. Hyington of the Native Sons, Grand President Sue J. Irwin of the Native Daughters, and District Attorney George H. Moore of the Fremont Memorial Association will be interspersed with community singing. Those who expect to make the ascent of the peak are asked to bring basket lunches. Coffee and barbecued meat will be served by the local Parlor.

An invitation has been extended to the American Legion to participate in the ceremonies of the day. A large attendance of the citizenry of the adjoining towns is expected.

In Memoriam

WILLIAM WALTER BELSHAW.

Whereas, In the infinite wisdom of Almighty God, our friend and brother, William Walter Belshaw, has passed on, to take up his duties in the Heavenly Parlor on High; and whereas, in the passing of Brother Belshaw, General Winn Parlor No. 32 Native Sons of the Golden West has lost one of its most loyal members and earnest workers, the City of Antioch one of its most respected citizens, and Brother Belshaw's family a loving husband and father and a true brother; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of General Winn Parlor No. 32 Native Sons of the Golden West extend our most heartfelt sympathy to the members of Brother Belshaw's family in this, their sad hour of bereavement, and sincerely pray that their sorrow may be tempered in the thoughts that God, in His infinite mercy, knows best, and be it further resolved, that our charter be draped in mourning and that General Winn Parlor at its next regular meeting close in loving respect to the memory of our departed brother, and be it further resolved, that copies of these resolutions be sent to the members of Brother Belshaw's family, that copies be published in The Grizzly Bear Magazine and "Antioch Ledger" and that a copy be spread upon the minutes of General Winn Parlor.

Respectfully submitted in F. L. & C.
WESTLEY FIELD,
THOS. H. MEOOY,
C. W. HORNBACK,
Committee.

Antioch, September 3, 1925.

LAURA WHYERS KAUFFMAN.

To the Members of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 Native Daughters of the Golden West. Whereas, The Heavenly Father has called from our midst our loved sister, Laura Whyers Kauffman, a loyal member of Los Angeles Parlor No. 124 Native Daughters of the Golden West, we have lost a sister whose noble character and kind disposition endeared her to all, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we extend to the sorrowing husband and family our sincere and earnest sympathy, and commend them for comfort to our Heavenly Father. Who doeth all things well, for The star goes down to rise upon a brighter shore, there to shine in the heavenly jewel crown forevermore. resolved, that a copy be sent to the bereaved relatives, and to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication, and that a copy also be spread on the minutes of the parlor. Committee.

Los Angeles, September 4, 1925.

ETHEL SHERMAN.

To the Officers and Members of Brooklyn Parlor No. 157 N.D.G.W.—We, your committee appointed to draft resolutions to the memory of our departed sister, Ethel Sherman submit the following:

Whereas, In obedience to the decree of our Divine Father, Who doeth all things for the best, our sister has been transferred to the Heavenly Parlor, where, while bowing to the submission of the Divine Will, we deeply deplore the loss of our sister;

Resolved, That in token of our heartfelt sympathy for her bereaved family, a copy of these resolutions, under the seal of the Parlor, be sent to them, and be it further resolved, that these resolutions be spread in and upon the minutes of this Parlor, and that a copy be sent to The Grizzly Bear Magazine for publication.

chaperoned the younger generation, which was well represented, and a happy day was spent swimming and playing games. Prizes were awarded for races and other contests. Mrs. Pearl Schachtebeck sent balloons, and these added to the enjoyment of the occasion. Plenty of ice-cream was dispensed. Credit for the success of the occasion is due Miss Carrie Kerr, chairman of the outing committee.

Officers of the Parlor were recently installed by D.D.G.P. Sophia Finley, Virginia Burke becoming president. Miss Marion S. Stough, retiring president, was presented with an emblematic pin and a framed picture of Torrey pines, the presentation addresses being made by Mrs. Virginia Burke and Miss Adele Koop. Refreshments were served by the committee of the evening. Mrs. Pearl Schachtebeck chairman.

Twelve Initiated.

Daly City—El Carmelo 181 initiated a class of twelve candidates September 2, the newly-installed officers, headed by President Anna Bauer, exemplifying the ritual. At tables beautifully decorated in the diamond jubilee colors a delicious banquet was served at the ceremonies' conclusion. Mrs. John O'Connor was in charge of the successful whist party, September 16.

The Parlor's drill team made a splendid showing in the San Francisco contest. Miss Laura Fignoli was the drill major. The team's hopechest will be disposed of October 27.

Officers Jointly Installed.

Byron—At a joint installation August 11 the officers of Donner 193 and Byron 179 N.S.G.W. were installed by D.D.G.P. Loretta Kelley and D.D.G.P. F. Jackson Buslow, both of Antioch. Anna Pendry and August Almon becoming president of the respective Parlor. Frances Hudson, retiring past president of Donner, was presented with a beautiful piece of silver. Grand Officer Etelle Evans was present and furnished music for the ceremony.

September 2, Donner initiated four candidates and entertained members of other Parlor in the district. Plans are being made for the anniversary dance, the annual hopechest for the homeless children and a series of card parties.

N.D. WAYS NATIONAL BEAUTY CONTEST.

Oakland—Miss Faye Lanphier, as "Miss California," was declared the most beautiful entrant in the national bathing beauty pageant at Atlantic City, New Jersey, during September, and was awarded the "Miss America 1925" title. Miss Lanphier is affiliated with Aloha Parlor No. 106 N.D.G.W. of Oakland.

GREAT HISTORICAL VALUE.

The September number, the jubilee edition of The Grizzly Bear, the official magazine of the Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, is one of the most interesting publications of the year. It is of great historical value and should be kept as a souvenir.—The Mountain Democrat, Placerville.

Feminine World's Fads and Fancies

PREPARED ESPECIALLY FOR THE GRIZZLY BEAR BY ANNA STOERMER.

BRIEF SKIRTS FOR FALL AND WINTER

NO LONGER IS IT THE STRAIGHT, severe tube gown, which was most in evidence upon the ballroom floor, but the equally simple and more alluringly graceful effect of rippling laces and flounces. Not a whit less simple and youthful are these new modes, however. They remind one of the morning-glories swaying in the wind. Almost indescribable are many of these frocks, of delicate tissue in all of the season's colors.

Lovely, frilly neckwear, made of lace and net, cunningly and daintily fashioned, which has been so much set aside of late under the reign of bateau necks, has come into its own again with the tailored suits and the "V"-necked surplises of the one-piece gowns. Eighteen-inch long jabots of finely plaited net, edged with lace, are topped with small bows or metal ribbon. Or, if to be worn at the side of a gown, perhaps by a single beautiful flower. Lace and net guimpes finished with embroidered net fronts, and puffed and ribbon-trimmed cuffs for completing a three-quarter length sleeve, are offered in variety.

Strictly plain jumper dresses and tailored suits require a more reserved form of neck and sleeve adornment. For these, come an endless variety of linen and pique sets. Some are hand embroidered in colors, some are hemstitched, and some come with patches of gold or silver leather attached to net bands and are easily adjusted. Tabs, points and half collars of lace and embroidery come with glittering tiny ribbons of gold edge. Some of the lace ruffles, an inch wide, have more ribbons, which serve as an edging to the more delicate ruffling fabric.

A fur neckpiece, adjustable to any suit or gown, is made like a wide, double standing collar. From underneath the left side, just in front of the shoulder, is drawn a crush of soft georgette. In this instance fur and material were of two shades of brown. Borders of the fur, not more than an inch wide, edge the bottom of the scarf, which falls below the waistline.

The waistline may be high or low, or no waistline at all, with straight or curved line slipping in a sharp angle from hip to knee, or pinched in a bit with a suggestion of the waspline. It's a case of suit yourself, but use judgment in your choice. Popular demand still generally prefers the low waistline.

Plain georgette, in pastel tones over slips of the same, is being offered for afternoon. One is of delphinium blue trimmed with bands of chin-chilla fur.

Plain chiffon frocks are made extremely colorful by hand-painted tracteries applied after the frock is completed. Sometimes there is an effect of clouds and sun, with the rays spreading from a motif on the bodice front at the waistline.

Deep vest effects of contrasting material and color give dash to an otherwise plain frock. Lanvin green, embroidered in metal, with a black gown, and coral-red cloth, done in eyelet embroidery over silver, with a platinum gray crepe satin, make stunning effects.

Very brief skirts for fall and winter wear will continue to be worn, but the flares, the added fullness and the swirling ripple will give an impression of greater length when seated.

Best looking shoes are now shown in the shops. Extremely chaste and delicate in outline are the evening pumps and sandals in plain metal kids, or the black satins or patent leathers with buckles. Fancy runs riot, however, in the variety for general wear.

Opera pumps of narrow moire stripes are worn with rose beige stockings, purple suede pumps with orchid chiffon stockings and gray suede strapped slippers with clocked hose in the same shade, while nude, in many tones, is seen with black pumps.

Every day more attractive novelties are offered in handbags, those toilet accessories without a variety of which no woman is well dressed and which, properly or improperly chosen, may so complete or ruin a costume. Numberless bags are needed.

Equally, must thought and care be given the bag which accompanies the evening gown. Rather popular among the dancing set are the little boxes dangling from a jeweled chain or cord and flaunting a gorgeous tassel. These are just large enough for a tiny handkerchief, cosmetics and a few cigarettes. Pin morocco and seal bags, leather lined and made in the flat underarm style, are much liked for their trim outline.

The woman who looks upon a bag as a day-time trunk, however, and who never gets away from the sample-note-pencil-clippings habit, always demands a leather bag with more accordion-like pockets, so that she may find space for one more treasure.

It is smart to have one's gloves and handbag correspond in color. A black bag lined in buff kid is carried by hands encased in buff kid gloves whose turned-back black moire cuffs have embroidery and tracteries to match those on the bag.

High in price are the bags like small persian rugs. Those woven entirely of beads and having a short fringe, are mounted in oblong effect on metal tops, with unusually long chains. These are sometimes slipped over the arm to the shoulder, the bag hanging at the side.

Very large and carefully cut brilliants are studded in wide bands. A cut jet evening bag, which swings from a bracelet similarly fashioned, a combination of jet and brilliants, is especially liked, it fitting perfectly with almost any costume.

Fox and wolf furs are particularly effective as trimming for coats. A turn-over collar, a four- or five-inch band on the pulled-over front edge and a large triangular piece trimming the bottom front make up an effective garniture on some of the new top coats.

(Members Ramona, N.S.G.W.)

Raccoon has been cut up and made into trimming for coats and suits. Opossum has also appeared, but as the supply is low, there seems to be a turning to skunk of all grades.

For various types of coats and wraps, silver fitch, a most becoming and lovely fur, is being limited very successfully by a dyed fur. So very great is the demand for furs and fur-trimmed garments, that makers are compelled to find substitutes for the more expensive pelts.

Wide or narrow bandings of clipped feathers take the place of fur or wool trimmings on some of the new wraps. A white cloth coat has a collar and an eight-inch band about the hem of these clipped feathers. Violet, royal blue and emerald green feather bands are always effective on evening gowns with brilliantly colored linings.

Jewels must harmonize with one's apparel: earrings, rings, bracelets. With a plain velvet gown it is exceedingly artistic and modish to have a large brooch to match a bracelet or two. Pearls lead in popularity.

Costume jewelry novelties, designed to give a note of color, are, the same as for several years past, much liked.

The very simplicity of hat and frock today offer glorious backgrounds for the display of rare gems. Square or oblong cut gems, rather than the round, are preferred by the best dressed women, and if one belongs to the fortunate group who possess many heirlooms in precious stones, she is counted among the lucky. Black onyx is in demand by the smart dressed woman.

JUBILEE GRIZZLY A BEAUTY.

"Editor Grizzly Bear: A copy of your Jubilee number has just reached my desk and it is a beauty. I take this opportunity of congratulating you on the splendid number which you have gotten out. It will mean much to the state as a whole, and you and your associates are to be commended on the enterprise that has resulted in such a splendid magazine.

"Very truly yours,

"R. HOOK JR.,

"Secretary Chamber Commerce.

(Inadvertantly, credit for the Mountain View article in The Grizzly Bear for September was given Secretary Hook, whereas it should have been given J. R. Ferren, who prepared it.—Editor.)

HOW SAINT HELENA GOT ITS START.

Saint Helena wasn't here when California was admitted into the union seventy-five years ago, but had its beginning soon afterwards. In 1853 Harry Still, an Englishman, built and opened the first store. It was a small split-redwood building and in this shanty he met the needs of the few pioneers in the vicinity. In 1855 Still offered a lot to anyone who would erect a building and engage in business. Several took advantage of the offer and in this way Saint Helena got its start seventy years ago.—Saint Helena Star.

BOOK REVIEWS

(MARGERY BOYD.)

"THE ANCIENT HIGHWAY."

By James Oliver Curwood; Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

With the publishing of "The Ancient Highway," James Oliver Curwood adds another novel to his rapidly-filling bookshelves. Though written in much the same vein as his other stories of the great Northwest, the novel still retains a distinct individuality and charm of its own.

The story deals with valiant men, lovely women and great forests. The background, appropriately chosen for such characters, is that romantic section of Canada around Quebec and its ancient French settlements. Casual readers will find "The Ancient Highway" entertaining; Curwood admirers will add it appreciatively to their Curwood row.

"STOLEN IDOLS."

By E. Phillips Oppenheim; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price $2.00.

Two stolen idols, an involved hero and a steadfast heroine complicate into a second-rate mystery story, "Stolen Idols." The appearance of Mr. Johnson in book three draws forth a spark or two of waning interest.

The last few chapters are the best of "Stolen Idols," but for those who enjoy mystery jargons and Far Eastern superstitions, the entire two hundred and ninety-three pages are earnestly recommended.

"OLD YOUTH."

By Coningsby Dawson; Cosmopolitan Book Corporation, Publishers, New York; Price, $2.00.

Eve Greensleeve was thirty-six; in four years she would be forty. Though beauty and wealth were hers, youth and love, she thought bitterly, were heedlessly slipping past her.

Coningsby Dawson makes the most of Eve's situation. Of the events which follow, he molds a novel in which traditional convention struggles with modern sophistry. A certain tendency to use his characters as mouthpieces of his own analyses leads to a stiltedness in their actions. "Old Youth" is interesting as a novel of society life, its men and women.

"SPANISH ACRES."

By Hal G. Evarts; Little, Brown & Company, Publishers, Boston; Price, $2.00.

Spanish acres, a feud and evil spirits vs. Stan. Hollister, Sarah Lee and a village of Paseo Indians, are the ingredients of Hal G. Evarts' latest novel.

"Spanish Acres" has all the thrill of a detective story in its mystery, plus the added punch of having a first-class cowboy setting for its romance. Addicts of Western fiction, step forward!

Millions for Grapes—The State Department of Agriculture estimates that this year's California grape crop will bring the growers $56,000,000.

WOULD MAKE CALIFORNIA'S

STREETS AND HIGHWAYS SAFE.

"S.O.S.—Safety or Sorrow!" is fast becoming the slogan throughout California, due to the efforts of the California Safety Conference to lessen auto fatalities in the state. Women are particularly active in the campaign, and are determined to materially lessen the number of fatalities by December 15, when they will present to Governor Friend W. Richardson statistics showing the result of their endeavors.

The Safety Conference, which is supported by the California Development Association, the California State Automobile Association, the Automobile Club of Southern California, the California Peace Officers' Association and the State Division of Motor Vehicles, is distributing by thousands this safety pledge: "I hereby solemnly pledge to observe the motor vehicle laws at all times and to operate my automobile with due regard for the safety of motorists and pedestrians to the end that the appalling sacrifice of human life and unnecessary suffering caused by carelessness may be stopped—and the streets and highways of California made safe." Everyone will have an opportunity to join in this great humanitarian activity.

Los Angeles' Wealth—Through a final revision of the 1925 assessment figures, the total assessed value of all property in Los Angeles County is placed at $2,940,030,639, an increase of $328,690,664 over the 1924 assessment total. It is, by far, the richest county in California.

Boys vs. Tractor—The eleventh annual convention of California agricultural clubs will be held October 15 to 17 at the University of California Farm at Davis, Yolo County. A feature will be a tug-of-war between 9,000 pounds of boys and a 9,000-pound tractor.

Hazardous Job—"I know of no job quite so hazardous as being a traffic officer," says Will H. Marsh, chief the State Division of Motor Vehicles. In less than two years 34 percent of the traffickers have been killed on duty.

JOHN HEDDERICH, Prop. H. A. SCHOLLER, Mgr.

BIG MAN FOR BIG JOB

Thomas R. Evans

THE SHIPPING INTERESTS AND CITIZENS of this port are highly elated over the selection of Charles H. Spear, formerly connected with San Francisco Harbor, as the general manager of the Port of San Pedro. So that the citizens of this community could meet him, the shipping and other business interests of the harbor district gave a dinner for him in Los Angeles the evening of September 18. Over five hundred guests were present and they all came away as big boosters for the new manager. No better way of introducing Spear can be found than by his own words, which follow:

"I wouldn't want to come right out and say what the harbor needs. It is too early for me to talk that way, and besides, every harbor has its own peculiar needs. That which is good for San Francisco would not necessarily apply in the same measure here.

"Tonnage is the fundamental requirement for any harbor; every other consideration will follow. Tariffs, to a very large extent, are what make tonnage. I am not interested in making the taxpayers supply unwarranted depths in the harbor, just for the looks of things. It is much cheaper to do some dredging when needed than to maintain a universal forty-foot depth for the ship that comes once in four or five years.

"Big talk is the regular thing in speeches at booster banquets, but it never means anything the next day. It is better to work hard for an objective and eventually obtain a substantial result than to talk up all manner of false hopes. San Pedro is in line to get much, if everybody tries, but I am not promising a golden egg for tomorrow."

From the above, it will be seen that Spear is not only modest, but it is apparent he knows what he is talking about, and says it in plain, understandable English. It is refreshing, indeed, to have the affairs of the harbor in such capable hands, after experimenting for so many years with so many men of the "shallowwater" type, whose knowledge of port affairs was very superficial.

Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 of the Native Sons of the Golden West congratulates those who were responsible in bringing to our harbor a BIG MAN to fill a BIG JOB, and the best wishes of all the citizens of San Pedro are extended to Spear.

CARD PARTY A SUCCESS.

Rudecinda Parlor No. 230 N.D.G.W. had a "kid" party August 28, and everyone not appearing in costume was fined. Games were played, and refreshments of ice-cream cones and all-day suckers were served. Katie Ross was chairman of the committee in charge.

bel Lisman--was in charge of a most successful card party at which bridge and five-hundred were played. Prizes were awarded Abagail Hag-enow, Walter Hagenow, Della McLaughlin, Gus Rlepe. A grab-bag furnished diversion after the card games, and refreshments were served.
September 25 the Parlor initiated a large class of candidates. Among the visitors was D.D.G.P.
Marvel Thomas. A program was presented and refreshments were served by the good of the order committee.Rudecinda personals: A native daughter, Marjorie Jeanette, arrived September 14 at the home of Agnes Halverson-Hruza. Mrs. T. C.
Bailey and Mrs. Louise Steinkamp, accompanied by T. C. Bailey, enjoyed a motor trip last month to Eureka, Humboldt County. Hazel Raines, her husband and daughter spent their vacation at Lake Tahoe and Yosemite last month.
Eleanor Holmberg and children have returned from a three month's vacation in the mountains.
Members attending the diamond jubilee celebration in San Francisco included Rudecinda Sepul-veda de Dodson, who captured the first prize at the opening ball, September 5, Florence Schone-man, Charlotte Bennett, Katie Ross, Dora Baly, Florence Bostic, Amelia McWilliams, Esperanza
Davis.SECOND THURSDAY BIG NIGHT.Sepulveda Parlor No. 263 N.S.G.W. initiated another large class of candidates September 17, and heard glowing accounts of the Admission Day celebration in San Francisco from those who were there. A vaudeville program was presented and refreshments were served.The second Thursday of each month has been marked down on Sepulveda's calendar as "the big night." Then, there will always be doing something to entertain and instruct. The Parlor is mapping a campaign to secure the 1927
Grand Parlor session for San Pedro.THIMBLE CLUB ORGANIZED.The Thimble Club of Long Beach Parlor No.
154 N.D.G.W. held an all-day meeting at the San Pedro home of Carrie E. Lenhouse, September 17. Members of Rudecinda Parlor No. 230
N.D.G.W. attended in the afternoon and formed a Thimble Club for that Parlor. Carrie E. Len-house was elected president, Charlotte K. Bennett vice-president, Amy Hagenow, secretary-treasurer.The next meeting of the Rudecinda Club will be held at the home of Vice-president Bennett.
Organization will be perfected and plans for a picnic completed. The members will do fancy work, too, for the Fairfax Wheelan bazar to be held in San Francisco.Third in Shipping—According to a survey of the nation's water-borne traffic of 1924 by the Federal Shipping Board, made public September 21, Los Angeles ranks third in actual tonnage of freight handled in United States ports.

citizenry is aware of the possibility of failure.

"In a word, if America be prepared for whatever eventualities may arise, America shall endure. Preparedness is the potent force which shall overcome whatever may threaten us. Now, by preparedness is not meant the possession of a mammoth fleet of battle boats, or a huge, unwieldy army. These things are necessary; they must be preserved in efficiency. But true preparedness is something higher and finer than material arrangements for war.

"True preparedness is something of the soul, a constantly increasing faith in the American Nation, a continually growing hope for the republic's betterment, a never faltering love for all that she is and all that she dreams of being. True preparedness is patriotism permeating those affairs, welding them into a great, unified force, binding them to our government with bands of steel. True preparedness is national consciousness of American greatness, and we must develop it, we must make it potent and strong, that we may gain the moral and material good it cannot fail to bring. True preparedness, in a word, is the practical preaching and manifestation of the religion of patriotism.

"If we are forever dedicated to the increase of American prestige; if we are forever pledged to the preservation of American principles; if we are forever determined to think and to act for the greater grandeur of the republic, then may we know that the destiny of the republic, then may we know that the destiny of America is to be a thing of glory along the years, striding knee-deep among the stars, walking the paths of Christian righteousness and peace in the goodness and grace of the Almighty.

"Let us, therefore, make of this jubilee and its attendant ceremonies a renewal of our obligations as American citizens. Let us say that henceforth it shall be our determination to be American in all that we do and in all that we think. Let us say that it shall be our pride throughout our years to be citizens of a nation, conceived of liberty, born of freedom and baptized in the blood of martyrs. Let us never forget the greatness of the founders, the strength of their thought, their far-seeing vision, the bravery of their souls. Let us venerate their memories and look to their teachings for counsel and advice. Let us never forget the traditions of our so-short history, the achievements of our so-young life. Let us always remember that as our fathers fought to bequeath to us the precious heritage of independence, so must we strive to keep our independence unblemished in its pristine purity, that we may pass it on to those who follow undimmed in its lustre.

"Let us swear an oath of fealty unto the Flag and unto the things it represents. Let us see in that striped banner spangled white with stars the sign of our hope and the symbol of our aspiration, the shout of our joy and the sigh of our sorrow, the reflection of all that we ever were, all that we are, all that we ever can be. Let that Flag be at once the ensign of our achievement and the pennon of our destiny. Let us be ready ever to defend the ideals that brought it into being, ever to support the constitution it guards, ever to live for the service of the land over which it so bravely flies.

"May we ever have the Bible for our guide in morals, the Constitution as our textbook of liberty and the Flag of the Republic as our symbol of patriotism. May the lessons of this day make us and keep us strong in our devotion to God and to country. May they strengthen our faith in those ideals of America which stand for that liberty which is our pride, that independence which is our boast, and that freedom of thought and word and action which is our nobility.

"If those be the lessons of this day and its attendant ceremonies, then, indeed, may we be well assured that the great edifice of American Liberty shall not crumble from a weakness from within.

"And in that assurance may we not sound a paean of peace that shall break the skies and reach the ears of God, and thus be prepared to try again the Master's way; to read out his words again and again—they are the only hope of men; the only assurance that love, not hate, shall come to birth; that Christ, not Cain, shall rule the earth.

"And then bound together by the knowledge of the common brotherhood of man, under the fatherhood of God, and stimulated by the knowledge of a common destiny, may we not all of us, without regard to class or creed, ever continue to sing and say and pray as we do today:

"Lord of the Universe: Shield us and guide us,
Trusting Thee always, through shadow and sun,
Thou hast united us, none shall divide us!
Keep us, Oh, keep us, the many 'in one'!"

A. A. Miller

(LONG BEACH CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.)

IT IS POSSIBLE THAT THE FOUNDERS OF Wilmore City may have envisioned its future as a maritime port, but the fact of the change of name to Long Beach leads one to believe that the thought foremost in the minds of the earlier residents was of a city which would appeal to tourists and homeseekers, and that the long stretch of beautiful beach extending from the mouth of the Los Angeles River on the west to Alamitos Bay on the east was considered more of an asset to the future city than was its proximity to Wilmington Bay, on which the ports of San Pedro and Wilmington had already been established.

At the time of the founding of the City of Long Beach, under the old name of Wilmore City, the Los Angeles River emptied into the eastern end of Wilmington Bay and communicated with the port of Wilmington, approximately three miles to the westward, by means of Cerritos Slough, a crooked, though navigable, waterway of approximately one hundred feet in width and of from three to six feet in depth at low tide.

From Wilmington, access was had to the open waters of San Pedro Bay through a channel whose depth had been increased from two feet at low tide to a depth of ten feet by the construction of a continuous jetty connecting the western end of Rattlesnake (now Terminal) Island with Deadman's Island.

The eastern end of Rattlesnake Island was separated from the mainland by a narrow channel, fordable at low tide, which connected San Pedro Bay with the inner Wilmington Bay. This channel was sometimes referred to as the mouth of the San Gabriel River and was also known as the eastern entrance to Wilmington Bay.

In 1891 this channel was spanned by a solid trestle constructed by the Los Angeles Terminal Railway, and ingress and egress to the inner bay, which may have been possible for small craft under favorable conditions of tide, was no longer possible, and the only means of reaching Wilmington Harbor, on the inner bay, was by the western entrance.

This condition prevailed until the year 1906, when the Los Angeles Dock and Terminal Company, in the course of improving Long Beach Harbor at the eastern end of Wilmington Bay, appealed to the Federal War Department for the removal of the trestle spanning the eastern entrance or for its replacement by a lift bridge.

This appeal, backed up by the people of Long Beach, was acted upon favorably and the Los Angeles and Salt Lake Railway, successor to the Los Angeles Terminal Railway, was required to remove the fixed trestle and to install a rolling lift bridge having a clear span of one hundred eighty feet.

The obstruction to navigation having been removed, the Los Angeles Dock and Terminal Company set about improving the entrance by dredging a channel to deep water in San Pedro Bay and by protecting this channel with parallel jetties constructed at right angles to the shoreline and intercepting the littoral drift. The inner harbor was also improved by dredging and the dredged material used in reclaiming swamp and submerged lands.

However, the very factors which had militated against the earlier development of the harbor began to make themselves evident, since the entrance channel, extending through a sandy shore, shoaled rapidly and necessitated frequent dredging, while the silt carried down the Los Angeles River during freshets shoaled the inner harbor and increased the difficulties of maintenance.

Under such conditions as these, it could not be expected that Long Beach Harbor would advance as rapidly as the western end of the harbor, where the natural protection afforded by San Pedro Hill and the San Pedro breakwater were favorable to rapid and economic development.

In consequence, the port failed to attract shipping interests and, following the local activities induced by the world war, it fell into comparative disuse, the entrance channel shoaled to such an extent as to be practically impassable and such craft as put into the port were forced to use the San Pedro entrance and to gain the harbor through the connecting channel.

Such was the condition which prevailed until the summer of 1924 when, following the passage of a $5,000,000 bond issue for harbor improvements, contracts were entered into for the dredging of the connecting channel, channels numbers two and three and the turning basin, the maximum depth provided for being forty feet at mean low water.

From August 6, 1924, to September 1, 1925, a total of 6,363,788 cubic yards had been removed, channel number one had been filled and reclaimed for industrial use and approximately one hundred acres of land had been reclaimed on the south shore of Terminal Island, while a portion of the dredgings had been used in raising the grade of the Union Pacific property on Terminal Island and in filling in behind the bulkhead of the Southern Pacific-Dollar Line terminals on the turning basin.

On July 3, 1925, the City of Long Beach entered into contract with the Hauser Construction Company for the construction of a breakwater, approximately 7,000 feet in length, and two moles with attached bulkheads. The completed breakwater will require approximately 1,250,000 tons of rip-rap stone and the bulkheads and moles an aggregate of 500,000 tons. The total amount involved in this contract is approximately $3,000,000, and the time required for completion between two and two and one-half years.

With these structures completed, the harbor of Long Beach will be accessible in all weathers, the channel will be easy to maintain, and the land reclaimed along the south shore of Terminal Island will exceed in value the cost of the entire improvement.

In addition to the protection which the break-water will afford the entrance, it will provide an anchorage in the outer harbor of approximately 500 acres, while the structure itself may be utilized to form the basis of a shipping mole having direct communication with the shore through railway lines and roadways.

The nearness of the inner harbor to the deep water of San Pedro Bay and the proximity of a large city to the harbor should prove especially attractive to the steamship passenger service.

Located opposite the lowest mountain passes in the Coast Range in the United States, Long Beach Harbor is approached by easy railway grades and, with a broad hinterland susceptible of extensive agricultural, commercial and industrial development, is in a favored position with respect to competing ports of the Pacific.

An abundant supply of water power and fuel oil provides a source of cheap power for hydro-electric and steam installations necessary for such industries as may locate in the harbor district.

The territory tributary to Long Beach comprises, approximately, 350,000 square miles, and is one of the richest sources of mineral and agricultural wealth in the world, including among its products petroleum, asphalt, gold, silver, copper, borax, clay, cement, granite, lime, salts and chemical ores. It extends as far north as San Luis Obispo, California, and Salt Lake City, Utah, and as far east as Gallup, New Mexico, and Deming, New Mexico.

The port is served by three railways, the Union Pacific, the Southern Pacific and the Pacific Electric, while paved roadways and boulevards make communication by truck possible with such sections of Southern California as are not adequately served by the railways.

HEARS OF DIAMOND JUBILEE.

At the September 16 meeting of Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W. one candidate was initiated, and reports of the diamond jubilee celebration in San Francisco were made by E. C. Crowell, W. B. Schweizer, R. J. Pogue, R. Loree and Dr. S. T. Luce, who were among those present. Dr. Luce and Schweizer, accompanied by John Cadogan, a member of Sacramento Parlor No. 3 N.S.G.W., residing in Long Beach, also visited the State Fair at the Capital City.

Charles E. Crowell, having taken unto himself a wife while his parents were away on a vacation and departed for the north to reside, resigned as third vice-president, and the other officers were advanced a station. Robert Loree was elected outside sentinel. Jointly with Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W., the Parlor had another of the enjoyable dances September 30. At the September 2 meeting one candidate was

ADMISSION DAY OBSERVED.

Long Beach Parlor No. 154 N.D.G.W. held its annual Admission Day picnic in Bixby Park, September 9. In charge of the arrangements was a committee composed of Mms. Kittle Dillon, Mary Weber, Bertha Hitt, Fred Johnson and the Thimble Club members.

In the evening the Parlor's members, along with those of Long Beach Parlor No. 239 N.S.G.W., joined the Federation of State and Provincial Societies in an Admission Day program at the Municipal Auditorium.

TO CALIFORNIA

(HELEN HUGHES.)

Here's to California, the olden,
With her silver valls of mist,
Where gray linings turn to golden
By the merry sunbeams kissed.
Here you view God's wondrous footstool,
With one spot dearer than the rest,—
'Tis the ocean-fringed land of sunset,
This wonderful land, out West.

Way up in the high Sierras.

The snowcaps, caught by the sun,
Are changed to sinking rivers
As down the mountains they run.
They sing of the wonderful valleys,
Through which they flow with a zest,
As they gladden the fruits and flowers
Of this beautiful land, out West.

Great Whitney, sire of the high peaks,
From his snow-capped dome looks down,
To view his neighbor, Death Valley,
This desert of famous renown.
And he sees the lakes and the rivers,
With their finny tribes, the best,
Like flashes of sun-lit rainbows
In the cleanest of waters, out West.

Here the vine, with its purple clusters,
Like those of the "Promised Land";
Here the citrus groves, with golden fruit,
All bowing to Nature's command.
This "Sunset Land" yields her flowers,

up the Virginia City 'Enterprise' and here was a great long piece about our trip and it showed a picture of a man surrounded by big wolves. He had written up a story about how one of our party was surrounded by wolves and what a narrow escape he had, just to make it read interesting, I guess. We had not seen a wolf on the trip, and did not have any exciting times, except wallowing through the deep snow. I told the boys I was going to quit lying, for I had found a feller that could tell bigger ones than I could.

"In '61 I was packing from Placerville to Carson City. On Christmas Day '61 it began raining. We had our cargo and the next day we left Placerville and made it to Sportsman's Hall, eleven miles. The next day we went to the Pacific House. It rained on us all this time. From Pacific House to Strawberry it began snowing on us. If we had been two hours earlier we could have made it to Lake Valley without any trouble, but the snow got so wet we could not travel so we had to stay eight days at the sixty-mile house. I had to pay six cents a pound for hay and six cents a pound for barley for the pack mules. The eighth day about two o'clock it began clearing off and the wind was in the north and it began to freeze. We left here with our packs about 2 o'clock in the morning, to get over while the snow was frozen.

"As luck would have it there was about 100 head of horses at Rank's Station in Lake Valley, and they came out to help us, and we got in and staid there three or four days, and it rained and snowed all the time we were there. Then we had a freeze and we traveled all night and got to Small's Station at the bottom of the Kingsbury Grade. Here we had to lay over two days before we could travel again. Had to wait for a freeze. From Small's we went to Van Sickle's and staid there four days. From Van Sickle's we made it to Carson in one day, but the water was terrible high. We staid in Carson till it made thirty-eight days since we left Placerville. Then we went out to the springs back of Carson and traveled in the foothills, there was too much water in the road. We made it from Carson to Dayton in one day. From Dayton we had no feed for our mules and we turned them out in the sand hills to forage for themselves, and we camped there for three weeks. After that we took up a salt marsh way out in the Walker Lake country. It is called Rhoades' Salt Marsh, and we packed salt for the mills in Virginia City. They used it in working their rock some way. We got eight cents a pound for the salt, delivered at the mills. I had thirty-five mules in the pack train.

"When the war broke out in '61 the Ormsby party of 145 went out to fight the Indians and had a battle on the Truckee River just above Pyramid Lake. 105 out of the 145 were killed. Captain Ormsby was among those that were killed. Then they got up companies from all over, one from Marysville and different places, and come over here and went out to fight the Indians. I went from Carson with Capt. Blackburn's company. We went out there, and right where they lost all their men our company has a fight. I was in camp with the horses and did not take part in this fight. I found the body of Captain Ormsby, and the body of Meridith too, after they were killed by the Indians. I was to have had two thousand dollars if I found the body of Ormsby, but I never got a cent. I don't know how many Indians were killed, but an Irishman that was with us scalped all he could find and got forty-five scalps.

"In '63 we began packing in Alpine County. There was no road from Markleeville to Silver Mountain at all. We packed right up through the graveyard and right over the hills. We packed in tons and tons of freight. We got a cent a pound for freight from Markleeville to for Babies, where all conveniences have been provided. The committee's charges will be kept there, too, until they are ready to be placed in homes for adoption.

HOME PLANS TO BE LAUNCHED.

Ramona Parlor No. 109 N.S.G.W. had the best and largest-attended meeting for some time September 18, when several candidates were initiated. Among them was John R. Quinn, former national commander of the American Legion, who was initiated for Berkeley Parlor No. 210. Under good of the order, "Captain" "Bill" Bright's famous "band," which created such a hit in San Francisco, appeared and entertained. September 25, Leon Leonard and his good of the order committee featured an "open" meeting at which another enjoyable program of entertainment was presented.

October 9, Ramona will present a literary reading which, it is promised, will prove interesting, and on the 16th a class of candidates will be initiated. October 23, President Burrell D. Neighbours will launch definite plans for Ramona's long-discussed new home. October 30, "Skinney" Leonard and his committee will present an eye-opening "stag" entertainment for Native Sons only, and something extra good is promised.

ONE YEAR OLD.

In July 1924 the University of Southern California gathered together all of the extra-hour classes affiliated with its nine colleges and concentrated them in one building, definitely establishing the tenth college, designed to include late-afternoon, evening and Saturday-morning educational work in more than one hundred courses of study of university grade and granting full university credit. Thus was established Metropolitan College, U.S.C., located in the Transportation building, Seventh and Los Angeles streets, now one year old.

The fall quarter of Metropolitan College, which opened September 21, covers an augmented list of college courses, offered at convenient hours for those engaged during the day, in fifteen departments, including agriculture, commerce, economics, education, English, French, history, home economics, physical education, political science, psychology, science, sociology, speech and Spanish.

Full information may be obtained by addressing J. P. Wernette, assistant director of Metropolitan College, U. S. C., or by calling TRinity 1701 at any time between 8 a.m. and 9:30 p.m., or by personal application at the office of the college on the thirteenth floor of the Transportation building, Seventh and Los Angeles streets.

ORGANIZING ORCHESTRA.

Corona Parlor No. 196 N.S.G.W. resumed its weekly meetings September 3 in the remodeled Catholic Women's Clubhouse with a smoker and entertainment. September 17 a class of candidates were initiated.

October 1 the Parlor will feature a dance at its meeting-place. In charge will be the good of the order committee, First Vice-president John Topham chairman. A good time is assured. An old-fashioned Halloween party is scheduled for October 29.

Corona is organizing an orchestra, and practice is being held every Thursday evening from 7 to 8. The ensemble at present includes: John W. Topham, violin; Chris Sheehan, cornet; Allan Haley, clarinet; Norbert Elwell, saxophone; Cornelius Rossue, piano. At initiation in October a traps-drummer and a banjoist will be added. The orchestra will add much to the attractiveness of the Parlor's future entertainment features.

Silver Mountain. I packed a lot of freight into Bagley Valley for Bryant and Curtz and I got $400 for one trip. It took me a day to make the trip. Pretty good day's work.

"In '63 there was a barbecue in Markleeville here, and the tables were strung from where Colonel Rickey lives clear up to the post office, about a block. 600 people had dinner here that day. Silver Mountain was a place of about two thousand inhabitants at that time. Had three hotels, two or three stores and I don't know how many saloons. In '63 there were five saloons here in Markleeville.

"The road to Silver Mountain was finished, I think, in '63. I went up on the first stage, and we had a big time up there. We had six horses on our stage. Monitor was quite a place then, had perhaps twelve houses strung along the creek and at their dances there would be two or three hundred people.

"In '63, May 4th, I started for Idaho from here. It rained eleven days on us on this trip. We went to Baker County, where we prospected for a while. There were fifteen of us in the party. I had four mules for packing, etc. We went to Morgan's Basin and staid a while and the night after we left the Indians came in and stole every horse that was left in Morgan's Basin. In Rye Valley we bought a claim and worked it till the water gave out on us. I bought the place for a road house, for $400. Then I sold out to my partner for $800, and he staid with it about a year and got the claim working good and sold out for $60,000 cash.

"I went to Portland, Oregon, to winter, but got homesick for San Francisco, so I took a boat and came down. On the boat they searched us and took all our arms from us, but we got them back when we got to San Francisco. They did this, because of the excitement over the war in the East, and the captain didn't want to take any chances of any of us getting started to shoot up things.

"I worked in Carson for Yerlinton, the railroad man, driving team, for quite a while, then I drove team for M. C. Gardner for fourteen years. Then I mined around in the Walker River country. I traveled around a good deal, but for the most part have staid on this side of the mountains."

THE EDITOR'S PAGE

(CLARENCE M. HUNT.)

SAN FRANCISCO'S WEEK OF JUBILEE, arranged in observance of the seventy-fifth anniversary of California's admission into the Sisterhood of States, September 9, 1850, was a great success.

But it required the Admission Day parade-pageant, arranged for and executed by the Orders of Native Sons and Native Daughters of the Golden West, to draw the big crowd to the Bay City. Never before in its history has such a throng jammed San Francisco as was there Wednesday, September 9, Admission Day.

The parade-pageant was unanimously declared, by Californians and visitors from other states, to have been the most gorgeous and spectacular event of its nature ever witnessed in the West. And some, who have traveled extensively and witnessed many parades, declared that it eclipsed anything of the kind ever presented anywhere in the world.

Native Son and Native Daughter Parlors from the whole state participated, and each carrying out its part to perfection, made the whole the grand and ever-to-be-remembered success that it was. To single out any particular Parlor for praise, would be unjust to the others, for each did its "bit" well and to the very best of its ability.

The Grizzly Bear for September gave extended publicity to the parade and other Admission Day features, and lack of space prevents repetition in this number. The displays of the various Parlors were beyond description in print. To the beholder, they constituted a picture of riotous color that no artist could adequately paint.

It was conservatively estimated that 650,000 people witnessed the fifteen-miles-long Admission Day parade-pageant, which required more than five hours to pass a given point. In it were 55,000 marchers and 102 floats. Native Sons and Native Daughters from every California county constituted the major portion of the great spectacle.

STATE FLAG PRESENTED LEGION.

In the beautiful rotunda of San Francisco's City Hall, September 11, the Order of Native Sons of the Golden West presented a handsome silk State (Bear) Flag to the American Legion, Department of California.

Grand President Fletcher A. Cutler made the presentation address, being introduced by Junior Past Grand President Edward J. Lynch. Judge Cutler said that patriotism was the foundation-stone of both the Legion and the Order, and referred to the part Californians had played in the world-war.

In accepting the flag for the Legion, Colonel Henry G. Mathewson promised that California's State Flag will be carried by the legionnaires, along with the American Flag, wherever they go, throughout this country or abroad.

JAPS FAIL TO DISPLAY U. S. FLAG.

An incident of the night parade of September 12 in San Francisco that caused no little comment among the onlookers, was the fact that the Jap division was the only one in the long line not headed by the American Flag.

True, the flag to which every Jap owes first and everlasting allegiance—the national emblem of Japan—was not paraded, either.

The Japs knew, of course, that to head their line with the flag of Japan alone would surely cause trouble, and so, rather than march behind the American Flag, they had neither flag.

This is another incident which should prompt the White Jap-lovers to sit up and think, and then change their course!

GRAVES REDWOOD GROVE DEDICATED IN DEL NORTE COUNTY.

The Save the Redwoods League formally dedicated and turned over to the California State Redwood Park System September 6 the recent gift of redwood forest from George Frederick Schwarz of New York. The Schwarz donation comprises 157 acres of magnificent redwood forest on the redwood highway ten miles south of Crescent City, Del Norte County, and was given in honor of Colonel Henry S. Graves, former chief of the United States Forest Service, later dean of the Yale School of Forestry and now provost of Yale University.

The Graves Grove, as the addition to the park will be known, makes available for the scenic and recreational enjoyment of visitors to the redwood country an unusual attraction in its combined features of beauty and in its accessibility by train and automobile. Scenically it is one of the finest groves in the redwood region. Fronting the Pacific Ocean, the views through the giant trees, here growing almost to the water's edge, are of rugged coastal mountains, the long sweep of irregular shore line characteristic of Northern California, and to the west the open sea. The trees will be left undisturbed in their natural state. The fern growth of the Graves Grove is luxuriant and dense, and the accompanying growth of Douglas fir, tanbark oak and rhododendron presents a further aspect of interest in the new acquisition.

JUBILEE NUMBER EXCELLENT.

No word of appreciation coming to The Grizzly Bear following the circulation of the September (jubilee) number is more appreciated than this, received in a letter to the editor from Dr. Charles W. Chapman of the University of California, Berkeley, who is an authority of the first magnitude on California history:

"Allow me to felicitate you upon the excellence of your jubilee number. The Grizzly Bear has certainly made a great record for itself."
